

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-62800-7 - The Origin of Man: Second Edition Revised and Enlarged

Carveth Read

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

	PAGE
Preface to The Origin of Man and of His Superstitions . . . . .	v
Preface to The Origin of Man (2nd edition) . . . . .	vii

CHAPTER I

An Hypothesis concerning our Origin . . . . .	1
§ 1. Man was differentiated from the Anthropoids by becoming a hunter; perhaps in the Oligocene period. Difficulties in beginning the adventure. Its locality . . . . .	1-6
§ 2. Natural Selection; how understood in this book . . . . .	7-8
§ 3. Logical character of our hypothesis . . . . .	8-10

CHAPTER II

Prey and Competitors of Lycopithecus . . . . .	11
§ 1. Climate and landscape in Oligocene and Miocene . . . . .	11-12
§ 2. Herbivorous animals . . . . .	12-13
§ 3. Anthropoids—stature of Lycopithecus . . . . .	14
§ 4. His competitors and enemies . . . . .	14-16
§ 5. Summary . . . . .	16-17

CHAPTER III

Physical Differentiation of Man . . . . .	18
§ 1. The erect gait; specialization of legs and feet . . . . .	18-19
§ 2. —of the hands and arms . . . . .	19-20
§ 3. Reduction of teeth and jaws; enlargement of cranium . . . . .	20-21
§ 4. Alimentary canal . . . . .	21
§ 5. Man's relatively naked skin . . . . .	21-25
§ 6. A dominant animal throughout the world . . . . .	26
§ 7. Lycopithecus , Proteranthropus , Homo . . . . .	27
§ 8. Modern races of Homo ; the Nordic sub-race; variation of individuals . . . . .	27-30

CONTENTS

xi

CHAPTER IV

	PAGE
Cultural Consequences . . . . .	31
§ 1. Social life of the pre-human stock formed by co-operation in hunting	31–32
§ 2. Beginnings of speech . . . . .	32–34
§ 3. Development of intelligence . . . . .	34–35
§ 4. The making of fire . . . . .	35–37
§ 5. Cannibalism . . . . .	37–38
§ 6. Loss of seasonal marriage . . . . .	38–39
§ 7. Summary of Chaps. III and IV . . . . .	39–41

CHAPTER V

Mental Differentiation of the Hominidæ . . . . .	42
§ 1. Heredity, Adaptation, Accommodation . . . . .	42–43
§ 2. Mentality of the original stock . . . . .	43–45
§ 3. Conditions of our differentiation: the hunting life; geographical diffusion; social life; imaginations concerning the supernatural . . . . .	45–49
§ 4. Primal Society: types of mammalian gregariousness. Supposed views of Darwin, Atkinson, etc. . . . .	49–52
§ 5. Organization of the hunting-pack persists in all human societies	52–53

CHAPTER VI

Psychology of the Hunting-Pack . . . . .	54
§ 1. Wolf-pack the nearest parallel . . . . .	54
§ 2. (1) Interest in the chase and in killing; (2) gregariousness; (3) various modes of sympathy; (4) aggressiveness; (5) claim to territory; (6) recognition of leaders; (7) submission to the pack; (8) emulation; (9) order of precedence; (10) strategy and persistence in pursuit; (11) division of prey . . . . .	54–61
§ 3. Effects of the hunting life on intelligence . . . . .	61–63
§ 4. Contrasted character of the herbivorous herd . . . . .	63–65

CHAPTER VII

Acquisitions in Culture and Custom . . . . .	66
§ 1. Antiquity of human differentiation; its later forms . . . . .	66–67
§ 2. Evidence of stone artefacts; full adaptation to the hunting life prior to the Neolithic stage . . . . .	67–70
§ 3. Slow progress of culture . . . . .	70–71
§ 4. Constructive ability . . . . .	71
§ 5. Growth of language . . . . .	71–73

Cambridge University Press

978-1-107-62800-7 - The Origin of Man: Second Edition Revised and Enlarged

Carveth Read

Table of Contents

More information

xii

CONTENTS

	PAGE
§ 6. Growth of customs; marriage . . . . .	73-74
§ 7. Property . . . . .	74-76
§ 8. War . . . . .	76-77
§ 9. Amusements . . . . .	78
§ 10. Laughter and lamentation . . . . .	78-79

CHAPTER VIII

Moralization of the Hunters . . . . .	80
§ 1. Anthropoid and human passions . . . . .	80-81
§ 2. Friendliness and benevolence . . . . .	81-82
§ 3. Moral sense—Darwin's account of it . . . . .	83-84
§ 4. How influenced by customs . . . . .	84-86
§ 5. —and by the growth of industry and intelligence . . . . .	86-88

CHAPTER IX

Influence of the Imaginary Environment . . . . .	89
§ 1. Growth of imaginative beliefs—primitive Man . . . . .	89-91
§ 2. How they arose . . . . .	91-93
§ 3. Evil and good of these beliefs . . . . .	93-94
§ 4. Influence of wizards and priests on early government . . . . .	94-97
§ 5. —and on civilization . . . . .	97-98

Note on the locus of the differentiation of Lycopithecus (p. 5) 98

Index . . . . . 99