

CONTENTS.

CHAP. I. FROM THE ACCESSION OF CHARLES I TO THE MEETING OF THE LONG PARLIAMENT.

	PAGE
The funeral solemnities at Cambridge	1
The Dolor et Solamen and its contributors	1—5
Andrew Downes	2—3
Samuel Collins	4
Grace for an annual sermon in commemoration of King James	5
King Charles proclaimed in the market-place at Cambridge,
30 Mar. 1625	ib.
Enthusiasm at his accession	ib.
Incidents in his previous relations with Cambridge	5—10
Election of NORTHAMPTON to the chancellorship and letter of acceptance to same, May 1612	6
Subsequent nomination of Prince Charles	7
Displeasure of King James who annuls his son's nomination .	ib.
Resignation of Northampton	ib.
Letter of King James to the university	8
He enjoins a new election	ib.
Northampton's re-election, June 1612	9
His death, June 1614	ib.
Election of the earl of Suffolk	ib.
Charles's growing popularity	ib.
The Gratulatio and its contributors	10
Presentation of the same at Royston: 12 Oct. 1623	ib.
BUCKINGHAM created Duke: 18 May 1623	ib.
Dissatisfaction of Parliament with the universities	11
Approach of the Plague	ib.
JOHN WILLIAMS of St John's College	ib.
His appointment to the chancellorship	12
His vindication of the memory of King James	13
His relations with Buckingham	13—4
M. III.	b

	PAGE
JOSEPH MEDE of Christ's College	14
His services to the university contrasted with those of Williams	15
His early career	ib.
Christ's College under Bainbrigg (1622–1645): William Chappell, Robert Gell, Michael Honywood	15–6
JOHN MILTON's entry at Christ's	ib.
Remarkable range of Mede's acquirements	16–7
His position as a theologian	17
His ability and originality as tutor	18–9
His regard for individuality among his pupils	19
Number of eminent men educated at Christ's College at this period	19
Mede's other notable qualities	19–21
His correspondence at home and abroad	20
His Clavis Apocalyptica	21
His treatment of Apocalyptical studies illustrated	22–4
Widespread influence of his treatise	24–5
RICHARD MONTAGU of King's College	25
His Appello Caesarem	ib.
Early career of the author	26
His distinctive merits as a controversialist	27
His controversy with the Jesuits	ib.
His challenge and the Reply	27–8
He declines to submit to the dogmatic teaching of either Romanist or Calvinist	28–30
His book made the subject of complaint to the House of Commons	30
He is admonished by archbishop Abbot and appeals to the King	30–1
James sanctions the publication of the Appello	ib.
Montagu defines his standpoint as that of a non-sectarian	32
His position in relation to the Lapsarian controversy mainly identical with that of the English Church, and (as he asserts) the traditional view at Cambridge	32–3
The Appello censured by the House of Commons	33
Parliament reassembles at Oxford, August 1625	ib.
Buckeridge, Laud, and Howson memorialize Buckingham in favour of the Appello	34
Dismissal of Williams from the office of lord keeper, Oct. 1625	35
He is supplanted by Laud at the CORONATION at Westminster	36
Laud's manual of service for the occasion	ib.
Williams's letter to Buckingham, 7 Jan. 1626	37
His appeal to Charles, 6 Feb. 1626	ib.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00353-7 - The University of Cambridge, Volume 3

James Bass Mullinger

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.	XV
	PAGE
His fortitude amid his changed fortunes	37—8
His activity at Buckden	38
His benefactions to both Trinity and St John's	39
Benefaction of Mary, countess of Shrewsbury, to the College .	39—40
His visit in 1628 to inspect the new Library	41—2
JOHN PRESTON of Queens' College	42
His gradual decline in Buckingham's favour	ib.
His success as a preacher at Lincoln's Inn	43
He is consulted by Buckingham respecting the merits of the Appello	ib.
Verdict of the bishops appointed by Charles to report on the same	44
The CONFERENCE AT YORK HOUSE, Feb. 1626	45
Preston and Thomas Morton are opposed by Buckeridge and Francis White	ib.
THOMAS MORTON: his tolerant character, his severe criticism of the Appello	46
JOHN COSIN of Caius College	ib.
He appears at the Conference towards its close, at the behest of Buckingham	ib.
Triumph of the 'Montagutians'	47
The Appello is referred to a Committee of the House of Commons	ib.
Montagu is censured, whereupon Buckingham espouses his cause	ib.
His subsequent impeachment	ib.
His position relatively to the decisions of the Synod of Dort .	48
The Appello is condemned by the authors of the Joynt Attestation	48—50
MATTHEW SUTCLIFFE of Trinity College	50
His project of a College for instruction in theological polemics	ib.
His de Turco Papismo	ib.
His Briefe Censure in reply to Montagu	ib.
Other replies to the Appello by Henry Burton, Featley, and Francis Rous	51
Suffolk, as chancellor, enjoins the restoration of discipline .	52
His career and death	ib.
GEORGE MONTAIGNE of Queens' College	52—3
His loyalty to the society	53
He openly advises Buckingham's election to the chancellorship	ib.
Intimation of the royal pleasure to the same effect	ib.
Advice of bishop Neile, to proceed forthwith to elect Buckingham	ib.
Objections to such precipitancy as summed up by Mede	54

	PAGE
Leonard Mawe, now master of Trinity, exerts himself to give effect to Neile's advice	54
Buckingham's other supporters in the university	ib.
The earl of Berkshire is however proposed	55
THE ELECTION, June 1626	56
Disadvantages under which Berkshire's supporters labour	ib.
Buckingham's dubious majority	ib.
Analysis of the election as derived from the Registrary's lists	56—9
Illustration which this affords of the political sympathies of the different colleges	57—9
Real nature of the contest	59
Buckingham's acknowledgements of his indebtedness to the university	60
Irritation of Parliament at his election	61
Proceedings of the Commons	61—2
Royal theory of the relation of the Crown to the universities	62
The House calls for the dismissal of Buckingham	ib.
Interchange of congratulations between King, chancellor and university	63
The installation at York House	63—4
Death of Preston	64—5
Death of BACON	65
His designed benefactions to both universities	ib.
Williams appointed his executor	ib.
Growing admiration of Bacon at Cambridge	66
His sense of indebtedness to the university	67
Tribute paid by Cambridge to his memory	68
Interference of the Crown in the election to mastership of Caius	69
Election of SIBBES to same, his successful administration	70
Portent of the 'Book Fish'	71
Visit of the chancellor, March 1627	72
The UNIVERSITY LIBRARY	ib.
Bequest of archbishop Bancroft	73
Buckingham's proposal to erect a new building	74
His assassination, Aug. 1628	75
His services to the university	75—6
Charles and Laud deem the occasion favorable to the suppression of controversy	76
Theological zealotry at the universities :
THOMAS FULLER	77
His acquaintance with Thomas Edwards	ib.
Character of the latter	ib.
His sermon at St Andrew's and his recantation	ib.

CONTENTS.	xvii
	PAGE
HENRY BURTON of St John's	78
His earlier career	ib.
ALEXANDER GILL at Oxford	ib.
Corresponding manifestations on the Continent	78—9
The DECLARATION prefixed to the Book of Common Prayer, Nov. 1628	79
The suppression of the Appello	ib.
Pardon of Montagu and dissolution of Parliament	ib.
Ascendancy of Laud and disgrace of Williams	80
Bacon's estimate of religious controversy	ib.
FULKE GREVILLE, LORD BROOKE	81
His design of founding a Chair of History	ib.
Advice of Francis Bacon with regard to historical studies	81—2
The use of abridgements to be avoided	82
The most profitable authors undervalued by the teachers in the university	ib.
Another man's note-books of little use	ib.
Bacon's advice a factor in Brooke's design	83
The design as subsequently modified by the Caput	83—4
Foreigners eligible, but those in holy orders to be excluded	84
Gerard Vossius declines the offer of the chair	85
Appointment of Isaac Dorislaus	ib.
The master of Sidney's description of the circumstances under which Dorislaus commences his lectures	86
Wren's letter to Laud giving a detailed account of the cir- cumstances	86—8
Dorislaus is forbidden to lecture	88
He quits Cambridge but is retained in his lectureship	89
Assassination of lord Brooke and of Dorislaus	ib.
Obscurity in which the subsequent history of the endowment of the Chair is involved	89—90
Election of the earl of Holland to the chancellorship, August 1628	90
His career and character	ib.
Laud's ideal of the higher education	91
Growing perception of the value and relationship of the Semitic languages	92
Lodovicus De Dieu	ib.
The study of Arabic	92—3
Joseph Scaliger and Erpenius	92
James Golius and his brother Peter	93
William Bedwell	ib.
His testimony to the practical value of the spoken language	94
Its use coextensive with the Muhammadan faith	ib.

	PAGE
Value of its literature and of its translations from other literatures	94
Its acquirement sanctioned by Papal authority	94—5
Foundation of the professorship of Arabic by Sir Thomas Adams	95
ABRAHAM WHEELOCK	ib.
His ability as university librarian	96
His appointment as professor of Arabic	ib.
SIR HENRY SPELMAN	97
His letter to Wheelock	ib.
Foundation of a lectureship in Anglo-Saxon	ib.
Election of Laud to the chancellorship of Oxford, April 1629	98
Predominance of court influence in the colleges	ib.
Devices resorted to by the latter to maintain their independence	98—9
Laud endeavours to suppress the lectureship at Trinity Church	99
Succession in the same of Preston, Sibbes and Thomas Goodwin	100
Proposal of Laud to substitute catechising	ib.
Charles orders that the lectureship be continued	101
Rise of the same in the estimation of both university and town	ib.
Recurrence of the Plague at Cambridge, April 1630	102
Accounts of the visitation given by Mede and Dr Ward	ib.
The consequent distress	ib.
Its effects as regards the medical profession	103
Its appearance at Padua	104
Comparison drawn by a Trinity man between Padua and Cambridge	104—5
Death of Hobson the Carrier, Jan. 1634	105
Mede's description of Christ's College on his return	ib.
Low state of discipline in the university	106—7
This partly the result of drinking habits	107
The Ordinances of 1630	ib.
Injunctions issued in 1636 with respect to costume	ib.
Competition between servants and poor scholars in colleges	108
The ACADEMIC COMEDY	ib.
Peter Hausted and Thomas Randolph	ib.
Hausted's Rival Friends	ib.
His description of the reception accorded to his comedy	109
Randolph's Jealous Lovers	ib.
Subsequent careers of Randolph and Hausted	109—10
The Cornelianum Dolium	ib.
William Johnson's Valetudinarium	111
ABRAHAM COWLEY	ib.
His Naufragium Jocularè	ib.
His Guardian , afterwards The Cutter of Coleman Street	ib.
Ordinance of Parliament against stage plays	ib.

CONTENTS.

xix

	PAGE
Reappearance of a spirit of invectiveness in the pulpit . . .	112
Discourses by Bernard, Normanton and John Tourney . . .	112—3
Dr Ward's letter on the state of the university	113
Difficulties of his own position at Cambridge	114
CHANGES IN THE HEADSHIPS	ib.
THOMAS COMBER, master of Trinity	ib.
EDWARD MARTIN, president of Queens'	115
Dissatisfaction at the royal nominations to the degree of D.D.	ib.
DR HENRY BUTT, master of Corpus	ib.
His trying experiences as vice-chancellor	ib.
His suicide	116
Various reasons assigned for the act	116—7
Election of Dr Love as his successor	117
DR RICHARD LOVE:
His encounter with Christopher Davenport	ib.
DR WILLIAM BEALE succeeds by royal mandate to the master- ship of St John's, Feb. 1632	117—8
Pressure brought to bear on Dr Gwynne by the Visitor	118
His death, 17 June 1633	119
Contest for the mastership between Robert Lane and Richard Holdsworth	ib.
Charges against the former investigated by a commission of enquiry	120
Laud's opinion of the two candidates	ib.
Charles eventually appoints Dr Beale to the mastership	ib.
Death of Dr Lane	120—1
Contrast presented by the career of Holdsworth	121
Succession of John Cosin to the headship of Peterhouse	121—2
Innovations which he introduces in the college chapel	122
Ralph Brownrig succeeds to the mastership of St Catherine's, July 1635	ib.
His election carried against Crown influence	122—3
Laud proposes a Visitation of the university	123
Relations between his vicar, Sir John Lambe, and Williams	ib.
Williams opposes the Visitation of his diocese of Lincoln	123—4
Lambe's unfavorable report with respect to same	124
Laud proposes that the university should consult its archives	124—5
The authorities give instruction for the collection of the evidence for the primate's claim	125
The chancellor and the lord high steward alike commend the adoption of such a course	ib.
Dr Smyth the vice-chancellor gives orders for a further investiga- tion of the archives	126

	PAGE
The university reports that the precedents cited for the Visitation are not valid	126
Laud petitions the Crown that the case may be heard at Hampton Court	127
His relations at this time with Oxford	ib.
His munificent benefactions	ib.
He places the lectureship of Arabic on a permanent basis	ib.
The documents in the archives at Oxford are conveyed to Hampton Court	128
Hearing of the cause, June 1635	128—31
Protest of Holland on behalf of Cambridge	129
Laud's claim supported by Sir John Banks and Sir John Lambe	ib.
Cambridge first called upon to state its case	130
Laud denounces the immunities thereby claimed	ib.
He animadvertes on the unconsecrated college chapels	ib.
Argument of his counsel in defence of his right of Visitation	130—1
The decision given in his favour but never carried into effect	131
Report on Common Disorders in the University , furnished to Laud, Sept. 1636	131—4
LAUD'S RULE AS CHANCELLOR AT OXFORD	134
The new statutes given to the university in 1636	135
Special features of the code	ib.
Many of the Oxford bachelors betake themselves to Cambridge	136—7
The vice-chancellor of Oxford solicits the intervention of the authorities at Cambridge	137
Dr Brownrig's reply, May 1639	ib.
Laud's efforts to enforce the colloquial use of Latin justified	138
LAST DAYS OF JOSEPH MEDE	139—40
Conclusion of his correspondence, June 1631	139
He reverts to his Apocalyptic studies	ib.
His sudden death, last will, and bequests	140
PHILEMON HOLLAND, the translator	ib.
He is licensed by the vice-chancellor to receive charity from the colleges	141
His death at Coventry	ib.
Institution of the COMMEMORATION OF BENEFACTORS, Feb. 16 $\frac{3}{4}$	ib.
Members of the Committee appointed to draw up the Roll	142
Uncritical character of their earlier selection	ib.
Bishop Fisher altogether left out	143
Proposed erection of new Commencement House and Library, 1640	ib.
Convocation reasserts the Doctrine of Divine Right, June 1640	144
The doctrine imposed on the universities	ib.

CONTENTS. xxi

	PAGE
Imposition of the Etcetera Oath	144
The omission in the Cambridge copy	145
Exceptions taken to the oath by Holdsworth, Brownrig, Hacket, and Godfrey Goodman	ib.
WILLIAM BEALE's sermon at St Mary's, March 1635	145—6
He attacks Parliament and is called to account, May 1640	146
His complaint to Cosin	ib.
Verses by the university on the birth of Prince Henry, July 1640	147
Election of burgesses for the town, Oct. 1640	ib.
Intervention of lord keeper Finch	ib.
Election of Oliver Cromwell and John Lowrey	ib.
Cromwell as an undergraduate	148

CHAP. II. THE EXILES TO AMERICA.

Tradition respecting Oliver Cromwell	149
Cambridge and the Plantation of VIRGINIA	149—51
William Crashaw's sermon, February 160 ⁹ / ₁₀	150
Leading colonists from Cambridge	ib.
Earl of Southampton, first governor	151
Henry Briggs, John Pory	ib.
Anglican traditions of the colony	ib.
Proposed university, and college for the natives	152
Failure of the project	ib.
Joseph Mede's perplexity with respect to the newly discovered races	153
His reply to Dr Twisse's queries on the subject	ib.
America will certainly not be the site of the New Jerusalem	ib.
His painful conclusion	154
His influence on New England theology discussed	154—7
Cotton Mather reproduces Mede's theory	155
The powers of evil are in retreat from the centres of civilization	156
Relevance of such theorization to New England experiences	157
Development of the teaching of Cartwright and Walter Travers in the university	157—9
The two Johnsons, Francis and George	157
Their careers prior to their appearance at Amsterdam in 1598	157—8
The SEPARATIST CHURCH AT AMSTERDAM	158—63
George Johnson's Discourse , 1603	159
He compares his brother's church with the former church at Frankfort	ib.
His brother expels him from Amsterdam	ib.

	PAGE
His death as a prisoner at Durham	160
HENRY AINSWORTH succeeds to the pastorate at Amsterdam	ib.
His knowledge of Hebrew	ib.
His early experiences in the city	160—1
WILLIAM BREWSTER earns his livelihood by teaching English	161
The churches in Holland mainly under the direction of Cambridge men	ib.
Oxford graduates: Matthew Slade and John Davenport	161—2
Richard Mather and his Cambridge Platform	162
Prevalence of contention among the exiles in Holland	163
The migration from Amsterdam to Leyden, 1609	ib.
JOHN ROBINSON and his church in Leyden	163—5
Notable change in the spirit of his teaching	164
He holds that Christianity is progressive with respect to doctrine	164—5
His address to his followers on their leaving to embark in the Mayflower , 1620	165
Religious views of the colonizers of New Plymouth	166—7
Contrast presented by the colonizers of New England	167
FRANCIS HIGGINSON	ib.
His experiences in England	168
His appointment as minister by the Massachusetts Company	168—9
His departure for New England	169
He establishes a church at Salem on a Separatist basis	169—70
The MEETING AT CAMBRIDGE, August 1629	170—1
JOHN WINTHROP'S speech on the occasion	171
Relations of the Winthrop family with the university	ib.
Adam Winthrop the younger	ib.
His son John enters at Trinity, Dec. 1602	172
His married life and family	173
His eldest son John sent to Trinity College, Dublin, his second son to Emmanuel	ib.
John makes the grand tour	ib.
The family correspondence	173—4
The father's lost letter to John, the contents of which are indicated in the reply	174—5
Decision to transfer the government of the Massachusetts Company to New England	175—6
The chief leaders in this design: Sir Richard Saltonstall, George Phillips and Increase Nowell	176
Winthrop and his companions find themselves confronted by a Separatist church	176—7
Their previous disavowal of the Separatists	177
Arrival of the Arbella , June 1630	ib.

CONTENTS.

xxiii

	PAGE
Samuel Skelton of Clare Hall	177
He refuses to recognize the new-comers as members of the true Church	178
Further results of Laud's repressive policy	178—9
Isolated examples of loyalty to the mother church	179
Arrival of JOHN COTTON, Sept. 1633	180
He becomes the chief leader of the colony	ib.
His theory of 'liberty of conscience'	ib.
Real liberty of conscience not conceded in New England	181
Other Cambridge men	181—8
JOHN ELIOT, Thomas James, 181 ; Thomas Weld, Nathaniel Ward and his Body of Liberties	182
Thomas Hooker, Samuel Stone	ib.
Thomas Shepard, Daniel Maud, Richard Mather	183
Peter Bulkley, the founder of Concord, John Norton, John Wheelwright	184
Samuel Whiting, Richard Jennings, John Davenport, founder of Newhaven	185
Charles Chauncy, who retracts his retraction made in England and becomes president of Harvard College	186
Henry Dunster, Chauncy's predecessor	ib.
His qualifications as a scholar and administrator	187
Circumstances of his expulsion from the presidency	188
FOUNDATION OF HARVARD COLLEGE, 1636	ib.
Newtown selected for the site and the name changed to that of Cambridge	ib.
JOHN HARVARD, after whom the College is now named	188—9
His main design to avert the succession of an illiterate ministry	ib.
Expulsion of ROGER WILLIAMS of Pembroke College	189—91
His intolerance in relation to the Church of England	190
His repudiation of learning as essential to the understanding of Scripture	ib.
His theory hostile to the universities	191
Signal service rendered by the new foundation to the colony	ib.
The Founder's library	192
Earliest account of the Foundation, 1643	192—5
The scheme of discipline and study	195
Latin verse composition	ib.
Hebrew, Chaldee and Syriac	ib.
Rhetoric	ib.
Practice of recapitulation	196
Requirements for first and second degrees	ib.
The first COMMENCEMENT, Aug. 1642	196—7

	PAGE
The disputants	196
Testimonies to the material and spiritual prosperity of the colonists	197
Depleting effects of the success of their party in England .	198
Thomas Welde and Hugh Peters of Trinity College	ib.
The Bay Psalm Book	ib.
Appeal of Harvard to London for aid, and response thereto	199
Counter migration of many of the exiles to England .	199—200
New regulations at Harvard	200
Destruction of its library	ib.
In all three colonies the teachers are mainly from Cambridge .	ib.
The influence of Joseph Mede is clearly discernible	200—1
Theories now advanced with respect to the Indian tribes :	201
first, that they were the myrmidons of Gog and Magog ; secondly, the Lost Tribes of Israel	201—2

CHAP. III. FROM THE MEETING OF THE LONG PARLIAMENT TO THE YEAR 1647. (Nov. 1640—1647.)

Dissatisfaction manifested by both political parties with the universities	203—4
Milton's indictment against the same	204
Petition of Manchester to be made a university, 164 $\frac{1}{2}$	ib.
Reasons urged in support of such a measure	ib.
Remoteness of Oxford and Cambridge from the north and the expensiveness of both	204—5
Patrons certain to be forthcoming	205
Manchester of great antiquity and now of 'great fame'	ib.
Similar petitions from York and the northern counties	206
The claims of York particularized	ib.
Its former library, its existing foundations and other available resources	206—7
Fairfax, although admitting the esteem in which Oxford and Cambridge are held by Parliament, favours the claims of Manchester	207
The new members for the university: Henry Lucas and Thomas Eden	ib.
APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER ABUSES IN THE UNIVERSITIES	208
Proceedings against Cosin	ib.
He is deprived of all his church preferments but retains his mastership	209

CONTENTS.	XXV
	PAGE
D'Ewes in the House of Commons asserts the priority of Cambridge over Oxford, 2 Jan. 1649	209
He admits and accounts for the predominance of Oxford men in the House	210
But maintains that Cambridge was prior to Oxford both as 'a city' and a seat of learning	ib.
Acts in Parliament abolishing 'subscription' at the universities	211
Cambridge petitions Parliament on behalf of cathedral endowments	ib.
Bill for depriving ecclesiastics of power to intervene in secular affairs	ib.
The Lords insert a proviso whereby Heads are declared admissible to magisterial functions	ib.
This provisionally accepted by the Commons	ib.
Reappointment of the Committee for the Universities, June 1641	ib.
Assessment of the colleges	212
Holdsworth as vice-chancellor	ib.
Death of Dr Chaderton, 1640	ib.
His high esteem for Holdsworth	ib.
The statute de Mora Sociorum again contested at Emmanuel	213
The fellows petition against its re-enactment, 1640	ib.
Election of John Worthington as Head notwithstanding	ib.
The Commons declare the election valid, 1642	214
Worthington's supporters and opponents compared	ib.
HOLDSWORTH'S ORATION in vesperis Comitiorum (July 1641)	215—9
He deplores the distressed condition of the university	216
Upholds the unique position of the English Church and insists on the true spirit of the English Reformation	216—7
Descants on the gloomy prospects of learning, and appeals to Parliament not to ignore the noble traditions of both universities	217—8
Urges his audience to renewed efforts, dwelling on the force of individual example	219
Parliament refers his Oration to a committee	ib.
Articles exhibited against Dr Beale, August 1641	219—20
Consequent action of Parliament	ib.
Royal favour shewn to Holdsworth	220
Loyal feeling of the university as set forth in the Irenodia	221
Language of the GRAND REMONSTRANCE, 1641	ib.
The Protestation imposed on the university and subscription on proceeding to degrees again prohibited	ib.
The universities claim exemption from the forced Loan	ib.
The VISIT OF KING AND PRINCE, March 1641	222—3
Description of same by Joseph Beaumont of Peterhouse	222
John Cleveland's Oration	ib.

	PAGE
Performance of Cowley's Guardian	222
The Banquet at St John's	223
Holdsworth's sermon at Great St Mary's	ib.
Optimistic tone of his discourse	ib.
The KENTISH PETITION	223—4
Milton's fourth pamphlet	224
The Episcopal Order now especially threatened	ib.
Claims of the Order on the gratitude of poor students	ib.
Aid granted to students from Trinity College, Dublin	225
Sermon before the university by Thomas Stephens, May 1642	ib.
He denounces the prevailing disloyal tendencies	ib.
His remarkable anticipation of Puritan excesses	226
TRINITY COLLEGE UNDER THE RULE OF DR COMBER (1631–1645)	ib.
Increased attention paid to modern languages and the belles lettres	227
Satirical tone of the scholars in relation to current prophecies	ib.
Development of poetry among its members: Hugh Holland, Thomas Randolph	ib.
Andrew Marvell, Cowley, and Sir John Suckling	228
Dispersion of the university owing to the Plague	ib.
The ROYAL APPEAL FOR A LOAN, June 1642	229
The Cambridge response	229—30
The Oxford response	230
Offer of Charles to take care of the plate still remaining in each college, July 1642	231
Compliance of the colleges	231—2
The loan held to be not destined for warlike purposes	232
Dean Barwick and his brother Peter	ib.
Plate sent from St John's and Queens', August 1642	233
BARNABAS OLEY of Clare	234
Device by which he saves the Clare plate	ib.
Experiences of the other colleges	234—5
Town and university alike arm	235
Seizure of arms by Cromwell	ib.
He occupies the Castle and intercepts the departure of some of the plate	236
He is out-manœuvred by Barnabas Oley who conveys a portion of the treasure to Nottingham	ib.
The plate at Magdalene, King's, Jesus, and Sidney	237
Cromwell orders the arrest of Drs Beale, Martin and Sterne	237—8
Harshness of their treatment	238
Order for their committal to the Tower, Sept. 1642	ib.
Their progress thither	238—9
Unpopularity of Dr Wren in his diocese	239

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00353-7 - The University of Cambridge, Volume 3

James Bass Mullinger

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xxvii

	PAGE
Subsequent experiences of Dr Beale	239—40
Baker's estimate of his character	240
THE ASSOCIATION OF THE EASTERN COUNTIES, Dec. 1642	ib.
The university petitions Parliament	241
Apprehension of a royalist attack on Cambridge	ib.
Appeal of Parliament to the county for aid	ib.
Cromwell proceeds to fortify the town, March 1643	241—2
The Lords endeavour to shield the university by promulgating a Protection	242—3
Their mandate ignored by Cromwell's soldiery	243
Damages suffered by the colleges resulting from the fortifying of the town	ib.
St John's College converted into a prison	243—4
Cromwell's demand for a subsidy refused by the university	244
Detention of the Heads in the schools	ib.
Money forcibly taken from the college bursars	244—5
Dr Power of Christ's College	245
Popular demonstration against his Latin sermon	ib.
The colleges plundered and their chapels desecrated	246
Holdsworth, the vice-chancellor, arrested and sent to London, May 1643	ib.
Heads summoned to attend the Westminster Assembly	247
The university appeals to both Houses for relief, June 1643	ib.
The petition referred to a Committee	248
Grace for dispensing with the Commencement ceremonies, June 1643	ib.
JOHN PEARSON, bishop of Chester	249
His sermon in defence of Forms of Prayer	249—50
The fortifications completed, Cromwell sets out for Gainsborough	250
Charles Cavendish killed in the skirmish near that town	251
Cromwell falls back on Peterborough and sends his prisoners on to Cambridge	ib.
His appeal to the Cambridge Committee	ib.
Sympathy shewn by the scholars with the prisoners in St John's	251—2
Death of Dr Samuel Ward, Sept. 1643	252
THE ELECTION TO THE MASTERSHIP OF SIDNEY	253
HERBERT THORNDIKE of Trinity	253—4
His nomination and that of Richard Minshull as candidates	254
Arrest of John Pawson, one of Thorndike's supporters	ib.
Election of Minshull	ib.
Appeal of Thorndike's supporters to Charles at Oxford	ib.
The royal vacillation, resulting in the confirmation of the election	254—5
Further endowment of the lady Margaret professorship	255—6

	PAGE
Election of Holdsworth (still a prisoner) to the Chair, Sept. 1643	256
Endeavour of the university to secure the patronage of the rectory of Terrington	ib.
JOSEPH HALL, bishop of Norwich	ib.
The ACT OF SEQUESTRATION, March 1643	ib.
The university forbidden to admit Holdsworth to his Chair, Oct. 1643	ib.
Concern manifested at Emmanuel	257
Operation of the Act of Sequestration in the university, Oct. 1643	258
Petition against the same by the authorities	ib.
The libraries and other property of some of the Heads sequestered	ib.
Rising against the Parliamentary party by the royalist townsmen, Oct. 1645	259
CONTRAST PRESENTED BY AFFAIRS AT OXFORD, 1643-6	ib.
Combined activity of town and gown in the defence	ib.
The customary academic routine to a great extent suspended	260
Ussher continues his labours both as a preacher and an editor	ib.
HENRY FERNE of Trinity College	ib.
His Resolving of Conscience	260-1
The book printed at the University Press, Dec. 1642	261
Holdsworth as licenser is summoned and imprisoned	ib.
Ferne repairs to Oxford	ib.
The fortunes of the two University Presses, at this juncture, compared	ib.
Conditions under which the different colleges continued to exist at Oxford	261-2
Details relating to Balliol, Hart Hall, Lincoln, Oriel, New, All Souls, Corpus Christi, Christ Church, Trinity, St John's, Jesus, Wadham	262-3
Further distractions lead to a proposal to open a Hall of residence for the students in London, such residence to count as tantamount to residence at either university	263
Petition of Trinity College, Cambridge, against the Sequestration Act, as involving much suffering to the society at large	264
EDWARD MONTAGU, earl of Manchester, gives his support to the petition, Dec. 1643	264-5
Declaration of Lords and Commons concerning college estates, Jan. 1644	ib.
Manchester appointed financial controller of the university	265-6
Ordinance for the demolition or taking away of all monuments of superstition or idolatry throughout the kingdom, August 1643	266

CONTENTS.

· xxix

	PAGE
The sole exception to same	266
WILLIAM DOWSING at Cambridge, Dec. 1643—Jan. 1644	267
HIS VISITATION OF THE COLLEGES	ib.
Peterhouse and Pembroke	267—8
His dispute with the fellows of the latter	268
Caius, Queens', and St Catherine's	269
Growing reputation of Dr Brownrig	ib.
His temperate defence of Anglican observance	270
Dowsing's visit to Corpus Christi	ib.
The chapel spared, while St Benet's Church suffers severely	270—1
Destruction at Jesus, Clare, Trinity Hall, Trinity, St John's, King's, Magdalene, Sidney and Emmanuel	271—2
PARLIAMENTARY ORDINANCE FOR REGULATING THE UNIVERSITY, Jan. 164 $\frac{3}{4}$	ib.
The Solemn League and Covenant to be tendered	273
Warrants issued by Manchester	ib.
The residential element in the colleges required to return to Cambridge, Feb. 164 $\frac{3}{4}$	ib.
Ejections of five Heads,—COSIN, BEALE, MARTIN, STERNE and LANEY	273—4
Appointment of Commissioners to tender the Covenant, March 164 $\frac{3}{4}$	275
General ejection of absentees	ib.
The alleged 'Oath of Discovery'	276
The story rejected by Fuller	ib.
Statement of Simeon Ashe	276—7
Death of young Oliver Cromwell, March 164 $\frac{3}{4}$	277
Alleged ill-treatment of the Senate by Cromwell's delegate	278
The tendering of the COVENANT	ib.
Ejections consequent upon refusal to be distinguished from those consequent upon refusal of the ENGAGEMENT	278—9
Perjury involved in taking the Covenant	279
OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE SEQUESTRATIONS, 164 $\frac{3}{4}$	280
Owners of books allowed to repurchase them at their estimated value	ib.
Expulsion of Dr Cosin from Peterhouse	280—1
His ineffectual endeavour to conceal his library	281
Lazarus Seaman obtains an order for its transfer to the college	281—2
Election of Lazarus Seaman as master, April 1644	282
Gradual ejection of the fellows, April 1644—5	ib.
Joseph Beaumont, Richard Crashaw	282—3
Election to a fellowship of John Knightbridge, the founder of the professorship	283
M. III.	c

	PAGE
Dr Francius alone escapes ejection	283
Isaac Barrow, afterwards bishop of St Asaph	284
Crashaw's life at Pembroke	ib.
His career at Peterhouse and afterwards	285
His description of the havoc wrought by Dowsing	ib.
His death at Loretto	286
John Tolly's furniture	ib.
Expulsions from CLARE HALL, Dr Paske, Barnabas Oley	287
PETER GUNNING	ib.
Appeal of the royalist party in the Associated Counties to the colleges to reject the Covenant	ib.
Consequent appearance of The Certain Disquisitions , a Cam- bridge production edited by Gunning at Oxford	288
Ejections at PEMBROKE COLLEGE	289
Flight of Dr Laney	ib.
Walter Balcanquhall, his tomb at Chirk	290
MARK FRANK (master, 1662-4)	ib.
Robert Mapletoft (master, 1664-77)	ib.
EDMUND BOLDERO	291
Fortunes of the remaining fellows	ib.
Installation of RICHARD VINES as master	ib.
William Moses (master, 1655-60)	ib.
Ejections at CAIUS COLLEGE	292
DR BATCHCROFT retains the mastership	ib.
Additional grounds for ejection now brought forward	ib.
Richard Watson	293
William Moore, afterwards university librarian	ib.
His ultimate resignation of his fellowship	ib.
Changes at TRINITY HALL	ib.
Death of Dr Eden, July 1645	294
John Selden declines the mastership	ib.
Election of Robert King	ib.
His election set aside by the Commons	295
Election of John Bond	ib.
Proceedings at CORPUS CHRISTI COLLEGE	ib.
DR LOVE retains the mastership	ib.
Ejections of Tunstal, Palgrave, and Heath	295-6
Appointment of Second Committee, Jan. 1604 $\frac{1}{2}$	296
BENJAMIN WHICHCOTE of Emmanuel	ib.
His appointment to the provostship of King's College	297
His generosity to COLLINS	ib.
Retirement of the latter into private life	ib.
His eminence alike as an administrator and a scholar	297-8
Ejections at KING'S COLLEGE	298

CONTENTS.

xxxii

	PAGE
Expulsion of Dr Martin from QUEENS' COLLEGE	298
Sequestrations and numerous ejections	298—9
Ejections on account of 'other misdemeanours' and for non- appearance	299
Fuller's account compared with that of Simon Patrick	299—300
Installation of HERBERT PALMER as president	300
Nathaniel Ingelo	ib.
Ejections at JESUS COLLEGE	301
Flourishing condition of the society	ib.
Ralph Blakestone, Stephen Hall	ib.
Installation of THOMAS YOUNG as master	302
Numerous ejections and change in the character of the college that ensued	ib.
Ejections at CHRIST'S COLLEGE	ib.
MICHAEL HONYWOOD	303
Sequestration of his library in his absence at Utrecht	ib.
ST JOHN'S COLLEGE	ib.
Installation of JOHN ARROWSMITH as master	ib.
Expulsions of Thomas Thornton, the president, Bodurda, the Barwicks, W. Lacy, Bulkeley and John Otway	304
Otway's courageous opposition to the Associated Counties	ib.
JOHN CLEVELAND	ib.
Recorded sequestrations	304—5
ST CATHERINE'S COLLEGE	305—6
Installation of WILLIAM SPURSTOWE as master in 1645, Dr Brown- rig's expulsion being delayed for a year	305
Expulsions from MAGDALENE COLLEGE	306
DR EDWARD RAINBOWE, master, 1642—50	ib.
His success as a college tutor	306—7
High reputation of the college under his rule	307
He retains the mastership but nine of the fellows are expelled	307—8
Richard Perrinchief	308
John Saltmarsh	ib.
Expulsions from TRINITY COLLEGE	ib.
DR COMBER	ib.
Testimony borne to his merit by contemporaries	308—9
Herbert Thorndike	309
Impression produced by his first two Treatises	ib.
His expulsion both from his fellowship and his living	309—10
Valuation of the property of some of the ejected	310
Dr Cheney Row, Dr Meredith, Abraham Cowley, Sir Thomas Slater	ib.
His subsequent benefaction to the college	310—1
Recognition of the same by the society	311

c 2

	PAGE
The state of the college calls for the interference of Parliament	311
Appointment of Medcalf and Pratt to senior fellowships	ib.
Changes among the scholars	311—2
JOHN PELL at Amsterdam	312
Expulsions from EMMANUEL COLLEGE	ib.
Holdsworth gives place to TUCKNEY in the mastership	ib.
His endeavour to propitiate the Commissioners	ib.
The sequestration of his library forbidden by Manchester	312—3
Nicholas Hall redeems his own library	313
Sequestrations of Sorsby and Wells	ib.
Ejections at SIDNEY COLLEGE	313—4
Robert Bertie and SETH WARD	313
Appearance of Seth Ward and Edward Gibson before the Commissioners	314
Subsequent experiences of the former	314—5
He succeeds John Greaves as Savilian professor of astronomy at Oxford	315
DR JOHN WILKINS	ib.
His friendship with Ward	ib.
Joint influence of both at Wadham College and prosperity of that society during this period	316
Lawrence Rooke of King's migrates to Wadham, entering as a fellow-commoner, and there also becomes a friend of Ward	316—7
The expelled and their successors, throughout the university, compared	317
Considerations to be borne in mind in such a comparison	317—8
The old and the new Heads contrasted	318
Vines and Laney as estimated by Crashaw	ib.
Holdsworth compared with Tuckney	ib.
Method of procedure in filling up the vacant fellowships	319
Examination of the candidates	ib.
Promise made by those elected	320
Each succeeds to the status, as regards seniority, of the ejected fellow	ib.
Conditions which rendered the Covenant obnoxious to the universities	320—1
Jasper Mayne, canon of Christchurch	321
His attitude in relation to the Covenant	ib.
His reason in briefest form for rejecting it	322
Cambridge Commencement of 1645	ib.
Circumstances which rendered the customary solemnities impracticable	ib.

CONTENTS.

xxxiii

	PAGE
Parliament condemns the tenure of ecclesiastical sinecures in conjunction with masterships	323
Consequent diminution in the value attached to such office	323—4
Representation made by Manchester in the House of Lords on the subject	324
Remedy which he suggests	ib.
The Heads petition that the colleges may be exempted from taxation	ib.
Ordinance to that effect, 11 April 1645	ib.
Fresh source of disunion resulting from divisions between Presbyterian and Independent	324—5
Manchester supported by the Heads at Cambridge	325
His critical position	ib.
Sensation created by the news of the battles of Naseby and Langport	325—6
Richard Baxter describes his visit to Cromwell's quarters	326
The town seeks to abolish the ancient privileges of the university	326—7
John Lowry, the mayor, refuses to take the customary oath	327
The Heads appeal to Lords and Commons, August 1645	ib.
They represent that the privileges of the university are endangered by Lowry's action	ib.
Response of the Lords to the petition of the Heads	328
Counter petition of Lowry to the Commons	ib.
Appointment of a COMMISSION to view the statutes of the university, Oct. 1645	329
Appointment of two new Committees	ib.
Significance of the Parliamentary claim to visit	329—30
Further incidents in the contest between the university and the mayor	330
The question of precedency between the vice-chancellor and the mayor argued before the Lords, Feb. 1644 ⁴	330—1
The witnesses for the town fail to appear	331
Orders given by the Lords for the maintenance of the university in its rights and privileges, May 1647	ib.
This order treated with contempt by Lowry's successor, Sept. 1647	332
Growing contempt for OATHS as practically binding	332—3
Perjury involved in the acceptance of the Covenant by university graduates	333
Conduct of Kitchingman, the new mayor	ib.
Scruples of Thomas Hill, master of Trinity, with respect to his oath as vice-chancellor	333—4
His petition to the House of Lords, Nov. 1645	334

	PAGE
Appointment of Committee to consider the question of corporate oaths, Sept. 1646	334
REPORTS of the two new Committees, Nov. 1645	ib.
Conditions attached to elections to fellowships	ib.
The Heads required to preach at St Mary's	335
PETITION of the university that Bancroft's books may be sent to Cambridge	ib.
Tardy assent of Parliament	335—6
Parliamentary grant towards the erection of a new Library, March 164 $\frac{1}{2}$	336
Dissent of the Lords, who, however, concur in a grant for the purchase of a Hebrew library	337
Measures of reform introduced by the university authorities	ib.
Observance of the statutes still made binding by oath	ib.
Order given for the transcription of the Proctors' Books	ib.
Candidates for degrees forbidden to give or receive 'invitations,' April 1647	338
Renewed demonstrations of discontent	339
Consequent proceedings against Zachary Cawdry and George Hutton	ib.
Recurrence of the Plague	339—40

CHAP. IV. THE COMMONWEALTH AND THE PROTECTORATE.

Abduction of the King by Joyce, June 1647	341
His visit to Childerley Hall	342
Enthusiasm of the scholars	ib.
Growing ascendancy of the Independents	ib.
The Judgement of the University of Oxford , June 1647	342—3
Irritation of the Puritan party at its publication	343
Conflict at Oxford between the garrison and the Presbyterian soldiery, June 1647	344
The VISITATION AT OXFORD	344—9
Miscarriage of the first proceedings of the Visitors	ib.
Parliament fails to intervene on their behalf	ib.
This probably attributable to the increasing influence of the army	345
Appearance of Jasper Mayne's Ἰστορικὴ Ἰστορία , June 1647	ib.
His estimate of the crisis	ib.
Commencement of the work of the Visitors	345—6
Importance of the results which they accomplished	346
Powers with which they were invested	ib.
The Judgement of the University denounced to the Visitors	346—7

CONTENTS.

xxxv

	PAGE
Anthony Wood's estimate of the principal Commissioners . . .	347
Sir Nathaniel Brent, the two John Wilkinsons, Edward Reynolds, Christopher Rogers, Francis Cheynell and Henry Wilkinson	347—8
John Conant leaves Oxford	349
Numerous defections from among the academic body to Rome	ib.
Stringent censorship of the two University Presses	ib.
Proposal for founding a university in London	ib.
JEREMY TAYLOR, fellow of Caius College	350
Special importance of his Liberty of Prophesying	ib.
JOHN HALL of St John's	351
His Horae Vacivae , 1646	ib.
Generous recognition of its merits shewn by members of the university	ib.
He turns satirist	352
His Poems , 1646 and 1647	ib.
His effusive eulogies of his patrons	352—3
Reassembling of the university on the cessation of the Plague	353
Predominance of militarism in the town	ib.
Fray between students and soldiery	ib.
Intervention of Parliament, June 1648	354
Temerity of Edward Byne, fellow of Caius	ib.
Vehemence of the pulpit	ib.
Paul Knell before the benchers of Gray's Inn	ib.
Sermon by R. P. of St John's	355
He proclaims peace to be the indispensable remedy	ib.
SAMUEL HAMMOND	356
His sermon on the victory at Preston, August 1648	ib.
The PEACE OF WESTPHALIA	ib.
The university of Marburg during the Thirty Years' War	357
Principles of religious freedom proclaimed both in Germany and England	ib.
Charles at Newport sanctions another 'Act for regulating both the universities'	358
Acceptance of the ENGAGEMENT by the Council of State	ib.
Scruples of Puritanism in relation to the King's execution	ib.
Counter manifesto from Trinity College	ib.
Tendering of the Engagement at the universities temporarily postponed	359
Execution of the earl of Holland, March 1648 [§]	ib.
His prayer on the scaffold for the university	ib.
Election of Manchester as Holland's successor in the chancellorship	360
Value of his influence to protect the university	ib.

	PAGE
The university printers bound over not to print unlicensed books	360
Restrictions imposed on the press generally	361
TRINITY HALL and Doctors' Commons	ib.
Origin of their connexion	ib.
Civilians and common lawyers	362
Encroachments of the latter on the province of the former	ib.
Cromwell applies for a chamber for Dr Dorislaus, Dec. 1648 . .	ib.
Career of Dorislaus after his dismissal from the Chair of History	362—3
His share in the impeachment of the late King	363
His assassination at the Hague, May 1649	ib.
Honour paid to his memory	ib.
Letter from the Council to lady Brooke, Sept. 1649	364
WILLIAM DELL	ib.
His election to the mastership of Caius College, May 1649	ib.
His qualifications for the post contrasted with those of his predecessor	ib.
Circumstances of Batchcroft's election in 1626	ib.
He retires from Cambridge	365
His previous career	ib.
His relations with Cromwell	ib.
Singularity of his views in relation to religious parties	365—6
Probably elected as having influence in high quarters	366
Significance of subsequent ejections of William Blanckes and Charles Scarborough	366—7
William Harvey, John Greaves, and Seth Ward	367
Milton becomes Latin secretary to the Council of State, March 1649	367—8
Colloquial Latin made obligatory on the colleges of both universities	368
Subscription to the ENGAGEMENT now made obligatory at the universities, October 1649	369
The former Oath superseded by a simple promise	ib.
Alarm excited by its indefiniteness	ib.
It supersedes the Covenant but exposes the acceptor to the risk of perjury	370
It is denounced by Prynne and by Baxter	ib.
John Hall demands a Reformation of the Universities	371
He points out that they are being left behind by those on the Continent	ib.
His criticism compared with that of Bacon	ib.
He holds the Cambridge methods obsolete as regards the teaching of Latin, Greek, Logic and Ethics	372
Pronounces the professoriate both inefficient and inadequate	ib.

CONTENTS.

xxxvii

	PAGE
He complains (a) of the want of provision for teaching Chemistry, Anatomy, Botany and Mathematics	372
(b) of the neglect of History and of Chronology	373
(c) of the absence of competent and experienced teachers	ib.
He insists on a more reasonable interpretation of the designs of benefactors	374
Recognition extended to his efforts by the Council of State	ib.
He accompanies Cromwell to Scotland and receives a pension	ib.
His probable obligations both to Milton and to Hartlib	374—5
Election of Cromwell to the chancellorship of Oxford, Feb. 1659	375
The Engagement , at first, not pressed in the university, in pur- suance of Cromwell's promise at Cambridge, June 1650	ib.
His changed tone after the victory at Dunbar	375—6
EJECTIONS CONSEQUENT UPON THE TENDERING OF THE ENGAGE- MENT, Nov. 1650—1651	ib.
Peterhouse, Clare, Pembroke, Caius	ib.
Trinity Hall, Corpus Christi	377
Three classes of refusers	377—8
Their successors all Independents	378
KING'S COLLEGE	378—9
Financial condition of the society	ib.
Christopher Wase, HENRY MOLLE	379
Form of admission to scholarships prescribed by the London Committee	ib.
QUEENS' COLLEGE	380
Thomas Horton appointed president, Sept. 1648	ib.
Ejection of two fellows	ib.
ST CATHERINE'S HALL	ib.
JOHN LIGHTFOOT succeeds Spurstowe	ib.
His profound scholarship combined with enlightened tolerance	380—1
Disorganized condition of the society	381
JESUS COLLEGE	381—2
JOHN WORTHINGTON elected master, Nov. 1650	381
John Sherman, the first new fellow	382
His Historia Collegii Iesu	ib.
Mr Arthur Gray's criticism of the work	ib.
CHRIST'S COLLEGE	382—3
Smallness of the royalist element	382
HENRY MORE	382—3
RALPH WIDDINGTON	383
ST JOHN'S COLLEGE	383—4
Henry Paman, M.D.	383
His letter to Sancroft	383—4
MATTHEW ROBINSON	384

	PAGE
MAGDALENE COLLEGE	384—5
Expulsion of DR RAINBOWE	384
Installation of JOHN SADLER	384—5
Divergent opinions as to his merits	384
Ejections of Richard Perrinchief and John Howorth	385
TRINITY COLLEGE	ib.
Peter Samways, John Rhodes	385—6
Humfrey Babington (s.t.p. 1669)	386
Onerous requirements originally imposed for the degree of B.D.	386—7
Dr Babington is invited to preach at the Lincoln Assizes, 1678	387
Illustration afforded by his Discourse of the pulpit oratory of the divine of that period	ib.
Views maintained in the Westminster Assembly with regard to pulpit oratory	388
Objection taken by Palmer to quotations ‘in strange languages’	ib.
Admiration of country congregations for the same	ib.
Experience of professor Pococke at Childrey	388—9
Dr Babington’s assize sermon at Lincoln	389—90
He prints it at the request of the Judges	390
His benefaction to Trinity	ib.
EMMANUEL COLLEGE	390—1
Wm. Sancroft’s letter to his brother Thomas	ib.
His ultimate ejection from his fellowship	391
Election of Thomas Brainford, Carter, Illingworth and Mosley	ib.
William Croone	ib.
SIDNEY COLLEGE	392
Example set by Dr Minshull of prompt submission	ib.
Ejections of refusers of the Engagement as late as 1654	ib.
Ejections on other grounds	ib.
THE EPISODE AT PETERHOUSE	392—416
The early monastic rule and that of Peterhouse compared	ib.
Similarity in the requirements with respect to the election of a Head.	393
The smaller the society the greater the necessity for an autocracy	393—4
The master’s claim to a negative voice practically conceded at Peterhouse after 1644	394
The system of probation fellowships	394—5
Condition of the college in 1644½	395
The newly-elected fellows examined in London	ib.
Seaman endeavours to abolish the ‘probation’ stage	ib.
Objections raised by the senior fellows.	396

CONTENTS.	xxxix
	PAGE
Parliament authorizes an increase in the stipends of Heads of Colleges	396
Particulars of the distribution of the sum allotted	396—7
Trinity and Peterhouse unmentioned	397
Point of view from which LAZARUS SEAMAN probably regarded his own position	ib.
The times not favorable to autocracies	ib.
CHARLES HOTHAM, intruded fellow of Peterhouse, June 1644	398
Circumstances which had led to his adoption of an academic life	398—9
Lazarus Seaman's early career	399
His skill as a controversialist	ib.
His reputation in the Westminster Assembly	ib.
His installation at Peterhouse by Manchester, April 1644	400
His frequent absence from the college	ib.
Adoniram Byfield	400—1
The story of Tobias Conyers	401
Hotham's endeavours to bring about his promotion	402
He obtains for him, in the absence of the master, the office of chapel clerk	ib.
Indignation of Seaman on his return	ib.
Conyers's reckless conduct	402—3
He is flogged and sent down	403
His penitence	ib.
He is re-admitted in the following Lent Term	ib.
Irregular appropriation of fellowship dividends	ib.
Seaman and Hotham are summoned before the London Committee	404
The latter affirms that delay in filling up the vacant fellowship is unstatutable	ib.
Conyers is elected to the fellowship by a majority of the fellows	405
The London Committee annul the election and substitute Heywood, the master's nominee	405—6
Hotham denounces Heywood as disqualified and publishes his Petition , May 1651	406
He maintains the validity of the college statutes	ib.
He eulogizes the design of Parliament in appointing a Commission	406—7
He expresses his apprehension lest that design should be frustrated by the master and his supporters	407
He represents the case as urgent and makes further allegations against Seaman	407—8
He pleads for more stringent provisions as regards the master's authority	408

	PAGE
Seaman suggests that Hotham's Petition should be dealt with by the newly appointed Visitors	408—9
Hotham resolves on bringing the whole story respecting Conyers under the notice of the public	409
He argues that a college statute cannot be set aside by a later statute of the university	409—10
His disparaging estimate of the Elizabethan statutes as virtually drawn up by the Heads	410
He commends the Heads for their moderation in the exercise of a negative voice, to which Peterhouse offers the sole exception	411
A college rightly regarded is a corporation modelled on a limited monarchy	ib.
Dr Seaman, being rarely in residence, is the least entitled to a negative voice	411—2
The London Committee resent Hotham's recourse to publication	412
He is expelled from his fellowship, May 1651	ib.
His censors and supporters compared	412—4
Formal testimony of the latter in his favour	414
The so-called Latitudinarian party active in his support	ib.
Hotham proceeds to publish his Corporations Vindicated , making his appeal to Parliament	415
He brings forward grave accusations against Dr Seaman as an administrator, and exposes his deficiencies as a Latinist	415—6
CROMWELL inclines to favour a change in the form of government	ib.
Sir Thomas Widdrington's suggestion with regard to the restoration of monarchy	417
Parallel between the College and the Commonwealth	ib.
Hotham seeks to retire into a contemplative life	ib.
He is presented to the rectory of Wigan	ib.
He and his brother embrace the doctrines of Jacob Boehme	418
Boehme's conception of the religious life	ib.
His aim, the abolition of religious controversies	ib.
The evils by which such controversies were attended now result in a proposal to abolish the universities themselves	ib.
The scholastic method especially called in question	419—20
RÉNÉ DESCARTES	420
His early associations	ib.
His desire to propitiate the Sorbonne rendered impracticable by his attitude towards the scholastic logic	421
His sympathy with the Jesuit body alienates him from the university of Paris	421—2

CONTENTS.	xli
	PAGE
Statutes of the university (of 1598), whereby the chief authority is vested in the Crown	422
Expulsion of the Jesuits from Paris	ib.
Jealousy with which they were regarded by the university teachers	ib.
Descartes' high opinion of their system of education	423
Aversion of the Calvinists of the Reformed churches from the Order	423—4
Despairing of Paris, Descartes aims at founding a school in some other university	424
This probably his actuating motive in deciding to settle in the United Provinces	ib.
Comparative freedom there conceded to theological speculation	424—5
Characteristic features of Amsterdam, Franeker, Deventer and Utrecht	425—6
Foundation of the UNIVERSITY OF UTRECHT, March 1636	426
GISBERTUS VOETIUS	426—7
Luke Couterel's Act for the degree of B.D., Feb. 1636	427
His defence of 'Elenctic' as a means of arriving at clearer conceptions of the doctrines of the Faith	427—8
Arrival of Descartes in Utrecht	428
Voetius appointed to the Chair of Theology in the new university	429
Terms in which Descartes refers to the scholastic logic	ib.
Progress of his doctrines among the students	ib.
His disciples Reneri and Regius	429—30
Aristotle's entire philosophy impugned in the schools of Utrecht	430
Voetius proceeds to a formal condemnation of Descartes' teaching	ib.
Voetius and Descartes compared	431
THOMAS HOBBS	432
His agreement with Descartes as regards the defects of university education	ib.
Appearance of his Leviathan , June 1651	432—3
He deprecates both the idolatry of Aristotle and the deference paid to his commentators	433
The barbarous Latinity of the latter	ib.
The text-books used in the universities the means whereby the clergy enslave the minds of students	433—4
The universities of Papal origin	434
Robert Parsons of Balliol College	ib.
His Memorial of the Reformation of England	434—5
His criticisms of Oxford and Cambridge	435

	PAGE
His proposal for holding a GRAND DISPUTATION, whereby irregular disputations on religious questions should be permanently superseded	435
Results which he expected would follow	435—6
He pleads for the abolition of the Oaths required in the academic course	436
He deprecates the endeavour of the colleges to supply all the lectures which their members are required to attend .	ib.
He pleads for the revival of the canon law	ib.
He points out the necessity for additional lectures and other faculties	437
Disparaging language in which he is described by his editor .	ib.
The real reasonableness of the Jesuit criticism	ib.
Act for the better Propagation of the Gospel , 23 May 1651 .	437—8
The Fur Praedestinatus , 1651	438
Thomas Smith's translation of Daille's Right Use of the Fathers , 1651	438—9
Extent to which Daille held the Patristic literature relevant to contemporary controversies and consequently still to be studied	439
Relations between the university and the INDEPENDENTS . .	440
The exiles in Rotterdam	ib.
State of religious parties in that city, circ. 1639	ib.
The church at Arnheim	441
THOMAS GOODWIN, Philip Nye, Sidrach Simpson, Jeremiah Burroughs, William Bridge	ib.
The APOLOGETICALL NARRATION	ib.
Heylin's description of the movement	442
Hugh Peters of Trinity College	ib.
His Short Covenant drawn up at Rotterdam	ib.
He sails for Boston and is succeeded by William Bridge .	443
Variance between Bridge and Simpson	ib.
Return of the latter to England	ib.
The church at Arnheim and its harsh treatment of Ward .	ib.
THOMAS EDWARDS of Queens'	ib.
His compulsory recantation at Cambridge	444
Opinions passed on him by his contemporaries	ib.
His Antapologia	ib.
His Gangraena	445
His depreciatory estimate of the exiles in Holland	ib.
Appointment of Simpson to the mastership of Pembroke . .	446
Roger Williams publishes his Hireling Ministry	447
CHRIST'S COLLEGE in 1653	ib.
JOSEPH SEDGWICK	ib.

CONTENTS.	xliii
	PAGE
His sermon at Great St Mary's, May 1653	447
His reply to Dell, in which he defends learning as necessary for the divine	448
His plea for the laying aside of theological strife	ib.
He defines the position of the Independent party	449
His main argument in defence of university training	ib.
His denunciation of 'enthusiasm' and challenge to its up- holders	ib.
Dangers attendant upon a claim to supernatural powers at this time	450
Sedgwick's defence of the Reformation as the outcome of a more advanced scholarship	ib.
He contrasts the pseudo-philosophy of the Sects with that derived from the study of Nature	451
He defends the state of discipline in Cambridge	ib.
SIDRACH SIMPSON'S Commencement sermon, July 1653	452
He maintains that Christian doctrine relies for its exposition and defence on an educated and learned clergy	ib.
Endeavour of William Dell to confute Simpson's 'errors'	453
His appeal chiefly to popular prejudice	ib.
He denounces all teaching of the Gospel 'according to Aristotle'	454
He cites the example set by the early Reformers	ib.
His misconception with respect to the Protestant universities abroad	ib.
Dell's own proposals in connexion with a Right Reformation of Learning	455
New schools to be founded throughout the country; in which the vernacular is to be taught and the Bible read	ib.
Latin, Greek, and Hebrew to be studied in the larger schools	ib.
Logic not without its use if kept within reasonable limits	456
Mathematics of high value as bearing upon practical matters	ib.
The studies of physic and law require to be reformed	ib.
He deprecates the monopoly of higher education claimed by Oxford and Cambridge	456—7
JOHN WEBSTER	457
Probably a student for a short time at Cambridge	ib.
He pleads for a more systematic attention to medical studies	ib.
Dedicates his Academiarum Examen to General Lambert, an active supporter of Cromwell	458
Chief points in the Examen	ib.
Objection taken to the use of Latin as the medium of dis- putations in the schools	459
The neglect of mathematical studies	ib.

xliv	CONTENTS.	PAGE
	General supineness of the professoriate, to whom he holds up Harvey, Gilbert and Descartes as examples for imitation	459
	Emphatic praise of Brinsley and Oughtred	ib.
	REPLIES of Dr Wilkins and Seth Ward in their Vindiciae Academicarum	460
	Ward's position at Oxford at this time	ib.
	His qualifications for forming an opinion on university questions compared with those of Webster	461
	WILKINS's description of Webster	ib.
	His comments on the Examen	ib.
	Remarkable progress of mathematical studies already observ- able at Oxford under Ward and Wallis	462
	JOHN WALLIS of Emmanuel, his departure from Cambridge in consequence of the decline of mathematics in the university	ib.
	Webster shewn to be equally at fault with respect to the deference still paid to Aristotle, and the actual state of mathematical studies	ib.
	And also as regards ignorance with respect to the attention bestowed at Oxford on Cryptography and a nascent Esperanto	462—3
	WARD's share in the criticism of the Examen	464
	He compares Webster to Don Quixote, as attacking non- existent abuses, and singles out special points with respect to which he is altogether wrong, e.g. the actual value attached to the authority of Aristotle, he, however, par- tially admits the neglect of mathematics	464—5
	Cry raised at this time by the advocates of Natural Science studies	465
	Ward's own ideal of a University, as that of an institution which concedes to the student freedom of choice in the subjects which he takes up	466
	THOMAS HALL	467
	His Histrionastix	ib.
	His confusion of the two Websters	ib.
	His Vindiciae Litterarum	468
	Ward's criticism of Hobbes	ib.
	His description of Dell, whose aspersions on the state of discipline in the universities he repudiates	ib.
	He affirms the universities to be the outcome of the national will and pleasure	469
	The circumstances under which the Vindiciae were written, as described by Gardiner, Wood, Colonel Sydenham and other writers	469—70

CONTENTS.	xlv
	PAGE
Dissolution of the Short Parliament by Cromwell, 12 Dec. 1653	470
He describes the future policy of the Government with respect to preachers	ib.
The peril which the universities had outlived described by their respective vice-chancellors	471
The repeal of the Engagement followed by Cromwell's Proclamation of religious freedom	472
Death of DR HILL, master of Trinity	ib.
His friendship with Tuckney	ib.
Intimacy of both with John Cotton	ib.
Hill's reputation as a tutor at Emmanuel and a preacher in London	473
His succession to the mastership of Trinity, April 1645	ib.
His stringent discipline	ib.
Punishment of JOHN DRYDEN	474
His character as a student	ib.
Resentment to which the poet afterwards gave expression when receiving his degree at Oxford	ib.
The Prayer Book, to Hill's annoyance, again used in the college chapel	ib.
JOHN ARROWSMITH succeeds to the mastership of Trinity, 1653	475
His previous experiences at St John's	ib.
His genius naturally combative	476
His Tactica Sacra	ib.
His appointment as Regius professor of Divinity and also as a Commissioner	ib.
Necessary occasional absence from college consequent upon the latter office	ib.
His Orationes Anti-Weigelianae delivered at the Cambridge Commencement, 1655	477
VALENTINE WEIGEL, 1533–88.	477–9
Mark Friedrich Wendelin (1584–1652), rector of Anhalt	478
His exposure of the revolutionary tendency of Weigel's teaching with respect to the universities	ib.
Arrowsmith reads aloud some of the passages quoted by Wendelin to his Cambridge audience	ib.
Weigel had taught that a truly religious life was impossible in a university	ib.
Close resemblance between the hostility of the Weigelians to universities and that entertained by Dell and other writers	479
Arrowsmith's criticisms really aimed at the Fifth Monarchy Men, whose denunciation of wealth was another doctrine which they held in common with the Weigelians	ib.
M. III.	d

	PAGE
This feature in their teaching satirized in the Cuique Summ , a publication of the University Press in 1635	480—1
Sense of the gravity of the crisis shewn alike at Oxford and at Cambridge	481
Other matters referred to by Arrowsmith	ib.
Sancroft's library already on the university shelves	ib.
He suggests that the controversy between Cambridge and Oxford as to their comparative antiquity should be dropped	482
He denies the relevancy of the language of the early Re- formers to existing conditions at the English universities	ib.
The PEACE WITH HOLLAND and the Oliva Pacis	483
Cromwell's Ordinance for the Visitation of the Universities , Sept. 1654	484
His endeavour to institute a more comprehensive standard of orthodoxy	ib.
His design compared with that of Whitgift and that of Laud	485
Difficulties involved in the constitution of the two COM- MISSIONS now appointed	ib.
Full visitatorial powers conferred on the Heads	486
The chief external Visitors at Oxford and at Cambridge	486—7
Disadvantage under which they laboured when compared with the residential element	487
Wide scope of their instructions	ib.
Opposition raised at Oxford to the involved invasion of the rights of College Visitors	488
Decline of the controversial spirit in 1655	489
Noteworthy productions of scholars at Cambridge and elsewhere	ib.
Walton's Polyglot	489—93
BRIAN WALTON	490
His prospectus of the Work	490—1
Death of Ussher, March 165 $\frac{1}{2}$	491
His place as editor taken by Thorndike	ib.
Special qualifications of the latter for the task	492
Death of Wheelock in London, Sept. 1653	ib.
Success that attended the labours of the translators	493
ROBERT BAILLIE of Glasgow	494
His cousin and correspondent, William Spang	ib.
His concern at hearing how scholarship in the United Provinces is devoting itself to theological controversy	494—5
He asks Spang to send him the works of Voetius	495
His approval of Voetius's method	ib.
His letter to Voetius	496
He urges him to put forth a trustworthy compendium of Christian philosophy	ib.

CONTENTS.	xlvii
	PAGE
Reply of Voetius who reports that Cartesian doctrines are fast spreading in Holland	497
Baillie's description of the state of the Scotch universities	498
His dissatisfaction with Cromwell's Proclamation	ib.
His displeasure at the claims advanced at Aberdeen to a superior antiquity	498—9
His admiration of the labours of Walton and his fellow translators	499
Objections to the Polyglot raised by John Owen	ib.
Walton's rejoinder to same	500
Baillie expresses his hope that Walton may obtain an adequate reward	ib.
RESULTS OF THE COMMISSION OF 1654	501—9
The debate in Parliament, April 1657	501
The Commissioners accused of having exceeded their instructions	ib.
The Heads still claim a 'negative voice'	ib.
They solicit payment of their respective augmentations	502—3
Their requests are acceded to, while they are invited to give stricter attention to the duties of the Mastership	503
Instances of non-residence of Heads at Caius and Peterhouse	ib.
Non-residence partly justified by members in the House	503—4
Objections taken to extension of the time for which the Commission had been appointed	504
Doubts expressed with regard to the authority of Parliament in the question	504—5
The Presbyterian party propose that the Oxford Commission should be annulled	505
Dissatisfaction caused by its endeavours to suppress 'corrupt elections' in the colleges	ib.
The feud at Jesus College, Oxford	506
Expulsion of Dr Roberts, the principal, by the fellows	ib.
Although reinstated by the Visitors, he ultimately resigns	507
The obligations imposed by the College Oath sometimes clash with the requirements of the Commissioners	508
Oxford wearied out by the protracted Visitation	ib.
John Owen gives place to Conant	508—9
Absence in the Cambridge colleges of abuses that call for the intervention of the Visitors	509
SIR SAMUEL MORLAND and the massacre of the Vaudois in Piedmont	509—12
His career prior to his mission to the Duke of Savoy	ib.
He gains the notice of Thurloe and of Ussher	510—1

	PAGE
Cromwell appoints Morland his envoy to the Courts of France and Turin	511
Morland next appears as the English resident at Geneva	ib.
His History of the Piedmontese Churches	511—2
His return to England where he is appointed Thurloe's secretary	512
He publishes his History and presents his manuscript collection to the university library	513
WILLIAM MOORE, university librarian, 1653—9	ib.
His funeral sermon by Thomas Smith, his successor, testifying to his attainments and devotion to his official duties	513—4
Morland's collection becomes subsequently lost sight of for more than a century	514
CROMWELL'S popularity now on the wane	ib.
He resigns the chancellorship of Oxford and is succeeded by his son Richard	515
His death, 3 Sept. 1658.	ib.
The Luctus et Gratulatio	515—9
Contrasts observable in the contributions by seniors and juniors, and in those from Sidney and those from King's	516—7
INSTANCES OF INTERFERENCE IN ELECTIONS TO FELLOWSHIPS DURING THE PROTECTORATE	519—21
BENJAMIN ROGERS admitted bachelor in music in compliance with Oliver's mandate	520
His subsequent popularity as a composer of cathedral music	ib.
Joseph Seaman recommended by Oliver for a fellowship at Peterhouse, June 1658	ib.
The Protector recalls his recommendation on learning that the vacancy had already been filled up	520—1
RICHARD CROMWELL sends order for election of Martin Pindar to a fellowship at Queens'	521
His assumption that, by virtue of his Protectorship, he stands in the place of Visitor	ib.
Consequent election of Joseph Seaman to the fellowship at Peterhouse	521—2
Richard's chief aim to carry out his father's designs, especially that of constituting Durham College a university	522
Both universities petition against the latter measure	ib.
The result, as described by Anthony Wood	523
Revival of the proposal for an agreement between the Anglican and Presbyterian bodies	524
EDWARD STILLINGFLEET and his Irenicum	ib.
THE CRISIS OF 1659	ib.

CONTENTS.	xlix
	PAGE
Milton's views distinguished from those of Cromwell . . .	524
Resolution of Parliament respecting the universities . . .	525
Abdication of Richard Cromwell, May 1659.	ib.
Milton publishes his Considerations touching the removal of Hirelings	525—6
His appeal to Parliament to deliver the country from the oppression of the clergy	526
He denounces the education of the latter at the universities as radically wrong	526—7
His apparent ignorance of the real state of the universities at this time	527
His representations as regards Oxford contravened by Clarendon	527—8
And as regards Cambridge by evidence afforded by the colleges themselves	528
THE HEADS, 1650—9	528—36
Influence of ANTHONY TUCKNEY, master of St John's . . .	ib.
Baker testifies to his merits as an administrator and also to those of Arrowsmith	528—9
Tuckney's special qualifications	529
His sympathy with certain members of the Latitudinarian party	529—30
His personal regard for Whichcote and for Culverwel . . .	530
His maxim in elections to fellowships	ib.
His disclaimer of all pretension to interpret prophecy . . .	ib.
Importance attached to his opinion by other scholars . . .	531
BENJAMIN WHICHCOTE, provost of King's, and JOHN WORTH- INGTON, master of Jesus	531—2
The two contrasted	532
THEOPHILUS DILLINGHAM, master of Clare	ib.
John Tillotson, his assiduity as college tutor	532—3
WILLIAM MOSES, master of Pembroke	533
DR JOHN BOND, master of Trinity Hall	ib.
THOMAS HORTON, president of Queens'	ib.
His special merits as a preacher	533—4
JOHN LIGHTFOOT, master of St Catherine's	534
RALPH CUDWORTH, master of Christ's	ib.
WILLIAM DILLINGHAM, master of Emmanuel	534—5
Decline of discipline at Emmanuel	ib.
Sidney College under Dr Minshull	535
DR LOVE at Corpus Christi	ib.
Insufficiency of means for enabling promising students to prolong their studies at the university	535—6
MATTHEW POOLE of Emmanuel	536

1	CONTENTS.	PAGE
	He pleads with the merchants of London to come to the aid of the universities	536
	His appeal seconded by Richard Baxter	ib.
	Response of the Presbyterian party both in London and in the provinces	537
	Poole's scheme, as set forth in his Model (1658)	ib.
	Forty students to be enabled to study at the university for seven years	537—8
	Attention to be given in the colleges to the formation of the student's character	538
	The aim in view in instituting extempore prayers	538—9
	Objections urged against same by Richard Samways of Oxford	539
	GRACES of 1647, for the revision of academic OATHS, requiring that	539—40
	(a) a printed copy of his Oath should be given to each student on his matriculation	540
	(b) relieving those convicted of any breach of the statutes from the imputation of perjury	ib.
	Grounds on which Richard Samways approves the innovation	541
	His estimate of university Oaths in general	ib.
	Many of the inferior clergy continue to subscribe the Articles of the Church and thereupon receive canonical ordination	542
	Dr Venn's observations on the evidence to this effect afforded by the Registers of the diocese of London	542—3
	Similar evidence afforded by the Registers of the diocese of Norwich	543
	Instances of members of colleges thus specially pledged	543—4
	Absence of corresponding records at Ely	543
	Inference to be drawn from foregoing evidence	545
	The ceremony of ORDINATION unrecognized by the State under the Commonwealth	ib.
	Check placed, in 1654, on the exercise of patronage, in relation to livings, by the institution of TRIERS and the appointment of a Commission of Ejectors	545—6
	Teachers of 'Popish opinions' and users of the Common Prayer Book declared liable to ejection	546
	Renewal in 1659 of the attack upon the universities	ib.
	Appointment of Dr Wilkins to the mastership of Trinity	ib.
	Subsequent enactment of more stringent requirements in the B.A. examinations as conducted in the college	546—7
	Election of Seth Ward to the presidency of Trinity College, Oxford	546
	CHANGES CONSEQUENT UPON THE RESTORATION	547—8
	The Presbyterian and the Independent as described by Anthony Wood and Richard Baxter	ib.
	The new movements in philosophy	548

CONTENTS.

li

CHAP. V. THE RESTORATION.

	PAGE
Declaration by Parliament of its design to uphold the universities	549
PEPYS' visit to Cambridge	ib.
He revisits Magdalene and is entertained by Thomas Hill	550
He finds that 'the old preciseness' has disappeared	ib.
He dines at Christ's College	551
Appointment of MONCK as general-in-chief	ib.
Town and university elections for the Convention Parliament	551—3
Result of the university poll	552
The vice-chancellor's letter to Monck	ib.
Monck's reply, preferring to represent his native county	ib.
Letter of Dr Edward Martin from Paris, Apr. 1660	553
His exultation at hearing that Monck designs the restoration of the Stuart Monarchy	ib.
PROCEEDINGS AT CAMBRIDGE ON THE PROCLAMATION OF THE KING, 10–12 May 1660	554
The assembling at the Cross on Market Hill	ib.
Proceedings of the Town authorities	555
The King proclaimed at six different places in the town	ib.
Reappearance of the square cap	555—6
Dupont declares that the circle has at last been squared	ib.
Manchester restored to the chancellorship, May 1660	556
The DEPUTATION TO WHITEHALL	ib.
Charles promises to maintain the universities in their privileges	ib.
Indiscriminate bestowal of mandate degrees	557—8
Thomas Fuller, being among those created D.D., pays his last visit to Cambridge	558
SERMON at Great St Mary's by DR SPENCER, 28 June 1660	559
His plea for Kingship as conducive to the welfare of the universities	559—60
His denunciation of assassination	560
Charles's prudent designs with regard to his Household	560—1
Decision of the university to reinstate the Crown in possession of the fee-farm rents	561—3
Grace for this purpose, 19 July 1660	562—3
Formal tender of the rents by Dr Love to the King	563
Dr Love's installation as dean of Ely	ib.
His death, January 1669	ib.
Endeavour of Masters to exculpate him from the charge of being wanting in loyalty to the Church	564
Assembling of the new Parliament, March 1660–1	ib.

	PAGE
Meeting of the SAVOY CONFERENCE, 15 April 1661	564
CHANGES IN THE HEADSHIPS	564—86
Enquiry instituted by the Visitor at PETERHOUSE, and flight of Lazarus Seaman	564
COSIN re-installed as master, but resigns soon after on his appointment to the see of Durham	565
His consecration at Westminster	ib.
Admission of BERNARD HALE as master, Nov. 1660	ib.
His death, April 1663	ib.
His benefactions to the college	565—6
Resignation of WM. MOSES at PEMBROKE COLLEGE	566
Re-installation of Dr Laney	ib.
His sufferings in exile	ib.
He is rewarded by both a deanery and a bishopric	566—7
Return of DR BATCHCROFT to CAIUS COLLEGE	567
DR ROBERT KING re-elected to mastership of TRINITY HALL	ib.
CIRCUMSTANCES OF DR WHICHCOTE'S RETIREMENT FROM THE PROVOSTSHIP OF KING'S	567—70
JAMES FLEETWOOD (afterwards bishop of Worcester)	568
He objects that Whichcote is statutablely disqualified for re-election and is himself nominated by Charles	ib.
Arguments to the contrary adduced by Whichcote and his supporters	ib.
Fleetwood's deserts as estimated by Charles	569
He is refused admission at the Lodge by Whichcote's servants Whichcote ultimately surrenders up possession and leaves Cambridge	570
Circumstances of the re-installation of DR MARTIN at QUEENS' COLLEGE	ib.
Re-election of the majority of the fellows	571
Dr Martin's indignation on surveying the havoc wrought in the chapel	ib.
He determines to petition Parliament for redress	ib.
His appointment to the deanery of Ely, shortly followed by his death, Apr. 1662	ib.
Position of DR WORTHINGTON at JESUS COLLEGE	572
His assiduity as rector of Fen Ditton, where he is succeeded by Dr Hales	ib.
Dr Sterne is re-installed in the mastership	ib.
Worthington removes from his Lodge to Fen Ditton	ib.
Ultimate appointment of JOHN PEARSON as master of the college	574
His previous career at Eton and at King's	ib.
His sermon in defence of Forms of Prayer , June 1643	574—5

CONTENTS.

liii

	PAGE
His lectureship at St Clement's, Eastcheap	575
His Exposition of the Creed , 1659	576
His sermons well suited to a city audience	ib.
He dedicates the published volume to his parishioners	ib.
Value of his marginalia	ib.
At St JOHN'S COLLEGE, TUCKNEY is called upon to resign both mastership and professorship on the ground of his advanced age	577
His retirement to London and subsequent experiences	577—8
He is succeeded in the mastership by Peter Gunning	578
DR GUNNING'S previous election to the mastership of Corpus	ib.
His admission as master of St John's, June 1661	579
Re-installation of DR RAINBOWE in the mastership of MAGDALENE	ib.
His appointment to the bishopric of Carlisle, 1664	ib.
DR WILKINS at TRINITY COLLEGE	ib.
His general popularity and wide sympathies	579—80
Circumstances which render Charles unable to retain him in office	580
DR HENRY FERNE at Oxford	ib.
His second edition of the Resolving of Conscience , 1643	ib.
The mastership of Trinity long before promised him by Charles I, to whom he had acted as chaplain at Carisbrooke	581
His subsequent retirement into Yorkshire and return to pamphleteering	ib.
His appointment to the mastership by Charles II	ib.
His sound judgement as administrator of Trinity and as vice-chancellor, 1660—1	ib.
His consecration to the bishopric of Chester	ib.
His death, March 1662	581—2
His funeral at Westminster Abbey	ib.
Appointment of WILLIAM SANCROFT to the mastership of EM- MANUEL, August 1662	582—3
He holds that the college must 'divest itself of its former singularity'	583
His letter to Ezekiel Wright, describing his impressions on his return	583—4
He holds that a new chapel and a new library are especially needed, and proposes to rebuild both	584
He laments the low standard of attainments, the large influx of 'foreigners,' and the neglect of Hebrew and Greek	584—5
Wright in reply deprecates the revival of the statute de Mora , with respect to which nothing further is done	585

	PAGE
Inadequate revenues the chief difficulty of Emmanuel at this juncture	585—6
The University as Sancroft saw it	586
THE ACT OF UNIFORMITY, May 1662	587
Language of Clarendon on his election to the chancellorship of Oxford, Oct. 1660	ib.
Pearson announces his design, as professor, of reverting to the method of the Schoolmen	ib.
The reaction in England compared with that in France	ib.
THE CAMBRIDGE PLATONISTS	588—662
Passages from John Sherman's Commonplaces in Trinity College Chapel	588
Evidence they afford of the author's sympathy with Whichcote and More	589
WHICHCOTE the Socrates of the new movement	589—90
His sermons at Trinity Church	590
His audience a critical one	ib.
Samuel Cradock of Emmanuel	590—1
He declares Whichcote's critics to be wanting in frank dealing	591
CORRESPONDENCE that ensues between TUCKNEY and WHICHCOTE	591—4
The former demurs to Whichcote's theory that the definition of doctrine should be in Scripture language solely	592
Whichcote's reply and Tuckney's rejoinder to same	ib.
Whichcote maintains that the student comes to the university in order to discover what is the TRUTH	593
This maxim becomes the keynote of the Platonists' discourse	ib.
The concluding letters	593—4
Tuckney postpones his final reply, while Whichcote reiterates his determination to hold by the Truth	594
Whichcote's conception of the growth of the Church criticized by Westcott	595
Illustration afforded by his Aphorisms of his views on the subject	ib.
His general conclusion, that the attainment of Truth is man's ultimate object in all enquiry	ib.
His acquaintance with the Greek philosophers probably exaggerated by Burnet	596
Extent to which he is entitled to be reckoned a leader of his party considered	ib.
HENRY MORE
His education at home and at Eton	597
His early religious misgivings	ib.
His admission at Christ's College, 1631	ib.
His passion for study at this time and subsequently	598

CONTENTS.	lv
	PAGE
His father's concern at his extreme bookishness	598
The dedication of his Philosophical Poems to his father made the occasion for paying a high tribute to the character of the latter	599
His motive in so doing	ib.
His Song of the Soul	600
He declares himself the disciple of Plato and Plotinus	ib.
Compares the persecutors of Galileo to the Giants who sought to scale Olympus	ib.
Declares that patient intellectual toil, pursued in subservience to Reason, is the only right method	601
Denounces the Ptolemists' refusal to recognize the Truth merely because it sometimes contradicts impressions derived from the senses	ib.
More himself at this time passing through a critical stage of intellectual developement	ib.
The design of the Song described	602
His rejection of the pagan theory that a future existence involves oblivion as regards the present life	603
Immunity which he enjoyed alike from persecution for his beliefs and from the pressure of poverty	604
His popularity as a college tutor	ib.
His punctual attendance at devotions and other religious exercises	ib.
His persistent refusal of offers of preferment	ib.
His careful observance of the laws of health	605
His admiration of the beautiful in Nature	ib.
The general aim of his studies as described by himself	ib.
Change in his father's estimate of their influence after visiting him at Christ's	606
His visits to Ragley	ib.
His admiration of Descartes' writings and first letter to the author	ib.
He advises that they should be studied in the universities	607
He reads Descartes' treatise on the Passions of the Soul with his pupil, Viscount Conway	608
His reminiscences of his visits to Ragley, during which he had conceived some of his 'choicest theories'	ib.
Importance attached by him to the prophecy of Daniel, of which Cudworth, in a lecture on the subject, had recently propounded a new interpretation	609—10
Disadvantages under which Cudworth laboured compared with More, owing to his official duties, his inferiority as a Latinist, and early education	610—1

	PAGE
His leisure chiefly bestowed on the Hebrew literature connected with his professoriate	611
Value of this in relation to the study of Natural Ethics, on which, accordingly, he had already announced his intention of publishing a treatise	611—3
More, however, anticipates him in his design	612—3
Voluminousness of More's published writings contrasted with the paucity of Cudworth's	613
Cudworth's earlier Sermons of 1642 and 1647	613—4
His mode of dealing with the doctrine of transubstantiation	ib.
WORTHINGTON'S relations at this time with MORE and CUDWORTH, between whom he now acts the part of intermediary	614
Cudworth's statement of his grievance to Worthington, to whom he represents More's conduct as disingenuous	615
He observes that More's reputation is already as high as he himself could wish it, and demurs to his undertaking a treatise on Ethics , well knowing that Cudworth himself had been for a long time similarly engaged	615—6
More's counter-representation of the case to Worthington	616
He explains that he is aiming at something quite different from the treatise contemplated by Cudworth	ib.
He ultimately publishes his Enchiridion Ethicum , designed as a simple Introduction to the elements of the subject	616—7
PUBLICATION OF MEDE'S WORKS by Worthington, March 1665	617
Letters from Wm. Dillingham and Widdrington on receiving copies	617—8
OUTBREAK OF THE PLAGUE IN LONDON	618
Worthington resolutely refuses to desert his post	ib.
Extension of the epidemic to Cambridge and measures there taken by the authorities	ib.
Cambridge becomes 'disuniversitied'	619
Energy and good sense shewn by the vice-chancellor, Dr Wilford	ib.
Precautions taken in the colleges against the epidemic	ib.
The majority of the Heads and a few of the fellows continue to reside	619—20
Issue of weekly bulletins shewing that, on this occasion, the colleges escaped the infection	620—1
The return of the students, by permission, in 1666, is followed by a recurrence of the epidemic	621
Consequent complete absence of matriculations for the year, questionists, however, having their seniority reserved to them	ib.

CONTENTS.	lviii
	PAGE
Riots that follow upon the outbreak of the GREAT FIRE in London	621
Precautions necessary to protect the colleges from incendiarism	ib.
Worthington, at St Benet Fink's church, becomes involved in the calamity	ib.
Sympathy shewn him by More, who presents him to the rectory of Ingoldsby	621—2
Similar experiences of Whichcote and Wilkins in the Capital	622
Seth Ward's generous efforts in behalf of his friends	ib.
His letter to Worthington	ib.
More decides to reside more frequently at Grantham	623
Death of Mrs Worthington at Ingoldsby	ib.
Dejected condition of the widower	ib.
His letters to Whichcote and to More	623—4
He urges More to write a manual of Natural Philosophy to supplant the Cartesian doctrines	624
He resolves to leave Ingoldsby	625
His letter to Lauderdale	ib.
Archbishop Sheldon obtains for him the lectureship at the parish church of Hackney	ib.
Worthington's death and funeral	625—6
Testimony of Tillotson to the value of his labours	626
Reaction in the university with regard to royal mandates for degrees	626—7
Instances at Trinity Hall, St John's, Corpus Christi, and Christ's	627—9
Publication of More's Enchiridion Metaphysicum , in opposition to Descartes	630
Worthington's edition of JOHN SMITH'S Discourses	ib.
NATHANIEL CULVERWEL	630—1
Ezekiel Culverwel, his father	ib.
Father and son alike Puritan in their sympathies	ib.
Early careers of NATHANIEL CULVERWEL and JOHN SMITH	ib.
Simon Patrick's Sermon at the funeral of the latter	632
Examples of Early Church oratory on which this Discourse is partly modelled	633
Smith's exceptional merits, as described both by Patrick and by Worthington	633—4
His treatise on the Immortality of the Soul compared with that by More	634
The vagueness of More's conclusions contrasted with Smith's careful and sustained argument	634—6

	PAGE
The latter's mode of treatment of a subject further illustrated by a comparison with that of Culverwel	635—6
Circumstances under which Culverwel's Light of Nature was written	636—7
High value of the treatise, although little more than an Introduction to the main enquiry which the writer had in view	637
His own description of the proposed scope of the latter	637—8
Limitations under which he accepts the guidance of reason	638
He maintains that the testimony of the pagan philosopher is not to be disregarded	639
The author's mental break-down, the result probably of his loss of popularity, owing to the boldness of his utterance and especially his imprudent depreciation of Descartes' Cogito ergo sum	640
His relations with More and Tuckney	ib.
Mysterious circumstances under which his death took place	640—1
His Spiritual Opticks published by William Dillingham, Dec. 1651	641
Publication by same of the Light of Nature	642
Testimony of his brother, Richard Culverwel, with respect to his later experiences	642—4
Evidence of the soundness of the author's judgement, afforded by his discernment of the merits of writers of widely different schools, his defence of the syllogism, his advocacy of the employment of reason in connexion with points of doctrine, and his estimate of the obligations of the pagan philosophy to Jewish sources	643—4
Henry More's Conjectura Cabbalistica	644—5
His dedication of the treatise to Cudworth, whose learning he extols	ib.
Theories which he traces back to the teaching of Moses	645—6
Criticism of his main theory by the late prof. Maurice	646
His formal renunciation of Cartesianism in the Dedication and Address to the Reader of his Enchiridion Metaphysicum	646—7
More now pronounces the principles of Cartesianism inimical to true religion and exposes the fallacies involved in some of Descartes' hypotheses	647—8
His letter to Clerselier, 1655	648
Divergent tendencies of his studies prior to and after the Restoration, the result partly of his misgivings with regard to the prospects of Rationalism, and partly of his perception of the revived interest in the interpretation of Prophecy taken by the religious public	648—9

CONTENTS.

lix

	PAGE
Expression of like misgivings in the Discourses of GEORGE RUSK, afterwards bishop of Dromore, pointing out that the exclusive possession of TRUTH was claimed by every sect and every religion, and exposing the motives which underlay the professed opinions of the sectaries; while extended liberty of belief, so far from resulting in greater unanimity, had seemed to illustrate the difficulties of accepting Whichcote's canon (p. 593)	650—2
In his reluctance to embark in the controversies thus raised, More prefers to return to his prophetic studies, his eclectic position being characterized generally by
(a) his independence as a thinker, offering noteworthy features on a comparison with Hobbes	654
(b) his conception of the philosophic life	654—5
(c) his aversion alike from fanaticism and Popery	655
(d) his willingness to accept Thorndike's theory of Church government	656
Illustration of the popularity of speculations in prophecy afforded by the career of ISRAEL TONGE	ib.
His experiences as a fellow of University College, Oxford	656—7
His disagreement with the fellows and consequent ejection	657
His career subsequent to leaving Oxford	ib.
His studies on the Apocalypse	ib.
His proposed publication of the same anticipated by the discussion of the subject published by Henry More	ib.
Belief of the latter that his own verification of the Apocalyptic prophecies in past history afforded better evidence of the truth of Christianity than did the early miracles	657—8
He predicts that his interpretations will ultimately form part of the catechetical teaching of the Church	658
Points of contrast in CUDWORTH'S genius when compared with that of More	ib.
His Sermon before the House of Commons, March 1647	659
He deprecates disputations on religious questions and urges the advantages of a study of Nature	ib.
His Intellectual System of the Universe	660
Apathy or hostility with which it was received on its publication in 1678	ib.
Martineau's explanation of the same	660—1
Services subsequently rendered by Le Clerc and Mosheim towards bringing its merits under the notice of Continental scholars	661
Cudworth's theory of 'a plastic Nature'	662
Death and funeral of MATTHEW WREN, May 1667	ib.

	PAGE
His administration as bishop of Norwich, and on his translation to the see of Ely	662—3
His arbitrary mode of procedure as Visitor of Peterhouse and in connexion with Jesus College	ib.
He rebuilds the chapel of Pembroke College	663—4
Pearson's Oration at his funeral	664
The last of the Platonists	664—5

-
- (A) The Poll of the Election for the Chancellorship in 1626.
- (B) The Manner of the Presentation of the Duke of Buckingham his Grace to the Chancellorship of the University of Cambridge.
- (C) Ordinances established for a publique Lecture of Historie in the University of Cambridge.
- (D) Order of the King at the Court at Whitehall the 30th of Aprill 1630, respecting the Nomination to Lord Brooke's History Lecture.
- (E) Matriculations for the Years 1620–1669.
- (F) Subscriptions on Admission to Holy Orders during the Commonwealth and the Protectorate.

 ERRATA.

- p. 57, l. 13, Roger Andrewes (master of Jesus College, 1618–32) voted for Buckingham; see p. 668.
- p. 315, l. 1, for 'Wenmore' read 'Wenman.'
- p. 316, n. 3, for 'Merton' read 'Wadham.'
- p. 347, l. 3 from bottom, for 'nephew' read 'uncle.'
- p. 608, marginal note, 'conceived his Poem,' for Poem read 'treatise.'