

Contents

List of figures	page viii
List of maps	ix
Acknowledgments	x
Notes on the text	xii
Timeline	xiii
Introduction	1
1 Confucianism as cultural capital (mid-first millennium CE–late sixteenth century CE)	16
2 Confucianism as religion (1580s–1720s)	41
3 Confucianism as public sphere (1720s–1868)	66
4 Confucianism as knowledge (1400s–1800s)	94
5 Confucianism as liberalism (1850s–1890s)	118
6 Confucianism as fascism (1868–1945)	141
7 Confucianism as taboo (1945–2015)	167
Epilogue: China and Japan: East Asian modernities and Confucian revivals compared	183
Notes	192
Works Cited	201
Index	225