

Interactive Democracy

How can we confront the problems of diminished democracy, pervasive economic inequality, and persistent global poverty? Is it possible to fulfill the dual aims of deepening democratic participation and achieving economic justice, not only locally but also globally? Carol C. Gould proposes an integrative and interactive approach to the core values of democracy, justice, and human rights, looking beyond traditional politics to the social conditions that would enable us to realize these aims. Her innovative philosophical framework sheds new light on social movements across borders, the prospects for empathy and solidarity with distant others, and the problem of gender inequalities in diverse cultures, and also considers new ways in which democratic deliberation can be enhanced by online networking and extended to the institutions of global governance. Her book will be of great interest to scholars and upper-level students of political philosophy, global justice, social and political science, and gender studies.

CAROL C. GOULD is Distinguished Professor of Philosophy at Hunter College and in the Doctoral Programs in Philosophy and Political Science at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. She is the author of Globalizing Democracy and Human Rights (Cambridge, 2004) and Rethinking Democracy: Freedom and Social Cooperation in Politics, Economy, and Society (Cambridge, 1988), and has edited and co-edited several books including Cultural Identity and the Nation-State (2003), The Information Web: Ethical and Social Issues in Computer Networking (1989), and Women and Philosophy (1976).

Interactive Democracy

The Social Roots of Global Justice

Carol C. Gould

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-60741-5 — Interactive Democracy
Carol C. Gould
Frontmatter
More Information

Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8EA, United Kingdom
One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA
477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia
314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi – 110025, India
103 Penang Road, #05–06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of Cambridge University Press & Assessment, a department of the University of Cambridge.

We share the University's mission to contribute to society through the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org
Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107607415

© Carol C. Gould 2014

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press & Assessment.

First published 2014

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication data

Gould, Carol C.

Interactive democracy : the social roots of global justice / Carol C. Gould.
pages cm

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-107-02474-8 (hardback)

1. Democracy – Social aspects. 2. Social justice. 3. Human rights. I. Title.

JC423.G665 2014

321.8 – dc23 2014014931

ISBN 978-1-107-02474-8 Hardback

ISBN 978-1-107-60741-5 Paperback

Cambridge University Press & Assessment has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
978-1-107-60741-5 — Interactive Democracy
Carol C. Gould
Frontmatter
More Information

For Michael Gould-Wartofsky
and in memory of Marx Wartofsky

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
Introduction	1
Part I A theoretical framework
1 A human rights approach to global justice: elements of theory and practice	13
2 A social ontology of human rights	34
3 Interpreting freedom dynamically: beyond liberty and autonomy to positive freedom	58
4 Is there a human right to democracy?	81
Part II The social roots of global justice
5 Transnational solidarities	99
6 Does global justice presuppose global solidarity?	119
7 Recognition and care in global justice	132
8 Gender equality, culture, and the interpretation of human rights	148
9 The sociality of free speech: the case of humor across cultures	164
10 Violence, power-with, and the human right to democracy	179

viii Contents

Part III Interactive democracy – transnational, regional, global

11	Diversity, democracy, and dialogue in a human rights framework	197
12	What is emancipatory networking?	213
13	Structuring transnational democracy: participation, self-determination, and new forms of representation	226
14	Democratic management and international labor rights	242
15	Regional vs. global democracy: possibilities and limitations	256
	Works cited	270
	Index	285

Acknowledgements

My greatest debt is to my son Michael Gould-Wartofsky and to Marx Wartofsky, my late partner of blessed memory. My son Michael, a doctoral student at NYU and a published author in his own right, has provided constant inspiration and encouragement to me throughout the writing of this book. I have benefited greatly from his acute social understanding, his political engagement, his attunement to the arts of language, and his personal generosity and kindness. He shares these qualities with his father Marx, whom we call “our Marx.” I learned much from Marx’s profound philosophical insight and synthetic modes of understanding, and deeply admired the way he combined these with a humane appreciation of diverse perspectives in knowledge and in life, and a commitment to social justice.

Thanks are due to my colleagues at Hunter College and the Graduate Center of the City University of New York (CUNY), Temple University, and George Mason University for many helpful discussions over the past several years, and especially to Noel Carroll, Omar Dahbour, Adam Etinson, Virginia Held, John Lango, Peter Mandaville, Michael Menser, Joseph Schwartz, Sibyl Schwarzenbach, Arun Sood, John Wallach, and Shelley Wilcox.

I am grateful to my close colleagues in the profession with whom I have been privileged to collaborate on themes related to this work, including Tim Hayward, Alistair Macleod, and Sally Scholz.

I have had stimulating conversations with many friends and professional associates who have given me valuable feedback, including Daniele Archibugi, Seyla Benhabib, James Bohman, Bruce Baum, Deen Chatterjee, Tom Christiano, Frank Cunningham, Yossi Dahan, John Dryzek, Andreas Føllesdal, Rainer Forst, Leslie Francis, Nancy Fraser, Pablo Gilabert, Robert Goodin, Philip Green, Cindy Holder, Gregg Horowitz, Ioanna Kuçuradi, Anthony Langlois, Arto Laitinen, Matthew Liao, Jane Mansbridge, Raffaele Marchetti, William McBride, Darrel Moellendorf, Julie Mostov, David Reidy, Massimo Renzo, Fiona Robinson, Mortimer Sellers, James Sterba, Joan Tronto, Gülriz Uygur, and David Wood.

x Acknowledgements

Acknowledgement is also due to colleagues and administrators who provided me with valuable time and opportunities to work on this book, including Frank Kirkland, Laura Keating, Joseph Rollins, Peter Stearns, Iakovos Vasiliou, and Thomas Weiss.

I have been fortunate to be able to present early versions of most of the chapters at conferences around the world and I am grateful to the sponsors and audiences for their insightful questions and comments. I also benefited from helpful comments and suggestions received from two anonymous reviewers of the manuscript for Cambridge University Press, as well as from my astute editor at the press, Hilary Gaskin.

My graduate students have helped me tremendously over the years, with probing questions and valuable insights. I am especially grateful to my Research Assistant Joshua Keton for his incisive comments and first-rate editorial assistance over the past five years. I received important editorial help from Chloe Cooper Jones. I would also like to thank the following students from the Graduate Center of CUNY in philosophy and political science for their comments: Brandon Aultman, Elvira Basevich, Kenneth Courtney, Emily Crandall, Laura Kane, Jamie Lindsay, John McMahan, Kamran Moshref, Kristopher Peterson-Overton, Carolyn Plunkett, and Gregory Zucker. I am grateful to my Temple students Francis Raven, Robert Gertz, Heather Coletti, and Matt Smetona, to Katherine Razzano from George Mason University, and to Matt Whitt from Vanderbilt. Finally, I have benefited from my interactions with my talented undergraduates at Hunter College, Temple University, and George Mason University.

I would like to give deep thanks to my nephews Andrew Gould and Jon Gould and their families for their generous, steady, and kind support over the years. I also want to express my appreciation to my good friend Eric Ross, and to Annie Gow, Bob and Claire Hotchkiss, Sol Macner, Rob Wurtzel, Paul Jenner, and my other friends in New York City and the Berkshires for the warm encouragement they have given me at various stages in this project.

Earlier versions of material in several of the book's chapters have appeared previously in the following publications, which I would like to acknowledge here:

"Approaching Global Justice through Human Rights: Elements of Theory and Practice," in Global Justice and International Economic Law, ed. Chi Carmody, Frank Garcia, and John Linarelli (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2012), 27–43.

"Retrieving Positive Freedom and Why it Matters," in Isaiah Berlin and the Politics of Freedom, ed. Bruce Baum and Robert Nichols (New York: Routledge, 2013), 102–13.

Acknowledgements

xi

“Reconceiving Autonomy and Universality as Norms for Global Democracy,” in Global Democracy and its Difficulties, ed. Anthony J. Langlois and Karol Edward Soltan (London: Routledge, 2008), 160–72.

“Is there a Human Right to Democracy?” in Human Rights: The Hard Questions, ed. Cindy Holder and David Reidy (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2013), 285–300.

“Transnational Solidarities,” Special Issue on Solidarity, ed. Carol Gould and Sally Scholz, Journal of Social Philosophy 38, no. 1 (spring, 2007): 146–62.

“Recognition in Redistribution: Care and Diversity in Global Justice,” Southern Journal of Philosophy 46, Supplement (2008): 91–103.

“Women’s Human Rights as Equality through Difference,” in Gender Identities in a Globalized World, ed. Ana Marta Gonzalez and Victor J. Seidler (Amherst, NY: Prometheus/Humanity Books, 2008), 35–52.

“Structuring Global Democracy: Political Communities, Universal Human Rights, and Transnational Representation,” Special Issue on Global Democracy and Political Exclusion, Metaphilosophy 40, no. 1 (January, 2009): 24–46; republished as Global Democracy and Exclusion, ed. Ronald Tinnevelt and Helder De Schutter (Oxford: Wiley-Blackwell, 2010).

“Self-Determination beyond Sovereignty: Relating Transnational Democracy to Local Autonomy,” Special Issue on Democracy and Globalization, ed. Carol C. Gould and Alistair Macleod, Journal of Social Philosophy 37, no. 1 (spring, 2006): 44–60.

“Regional vs. Global Democracy: Advantages and Limitations,” in Global Democracy: Normative and Empirical Perspectives, ed. Daniele Archibugi, Mathias Koenig-Archibugi, and Raffaele Marchetti (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2011), 115–31.