I may be exceptional, but ...

Twice a year in the UK, around 3,000 exceptional people are awarded a title, award or medal to reward aspects of charitable work, service to an industry or even a specific act of bravery.

Most people, of course, are delighted to receive recognition and <sup>1</sup>_b enjoy seeing their names in the papers and meeting the Queen. However, every year, about 50 people refuse an award. Normally, these are kept secret – but recently, a list revealed over 300 famous people who have said "Thanks, but no thanks" to Her Majesty.

Some <sup>2</sup> believe that the honours system is ridiculous. David Bowie, the musician, who turned down a knighthood in 2003, said, "I seriously don't know what it's for." Having also refused a CBE (Commander of the British Empire) in 2000, it seems <sup>3</sup> unlikely he will ever accept any honour.

Some people must have <sup>4</sup>______ regretted refusing an award the first time because they later accepted one – examples include the author Graham Greene and the film director Alfred Hitchcock.

Others have been <sup>5</sup>_____disappointed with their award and have refused it because they expected something better. Roald Dahl, the children's author, was offered an OBE (Officer of the Order of the British Empire), but wanted a knighthood so that his wife would get the title 'Lady Dahl'.

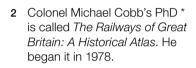

Many of the refusals, however, are at least in part a form of political protest. Stephen Hawking, the scientist, was <sup>6</sup>______ frustrated with the government's attitude toward scientific funding over the years. Hence, he turned down his knighthood.

Clearly there are a variety of reasons why people might do this, and not even good friends <sup>7</sup>______ agree on the subject. Mick Jagger from the Rolling Stones is now 'Sir Mick' after accepting a knighthood in 2003. However, bandmate Keith Richards refused his CBE and said, "It's not what the [Rolling] Stones is about, is it?"
