

Index

- “A. B.,” pseud., on British excesses in India, 140, 141
- “A. M.,” pseud., on American motives for resisting British authority, 113–14
- Abingdon, Willoughby Bertie, 4th Earl of, on American War, 213–14, 227; on British control of Irish trade, 272; on Ireland and the West Indian colonies as sympathetic to American cause, 223–24
- Absenteeism, of Irish landlords, in Britain, 245–51, 335
- Acadians, expulsion of, from Nova Scotia, 17–18, 357
- Account of Ireland in 1773*. See Macartney, George, Earl
- Account of the European Settlements in America*. See Burke, William
- Adaptation, of migrants to local norms in colonies, 57–58
- Address to the Proprietors of East India Company* (1769), anon., on British excesses in India, 129–30
- Address to the Proprietors of East India Company* (1783). See Holwell, J. Z.
- Address to the Public*... [on] Quebec Bill. See “Unconnected Whig, An”
- Address to the Right Honourable L–d M–ns–field*, anon., on English humanity, 109; on Quebec Act, 282–83
- Address to the Rulers of the State*. See “Friend to Great Britain, A”
- Administration, British, after 1766, and debates over handling American question, 104–05, 111–19, 213–14; conducting the American War, 229–39, 257; employing military and naval force against Americans, 116–17, 201–09; and offering concessions to America, 200, 230
- Administration of the Colonies*. See Pownall, Thomas
- Advantageous Situation of Great Britain*, anon., on ministerial corruption as source of American War, 214
- Affection, colonial for Britain, as basis for imperial connection, 107
- Africa, as site for colonial and civilizing projects, 35, 159–60; and the excesses of empire, 346–47
- African slave trade, abolition proposed and debated, 160, 317–28, 360; acceptance of, 62, 157–59; amelioration proposed, 170–71, 185–86; British complicity in, 176, 182–84, 189–90, 321–22; economic utility of, considered, 37, 46, 160, 163–64, 177, 178, 184, 317, 330–31, 354; expansion projected, 166; and

African slave trade (cont.)

languages of humanity and justice, 156–99; legitimacy debated, 168–69, 179; objections to, 7, 13, 19, 55, 63–64, 81, 148, 156, 160–62, 165, 167–68, 171, 179, 185–86, 188–89, 326–28, 330–31, 341, 343, 346–47; public condemnation of, 328–32; revival expected in 1783, 317

African Trade. See Postlethwayt, Malachy

African voices, authorial use of, on colonial slave systems, 59, 63–64

Alarm; or the Irish Spy, anon., on Irish Protestant commitment to penal laws, 291

Alienization, language of, applied to foreigners, 52

Allen, William, on American question, 95–96; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 192–93

Alleyne, John, argument in Somerset case, 179

Almon, John, on Administration's responsibility for starting and continuing American War, 232; on association between Irish resistance and American War, 332; on declining public support for American War, 239; on implications of conduct of American War and loss of colonies for British claims to humanity, 242; publishes Carib War papers, 8

Alterity, language of, as applied to Anglo-Irish settlers, 244; to British colonists, 50–83, 90–91, 103–04, 203–04; to empire, 341; as language of social derision and condescension, 52

America, as chosen land, 107–08

America, indigenous, as site for civilizing project, 160

America Vindicated. See Garth, Charles

American colonies, explanations for loss of, 240–41; governments not a model for India, 143; loss of and reevaluation of empire, 296–340; value of trade, compared to that of India, 120

American Crisis. See Knox, John

American motives, for resisting British authority, 91–98, 104–07; for resorting to arms, 113–14

American Plantation Duties Act, as imperial reform measure, 87–88

American question, and the languages of empire in Britain, 84–119, 341

American rebellion, Administration explanations for, 205, 208; Opposition explanations for, 211, 214

American War, British successes in, 209–10; conduct and viability of, criticized, 222–24; critical British defeats in, 200, 218–22, 238; destructive effects of, 351; as an indication of British inhumanity overseas, 241–43; and emergence of Irish resistance to British authority, 261, 265–67, 270–71; and folly of war as instrument to preserve the empire, 233, 235; and the languages of Imperial grandeur, liberty, humanity, and commerce, 200–243; mounting costs of, 200; responses to outbreak of, 112–19

Americans, incompatibility of slavery with professions of liberty by, 173–74, 178, 187, 191–97; military and naval weakness of, 203, 208–09; political and military atrocities of, 206–07

Amerindians, civilizing effects of European trade upon, 34–35; and the excesses of empire, 120, 347–48; as model for civilizing Africans, 160

Anderson, Adam, on economic value of slave trade, 183–84; on imperial expansion, 84–85; on importance of India trade, 48, 121; on reform of colonial administration, 87; on value of colonial trade, 21–23, 43, 45–46

Anderson, James, and loss of American colonies, 296–97

Application of Some General Political Rules, anon., on American question, 89, 103; on colonial development, 80; on value of colonial trade, 27

Index

365

- Apthorp, East, on British excesses in India, 109
- Armitage, David, ix–x
- Ashley, John, on value of colonial trade, 20–22, 33, 36
- Ayscough, Samuel, on inhospitable physical and social character of America, 302
- Baillie, Hugh, on American question, 107
- Baily, C. A., xvi
- Banks, Henry, M.P., on conduct of American War, 233
- Baratariana*, anon., on British oppression of Ireland, 259
- Barbados, 62, 73, 99, 156, 165, 166; character of society and settlers of, 52–58; development of, 58; slave laws of, 172; and sympathy with American cause, 224
- Barbarism, language of, 343; applied to American War, 206, 218–19, 227, 231, 242; to British excesses in India, 121, 136, 149, 306–07, 331; to British social practices, 176; to colonial slave systems, 52, 54–64, 157, 165, 182–83, 325–26; to Ireland, 253, 262, 288
- Barnard, Sir John, M.P., on liberty as explanation for colonial economic growth, 36; on value of colonial trade, 33
- Barré, Isaac, M.P., and Carib War, 6–11; on new colonial measures, 98
- Baxter, Richard, 58; on colonial slave systems, 55
- Beckford, William, M.P., on America question, 90; on British excesses in India, 128
- Behn, Aphra, on colonial societies, 70–71
- Benezet, Anthony, on colonial slave systems, 166; and Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, 170
- Bernard, Francis, defines empire, 20, 22
- Beverley, Robert, on negative image of Virginia settlers, 54
- Bickham, Troy O., on British interest in Amerindians, 15
- Bicknell, John, on colonial slave systems, 187
- Bingham, William, on American and European state system, 300
- Black Caribs, of St. Vincent, 5–12
- Black Legend. See Spain
- Blenman, Jonathan, on British attitudes on colonies, 79
- Bollan, William, 326; links evils of slave trade and colonial slave systems to East India excesses, 186–87; on underside of early modern European overseas expansion, 147–48
- Board of Trade, report to House of Lords, 1730; on predominant role of private adventurers in British colonization, 27
- Bolts, William, on British excesses in India and East India Company misgovernment, 135–39
- Boswell, James, on India reforms and British constitutional balance, 314
- Bowen, H. V., on effects of Indian reforms, 313
- Brief and Impartial Review of the State of Great Britain*, anon., on Hastings's misdeeds in India, 308–10
- Bristol, Frederick Augustus Hervey, 4th Earl of, rumored reforms as nominated lord lieutenant of Ireland, 253
- Britannia Libera*. See Bollan, William
- British Empire, anxieties about lack of internal cohesion in, 86–87; concepts and definitions of, 20–21; demand for closer regulation of, 86–88; increasing defense expenditures in, 38
- British Empire in America*. See Oldmixon, John
- Brooke, Sir Arthur, on Irish penal laws, 286–88
- Brooke, Henry, on Irish penal laws, 274–75
- Buckinghamshire, John Hobart, 2d Earl of, directed to seek Catholic relief in Ireland, 290
- Buckington, Nathaniel, ironically congratulates British Administration

- on loss of American colonies and Britain's imperial grandeur, 196–97
- Bureaucracy, imperial, as a further threat to benign governance in India, 129
- Burgoyne, General John, and British excesses in India, 139, 144; and Saratoga campaign in American War, 218–22, 224–25, 229, 232, 256
- Burke, Edmund, M.P., on amelioration of slavery, 197; on American question, 98, 107–08; on British excesses in India, 133, 306–08, 311–13, 316–17; on conduct of the American War, 220–22; on Creole character, 177; on economic benefits of slavery to Britain, 197; on free character of British Empire, 103; on French entry into American War, 235; on inhumanity of empire in India, the American War, and Ireland, 354–55; on Irish Catholic Relief Act of 1785, 335–36; on Irish penal laws, 278, 336–38; on Irish revolution of 1782, 332; on trade concessions to Ireland, 261–62; on value and character of India trade, 135; on value of colonial trade, 17
- Burke, William, M.P., 171, 174; on amelioration of colonial slave systems, 163–64; on British excesses in India, 150; on British jealousy as cause of American War, 214; on conduct of the American War, 218–19; on European expansion in America, 42–43; on expulsion of Acadians, 18; on insecurity of slave colonies and utility of colonial slave system, 161–64
- Bush, Gervase Parke, on Irish Protestant persecution of Catholics, 278; warns against firm colonial measures, 104, 111
- Callender, James Thomson, on English people abroad and reservations about empire, 356–58
- Campbell, John, 23; on distinctiveness of British Empire, 49; on economic value of slave trade, 184; on free character of British Empire, 101; on imperial expansion, 85; on importance of India trade, 48, 133–35; on value of colonial trade, 34, 44–45, 47–48
- Candid and Impartial Considerations on the Preliminary Articles*. See “Country Gentleman, A”
- “Candour,” pseud., defends Carib War, 11
- Carey, Matthew, on Irish penal laws and oppression of Irish Catholics, 292–94
- Carib War, 1–14, 17, 19, 120, 134, 341, 344; as example of British metropolitan inhumanity, 183, 198; and excesses of empire in St. Vincent, 348–50
- Carroll, Charles, on expulsion of Acadians, 18
- Cartwright, John, on American War, 214; on inadequacy of Administration peace offers of 1778, 226; on liberty and humanity in imperial relations and projects, 108; on popular sovereignty within empire, 118–19
- Case of the Roman Catholics of Ireland*. See O’Conor, Charles
- Catholic Relief Act, British, of 1778, 289
- Catholic Relief Act, Irish, of 1778, 291–92; of 1785, 335–36
- Catholicism and empire, xviii–xix
- Catholics, Roman, in Ireland. See Ireland
- Cavendish, Lord John, M.P., on loss of the American War, 242
- Cawthorne, Joseph, favors continuation of American War after Yorktown, 238
- Champion, Judah, on American War, 201–04, 206
- Chandos, James Brydges, 3d Duke of, on absentee drain and Ireland’s underdevelopment, 249–50
- Charter, East India Company, integrity of rights debated, 128–29, 142, 145, 313–15
- Chartered Rights*, anon., on East India Company mismanagement and justice of modifying, 314
- Chatham administration, relations with Ireland, 253
- Child, Sir Josiah, 22, 23, 45; on character of colonials, 52–53, 79; on value of colonial trade, 27, 30

Index

367

- Cholmondeley, James, Earl, M.P., on value of colonial trade, 33, 39
- Civility, language of, as applied to Africa and indigenous America, 34–35, 159–60; to Britain's imperial governance, 209; to ceded islands, 2, 4–5; to colonies, 58; to empire, xiv, 341
- Clarke, Richard, on excesses in India, 145–47
- Clarkson, Thomas, on West Indian slave owners and Christianity, 325
- Clive, Robert, M.P., 313; and conquest of Bengal, 122–23, 139; and entitlement to jagir, 126–29; and source of British excesses in India, 141–42
- Coddington, Christopher, bequest of Barbados plantation to Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, 166
- Coercion, advocated to meet colonial resistance, 90, 95–97, 112–19
- Coercive Acts of 1774, 95–96, 106, 107, 110–11
- Coke, Sir Edward, 6
- Coke, Roger, on colonies as demographic drain, 30
- Colley, Linda, ix
- Colman, George, Jr., recasts Inkle and Yarico story, 330
- Colonel Jacque*. See Defoe, Daniel
- Colonialism, xiii–xiv; British, critique of, 357–61
- Colonies, American, adaptation of immigrants to local norms in, 57–58; anglicization and improvement of, 54, 59, 165–83; British evaluations of relative worth of island and continental, 37–38; British fears of independence of, 36–37; challenge Parliament's authority to tax and legislate for internal affairs, 88; claim British rights for free colonists, 88; confrontation with advocated by Administration after Stamp Act crisis, 88–89; contribute to British economic expansion, 26–33; cultural degeneration in, 51, 65–70; cultural isolation of, 71; and defenses against critics of, 53–54, 79–83; disregard for religion and education in, 51, 54, 66; explanations for rapid growth of, 36, 95–102; familial and social discord in, 59; heterogeneous populations of, 50; inflation of honors in, 66–67; interracial fraternization and sexual exchange in, 56–57, 60, 73; lowly social origins of settlers of, 50, 65, 71–73; malignant disease environments in, 51, 66, 67; military capacity of, 96–97; and opportunity for individual economic achievement and moral and social redemption, 52, 65–70, 71–73, 75–77, 78; predominance of material considerations in, 56, 67–68; provide distortions of English society, 51, 56–70, 73–5, 81–82; religious deviance in, 67–68; resist imperial reform efforts, 88; sexual looseness in, 68, 74–75, 77; sharp business practices in, 51, 68–69; strategic and economic importance of, 86–87; vicious labor systems in, 51, 54–64, 74, 80
- Colonising*, anon., and intellectual foundations of empire, 92–93
- Colonization, language of, applied to ceded islands, 2
- Commerce, as foundation for British and early modern empires, 98–101
- Commerce, language of, applied to American War, 200, 232; to ceded islands, 2; to empire, 20–49, 84, 89, 95, 97–111, 112–18, 120, 341; in tension with languages of humanity and justice, 137–58, 180–84
- Commercial spirit, of British people unfriendly to humanitarian treatment of subject peoples, 319
- Comparative empire building, 101; history of, 42–43
- Conciliation, with colonies, advocated by Opposition, 88–89, 97–119
- Conciliation with America*. See “Coriolanus”
- Conciliatory Bill Considered*, anon., on opposition to conciliation, 230

- Conciliatory Thoughts on American Independence.* See Tod, Thomas
- Conduct of Administration with regard to Colonies*, anon., on American motives for resisting British military, 113
- Considerations on Indian Affairs.* See Bolts, William
- Considerations on the Penal Laws . . . against Catholics in England.* See “Country Gentleman, A”
- Constitution, British, appropriateness for India debated, 128–29, 143; excellence of, 36, 37, 85, 108, 174, 204, 240; nature of, 92, 106–07; threatened by American independence, 229; by imperial success, 45, 184–85
- Constitution, British imperial, 102–93, 231–32, 234, 304
- Constitution, Irish, 255–60, 265, 269, 334
- Constitutional Right of the Legislature of Great Britain*, anon., on Parliament’s right to tax colonies, 91–92
- Constitutions, British colonial, 54, 101–02, 172–75, 185, 201, 210, 212–14, 320–21
- Coombe, Thomas, depicts America unfavorably, 303
- Cooper, David, on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 196–97
- “Coriolanus,” pseud., argues for reconciliation with former colonies, 224–25; attributes American War to British jealousy, 214; questions worth of extensive dominions to commercial state, 228
- Cornwall, Charles, M.P., on intellectual foundations of modern colonialism, 14; opposes Carib War, 10–11, 14
- Cornwallis, Charles, 1st Marquess, Lord, defeat at Yorktown, 232, 239; governor general in India, 354
- Corruption, language of state, applied to British use of Irish hereditary revenues, 252–57
- Corruption, ministerial, as source of American War, 214, 233–34
- Corruption, social and moral, endemic to empire, 147
- “Country Gentlemen, A,” pseud., on amelioration and toleration of Catholics in Britain and Quebec but not in Ireland, 275–78; emphasizes value of remaining imperial assets in 1783, 297; on virtues of a smaller empire, 304
- Craggs-Nugent, Robert, 1st Earl Nugent, on Irish trade concessions, 261
- Creole, as a pejorative term in Britain, 65, 82–83, 91, 127, 156–57, 164, 168, 176–78, 187, 198, 227, 250, 323–24, 327, 342, 349, 355–56
- “Creole, An,” pseud., on character of people and society in colonies, 75–77, 156–57
- Creole barbarism, as a social effect of slavery, 164–65, 172–74, 187–91
- Creole despotism, and the transgressions of empire, 156–99, 328–32
- Crèvecoeur, J. Hector St. Jean de, and favorable views on America, 302
- Criminals. See Transportation
- Critical Moment.* See Janus
- Critique of empire, British, nature of, xii–xiii; origins of, xiv–xvi; sources of, xi–xii; successes and failure of, xvii
- Cruzer, Henry, M.P., opposes force and advocates conciliation, 113
- Cugoano, Ottobah, on evils of African slave trade and European colonial slave systems, 325–27
- Cumberland, Richard, on character of West Indians, 176–77
- Cursory Remarks.* See Tobin, James
- Dalrymple, Alexander, calls for reconciliation in American War, 224; defends East India Company, 129–30; opposes major changes in governance of India, 143–44
- Dalrymple, John, Earl of Stair, on British excesses in India, 313–14
- Dalrymple, Major General William, 1
- Dalton, James, on experience as transported felon, 77–78

Index

369

- Davenant, Charles, 23; on importance of slavery for colonial economic development, 36; on liberty as explanation for colonial economic growth, 36–37, 97; on value of colonies, 27–28, 45
- Dawes, Menasseh, on American question, 112; on effects of American War on liberty, 212, 215; on British barbarities towards Americans, 217; on conduct of American War and plunder of India, 216
- Day, Thomas, on American War and loss of colonies, 242–43, 298–99; on British barbarities in American War, 217; on colonial slave systems, 187; on expansion in India as compensation for American loss, 306; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 193–94; on possibility of Britain's recovering American trade, 299–300
- Debates in the Asiatic Assembly*, anon., satirizes nabobs, 127–28
- Declaratory Act of 1721, Irish demand repeal of, 271–73, 292, 334
- Declaratory Act of 1766, 91; repeal in 1778, 226
- Defense against Catholics, Irish Protestant reliance on Britain for, 260
- Defoe, Daniel, 77, 157; uses Jamaica, Maryland, and Virginia as setting for novels, 71–73
- Demarin, John Peter, on African slave trade and its legalization, 180–81, 183
- Dempster, George, M.P., on free character of British empire, 101
- Derby, Edward Smith-Stanley, 12th Earl of, on continuing the American War, 226–27
- Dignity, British metropolitan, affronts to, and American War, 117–19, 214–15; and coercive colonial policies, 106–07, 112
- Dobbs, Francis, on history of Irish reform movement of 1779–82, 273; on Irish parliamentary independence, 268–69
- Douglas, William, 78
- Draper, Sir William, on American question, 98
- Dundas, Charles, M.P., on American War, 232
- Dunmore, John Murray, 4th Earl of, 204; on offer of freedom to Virginia slaves and British use of slaves in American War, 194–95, 219
- Duty of the King and Subject*, anon., on American military atrocities, 206; on American question, 118; on American War, 201–02, 300–01
- Dying Negro*, 187. See Day, Thomas, and Bicknell, John
- Eardley-Wilmont, Sir John, on growing disillusion with American War, 235
- East India Company, authority to govern territory debated, 128–39; and issues of humanity, 19; responsibility for imperial excesses in India, considered, 120–55, 184–87, 211–12, 227, 305–17, 345–46; servants as plunderers, xvi, 109
- East India Company Charter, 135, 145; as charter of plunder, 142; Parliament's authority to modify debated, 128, 313–15
- East India Company Regulating Act of 1773, 133, 145–46, 149; deficiencies of, 149–54; renewal of, 305
- Economic restrictions, British, as explanation for Ireland's underdevelopment, 246
- Economy, language of, and opposition to American War, 114
- Eden, William, M.P., 170; on American War, 229; on Irish Protestant need for British aid against Catholic majority, 269–70; on repeal of Declaratory Act of 1721, 271
- Education, disregard for, in colonies, 51
- Elements of Commerce, Politics, and Finances*. See Mortimer, Thomas
- Ellis, Henry, on Ireland as inappropriate model for Quebec, 284
- Ellis, Welbore, M.P., on Carib War, 7–8
- Emigration to America, fear of effects upon British economy, 300–03

- Empire, British, commitment to, in wake of American loss, 304–05; extent, scope, viability, and value questioned, 200, 202, 228, 303–04; public engagement with, viii
- Empire, early modern, conduct and legitimacy questioned, 120; contrasted with Roman empire, 98–99; foundations in conquest, superiority, and power, 357
- English Civil War, 53, 54, 79
- Enquiry into our National Conduct to Other Countries*. See Parker, Thomas
- Enslavement, as a colonial right, deplored, 327
- Erskine, John, on American question, 111; on American War, 212–14, 216; on British excesses in India, 109, 216; on free character of British Empire, 102–03; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and colonial slave systems, 194
- Essay Concerning Slavery*. See Trelawny, Edward
- Essay in Vindication of the Continental Colonies*. See Lee, Arthur
- Essay on the Treatment and Conversion of African Slaves*. See Ramsay, James
- Estwick, Samuel, 323; on British complicity in colonial slave systems, 182–83; on British excesses in Ireland, 99, 255
- European emigration, and safety and development for slave colonies, 161–65
- Evans, Caleb, on British conduct in American War, 216
- Evidence of Our Transaction in the East Indies*. See Parker, Thomas
- Examination into the Conduct of Present Administration*, anon., on 1778 conciliatory bill, 230
- Examination into the Principles, Conduct, and Designs, of the Minister*, anon., on British excesses in India, 310
- Examination of the Case of Roman Catholics of Ireland*, anon., on necessity for Protestant security against Catholic majority, 274
- Familial Affection, language of, as applied to American War, 216–18
- Family discord, in colonies, 59
- Faulkner, William Henry, on British excesses in India, 316–17
- Fielding, Henry, 145
- Fitzpatrick, John, M.P., 2d Earl of Upper Ossory, on Irish free trade, 265
- Folkestone, Jacob Pleydell-Bouverie, 2d Earl of Radnor, Lord, M.P., opposes Carib War, 10
- Foote, Samuel, on nabobs, 131–32, 141–42
- Force, as strategy to quell colonial resistance, 96–97; as violation of British principles of liberty and humanity, 111, 115
- Fortescue, Sir John, 6, 100
- Fortunate Transport*. See “Creole, A”
- Fothergill, John, on British knowledge of colonies, vii; on continuation of American War, 231; on Creole character and evils of slave trade and colonial slave systems, 177
- Fox, Charles James, M.P., on Catholic relief in Ireland, 292; on conduct of American War, 218, 226, 237; on continued British control of Irish trade, 272; on British excesses in India, 306, 315; on necessity of recognizing American independence, 239–40; pushes through repeal of Declaratory Act of 1721, 271–72
- Foyle, Oxenbridge, on colonial servitude, 54–55
- France, 22, 100; and American question, 117; and American War, 200, 212, 223, 230, 235–37, 239; and association with popery, 277; cedes colonies to Britain, 2, 166; and despotic colonial governance, 101, 123; effect of maritime and commercial rise on Britain’s evaluation of American colonies, 38–43; gains colony from Britain, 350; imperial rivalry with Britain, viii, 5, 13, 161, 183, 203, 209, 212, 245, 263, 277, 358; as threat to Ireland, 263

Index

371

- Francis, Philip, on Hastings's misdeeds in India, 307–08
- Franklin, Benjamin, on Britain's transportation policy regarding convicts, 176; on North American slave owners, 175–76
- Francklyn, Gilbert, on popularity of denouncing Creoles, 184, 329
- Fraser, General Simon, M.P., on American War, 230
- Freedom, as foundation of the British Empire, 99–103, 108, 112–17
- Free trade, crisis over Irish demands for, 1778–82, 245
- “Friend to Great Britain, A,” Address to the Rulers of the State, anon., on recognizing American independence, 225–26
- Full and Free Inquiry into the Merits of the Peace*, anon., on value of colonies, 39, 42, 43
- Fury, against colonies in Britain, stimulated by colonial resistance, 90
- “G. B.,” Advantages of the Revolution Illustrated, on colonies as sources of British prosperity, vii, 25–26, 29, 31, 38
- Gage, General Thomas, 1, 6
- Galloway, Joseph, urges continuation of American War, 229
- Garth, Charles, M.P., advocates conciliation and opposes force, 106–07, 110–11; on British xenophobia, 82; on ministerial responsibility for colonial discontent, 104
- Gay, John, poet, on promise of empire, 25
- Gay, Nicholas, on Irish absentee drain, 250–51
- Gee, Joshua, 23, 45, 183–84; on Atlantic slave system, 158; on value of colonial trade, 26, 27, 28–33
- General Remarks on the System of Government in India*, anon., on British excesses in India, 138–39
- “Gentleman Long Resident in India, A” pseud., on British excesses in India, 122–26
- Georgia, 167; founded as buffer colony, 38; prohibition of slavery in, 161
- Germain, Lord George, and conduct of American War, 218; opposes Carib War, 8, 10
- Glorious Revolution, viii, 155, 240, 246; and confirmation of British liberty, 109, 115, 240; and effects on Ireland, 240, 244, 246; and idea of parliamentary sovereignty, 88, 91, 94; and relationship to British economic development, 25–26
- Glover, Richard, on value of colonial trade, 23–24
- Godwyn, Morgan, on colonial slave systems, 53–58, 60, 156, 158, 171, 358
- Goldsmith, Oliver, 43–44
- Gordon riots, 142
- Gould, Eliza H., ix–x, xi, xvi
- Governors, British, as plunderers of India, 124–25, 130, 135, 143, 310, 315–16; as plunderers of Ireland, 259; thwart provincial efforts to stop slave imports, 194
- Gower, Lord. See Leveson-Gower, George Granville
- Gratton, Henry, and British concessions to Ireland, 270; and Irish Catholic relief, 292
- “Grazier, A,” pseud., on Ireland's improvement under British rule and Protestant reliance on Britain for defense against Catholic majority, 262–64
- Great Advantages of our Plantations*. See Wood, William
- Great Britain, and excesses of overseas empire, 174–75, 189–90, 194, 321–22, 344–52; Ireland as first line of defense of, 245; Irish absentee landlords and hereditary revenues as a source of wealth, 245–57; relative lack of interest in Ireland, 245, 246
- Green, John, bishop of Lincoln, on colonial slave systems, 166–67

- Gregory, George, on Britain's complicity in African slave trade and colonial slave systems, 321–22; on James Ramsay's antislavery pamphlets, 324; on slavery as extra-European phenomenon, 327
- Guinea merchant(s), as negative stereotype, 63, 180, 183, 198, 324, 325, 328, 349; use language of commerce to defend slave trade, 183, 187, 320
- Habeas corpus act, and Irish Patriot reform program, 258–59
- Hakluyt, Richard, 2
- Hall, Anthony, condemns colonial slave systems, 61
- Hall, Fayer, on economic importance of Atlantic slave system, 158–59; on liberty and colonial economic growth, 37; on value of colonial trade, 28, 30, 32–33, 36, 37, 45
- Hargrave, Francis, argument in Somerset case, 179
- Hartley, David, M.P., on use and cost of force in American War, 114
- Hasler, Sir John, on Irish absenteeism, 249, 251
- Hastings, Warren, and British excesses in India, 307–09, 311, 313, 315–16
- Henry, Prince, of Portugal, and vision of humane colonization, 147–48
- Hereditary revenues, Irish, and pensions and places, 245, 251, 253, 256–57, 294, 333–35
- “Hibernicus,” pseud., on Catholic threat to security of Protestant Ascendancy, 275–76
- Hillsborough, Earl of, 265. See Hill, Wills
- Hill, Wills, earl of Hillsborough, 265; and Carib War, 1, 5
- Hinchcliffe, John, bishop of Peterborough, on inhumanity of American War, 228
- Historical and Chronological Deduction of the Origin of Commerce.* See Anderson, Adam
- Historical foundations of empire, explored by Opposition, 98–104
- History and Present State of Virginia.* See Beverley, Robert
- History of Jamaica.* See Long, Edward
- Holwell, J. Z., on Hastings's misdeeds in India, 307–08
- “Homo Sum,” pseud., opposes Carib War, 111–12
- Honor. See Dignity
- House of Lords, British, 27; acquits Warren Hastings, 316; debates American War, 207, 215, 217, 219, 224, 226–28; and Irish demands for free trade, 256, 262, 265, 272; rejects Fox's India bill, 315
- Howard, Georges Edmund, on effects of penal laws on Irish judicial system, 290–91
- Howe, General Sir William, 229
- Humanity, language of, applied to African slave trade and colonial slave systems, 56, 60–62, 117–19, 156–99, 317–19; to American conduct in American War, 204–05; to British conduct in American War, 109–10, 114–15, 200; to British excesses in India, 120–55, 309–13; to British settlers' treatment of Amerindians, 14–17, 70, 117–18, 347–48; to British treatment of Irish demands for free trade and legislative independence, 267–68; to evaluations of empire, xiv, 19, 89, 108–10, 339–361; to Irish absentee landlord behavior, 149; to Protestant oppression of Irish Catholics, 288–89, 339; to settlement of ceded islands, 3–4, 7; to Quebec Act of 1774, 281–84; incompatibility with commerce, 267–68, 339–40; growing use of, xv–xvi
- Huske, John, on value of colonies and immediacy of French threat, 41–42
- Hussey, William, M.P., on British excesses in India, 151
- Hutchinson, Thomas, on unity of authority in empire, 202

Index

373

- Idler* essays. See Johnson, Samuel
- Imperial expansion, as projected in 1763, 84–85
- Imperial government, and excesses in colonial slave systems, 320–21
- Imperial grandeur, language of, and empire, 3, 21, 84, 89, 120, 297–98, 341; and idea of parliamentary omnipotence, 88; and the government case for resorting to war, 91–97, 200; used by both Administration and Opposition, 118; used against languages of humanity and justice, 180–82
- Imperial management, as cause of colonial resistance, 93–95, 98, 104–07
- Imperial neglect, as cause of excesses in India, 129
- Imperial relations, incompatibility of commerce and empire with humanity and liberty, 267–68
- Importance of British Dominions in India*, anon., on value of India trade, 129–31
- Importance of the British Plantations in America*. See Hall, Fayer
- Improvement and development, of colonies, 54, 59; of Ireland, 263–64
- Improvement, language of, applied to Africa and indigenous America, 159–60; to ceded islands, 2; to empire, xiv, 341
- Independence, American,; as boon to British liberty, 240; British fears of, 87, 89; desire for, as cause of resistance, 94
- India, British excesses in, 120–55, 138, 143–47, 211, 216, 227, 345–46; desirability of British political possession questioned, 128–30; diffusion of petty despotism in, 138–39; eradication of civil justice in, 137; monopolization of commerce in, 137; reform of government opposed, 143–44; site for imperial expansion after loss of American colonies, 303–05; subversion of existing government in, 236; uprisings predicted in, 130; value and nature of trade, 48, 121–23
- Indigenous peoples in empire, British treatment of, xiv, 344
- Indigenous rights, language of, applied to Carib War, 7
- Inglis, John, on misdeeds of nabobs, 149
- Ingratitude, charged against Americans, 89, 116, 208–09
- Injustice, language of. See Justice
- Inkle, Thomas, and Yariko, story, 62–63
- Innes, William, M.P., on colonial heterogeneity, 50; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 194
- Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations*. See Smith, Adam
- Inquiry into the Policy of the Penal Laws*. See Brooke, Robert
- Intellectual foundations of early modern colonization, discussion of, 13–14; for Administration position on imperial organization, 91–97
- Interracial cultural and sexual exchange, in colonies, 56–57, 60
- Intrigues of a Nabob*. See Thompson, Henry Frederick
- Ireland, excesses of empire in and the languages of oppression, corruption, justice, liberty, and humanity, 244–95, 351–55; as ideal colony, 243; legal discrimination against Catholics in, 246; majority Catholic population in, 245; as most thoroughly colonized British possession, 245; poverty and underdevelopment in, 245–46; Protestant Ascendancy's reliance on Britain for defense against Catholic majority in, 245; proximity to Britain, 245; as source of British wealth, 245; sympathy for American cause in, 223–24; unstable situation in, following achievement of free trade and legislative independence, 294–95
- Irish Catholics committee, and repeal of penal laws, 290

- Irish legislative and commercial independence after 1782, factors limiting, 332–34
- “Irishman, An,” pseud., on absentee drain and Ireland’s underdevelopment, 248; on Irish pension system, 256–57; on Protestant Ascendancy’s reliance on Britain for defense against Catholic majority, 263
- Jamaica, 2, 27, 38, 59; character of people and society in, 65–67, 73–77; climate of, 66–67; slavery in, 60–61, 63, 73, 162–63; sympathy for American cause in, 224
- Jamaican Lady*. See by Pittis, William
- “Janus,” pseud., criticizes Administration’s use of force against colonies, 112–14, 116
- Jasanoff, Maya, xvi
- Jenkinson, Charles, alleged Irish pensioner, 256
- Jenyns, Soame, defends Stamp Act, 88
- Johnson, Samuel, 105, 314; on American question, 93–94; on Britain’s tradition of libertarian colonial governance, 93–94; on British treatment of Amerindians, 16–17, 70; on folly of following merchant advice in colonial policy, 95; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 191
- Johnstone, George, on British excesses in India, 129, 132–33; on injustice and inhumanity of American War, 227; opposes American War, 212, 214, 217
- Judicial tenure during good behavior, and Irish Patriot reform program, 259
- Justice, language of, applied to British conduct of American War, 211–12, 214–15; to British excesses in India, 120–55, 309–13; to British treatment of Amerindians, 14–17, 70, 347–48; to Carib War, 9; to colonial slave systems, 60–61; to empire, xiv, 118, 156–99, 341–61; to Irish demands for legislative independence and free trade, 268; to Irish pension issues, 254–55; to Protestant oppression of Irish Catholics, 286–89, 335–39; to promotion of religious toleration, 277–80, to Quebec Act of 1774, 281–83; growing use of, xv–xvi; and incompatibility with colonial slave systems, 165–66, 172–74
- Kidnaping, as a practice for peopling colonies, 52–53, 57, 71
- King, John, on America as uncongenial for Britons, 301; on British excesses in India, 306–07; on effects of American loss on British character, 298
- King, William, 257
- Kippis, Rev. Andrew, on changing British attitudes on American War after Yorktown, 239, 241
- Knowledge, British, about empire, vii–viii
- Knox, John, on American ingratitude, 209; on American military weakness and British superiority, 208; on American War as opportunity to achieve universal empire, 209
- Knox, William, analyzes colonial slave systems and Amerindian evangelization, 167–71; calls for parliamentary action to remedy problems with colonial slave systems, 322; defends Quebec Act by citing ill effects of Irish penal laws, 285–86; proponent of tighter metropolitan controls over empire, 87, 169–70; proposes Irish contribution to British national debt, 248, 260; rejects Irish model for dealing with Quebec Catholics, 280–82; suggests Irish Catholics alliance with Britain to put down Irish Protestant reform demands, 291
- Labor regimes in American colonies, vicious character of, 51, 54–64, 72–73, 75–77, 78, 80–81
- Langrishe, Sir Hercules, on absentee and pension drain and Irish underdevelopment, 248; on British economic restrictions on Ireland, 253–54, 260–61, 265; on British

Index

375

- exclusion of Irish from religious, judicial, and military offices, 253–54;
on Irish penal system, 336, 338
- Languages. See Alienization, Alterity, Barbarity, Civility, Colonization, Commerce, Corruption, Economy, Familial Affection, Humanity, Imperial Grandeur, Improvement, Indigenous Rights, Justice, Liberty, Maritime Supremacy, Oppression, Plunder, Rapacity, Reason of State, Savagery, Security, State Power, Toleration, Virtue
- Laurens, John, 193
- Laws, British, and applicability to India, 129, 142–44, 151–54
- Lawson, Philip, viii
- Lee, Arthur, on African origins of colonial slave systems, 64; on character of colonial slave owners, 80–81, 164; on evils of colonial slave systems, 164
- Legislative independence, Irish. See Parliament, Irish
- Leigh, William, on public disapproval of African slave trade, 328
- Lennox, Charles, 3d Duke of Richmond. See Richmond, Duke of
- Letter from Britannia to King*, anon., on folly of a military solution to American question, 231
- Letter from a Merchant at Jamaica*, anon., condemns colonial slave systems, 60–61
- Letter to the Earl of Hillsborough*, anon., on British tyranny over Ireland, 265–66
- Letter to a Member of Parliament on the Present Unhappy Disputes*, anon., on use of force against Americans, 95
- Letter to the People of Ireland*, anon., on incompatibility of liberty and humanity with commerce in imperial relations, 267–68
- Letter to William Eden*, anon., on need for Irish prudence, 270
- Letter to the Worshipful Dean of Guild*, anon., on opposition of British merchants and manufacturers to Irish trade concessions, 261
- Leveson-Gower, George Granville, M.P., and Irish free trade, 264–65
- Liberty, Britain as enemy to, in American War, 211–12; confined to British people in empire, 320; as explanation for colonial economic growth, 36–37
- Liberty, language of, applied to American War, 200, 210–14, 231; to Carib War, 6; to colonial resistance, 88; to East India Company management, 314–15; to empire, xiv, 88–89, 97–111, 341; to Irish claimants for greater political and constitutional privileges, 257–59, 265–69; to opponents and defenders of Quebec Act, 282–83; associated with language of commerce, 37; incompatible with colonial slave systems, 162–63, 165–66, 172–74; with British conceptions of status of subordinate states, 267–68
- Libertarian colonial governance, acknowledged by Administration supporters, 94
- Ligon, Richard, tells story of Inkle and Yarico, 62
- Lillo, George, on merchants, 24
- Limited duration of parliaments, and Irish Patriot reform program, 258–59
- Lind, John, on American political and military atrocities, 206; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 194–95
- Locke, John, 24
- Loft, Capel, on British barbarities towards Americans, 217
- London Chronicle*, anonymous essay on effects of colonization on Amerindians, 17
- London Merchant*. See Lillo, George
- Long, Edward, 323; on British complicity in colonial slave systems, 182–83
- Loyalists, American, on British abandonment of, 235, 242–43; as friends of despotism, 241
- Lucas, Charles, on Britain's corruption of Irish Parliament, 257–58; on British

- economic restrictions on Ireland, 260–61, 265; on British political discrimination against Ireland, 257–58; on Irish pension system, 255
- Luttrell, James, M.P., on Britain's military use of Indians in American War, 218
- Luttrell, Temple, M.P., on Britain's military use of Indians in American War, 218–19
- Lydia*. See Shebbeare, John
- Lyttelton, Thomas, Lord, M.P., on American atrocities against Loyalists, 207; on Quebec Act of 1774, 283
- Lyttelton, William Henry, M.P., on recruiting slaves into British army, 217
- Macartney, George, Earl, on ill effects of the penal laws, 284–85
- McAulay, Alexander, 258; on Irish pensions, 252–53
- Maccaulay, Catherine, 119
- McMahon, Thomas O'Brien, on British colonialism in Ireland, 351–53, 356, 359
- Macpherson, James, on American resistance, 94–95, 96, 205; on American War, 229; on British excesses in India, 149–50
- Madden, Samuel, 257
- Magenise, Dr. Daniel, on Irish penal laws, 288–89
- Mandeville, Bernard, on colonial slave systems, 61–62
- "Man of Candour," pseud., on viability of extensive empire, 202
- Mansfield, James, M.P., on British excesses in India, 305
- Mansfield, William Murray, 1st Earl, and Somerset case, 179, 184, 192
- Manufacturers and merchants, British, oppose Irish trade concessions, 261–62
- Maritime resources, British, 85
- Maritime Supremacy, language of, applied to empire, 21–22, 32, 47, 95, 159, 341, 358
- Marshall, P. J., viii, x, xi, xvi, 339; on India reforms after 1785, 354
- Martin, Samuel, Sr., on colonial slave systems, 183, 323
- Maryland, 55, 221; as place of opportunity and redemption, 71–73; as slave colony, 183
- Mauduit, Israel, on using force to quell American resistance, 116–17
- "Member of Lincoln's Inn," pseud., on British use of Amerindians and slaves in American War, 204–05
- Merchants, as unsuitable advisors on colonial policy, 95
- Meredith, Sir William, on British excesses in India, 144–45; on Quebec Act of 1774, 283
- Militia bill, and Irish Patriot reform program, 259
- Millar, John, 184, 187, 191; on colonial slave systems, 177–78
- Minorca, as model for Quebec Act of 1774, 280–81, 283; lost in American War, 297, 299
- Moll Flanders*. See Defoe, Daniel
- Molyneux, Capel, on British designs to resume Irish authority, 333–34
- Molyneux, William, 257
- Montesquieu, Charles Secondat, 2d Baron de, 148, 153, 162
- Morgann, Maurice, and the abolition of slavery, 166, 184–86, 322; favors more central imperial control, 169
- Morris, Redman, on Irish absentee drain, 247–51, 253; on pensions, placemen, and Irish backwardness, 251–52
- Mortality, among colonial enslaved, 59
- Mortimer, Thomas, 23, 44; on India trade, 48; on value of colonies, 46–47
- Murray, James, on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 196
- Muthu, Sandar, xiv; on Enlightenment opposition to empire, xvii
- Nabob*. See Foote, Samuel

Index

377

- Nabob or Asiatic Plunderers*. See Clarke, Richard
- Nabobs, 7, 156, 198, 342; and conceptions of liberty, 315; as negative imperial stereotype, 126–28, 131–32, 149, 176, 184–85, 198, 250, 355; and plunder of India and pollution of Britain, 141–42, 145–46, 149, 151, 216, 227, 305, 316
- Nathan to Lord North*, anon., on effects of American War, 237
- National Character, of Britain, 85, 95–96, 108, 118–19, 242
- National Security. See Security, national, language of
- Negro's and Indian's Advocate*. See Godwyn, Morgan
- New Discourse of Trade*. See Child, Sir Josiah
- New England, business practices of, 68–69; character of people and society of, 67–69; clergy of, 68; cultural and social development of, 67; disheveled landscape of, 69; male sloth in, 69; persecution of witches in, 68; religious deviance and hypocrisy in, 67–68; as seedbed of America resistance, 203, 208; sexual looseness in, 68
- Newhaven, Charles Mayne, 1st Baron, on Irish trade concessions, 261
- Newton, Sir Isaac, 24
- New York, as slave colony, 175
- New-York Restraining Act, as example of effective coercion, 95
- Nisbet, Richard, on colonial slave systems, 187–89
- Non-importation agreements, Irish, organized against British resistance to free trade, 264
- North, Frederick, Lord, first minister, 271; and American War, 201, 237, 241–42, 297–98; and Carib War, 7, 8; and Irish demands for free trade, 261–62, 265, 267, 269; fall from power of, 238, 271; and India affairs, 144; and Irish penal laws, 189–90; and pensions, 256; and responsibility for loss of American colonies, 297–98
- Nova Scotia, 223; developed as buffer colony, 38; expulsion of Acadians from, 17–18
- Oak Boys, as Irish protest movement, 247, 248
- Observations Concerning the Distinction of Ranks*. See Millar, John
- Observations on American Independence*. See Tod, Thomas
- Observations on the Doctrine laid down by Blackstone*. See Sheridan, Charles Francis
- Observations on the Nature of Civil Liberty*. See Price, Richard
- Observations on the Present State of the East India Company*, anon., on British excesses in India, 133
- Observations upon the Administration of Justice in Bengal*, anon., on British excesses in India, 152–53
- O'Connor, Charles, on Irish penal laws, 273–274, 279–80
- Octennial Act, Irish, 259
- “Officer, An,” pseud., Letter to the English Nation, on conduct of American War, 222–23
- Oglethorpe, James, on colonial trade, 29, 30, 34
- Oldmixon, John, historian, 28; on British denigration of colonies, 79; on colonial development, 78–79; on relative importance of island and continental colonies, 37–38
- O'Leary, Arthur, on Irish penal laws, 292
- Opposition, British, charges Administration with acting against British libertarian traditions, 210–14; disregarding commercial considerations, 215–16; violating British ideas of humanity, justice, and liberty, 216–22; emphasizes commerce over dominion in treating colonies, 97–111; favors conciliation with America, 88–89, 91, 97–111; favors reconciliation during American War, 224–25; opposes Administration's American policy, 210–28; questions viability and conduct of American

- War, 222–25; ridiculed by Administration supporters, 93; shares
Administration fears of economic loss,
105–06; supports colonial claims to British rights, 97–111; supports Irish demands for free trade, 264–65
- Oppression, language of, applied to African slave trade and colonial slave systems, 35–62, 156–99, 227, 317–32,
341–47; to American War, 211,
241–43; to Britain's relationship with Ireland, 247–51, 254–55, 259–62,
265–69, 292–94; to British excesses in India, 121, 123–25, 132–33, 135–41;
to Carib War, 7, 341–42; to colonial treatment of Amerindians, 120, 347–48
- Orlando Furioso*, by Ludovico Ariosto, 233
- O'Roon, Helen, and cultural distance between Britain and Ireland, 244
- Oroonoko*. See Behn, Aphra, and Southerne, Thomas
- Otherness, language of. See Alterity
- Otis, James., Jr., on distinctions between North Americans and Creoles, 157
- Paley, William, on Parliament and colonial slave systems, 323
- Pamphlet, Entitled, 'Taxation No
Tyranny,' Candidly Considered*,
anon., on American question,
105
- Parker, Thomas, on adverse effects of British colonialism on indigenous peoples, 343–51, 358, 359; on colonial trade and British navigation, 49
- Parliament, British, and debates over
American War, 212–30, 232–33, 237,
242; over authority over colonies,
88–97, 101, 113–14; over authority over Ireland, 245, 257–60, 266–70, 334; over Carib War, 6–14; over colonial defense, 38–41, 43; over Irish reform demands, 255, 261–62, 264–65, 271–72; over value of colonial trades, 29–34, 36–38; and demands for intervention of, to remedy excesses of colonial slave systems and African slave trade, 161, 169–70, 182, 188, 322; expenditures for colonial defense, 38; inquires into and regulates India affairs, 129–54, 133–48, 149–54, 305–15; sanctions legality of colonial slave systems and slave trade, 168–69; supports African slave trade, 158, 162, 179–80, 196, 330
- Parliament, Irish, and Catholic relief,
289; corruption of, 255–56; defeats
Pitt's efforts at final adjustment, 334;
demands for independence of, 245, 257–60, 265–70, 334; and inaction on absentee drain issue,
250
- Patriots, Irish, reform program of,
258–59, 270–71
- Patriotism, British, of colonial
Americans, 97, 105
- Penal laws, British, 277
- Penal laws, Irish, discussion of effects and justice of, 274–95, 339, 354; repeal of and reaffirmation of underlying philosophy, 335–36
- Penn, William, on promise of colonial enterprise, 28, 32
- Pensions, from Irish hereditary revenues,
245; adverse effects on Irish economy of, 251–57, 335
- Pensioners, Irish, motley character of,
252–54, 256
- Petty, Sir William, 23
- Petty, William, Earl of Shelburne, 310; on alleged association of empire and conquest, 357; British barbarities towards Americans, 217; on Irish demands for free trade, 265; on ministry's use of Irish Pensions, 256
- Pitt, William, Earl of Chatham, on British barbarities and use of Amerindians in American War, 217, 219; and leadership in Seven Years' War, 43;
and nostalgia for war administration of, 297; and responsibility for

Index

379

- political changes and war in India, 125
- Pitt, William, the Younger, and efforts to obtain final adjustment with Ireland, 334; and India bill of 1784, 315–16, 331, 339
- Pittis, William, on character of Jamaican people and society, 73–75, 77
- Placemen, exclusion from Irish parliament, and Patriot reform program, 259
- Plan for the Governance of the Province of Bengal*, anon., on British excesses in India, 140–44
- Planter's Charity*. See Mandeville, Bernard
- Plunder, language of, 342–43; as applied to African slave trade, 343, 356; to American settler treatment of Amerindians, 15–17, 208, 293; to British excesses in India, 29, 109–10, 121, 123–28, 131–33, 135–42, 145–47, 149–52, 155, 156, 198, 211–12, 216, 293, 305–06, 308–14, 316, 343–45, 350, 355; to British military behavior in American War, 217–18, 227, 231, 242; to British restrictions on Irish trade and political arrangements, 264, 293; to Carib War, 16; to Irish absentees, pensioners, and placemen, 247–48, 250–51, 253–54, 256, 259; to Protestant Irish treatment of Catholics, 276, 293–94
- Polhill, Charles, M.P., on Quebec Act of 1774, 282; on Rockingham ministry, 238
- Political and constitutional arrangements, Irish, and Ireland's underdevelopment, 246
- Political Balance*, anon., on colonial regulation, 87; on promise of empire, 85
- Political Essays*. See Young, Arthur
- Political Survey of Britain*. See Campbell, John
- Popular Topics*, anon., on East India Company behavior and British libertarian traditions, 314–15
- Porteus, Beilby, bishop of Chester, on evils of colonial slave systems, 317–18
- Postlethwayt, Malachy, 23, 25, 43, 44, 45, 184; on civilizing effects of trade, 34–35; on colonies as places of opportunity and redemption, 79; on economic importance of Atlantic slave system, 158–61; on value of colonies, 26–27, 33; on value of India trade, 121
- Pownall, John, as advocate of central imperial control, 169
- Pownall, Thomas, on America as an independent state, 237; on American War, 222; on imperial expansion, 85; on merchant participation in governance of overseas possessions, 139–40
- Poynings Law. See Legislative independence
- Pratt, Charles, Earl Camden, on conduct of American War and possibilities of reconciliation, 215, 224, 226
- Present State of North America*. See Huske, John
- Price, Richard, on British military use of Amerindians and slaves against Americans, 204–05; on British use of language of alterity against Americans, 82; on constitutional and humanitarian grounds for opposing American War, 210–12, 217; on importance of colonial trade, 27; on moral impact of overseas colonization, 228; on nabobs, 127
- Pride of imperialism, in Britain, 90; as source of tension with colonies 103–04. See also Dignity
- Principles of Law and Government*, anon., on American claims for liberty, 231; on free character of British Empire, 234–35
- Prior, Thomas, on Irish absentee drain, 246–47, 251
- Privy Council, monitors Irish laws, 332–33, 335; sanctions legality of colonial slave systems, 169

- “Probus,” pseud., quoted on Carib War, 6–7
- Proclamation of 1763, as a plan to expand colonial slavery, 166
- Protestant Ascendancy, in Ireland, 274, 294; reliance on British protection against majority Catholic population, 244–45, 276
- Pulteney, William, M.P., on free character of British Empire, 101; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 195–96; on India bills and ministerial power, 314; opposes American War, on libertarian grounds, 213
- Quebec, 16, 122; and problem of its Catholic majority, 4, 153, 246, 276–77, 279–84; and situation of Irish Catholics, 338
- Quebec Act of 1774, xviii; anti-Catholic opposition to, 282; debate over, 281–86; as a model for Ireland, 279, 280
- Ramsay, Alan, on American military capacities, 203; as peace commissioner, 226; supports firm policy against colonies, 91
- Ramsay, James, 329; and abolition of slavery, 322; on character of West Indian planters, 323; on excesses of colonial slave systems, 317–325; on obstacles to reform of colonial slave systems, 330; on public awakening to slave trade evils, 328; on slavery as extra-European phenomenon, 327
- Randolph, Francis, on obstacles to reform of colonial slave systems and abolition of slave trade, 331
- Rapacity, language of, applied to American settlers and slave holders, 17, 168; to Anglo-Irish in Ireland, 293, 353; to British armies during American War, 221; to Carib War, 4, 7, 16; to East India Company servants, 121, 125–27, 136, 140, 144, 154–55, 305, 308, 331, 341–43, 356; to Irish absentees, 247–48, 254
- Rapprochement with colonies after French entry into American War, advocated, 236–37, 239
- “Real Lover of His Country,” pseud., on absentee drain and Irish oppression, 248–49
- Reason of state, language of, applied to early modern European empires, 14
- Reconciliation, between Irish Catholics and Protestants, 289, 292; with America, debated, xii, 212, 224–26, 229, 239
- Reflections on the American Contest*. See “A. M.”
- Reflections on Our Present Critical Situation*, anon., on misguided American War efforts, 214–15, 217, 224
- Reflections upon the Present State of England*. See Day, Thomas
- Reflections on the Present State of Our East Indian Affairs*. See “A Gentleman Long Resident in India”
- Reflections on the State of Parties*. See Champion, Judah
- Reform program of Irish Patriots in 1760s and 1770s, 258–59
- Reformation of Law, Physic, and Divinity*. See Magenise, Dr. Daniel
- Religion, disregard for, in colonies, 51, 57, 60, 66
- Renunciation, by British Parliamentary, of authority over Ireland, 272–73, 332; British refusal of, 273
- Representation of the Injustice and Dangerous Tendency of Tolerating Slavery*. See Sharpe, Granville
- Restoration, of Charles II, 30, 53, 54, 79, 277, 285
- Revel, James, as transported felon, 78
- Revenues of India, and British state expenditures, 128–29, 131
- Rhode Island, 223; as garden of America, 68
- Richmond, Duke of, on British oppression of Ireland, 264; on British use of Indians in American War,

Index

381

- 219–20; on continuation of American War and inhumanities, 227
- Rights of Great Britain Asserted*. See Macpherson, James
- Rivers, Marcellus, and American servitude, 54–55
- Robertson, Robert, on American slave systems, 63–64; on colonial social origins, 79
- Robinson-Morris, Matthew, Baron Rokeby, on free character of British Empire, 102–03; on neglect of commercial and libertarian considerations, 215–16
- Rockingham, Lord, on advantages of colonial trade, 100; as first minister, 238, 271; on Irish demands for free trade, 264
- Rokey, Baron. See Robinson-Morris, Matthew
- “Roscommon,” pseud., quoted, 79–80
- Rous, George, M.P., on British excesses in India, 151
- Rouse, Charles Boughton, M.P., on British excesses in India, 153–54
- Royal African Company, on economic value of Atlantic slave system, 158
- Royston, Lord, M.P., on British efforts in Seven Years’ War, 43
- Rumbold, Sir Thomas, and British excesses in India, 315–16
- Rush, Benjamin, on colonial slave systems, 187–91
- Russell, William, on Creole character, 177, 198
- Saam, Moses Ben, reputed author of antislavery tract, 63
- St. Vincent, 16–17, 18, 154, 365; settlement and Carib War, 1–12, 166, 185, 189, 198, 227, 341, 348–50, 358
- Sandys, Samuel, M.P., on colonial trade, 33
- Savagery, language of, applied to Africans, 34–35, 180; to American colonists, 51–52, 55, 62, 79, 80, 82, 120, 131, 160, 164, 206, 301; to Black Caribs, 4–5, 10–11, 13, 19; to British army in American War, 218–21, 227–28, 235; to British behavior in Ireland, 242, 254, 338, 353; to the colonial enterprise, 355; to East India Company servants, 216; to West Indian slave owners, 319
- Scott, Major John, on Hastings and British improvements in India, 313
- Second Part of Memorials and Calculations*. See Ashley, John
- Secret and Select Committees on Indian excesses, authenticity of reports asserted, 314–15
- Security, language of national or provincial, 19, 21; applied to Acadian expulsion, 18; to Carib War, 5–6, 9; to colonies, 32, 38–43, 47, 87–89, 107, 161–63, 229, 240; to international trade, 12, 85; to Ireland, 263; to Protestant defense of penal laws, 274–76
- Serle, Ambrose, on Britain’s tradition of mild colonial governance, 93; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 192
- Seven Years’ War, 16, 21, 39, 43, 49, 84–85, 87, 89, 99, 120, 123, 125, 161, 166, 184, 202, 205, 277, 298, 341, 350; outcome as an occasion for re-evaluation of empire, 84–86
- Seymour, Francis, poems about Inkles and Yarico, 62–63
- Shame, as a device for improving colonial social standards, 58
- Sharp, Granville, 183, 184, 187, 325; and awakening of British sensibilities about evils of colonial slave systems, 328; on Britain’s complicity and failure to act against excesses in Atlantic slave system, 321, 331; on colonial slave laws, 172–75; on Crown action on excesses of colonial slave systems, 174–75, 178–79; on evils of imperial slave systems, 171–76, 188–91; on parliamentary action on excesses of colonial slave system, 322; praised by James Ramsay, 319

- Sharpe, Henry, speaker of St. Vincent Assembly, 9–10
- Shebbeare, John, on British treatment of Amerindians, 15–17; on colonists' mistreatment of slaves, 195
- Sheridan, Charles Francis, on Irish pensions and placemen, 256; on legislative independence of Irish parliament, 265
- Sheridan, Richard Brinsley, 265
- Shipley, Jonathan, bishop of St. Asaph, on conciliation of colonies, 106, 110; on dealing with colonies, 104; on historical foundations of empire, 100–02; on restoring colonial affections for Britain, 107
- Short History of the Administration*, anon., on North government's deceptive peace proposals, 231
- Sinecures, and Irish Patriot reform program, 259; and ministerial corruption, 241; opposed, 235
- Slave systems of America, excesses of, 55–62, 188–91, 227, 317–32; as aberrations in British world, 50; British complicity in, 58, 63–64; British squeamishness about, 63–64; as contrary to British libertarian traditions, 162–63, 165–66, 172–74; and debate over extension of slavery to Britain, 177–78; and defensive weakness of colonies, 161–63; economic utility of, 36, 62, 158–61; as extra-European phenomenon, 327; and failure to evangelize enslaved, 56; and high mortality, 59, 327; and languages of humanity and justice, 156–99; mid-eighteenth-century reservations about, 161–65; morality questioned, 162–65, 188–91; obstacles to reform of, 58, 64, 320–23, 330–41; proposed abolition of, 322; public condemnation of, 328–32; recommended amelioration of, 167–71
- Slave Trade. See African slave trade
- Smith, Adam, 23, 44, 183, 209, 212, 358; on character of colonial slave holders, 80; on colonial slave systems, 164; on commercial benefits of European overseas expansion, 47–49; on importance of India trade, 48; on superiority of trade with civilized peoples over savage, 131; on voluntary separation from colonies, 105
- Social discord, in colonies, 59
- Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts (SPG), on colonial slave systems, 166–70
- Somerset case, 178–79, 182, 184, 186, 187, 192, 194, 323, 332
- Southerne, Thomas, on colonial societies, 70–71
- Sovereignty, parliamentary, debated, over empire, 88–89, 106, 117–18, 201–02, 210–12, 214–15, 231, 241; over India, 128, 136, 140; over Ireland, 270–71, 273; and myth of parliamentary participation in establishing colonies, 94
- Sovereignty, popular, within empire, proposed by John Cartwright, 118–19
- Spain, acquisitions from, in 1763, 166; and Black Legend, xv, xix, 6, 14, 101, 147–48, 191, 277–78, 357; and entry into American War, 212; as imperial rival, viii, 38, 100, 117, 161, 203, 209, 212, 230, 237, 245, 277, 299; losses to, in 1783, 299, 350; as precedent for later European empires, 14, 147–48; and value of its colonial trades, 39
- Stamp Act, colonial resistance to, 88, 89, 90; as imperial reform measure, 87, 113, 213–14; repeal of, as cause of colonial resistance, 94–95
- Stamp Act crisis, 99, 100; and language of alterity about colonies, 81
- Stanley, Hans, M.P., on Carib War, 12–14; on intellectual foundations and humanity of modern colonization, 13–14
- Startford, Edward, 2nd Earl of Aldborough, on India trades as compensation for American loss, 304–05; on North Administration and

Index

383

- corruption, 241; on potential recovery of American trade, 299
- State of the British and French Colonies in America*, anon., on French threat to colonies, 40; on need for British protection of colonies, 97; on slaves as danger to colonial security, 161
- State Power, language of, applied to empire, 88, 91, 97; and justification of American War, 201–03
- Steele, Richard, tells story of Inkles and Yarico, 62
- “Student of Lincoln’s Inn,” pseud., questions British commitment to Irish concessions, 272–73
- Subjecthood for non-Europeans in empire, applied to Black Caribs, 12; to enslaved blacks, 170–71; to Indian peoples, 146–47, 149, 154; as device for extending metropolitan authority, 170–71
- Supremacy 21. See Maritime Supremacy, language of, applied to empire
- Swift, Jonathan, 257
- Sypher, Wylie, 14
- “T. S.,” on Irish grievances, 262–63
- Taafe, Nicholas, Lord Viscount, on Irish penal laws, 278–80
- Taxation no Tyranny*. See Johnson, Samuel
- Tea and Sugar*. See Touchstone, Timothy
- Theory of Moral Sentiments*. See Smith, Adam
- Thompson, Henry Frederick, on officials’ intrigues in India, 151
- Thompson, Thomas, on economic utility of slave trade, 180–82
- Thoughts, English and Irish, on the Pension List of Ireland*, anon., on Irish pension system, 254–55
- Thoughts on Our Acquisitions in India*. See Johnstone, George
- Thoughts on the Origin and Nature of Government*. See Ramsay, Allan
- Thoughts on the Slavery of Negroes*. See Woods, Joseph
- Tobin, James, on Britain as international slave carrier, 330; on metropolitan denigration of West Indians, 323–24, 328–29; on nabobs and Creoles, 127
- Tod, Thomas, on Britain’s humiliation by defeat, 241; on emigration to America, 303; on incompatibility of liberty and extended empire, 304; on Irish demands for free trade and parliamentary independence, 332; on possibility of recovering American trade, 299; on prolongation of American War, 231–33, 239
- Toleration, religious, as expanding European social impulse, 177; language of, applied to British Empire, including American colonies, Ireland, and Quebec, 208, 236, 275, 277–78, 279–80
- Topham, Edward, supports harsh military measures, 207
- Touchstone, Timothy, on costs of empire, 355–56
- Townshend Acts, 91, 104, 130
- Townshend, George, 1st Marquess, lord lieutenant of Ireland, 253; and new Irish pensions, 254
- Townshend, Thomas, M.P., advocates British intervention regarding Irish penal laws, 289–90; against “Renunciation” of parliamentary authority over Ireland, 273; on East Indian affairs, 305–06; opposes Carib War, 6–8, 10
- Trade and Navigation of Great Britain*. See Gee, Joshua
- Trade restrictions, British, on Ireland, 245–47; as cause for Irish problems, 357; Irish demands; for repeal of, 255–57, 260–70, 272, 289, 291, 293–94
- Transportation of criminals, as means to people colonies, 53–54, 73; condemned, 176; and individual redemption, 71–72, 75–78
- Treatise upon the Trade from Great Britain to Africa*. See Demarin, John Peter
- Trecothick, Barlow, M.P., opposes Carib War, 6–8

- Trelawny, Edward, on evils of colonial slave systems, 161–63
- Trinity College, Dublin, Catholic exclusion from, 275
- Trip to Jamaica*. See Ward, Edward (Ned)
- Trip to New England*. See Ward, Edward
- Tryon, Thomas, condemns colonial slave systems, 58–60, 156, 158
- Tucker, Josiah, on America as an uncongenial place for Britons, 301–02; on American independence, 105, 236–37; on benefits of colonial trade, 33, 35; on British constitutional tradition and colonial slave systems, 321; on incongruity of American libertarian claims and slavery, 191, 195; on Irish Patriots and pensions, 255; on parliamentary action against colonial slave systems, 322–23
- Turnbull, Gordon, protests metropolitan denigration of planters, 328–29
- “Unconnected Whig, An,” Address to the Public . . . [on] Quebec Bill, defends bill, 283
- Universal Dictionary of Trade and Commerce*. See Postlethwayt, Malachy
- Upper Ossory, Earl of. See Fitzpatrick, John
- Urgent Necessity*. See Carey, Matthew
- Usurpations of England, the chief Source of the miseries of Ireland*, anon., on British oppression of Ireland, 266–67
- Verelst, Harry, on British excesses in India, 139, 142–43
- Vernon, Edward, Admiral, 21
- View of the Internal Policy of Great Britain*. See Wallace, Robert
- View of the Present State of* . . . Government in India. See Verelst, Harry
- View of the Present State of Ireland*, anon., on incompatibility of liberty, justice, and humanity with commercial empire, 268; on taxing Irish absentees, 250
- Virginia, 52, 55, 196, 221, 238; character of society and settlers in, 54–55, 57, 59, 78, 80–81, 157, 164, 193; as place of opportunity and redemption, 71–73, 75–78; on slave laws of, 172–73, 176
- Virtue, language of, applied to empire, 147, 164, 237, 289, 331, 356; incompatible with commerce, 147
- Volunteers, Irish, organize for defense, 264; support Irish patriot cause, 267, 270–71, 294, 333
- “W. S.,” on colonial slave systems, 190
- Wakefield, Gilbert, on British treatment of indigenous overseas empire, 342–43
- Wallace, Robert, 174; on colonial slave systems, 164–65
- Walpole, Horace, Sr., M.P., on colonial defense, 40–41
- War, pernicious effects in Bengal, 124–128, 139, 150. See also American War, Carib War, English Civil War, Seven Years’ War, War of the Austrian Succession, War of Jenkins’ Ear
- War of the Austrian Succession, 38, 39
- War of Jenkins’ Ear, 21, 38, 39
- Warburton, William, bishop of Gloucester, on colonial slave systems, 166–68, 170
- Ward, Edward (Ned), travel accounts to Jamaica and New England, 64–70, 73, 77
- Waring, John, doubts Christianity of West Indian planters, 325; on slaves as measure of wealth possessions, 320
- Washburn, Wilcomb, xix
- Watson-Wentworth, Charles, 2d Marquis of Rockingham. See Rockingham, Lord
- Wealth of Nations*, by Adam Smith, cited, 212
- Wedderburn, Alexander, M.P., on British excesses in India, 151
- We Have Been All in the Wrong*, anon., on affairs in India, 313–16

Index

385

- Wesley, John, on British patriotism of colonists, 205; on colonial slave systems, 188–91
- West India Merchant*, on metropolitan ignorance about colonies, vii
- West Indian*. See Cumberland, Richard
- West Indian colonies, 188, 234, 296–99, 354, 359; and demand for slaves after American War, 327, 346; distinguished from North American colonies, 177; sympathetic to American cause, 223–24
- West Indians, character of, 157, 162–63, 176–77, 189, 193–95, 198, 227, 325
- Wheateley, Thomas, defends Stamp Act, 88
- Whistler, Henry, on deficiencies of early Barbados, 52
- White Boys, Irish protest movement, 247, 248
- Whitworth, Richard, M.P., opposes Carib War, 6–8
- Wilkes, John. M.P., on Britain's use of Indians in American War, 222; opposes American War, 227
- Williams, John, on British denigration of colonials, 82–83; on need to return to a commercially oriented empire without oppression of indigenous peoples, 300
- Williams, Joseph, on imperial effects of loss of American War, 298; on metropolitan new-modelling of colonial governments as cause of American War, 241; on metropolitan treatment of Loyalists, 242–44
- Wilson, Kathleen, ix, xi
- Wood, William, 23; on economic utility of Atlantic slave system, 158; on importance of colonial trade, 31–32
- Woods, Joseph, on Britain's complicity in slave trade and colonial slavery, 321; on colonial slave systems, 319–22; on slavery as an extra-European phenomenon, 327
- Women, white, in Jamaica, 73–75; in New England, 69; in the West Indies, 59, 66
- Woolman, John, on colonial slave systems, 166
- Wraxhall, Sir Nathaniel, M.P., on British excesses in India, 153–54; on imperial effects of loss of American War, 299
- Wray, Sir Cecil, M.P., on Irish trade concessions, 261
- Yariko and Thomas Inkle, story, 62
- Yonge, Sir George, M.P., on Irish pensions and Irish economic woes, 255–56; questions British humanity in American War, 228
- Yorke, Charles, M.P., on parliamentary sovereignty over empire, 89
- Yorkshire Association, 235
- Yorktown, Battle of, British defeat at, 238; and replacement of North ministry, 271
- Young, Arthur, on economic value of slave trade, 184; favors tighter metropolitan imperial control, 87; on free character of British Empire, 101; on Irish absentee drain, 250–51; on Irish Protestant oppression of Catholics, 294–95
- Young, Sir William, on ceded islands and settler-Carib relations, 2–6