

Contents

List of Figures	page ix
List of Tables	xi
Preface	xiii
Notes on Supplementary Materials	xvii
Map	xix
Introduction	I
Premodern Nationalism and National Consciousness	3
The Shidafu Class and the Eleventh-Century “Imagined Community”	9
The East Asian World Order	16
Sources and Methodological Issues	23
Book Overview	25
PART I POLITICAL SPACE	29
1 Diplomacy and Cosmopolitan Sociability	31
Song Cosmopolitans	32
Cross-Border Circulation of Ethnic Categories	45
Celebrating Peace on the Steppe Frontier	49
Conclusion	71
2 Military Defense of the Northern Frontier	74
Geographic Constraints	76
Historical Approaches to Defending the Northern Frontier	81
“The Cavalry’s Advantage is on Flat Plains”	86
Song Military Lines	89
Militias and Tribesmen in the Northwest	95
Conclusion	101

viii	Contents
3	Bilateral Boundaries	105
	Eleventh-Century Border Demarcation Projects	106
	Bounding Sovereignty	113
	State Activism and the Frontier	119
	Reining in the Borderlanders	121
	Boundaries and Eleventh-Century Chinese Identity	130
	Conclusion	137
	PART II CULTURAL SPACE	141
4	The Chinese Nation	143
	Pre-Song Conceptualizations	145
	Models of the Cosmos	149
	Han Ethnicity	156
	Han Ethnic Solidarity	166
	Han Territory	174
	National Symbols, Irredentist Passions	195
	Conclusion	208
5	Mortuary Cultures across the Chinese–Steppe Divide	211
	Tombs of Eleventh-Century Northeast Asia	213
	Khitan Mortuary Culture	214
	North Chinese Mortuary Culture	218
	The Cultural Geography of the Song–Liao Frontier	224
	Hybrid Tombs	234
	Liao Ethnic Policy	239
	Conclusion	243
6	Sinic Space and Han Chinese	246
	Elite Travelers in Song China	248
	Travel and the Transformation of Worldviews	253
	“Heaven’s Barrier”	257
	Yan as Sinic Space	260
	The People of Yan	266
	Conclusion	272
	Conclusion	276
	Appendix A: Tomb Analysis and Cultural Difference	285
	Appendix B: Guide to the Databases	291
	Bibliography	295
	Index	319