History

The books reissued in this series include accounts of historical events and movements by eye-witnesses and contemporaries, as well as landmark studies that assembled significant source materials or developed new historiographical methods. The series includes work in social, political and military history on a wide range of periods and regions, giving modern scholars ready access to influential publications of the past.

Travels in the United States, etc. During 1849 and 1850

Published in 1851, Lady Emmeline Stuart Wortley’s account of her travels through the Americas during the mid-nineteenth century represents an early example of the travel writing genre. The United States was becoming an increasingly popular tourist destination for Europeans at this time, and Lady Emmeline’s writings present a quintessentially British impression of America and its people. This third and final volume records her journeys through Panama to Lima, describing in detail the architecture, climate, people and scenery of Peru, and her onward journey to Kingston, Jamaica. Written in an engaging and conversational tone, the volumes are both informative and entertaining, fulfilling the author’s aim to ‘amuse’ with ‘the gossip of travel’.
Cambridge University Press has long been a pioneer in the reissuing of out-of-print titles from its own backlist, producing digital reprints of books that are still sought after by scholars and students but could not be reprinted economically using traditional technology. The Cambridge Library Collection extends this activity to a wider range of books which are still of importance to researchers and professionals, either for the source material they contain, or as landmarks in the history of their academic discipline.

Drawing from the world-renowned collections in the Cambridge University Library, and guided by the advice of experts in each subject area, Cambridge University Press is using state-of-the-art scanning machines in its own Printing House to capture the content of each book selected for inclusion. The files are processed to give a consistently clear, crisp image, and the books finished to the high quality standard for which the Press is recognised around the world. The latest print-on-demand technology ensures that the books will remain available indefinitely, and that orders for single or multiple copies can quickly be supplied.

The Cambridge Library Collection will bring back to life books of enduring scholarly value (including out-of-copyright works originally issued by other publishers) across a wide range of disciplines in the humanities and social sciences and in science and technology.
TRAVELS

IN

THE UNITED STATES, ETC.

DURING 1849 AND 1850.

BY THE

LADY EMMELINE STUART WORTLEY.

IN THREE VOLUMES.

VOL. III.

LONDON:

RICHARD BENTLEY, NEW BURLINGTON STREET,
Publisher in Ordinary to Her Majesty.
1851.
CONTENTS TO VOL. III.

CHAPTER I.

Monarchy and democracy.—England’s treatment of her colonies.—The greatness of America.—Her tendency to propagandism.—Anecdote of a paroquet.—The pearl-fishery at Panama.—The captain and his crew.—General Rosas.—Beautifully scented woods in Panama.—The rose fever.—Theatricals in Panama.—Hostility between Americans and the natives of Panama.—Fair children in Panama.—The would-be Englishwoman . . . . 1

CHAPTER II.

Intention to go to Lima.—Dinner to ex-cannibals.—Theatricals in Panama.—Taboga.—The French tailoress.—The “happy ship.”—Roman Catholic procession on Good Friday.—A mischievous trick.—California thoroughly Americanized.—Californian adventurers and the steam-boat agent.—The dead Negro.—British subjects buried in Panama.—Tone of American papers in Panama.—Spirit of enterprise of the Americans.—Old Panama.—Reptiles and insects in Panama.—Morgan and his bucanears.—The pirates and the Spanish fleet.—Wealth said to have been buried by the bucanears.—American love of intellectual progress . . . . . 20
iv

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER III.

The probable future of Panama.—South American railroads projected.—Gold-seekers in Panama.—Large importation of fruit-trees into California.—American improvements in Panama.—Alleged ill-treatment of emigrants by ship-owners.—The green mountain Yankee.—The Indians and the damp gunpowder.—The government of New Granada.—Its recent policy . . . . 64

CHAPTER IV.

Arrival at Lima announced.—Embark on the "Bolivia." —View of Panama, from the sea.—Buenaventura.—The river and city of Guayaquil.—Horses’ dread of alligators.—Native boats and their varied freight.—Parrots, macaws, and paroquets.—Ponchos.—The Guayaquil ladies.—Grass hats.—The five productions of Guayaquil.—Puyta.—Its population.—Its salubrity.—Its market —Scarcity of water at Puyta.—Former wealth of that place 77

CHAPTER V.

Cherimoyas.—Lambayeque.—The Balsa.—Its use.—Numerous reptiles and insects at Lambayeque.—Curious mound-tombs.—Sepulchral curiosities found in them.—Alleged imitation of them in Birmingham.—Huanchaco.—The peremptory lady.—Description of Callao.—Its destruction a century ago.—The frozen apple . . . 99

CHAPTER VI.

Site of old Callao.—The shouting inquirer.—Approach to Lima.—Absence of rain at that city.—The graceful Peruvian costume.—The Poncho.—Male and female CONTENTS.

PAGE
equestrians. — Arrival at Lima.—The aspect of the city. —Miradors.—Multitude of asses in Lima.—London and Lima.—Costumes of Lima ladies.—The bridge over the Rimac.—Venders of cigars.—The Cordilleras 113

CHAPTER VII.

CHAPTER VIII.

Signal instance of the heroism of a lady.—The procession of the oraición.—A lottery in the Grand Plaza.—How conducted.—Distinguished visitors.—Chorillos.—The sale of “almas,” or souls.—The public museum.—Portraits of the Spanish viceroys.—Mummies of Peruvian Incas.—Beautiful stuffed birds.—Manco Capac.—Who were the first Incas?—The children of the sun.—Progress in civilization of old Peru 147

CHAPTER IX.

Manco Capac and his wife.—Their instruction of the Peruvians —Old Peruvian roads.—Bull-fights at Lima.—Mode of conducting them. — Spectators at them. — LImanian ladies.—Beautiful specimens of Peruvian art and ingenuity.—Silver ornamented fruits.—Lima burial places. —The Amanceas —The fiesta of St. John.—The valley of Amanceas.—The flower of that name.—The streets of Lima after the fiesta.—Concerts given by a French lady.
vi

CONTENTS.

—Fruits of Lima.—The Grenadilla.—"Italia."—Custom of washing plates by the lower orders in Lima.—The Gorgonian servant.—"Huacos" and other curiosities found in Peruvian sepulchres.—The "Senorita."—A garden in the suburbs.—Its numerous trees, shrubs, and flowers.—Ener-vating climate of Lima . . . . . . . . . 167

CHAPTER X.

About to leave Lima.—The cathedral.—Fragile but enduring buildings in Lima.—The reason why they are the latter.—The town of San Domingo.—The choristers of the cathedral.—The shrine of Santa Rosa.—The Inquisition at Lima.—The cemetery.—Cemeteries in the United States.—Lima mode of sepulture.—Remains of the Temple of the Sun.—Peruvian politics.—Disheartening news from California.—Verses on Happiness.—Earthquake at Lima.—The shoes of the ladies . . . . . . . . . 200

CHAPTER XI.

The voyage from Peru to Panama.—Farewell to Lima.—Guanacos.—The Rio lady in the omnibus.—The railroad begun.—Arrival at Callao.—Rodil's defence of Callao described.—Polite attention of Captain W.—The harbour of Callao.—The beauty of the Pacific.—Handsome appointments of the steamer.—The musical stewards.—Mr Beebe, the hatter, for California.—Arrival at Payta.—The British Consul there.—Description of Payta.—Treatment of Peru by the Spanish conquerors.—Insur-rection of Tupae Amaru.—The Indians beyond Peru . 221

CHAPTER XII.

Peru.—Her internal communication.—Her forts and coast.—Peruvian agriculture.—Manufacture of Inland Peru.—Commerce of Peru.—Her commodities.—Her CONTENTS.

trade.—Her government.—Her religion.—Peruvian fertility.—Mineral resources.—Animals.—Cattle.—The face of the country.—The Andes.—Rivers and lakes of Peru.—Her coasts. . . . . . . . . 244

CHAPTER XIII.

Departure from Peru.—On board the "New World."—The nautical ladies.—Chimborazo and Cotopaxi.—The volcanoes of the Cordillera.—Crater of Cotopaxi.—A narrow escape.—Arrival at Panama.—An amateur concert.—Departure from Panama.—Scene occasioned by a dead mule.—Badness of the roads.—Arrival at Crucés . 263

CHAPTER XIV.

The hotel at Crucés.—A felonious eat.—The New Granadian gentleman.—Progress towards Chagres.—Lightning, thunder, and rain.—Arrival at Chagres.—The dead American.—Quarrels between Americans and the natives of Panama.—Humboldt’s estimate of the Indians.—Incredulity of Californian emigrants.—Melancholy case of two returned Californians.—A beautiful sun-set.—Arrival at Jamaica.—Kingston.—Descent of General Lopez on Cuba.—Strange effect of it.—Reverses of Jamaica planters.—The glories of Nature.—Creation’s Praise, a poem . . . . . . . . 252