Chapter II

AGNOSTICISM, LEGITIMATE AND ILLEGITIMATE

1	If there is no Universe, Metaphysics and Agnosticism are both excluded	page 23
2	Spencerian Agnosticism	24
3	Criticism of Spencerian Agnosticism	25
4	Scholastic Agnosticism	27
5	The Procedure of Critical Agnosticism compared with that of Science	32
6	The Danger in Agnosticism of evading Difficulties	33

BOOK TWO

THE UNITY OF THE UNIVERSE

Chapter III

THE HEGELIAN DOCTRINE

1	The Russell-Moore Rejection of the Unity of the Universe	36
2	The Hegelian Doctrine of the Unity of the Universe (the Absolute)	37
3	The Doctrine of the Incompleteness of the Parts of the Universe does not imply that the Whole can be known from a Single Part	39
4	The Relation of Self-contradiction to Incompleteness in Hegelian Doctrine	42
5	The Hegelian Treatment of Change and Succession	45

6	Self-consistency is not Self-completeness	page 46
7	The Nature of Self-evidence	47
8	Can an Infinite Collection or Series be Self-complete?	50
9	The Temporal and the Eternal	51

Chapter IV

RUSSELL'S SCEPTICAL THEORY OF KNOWLEDGE

1	Russell's Rejection of the Unity of the Universe and so of Constructive Metaphysics	53
2	Russell's Theory of Knowledge. (a) Knowledge by Acquaintance and Knowledge About	54
3	Russell's Theory of Knowledge. (b) Knowledge by Description	59
4	Summary of the foregoing Account of Russell's Theory of Knowledge.	65
5	Criticism of Russell's Theory of Knowledge	66

Chapter V

UNIVERSALS, PARTICULARS AND POSSIBILITIES

1	Universals and Particulars	77
2	The Principle of the Incompleteness of the Data of Experience	81
3	Criticism of Russell's View of Descriptive Judgments as asserting Probability and not Necessary Connexion	82
4	Russell's Principle of Induction and its Relation to his View of Universals	86

MATTER AND OUR KNOWLEDGE OF IT

Chapter VI

NEO-REALISM AND
THE BERKELEY-MILL THEORY

1	Transitional	110
2	Common-sense Presuppositions about Matter	111
3	The Philosophical Problem	113
4	Primary Sense-Knowledge	116
5	Fundamental Alternatives	119
6	Neo-Realism	120
7	Berkeley and Mill	122
8	Criticism of the Berkeley-Mill Position	124
9	The Relation of the System of Possible Sensa to the Physical Order	127

Chapter VII

HOW ARE PHYSICAL OBJECTS
INITIALLY KNOWN?

1	Physical Objects are not inferred from Sensa	page 132
2	The Essential Incompleteness of what is immediately experienced accounts for our Knowledge of the Physical World	133
3	Other Examples of this mode of Knowing. (a) Knowledge of Universals	134
4	Other Examples of this mode of Knowing. (b) Knowledge of Sense-Impressions through Mental Imagery	135
5	Other Examples of this mode of Knowing. (c) Memory-Knowledge in general	136
6	Other Examples of this mode of Knowing. (d) Knowledge of Time-Relations	137
7	Inference	138
8	Self-evidence, as a Limiting Case of Infer- ence, cannot supply Independent Pre- mises	139
9	Knowledge of Universals and of Particu- lars	140
10	To assign the Source of Knowledge is not to assign all its Conditions	140
11	The Datum of Primary Sense-Know- ledge—the Distinction between the Psychologically Primitive and the Logically Primary	142
12	The Connexion between Physical Fact and Perceptual Sensum	144
13	Focal Perception	147

Chapter VIII

EXTERNAL AND INTERNAL PERCEPTION

- | | | |
|---|--|-----------------|
| 1 | The Part played by Internal Perception in our Knowledge of an External Order | page 150 |
| 2 | Internal Perception as depending on Sensa under Subjective Control | 153 |
| 3 | Internal Perception as depending on Organic Sensibility | 155 |
| 4 | The General Principle on which Internal Perception depends | 156 |
| 5 | The Part played by Effort against Resistance in distinguishing the Physical Order from the Order of Sense-Experience | 157 |
| 6 | Internal and External Perception in Visual Experience | 159 |
| 7 | Local Signs and the Local Sign Continuum | 162 |
| 8 | The External Perception of one Sense-Organ by means of another, and the Relation of this to Internal Perception | 163 |

Chapter IX

CORRELATION OF EXTERNAL DATA

(a) CAUSAL RELATIONS

- | | | |
|---|--|-----|
| 1 | Correlation begins in the Earliest Stages of Perceptual Process | 167 |
| 2 | Correlation involved in the Distinction of the External Object perceived from the Conditions of its Perception | 168 |
| 3 | The Apprehension of Causal Relations depends on the Incompleteness of Temporal Events | 173 |

7	Temporal and Spatial Proximity	178
8	Persistence in Change	180
9	Concomitant Variation	180
10	Constant and Frequent Repetition	181
11	Summary	183

Chapter X

CORRELATION OF EXTERNAL DATA
(b) NON-CAUSAL PROPERTIES OF PHYSICAL OBJECTS

1	Increasing Knowledge of the Objective World depends on Causation	185
2	Measurement by Superposition	186
3	How Superposition is itself perceived	187
4	Rejection of the Berkeleyan View of the Relation between Visible and Tangible Extension	189
5	Our Knowledge of Matter is Relative, Partial and Schematic	190
6	Our Knowledge of Secondary Qualities is even more imperfect than of Primary	191
7	Criticism of the Denial that Secondary Qualities are Physically Real	193

Chapter XI

THE STATUS OF SENSUA

- | | | |
|---|--|-----------------|
| 1 | Sensa belong fundamentally to Matter, not to Mind | page 196 |
| 2 | Though Material, Sensa fall outside of Physical Existence | 197 |
| 3 | Sensa are a Part of the Material World as a Whole | 197 |
| 4 | The Distinction between Knowledge of Sensa and Knowledge through Sensa compared with that between Matter as Phenomenon and Matter as it is in itself | 199 |

BOOK FOUR

THE UNIVERSAL CORRELATION OF MIND AND MATTER

Chapter XII

THE RELATION OF THE MIND TO ITS OWN SENSUA

- | | | |
|---|---|-----|
| 1 | The Neo-Realist Challenge to Berkeley | 202 |
| 2 | Sensa and Subjective States are experienced in the same way | 203 |
| 3 | Can Sensa exist unexperienced? The prima facie Difference between Visual and other Sensa | 204 |
| 4 | The Relation of Sensa to Subjective States and Processes | 207 |
| 5 | The Evidence that Sensa exist only as experienced is also Evidence that the Material World exists only as experienced | 208 |

Chapter XV

BODY AND MIND, AND THE DEPENDENCE OF FINITE INDIVIDUALS ON A UNIVERSAL MIND

- | | | |
|---|--|-----------------|
| 1 | The Psychophysical Relation, as ordinarily interpreted, is also a Relation of Matter to Matter | page 233 |
| 2 | The Connexion of Sensa with Brain-Process is a special instance of the Connexion between Matter as Phenomenon and as it is in itself | 234 |
| 3 | The Difficulty presented by the Difference in Nature between Brain-Process and Sensa | 235 |
| 4 | The Genesis of an Individual Subject and its Dependence on a Universal Mind | 237 |
| 5 | Psychophysical Dispositions | 238 |
| 6 | The Transmission Theory of William James | 239 |
| 7 | Extent and Limits of our Knowledge of the Universal Mind | 241 |

BOOK FIVE

MIND AND OUR KNOWLEDGE OF IT

Chapter XVI

OUR KNOWLEDGE OF OURSELVES, OTHER
MINDS AND GOD

- | | | |
|---|--|-----|
| 1 | The Self's Awareness of itself | 244 |
| 2 | Knowledge of other Minds is not reached by Inference but is involved in Self-awareness | 246 |
