

CONTENTS

PART I

SCOPE & METHOD

Chap. I. The Field of Inquiry	pages 2–14
(a) The Test of Interest, 3–8
(b) The Insufficiency of the Test of Interest, 8–11
(c) Justification of the Inquiry, 11–14
II. The Seat of Religion	15–28
(a) Religion as a Mental State, 16–21
(b) Religion as a Social Phenomenon, 21–23
(c) Religion as Theology, 23–28
III. Theories of Religion as Illusion	29–46
(a) Theories of the Hegelian Type, 30–35
(b) Theories of the Schleiermacher Type, 35–37
(c) Theories of the Kantian Type, 37–42
(d) Psychology and Metaphysics, 42–46
IV. Theory and History	47–57
(a) Quasi-historical Views, 47–51
(b) Universal Scepticism, 51–54
(c) Fact and Theory, 54–55
(d) Origin and Beginning, 55–57
V. The Religious Environment	58–73
(a) The Experience of Environment, 58–59
(b) The Sense of the Holy, 59–65
(c) The Judgment of the Sacred, 65–69
(d) The Supernatural, 69–73
VI. Standpoint	74–98
(a) In Respect to Bad Religion, 74–82
(b) In Respect to Religion and Environment, 82–86
(c) In Respect to Evolution, 86–95
(d) In Respect to Theology, 95–98

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-42694-8 - The Natural and the Supernatural

John Oman

Table of Contents

More information

viii

CONTENTS

Chap. VII. Method and Problems pages 99–117

- (a) Illuminism, 99–102
- (b) Rationalism, 102–104
- (c) The Method of Descartes, 104–108
- (d) How a Method should be determined, 108–110
- (e) The Problems, 110–114
- (f) The Order of Inquiry, 114–117

PART II

KNOWING & KNOWLEDGE

VIII. Awareness and Apprehension 120–143

- (a) Four Types of Knowing, 120–124
- (b) A Poet's Awareness and Apprehension, 124–132
- (c) The Child's Perceiving, 132–137
- (d) A Poet's Child, 138–140
- (e) Sincerity, Sensitiveness, Unity, 140–143

IX. The Individual and Individuality 144–167

- (a) The Unities, 144–147
- (b) Danger and Necessity of Theory, 147–149
- (c) Religious Outlook and Theory of Knowledge, 149–151
- (d) The Two Aspects of the Problem, 151–152
- (e) Kant's Theory of Knowing and the Individual, 152–155
- (f) The Individual Frontier and the Natural, 156–160
- (g) The Individual Frontier and the Supernatural, 160–165
- (h) Rationalism and Romanticism, 165–167

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-42694-8 - The Natural and the Supernatural

John Oman

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

ix

Chap. X. The Form of Perception	pages 168–184
(a) The Method of Inquiry, 168–170
(b) Berkeley's Divine Visual Language, 170–172
(c) Speech and Perceiving, 172–174
(d) Symbol and Meaning, 174–176
(e) The Context of Fixed Ideas, 176–178
(f) Oneness of the Senses, 178–180
(g) Space and Time, 180–184
 XI. Sensation	 185–200
(a) The Physical and Physiological Medium, 185–188
(b) The Function of Interest, 188–192
(c) Quality of Sensations, 192–195
(d) Sensation and Awareness, 195–199
(e) Impacts, 199–200
 XII. Value and Validity	 201–216
(a) Theoretical and Value Judgments, 201–204
(b) Natural and Ideal Values, 204–207
(c) Logic, Ethics and Aesthetics, 207–212
(d) Agnosticism and Value, 212–214
(e) True Enlightenment, 214–216

PART III

NECESSITY & FREEDOM

XIII. Cosmologies of Freedom and of Necessity	218–240
(a) The Two Kinds of Reliable Sequence, 218–221
(b) The Cosmological Law of Award, 221–226
(c) Karma and Positivism, 227–230
(d) The Cosmological Law of Inertia, 230–236
(e) Inadequate Theory, 236–240

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-42694-8 - The Natural and the Supernatural

John Oman

Table of Contents

More information

x

CONTENTS

Chap. XIV. Concordats between Necessity and Freedom	pages 241–257
(a) Phenomenon and Noumenon, 242–244
(b) Quantity and Quality, 244–246
(c) Concrete and Abstract, 246–253
(d) Symbol and Meaning, 253–257
XV. Evolution as a Process of the Natural	258–280
(a) Progress, 258–260
(b) Problems of Evolution, 260–261
1. The Place of Organism, 261–264
2. Life and Meaning, 264–271
3. Meaning for the Individual, 271–277
4. Environment, 277–280
XVI. Evolution as a Process of the Supernatural	281–297
(a) Selection by Environment, 281–282
(b) The Truth in the Conception, 282–284
(c) Necessity as Freedom, 284–286
(d) Responsibility, 286–289
(e) Process and Evil, 290–292
(f) Natural Process and its Theory of Sin, 292–294
(g) Metaphysical Process and its Theory of Sin, 295–297
XVII. Freedom	298–311
(a) The Will to live and the Will to live better, 298–300
(b) Determination by Character, 300–302
(c) Freedom in respect to the Natural, 303–305
(d) Freedom in respect to the Supernatural, 306–311

CONTENTS

xi

Chap. XVIII. Conscience and Conscientiousness	pages 312–329
(a) The Scope of Conscience, 312–314
(b) The Infallibility of Conscience, 314–318
(c) The Individual and the Content of Conscience, 318–323
(d) The Individual and Conscientiousness, 323–326
(e) Absolute Good and Evil and Evolution, 326–329
XIX. The Ideal and the Real	330–343
(a) Freedom and Environment, 330–332
(b) A Just World, 332–335
(c) The Natural as Award, 335–336
(d) The Ideal and Experience of the Natural, 336–339
(e) The Personal, 339–343

PART IV

THE EVANESCENT & THE ETERNAL

XX. History and Experience	346–357
(a) Tradition, 346–350
(b) Anthropological, 350–352
(c) Religious-historical, 352–354
(d) Prophetical, 354–357
XXI. Classification of Religions	358–371
(a) Standpoint, 358–360
(b) Intellectual and Ethical Principles of Valuation, 360–363
(c) A Natural and Supernatural Principle, 363–368
(d) A Classification on the Natural and Supernatural Principle, 368–371

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-42694-8 - The Natural and the Supernatural

John Oman

Table of Contents

More information

xii

CONTENTS

Chap. XXII. The Primitive	pages 372–389
(a) Beginning and Origin, 372–373
(b) Historical Perspective, 373–375
(c) Religion of Nature, 375–376
(d) Views of Primitive Religion, 376–378
(e) The Primitive Unity of Fixed Idea, 378–380
(f) The Animistic, 380–383
(g) Magic, 383–385
(h) Primitive Monotheism, 385–387
(i) Religion and Morality, 387–389
XXIII. The Polytheistic	390–404
(a) Gods as Anthropomorphic Inference, 390–392
(b) Property and the Concrete Individual, 393–395
(c) Polytheism and Civilisation, 395–397
(d) Elements of Progress, 398–400
(e) Limitations and Defects, 400–404
XXIV. The Mystical	405–426
(a) Two Types of Religions, 405–408
(b) Ways of describing their Difference, 408–412
(c) Early Indian Pantheism, 412–416
(d) Pessimism, 416–418
(e) Common Elements, 418–420
(f) Christian Mysticism, 420–426
XXV. The Ceremonial-Legal	427–445
(a) Common and distinguishing Elements of Apocalyptic Religions, 427–432
(b) Dualism as a Problem and as a Solution, 432–433
(c) The Persian Situation, 434–436
(d) Two Elements of Progress, 436–438
(e) Dualism as a Theology, 438–440
(f) Good and Evil as a Problem, 440–442
(g) Law and Prophecy, 443–445

CONTENTS

xiii

Chap. XXVI. The Prophetic	pages 446–471
(a) A Religion of Reconciliation,	446–448
(b) Prophetic Monotheism,	448–449
(c) The Prophetic Faith and Polytheism and Legalism,	449–453
(d) The Rule of God,	453–455
(e) Suffering and Sin,	455–459
(f) The Present and the Future,	459–466
(g) Religion and History,	466–469
(h) The Rule of Good and the Rule of Evil,	469–471

APPENDICES

A. The Holy	474
B. Kant and Hegel	475–477
C. The Unity of Awareness	477
D. The Origins of Modern Science	478–480
E. Biological Principles	480–481
F. An Ethical Classification of Religions	481–482
G. Some Primitive Ideas	483–485
H. Primitive Monotheism	485–488
I. The Primitive in Indian Religion	488–494
J. Mysticism	494–500
INDEX	501–506