

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-46413-1 - Colonial Policy
A. D. A. De Kat Angelino
Frontmatter
More information

COLONIAL POLICY

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-46413-1 - Colonial Policy
A. D. A. De Kat Angelino
Frontmatter
More information

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-46413-1 - Colonial Policy
A. D. A. De Kat Angelino
Frontmatter
More information

COLONIAL POLICY

BY

Dr. A. D. A. DE KAT ANGELINO

Abridged translation from the Dutch

by G. J. RENIER Ph. D.

in collaboration with the author

VOLUME I

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

THE HAGUE
MARTINUS NIJHOFF
1931

Cambridge University Press
978-1-107-46413-1 - Colonial Policy
A. D. A. De Kat Angelino
Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107464131

© Cambridge University Press 1931

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 1931

First paperback edition 2014

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

ISBN 978-1-107-46413-1 Paperback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

CONTENTS

| | |
|---|-------|
| INTRODUCTION | 1—31 |
| The Colonial Task (1–3) — The Influence of International Thought (3–4) — The Case of Holland (4–5) — Colonial Evolution and the Unity of the West (5) — First Contacts (5–9) — The French Revolution (9–11) — Further Evolution of Colonial Doctrine — France (11) — South America (11–12) — The British Empire (12–15) — The Dutch East Indies (15–23) — Intensification of Contacts (23–24) — The Eastern Revival (24–26) — The new International Orientation (26–27) — The Task before us (27) — The Coloniser's National Task (27–29) — The Growth of Information (29) — The Purpose of this Work (30) — Division of this Work (30–31). | |
| CHAPTER I — THE MEETING OF EAST AND WEST . . | 32—52 |
| Possibility and Conditions of the meeting of East and West (32–34) — The Need for Self-knowledge and Reflection (34–36) — The Influence of Closer Contact (36–38) — India (38–39) — Japan (39–40) — China-Dutch East Indies (40–41) — Increased Contacts (41–43) — The Danger of Reaction and of Disintegration (43–47) — The Meeting Inevitable (47) — Space Defeated (47–48) — Results of this Triumph (48–49) — A Meeting to be Desired (49–50) — The Higher Appreciation of Oriental Ideas (50–51) — East and West drawing together (51–52). | |
| CHAPTER II — THE CALL OF LEADERSHIP | 53—91 |
| From White Man's Burden to Universal Human Task (53–54) — Objections to Leadership of the West (54–55) — The Essence of Leadership (55–57) — The Task of Protection (57–61) — The Method of Protection (61–63) — The Task of calling forth the Power of Self-defence (63–64) — The Structure of Western Society (64–66) — Qualification of the terms East and West (66–67) — Structure of Eastern Society. A Static Community (67–69) — The Economy of Eastern Society (69–72) — The system of Eastern Law (72–77) — The townless East (77–80) — The Nature of the Task of Leadership (80–81) — Racial and Cultural Unity in the East (82–84) — Political Unity in the East (84–88) — Eastern and Medieval Society (88–91). | |

| | |
|--|---------|
| CHAPTER III — THE SPIRIT OF THE WEST | 92—114 |
| The Urge towards Distance (92–93) — Critics of the West (93–101) — The Social Horizon (101–106) — The Spiritual Zenith (106–107) — Machine, Technique and Civilisation (107–108) — The Morphological Interpretation of History (108–109) — The Decline of the West (109–110) — Analysis of the Morphological Interpretation of History (110–113) — The Universality of the Future (113–114). | |
| CHAPTER IV — THE SOUL OF THE EAST | 115—165 |
| Human Kinship and the Criterion of Humanity (115–118) — Christianity (118–119) — The World of Islam (119–120) — Hinduism and Buddhism (120–123) — Confucianism and Taoism (123–125) — Humanity and Christianity (125–127) — Manners and Morals (127–128) — Is there an Unbridgeable Gulf? (128–130) — The Immutable East (130–132) — Primitive Society (132–134) — The Criterion of Happiness (134–136) — Personal Dignity (136–139) — The Absolute Standard of Values (139–141) — Collectivism, Personality and Individualism (141–144) — Groups and Economic Development (144–147) — Communalism and Communism (147–153) — Is there a Primitive Mentality? (153–156) — Reason and Soul (156–160) — The Nursery of Morality (160–162) — The Claims of Psycho-Analysis (162–164) — Conclusion (164–165). | |
| CHAPTER V — THE SYNTHESIS OF CULTURES | 166—218 |
| The Debt of Gratitude (166–167) — The Power of Reverence (167–172) — The Criterion of Synthesis (172–177) — The Geo-Physical Factor (178–181) — Differences reduced to their True Perspective (181–185) — Misunderstandings (185–189) — Climate (189–192) — The Race (192–193) — Phenotype and Genotype (193–195) — The Power of Adaptation (195–197) — Initiative (197–198) — Race and History (198–200) — Racial Interpretation of History (200–206) — World History interpreted according to the Idea of Synthesis (206–209) — The Process of Expansion: Real and Exaggerated Difficulties (209–211) — Synthesis and Group Morality. The Alternative (211–215) — The Mysterious Power of the West (215–216) — The Right Choice (216–217) — Conclusion (217–218). | |
| CHAPTER VI — EMPIRE BUILDING IN THE ANCIENT WORLD | 219—265 |
| Synthesis within Walls (219–221) — Synthesis and Particularism (221–222) — The Greek Commonwealth (222–224) — Racialists in Antiquity — Assimilation (224–228) — China (228–231) — The Arabic Empire (231–233) — Synthesis Methods of the Old World (233–236) — The Egyptian Empire (236–237) — The Indirect Administrative Policy of Antiquity (237–238) — | |

CONTENTS

VII

The Roman Empire (238–244) — Education and the Synthesis of Antiquity (244–246) — India (246–253) — Summary (253–254) — The Lesson of the Past (254–257) — The Lesson for the Future (257–258) — The Lesson for the East (258–261) — The Lesson for the West (261–265).

| | |
|---|---------|
| CHAPTER VII — THE MODERNISATION OF EASTERN STATES | 266—349 |
| The Great Directive of Modernisation (266–268) — Stating the Problem (268–270) — Distinction between Persons and Functions (270–272) — The Clan and the State (272–275) — Towns and the Clan Spirit (275–277) — Towns and Guilds (277–279) — The Group and Personal Initiative (279–282) — From Group to Personality (282–284) — National and Colonial Governments (285–291) — Methods of Emancipation — Women in Eastern States (291–296) — The Experiment in Afghanistan (296–299) — Emancipation in Japan (299–303) — The Japanese Restoration (303–304) — Loyalty in Japan (304–307) — Piety in Japan (307–308) — The Japanese Family and the Individual (308–313) — Big Enterprise and the State in Japan (313–318) — Local Autonomy East and West (318–322) — Self-Exertion (322–325) — Japan's System of Education (325–326) — The Lesson of Japan (326–329) — China (329–331) — Social and Political Structure — Family and Clan. The Village (331–334) — China and Japan Compared (334–335) — Transition in China (336–337) — Loyalty and Piety in China (337–340) — Reform in Siam (340–342) — Method of Transition (342–343) — Assistance from the West (343–344) — Religion and Education (344–345) — Economic Aspects of Siamese Reform (345–346) — The Lesson for the Colonial World (346–349). | |
| CHAPTER VIII — EVOLUTION IN THE COLONIAL WORLD | 350—452 |
| Sentiment of Unity and Consciousness of Unity (350–352) — Developing the Consciousness of Unity (352–353) — The Sense of Unity in its Triple Aspect (353–354) — Over-population and depopulation (355–356) — The Personal and the Objective Element (356–359) — Official Abstention and Official Guidance (359–361) — Indirect Administration (361–363) — Division of Labour (363–364) — World Traffic (364–365) — Labour as a Form of Taxation (365–368) — Foreign Influence and Eastern Economy (368–370) — The Right to Work (370–372) — The Results of Division of Labour (372–375) — Static Majorities and Dynamic Minorities (375–378) — The Three Levers of Colonial Policy (378–379) — Education (379–382) — Dynamic Influence of Education (382–383) — Dynamising Eastern Culture (383–384) — Popular Education (384–388) — Popular Interest for Education (388–389) — The Popular School as a Social | |

Cambridge University Press
 978-1-107-46413-1 - Colonial Policy
 A. D. A. De Kat Angelino
 Frontmatter
More information

VIII

CONTENTS

Centre (389–391) — Western Education (391–392) — Western Education based upon the Idea of Synthesis (392–394) — Disadvantages of Neutral Education (394–396) — Education and Politics (396–397) — The Mind of the East and World Evolution (397–398) — Education and Welfare Policy (398–400) — Co-operation as the Lever of Welfare Policy (400–402) — Indifference and Abstention (402–403) — The Need for Active Interest (403–404) — Co-operation based upon Collectivism (404–409) — Through Education to Co-operation (409–413) — The Organisation of Co-operation (413–416) — Rural Development (416–418) — Co-ordination of the Forces of Evolution. The Need of a Working Plan (418–427) — The Sense of Responsibility (427–429) — Supervision and Control (429–431) — Political Construction (431–434) — Eastern Corporative Democracy and Western Dynamic Democracy (434–437) — Change and Transition in Eastern Society (437–441) — Village Autonomy — Past and Future (442–446) — Autonomous States (446–450) — Central and Popular Authorities (450–452).

| | |
|--|---------|
| CHAPTER IX — THE DIRECTING LINES OF THE FUTURE | 453—521 |
| First Directing Line: Widening Out of the Social Horizon (453–456) — Second Directing Line: The Collaboration of the Elite (456–459) — Third Directing Line: Differentiation according to Needs inside the Frame of Unity (459–470) — Fourth Directing Line: Connecting up Nationalism with the Work of Construction (471–489) — Further Reflections about the Fourth Directing Line: Public Opinion (489–492) — Final Reflections about the Fourth Directing Line: The Duration of Western Leadership (492–499) — Fifth Directing Line: Transformation of the Mechanical Structure into an Organic Dispensation (499–519) — Conclusion (519–521). | |
| INDEX | 522—530 |

