- Trade with Eastland
Elizabethan expansion and movement to Baltic, 1–8 beginnings of decline and Dutch competition, 8–11 depression of 1620
causes: attributed to Cockayne’s project, 12; documents giving reasons for decay of trade: (1) petition by Eastland company in 1620, 13, 21–2, 25, 168–70, (2) referees’ report thereon, 13, 16, 27, 170–1, (3) and (4) papers on decay of Eastland trade and on scarcity of silver, 13; reasons adduced by Eastland merchants: (1) ‘rising of the moneys’, 14–17, 20, (2) intrusion by Dutch in import trade, 18–20, Dutch export of silver, 19, 20, 22, 23 consequences: unemployment in shipping, 20–2, 23; in cloth trade, 23–4; decline in cloth export, 20, 21, 22–3; drain of money abroad, 20, 23 remedies: Eastland company’s requested proclamation prohibiting export and import save in English ships, 24–6, 31–2, 76, 117, 163, 175–6; other Eastland company proposals, 26; Privy Council’s committee of investigation, 26; clothing commission’s recommendations (on export of gold and silver), 28 (on export duty on cloth) 28, (on re-export of Baltic corn) 28–9, (proposals based on earlier navigation bill) 30–1
