

SHAKESPEARE'S OPPOSITES

The Admiral's Men is the acting company that staged Christopher Marlowe's plays while its companion company was giving the first performances of Shakespeare. Unlike the Shakespeare company, there is a great deal of evidence available telling us what the Admiral's company did and how it staged its plays. Not only do we know far more about the design of its two playhouses, the Rose and the Fortune, than we know of any other playhouse from the time, including the Globe, but we have Henslowe's Diary. This recorded everything the Admiral's company performed from 1594 to 1600 and after, what the company bought to stage its plays, who performed which parts, who wrote which plays, and even how much they were paid. The first history to be written of the Admiral's Men, this book tells us not only about the company's own work, but also much about how the Shakespeare company operated.

ANDREW GURR is Emeritus Professor of English at the University of Reading. As chief academic advisor, he was a key figure in the project to rebuild Shakespeare's Globe Theatre in London. His many publications include The Shakespearean Stage, 1574–1642 (Cambridge, fourth edition 2009), Playgoing in Shakespeare's London (Cambridge, third edition 2004) and The Shakespearean Playing Companies (1996). Professor Gurr regularly contributes articles on Shakespeare to publications ranging from Shakespeare Survey to the Times Literary Supplement.

SHAKESPEARE'S OPPOSITES

The Admiral's Company 1594–1625

ANDREW GURR

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press & Assessment
 978-1-107-66943-7 — Shakespeare's Opposites: The Admiral's Company 1594–1625
 Andrew Gurr
 Frontmatter
More Information

CAMBRIDGE
 UNIVERSITY PRESS

Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8EA, United Kingdom
 One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA
 477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia
 314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi – 110025, India
 103 Penang Road, #05–06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of Cambridge University Press & Assessment, a department of the University of Cambridge.

We share the University's mission to contribute to society through the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781107669437

© Andrew Gurr 2009

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press & Assessment.

First published 2009

First paperback edition published 2012

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication data

Gurr, Andrew.

Shakespeare's opposites : the Admiral's company, 1594–1625 / Andrew Gurr.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-0-521-86903-4

1. Admiral's Men (Theater company)—History.
2. Theatrical companies—England—London—History—17th century.
3. Theatrical companies—England—London—History—16th century.
4. Repertory theater—England—London—History—17th century.
5. Repertory theater—England—London—History—16th century. I. Title.

PN2599.5.T54G87 2009

792'.09421—dc22

2008054458

ISBN 978-0-521-86903-4 Hardback

ISBN 978-1-107-66943-7 Paperback

Cambridge University Press & Assessment has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

HERE'S TO THE ADMIRAL'S MEN
(Adrian Fennyman, alias Tom Wilkinson, Shakespeare in Love)

Contents

Acknowledgements	page viii
Illustrations	ix
1 The company's unique features	1
2 Disguise and travel	49
3 Henslowe's accounts and the play-texts	82
4 Staging at the Rose and the Fortune	120
5 The company's repertory practices	162
Appendix 1 The plays	201
Appendix 2 The players	274
Appendix 3 Travelling	289
Appendix 4 Performing at court	293
References	297
Index	308

Acknowledgements

For the illustrations in this book, my thanks are due to the British Library (1, 4, 9, 15, 16, 17), Dulwich College (2, 7), the Photographic Survey, the Courtauld Institute of Art (3), Records of Early English Drama (Subhash Shanbhag, 5), Penguin Books (6), the Museum of London (8 and 13), the Royal Library, Stockholm (10). Jon Greenfield (11), and the Library of the Rijksuniversiteit Utrecht (12 and 14).

A multitude of other thanks go to my advisers and helpers, above all my scholarly friends who have read drafts and advised me to make changes, John Astington, Susan Ceresano and Grace Ioppolo. To Julian Bowsher I owe a particular debt for showing me, sharing with me and arguing over some of the multitude of remnants from the Rose now identified and secured in the Museum of London's depot in Islington. I owe unspecified debts to my fellow-members of the Rose Theatre Trust, who share with me the hope that on some remote day enough money will be made available to resume the all-too abruptly truncated archaeological scrutiny of the Rose's remains. To Sarah Stanton of Cambridge University Press, as always, I owe the constant pleasure of her help and encouragement. Finally, I owe a comprehensive debt to all those friends, colleagues and enemies whose consistent preoccupation with Shakespeare pushed me into this quest for his shadow in the Admiral's Men.

Illustrations

1	Scouring a musket.	page 9
2	Edward Alleyn.	16
3	Charles Howard, the Lord Admiral, in 1595.	19
4	Alleyn as the Genius of the City.	21
5	A map of the company's known visiting places on their tours.	74
6	A plan of Hardwick Hall, Derbyshire.	80
7	Signatures of writers and players from the Henslowe papers.	107
8	A Museum of London groundplan, showing the remains of the Rose.	126
9	The Rose, Norden, 1592.	128
10	The Rose, Norden, 1600.	129
11	Jon Greenfield's Rose.	130
12	De Witt's Swan.	131
13	The fourteen-sided playhouse in Paris Garden.	132
14	Part of a view from the north, possibly of the Fortune.	141
15	The Revels Office paper.	164
16	The title-page of The Spanish Tragedy , 1615.	187
17	The 1616 title-page of Doctor Faustus .	193