

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00828-0 - Memoir of the Rev. Henry Martyn, B. D: Late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Chaplain to the Honourable East India Company
John Sargent

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

PART I.

	PAGE
Early life of Mr. Martyn	1— 7
His successful Academical course and first serious impressions	7— 19
He visits Cornwall and returns to Cambridge, when he becomes entirely devoted to the service of Christ	19— 25
Is admitted to a fellowship, and gains some prizes in the Univer- sity	25— 26
His tour through Wales to Cornwall	26— 29
Returns to Cambridge, and resolves to preach the Gospel to the heathen as a Missionary	30— 33
The state of his mind between the period of determining to become a Missionary and his ordination	33— 56
Is appointed to the curacies of Trinity Church in Cambridge and Lolworth	56— 60
His difficulties and discouragements on first exercising his ministry	60
Executes the office of Public Examiner in St. John's	61
Reviews his life	62— 63
Visits London respecting a Chaplainship to the East India Com- pany, in consequence of pecuniary losses	63— 65
Returns to Cambridge—His diligence in the ministry—His supreme regard to personal religion—His feelings when calumniated and ridiculed and dehorted from his Missionary designs—His distress of mind after metaphysical inquiries	65— 76
Visits Cornwall as it appeared for the last time	77— 80
His grief on leaving Cornwall	80— 83
His journey from Cornwall to Cambridge	83— 86
His letter to his youngest sister	86— 88
His great happiness and holy sensibility in the work of the ministry	88— 92

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00828-0 - Memoir of the Rev. Henry Martyn, B. D: Late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Chaplain to the Honourable East India Company
John Sargent

Table of Contents

More information

x

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
His joy on the Sabbath	92— 94
Chosen again examiner at St. John's	94
His prospects and retrospect	94— 96
Ordained Priest	96
His sorrow and support at leaving Cambridge	96—100
Arrives in London—His occupations—trials—consolations	100—103
A record of his feelings at this season	103—109
Leaves London for Portsmouth—Sails from thence—Arrives at Falmouth	109—114
His mixed emotions at unexpectedly visiting Cornwall—his departure from Falmouth	114—118
His acute mental misery—His arrival at Cork, and joyful state of mind there—His ministry on board the ship	118—123
He leaves Cork—A storm—Mr. Martyn's sensations	124—127
Journal of his voyage after the subsiding of the storm till his arrival at Madeira	127—135
Extracts of letters from Funchal	136—137
Sailed from Funchal for the Cape of Good Hope, after hearing that the army on board the fleet was destined to capture it—Mr. Martyn's anxiety for the spiritual welfare of the soldiers—His providential escape in sailing to St. Salvador	137—141
A description of St. Salvador and of the events which happened there	141—153
He leaves St. Salvador for the Cape—The army lands—Mr. Martyn visits the field of battle—The enemy surrenders—Mr. Martyn's reflections	153—163
His journal from the time of the capture of the Cape till that of his leaving it	163—168
He is opposed in his ministry	169
The death of a devout soldier	170
Mr. Martyn's sentiments on approaching India	170—173
Ceylon discovered	173
Farewell sermon to the ship's company—India first seen	174
Mr. Martyn's journal during his stay at Madras	174—178
Sails from Madras—Passes Juggernaut—Incurs danger from a hurricane—And another still greater from a sand-bank—He reaches Calcutta—His reflections	178—181

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00828-0 - Memoir of the Rev. Henry Martyn, B. D: Late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Chaplain to the Honourable East India Company
John Sargent

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xi

PART II.

	PAGE
Prayer of Christians in Calcutta answered in the arrival of Mr. Martyn—Having passed Dr. Buchanan in the Hoogly, he is affectionately received by Mr. Brown at Aldeen—His illness there	183—186
Mr. Martyn's vigilance as a Missionary—He will not be detained at Calcutta	186—187
The scenes he witnessed near Aldeen	187
He reads Hindoostanee incessantly—Preaches at Calcutta—The treatment he received from some of his intemperate brother-chaplains—The wise conduct pursued by another chaplain	188—191
He chides himself for over-zealous, and (as it proved) mistaken censures of the government	191—192
Receives his appointment at Dinapore—Leaves Calcutta for his station	192—196
The Journal of his voyage up the Hoogly and Ganges	196—221
Reaches Dinapore—His plans—discouragements—labours	221—223
A trying conversation with a European, and triumphant reflections after it	223—224
Discomfort in the society at Dinapore—Joy at hearing from Christian friends	224—226
Jealousy of natives—ignorance of Moonshee and Pundit	226—227
Commencement of ministry—Interference of his flock at Dinapore—Expectation of an attack from the press at Calcutta	227—228
Meditation at the beginning of the year 1807	229—230
Translation of Parables into Hindoostanee in progress—That of part of the Church service into the same language commenced	230—231
Jealousy and fears of the Europeans respecting Mr. Martyn	231—232
Disputes with Moonshee and Pundit	232—235
Arrival of Mr. Corrie at Dinapore	235

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00828-0 - Memoir of the Rev. Henry Martyn, B. D: Late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Chaplain to the Honourable East India Company
John Sargent

Table of Contents

More information

xii

CONTENTS.

	PAGE
The effects of Mr. Martyn's ministry—His opinion respecting the conversion of the Hindoos, and feelings as to their condition— Resolves to interfere to prevent acts of oppression	235—238
His journey to Buxar, to marry a couple, with a previous account of the state of his mind	238—242
Returns to Dinapore—Embarrassment respecting the schools	242—244
Translation of Prayer-Books and Parables completed—Public service in Hindoostanee	244—245
Mr. Martyn's ministerial exertions	245—247
His success with some of the officers at Dinapore	247—248
Mr. Martyn is restrained by prudence from preaching in Patna— Corresponds with Mr. Corrie—Pained on account of Mr. Corrie's illness—Writes him a letter of advice respecting his health—His own health declines—but he does not desist from his work	248—252
Ignorance of a Brahmin and a Ranee	253
Further disputes with Moonshee and Pundit	254—258
Mr. Martyn summoned to Monghir—The state of his mind at this time—His voyage down the Ganges, and return to Dinapore	259—266
Application from a Ranee to Mr. Martyn	266
Difficulties respecting the introduction of books into the schools— Other causes of disquietude—His faith and patience and prudence	266—268
Mr. Martyn draws up arguments against the Koran, and is called to decide a question of great importance respecting Baptism	268—270
Mr. Martyn engaged by Mr. Brown in translating the New Testament into Hindoostanee—His happiness and perseverance in the work of translation	270—272
Afflictive dispensation in the death of his eldest sister—His exquisite suffering and entire resignation and undeviating diligence in his work	272—277
Sermon on the Mount introduced into the schools	277
Mr. Martyn's wise and waiting spirit—His love for the Heathen— His joy in retirement	277—280
Mr. Martyn is tried by a severe disappointment	280—281
Mirza and Sabat arrive at Dinapore to assist in the work of translation—Mr. Martyn's hopes and fears and grief respecting Sabat	281—285

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00828-0 - Memoir of the Rev. Henry Martyn, B. D: Late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Chaplain to the Honourable East India Company
John Sargent

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xiii

	PAGE
Reflection on the commencement of the year 1808	285—286
Mr. Martyn's pain at losing the society of Christian friends at Dinapore	286—287
His anxiety and ineffectual endeavour to benefit the native Chris- tians	287—288
Public worship in Mr. Martyn's house	288—290
The version of the New Testament into Hindoostanee completed 290—292	290—292
Correspondence between Mr. Martyn and Messrs. Corrie and Brown, until Mr. Martyn's removal to Cawnpore	292—316
The danger Mr. Martyn incurred in travelling to Cawnpore—A description of it, and of his arrival at his new station	316—319
Mr. Martyn's labour at Cawnpore—His love of philology	319—321
He is summoned to Pretabjush	321—323
Mr. Martyn's deep affliction at the loss of his youngest sister	323—325
He preaches to the mendicants	325—327
Reflections on entering the year 1809—Mr. Martyn continues to preach to the mendicants	327—328
Is attacked by a severe pain in the chest—he is obliged to remit his ministerial duty	329—331
Mr. Corrie arrives at Cawnpore—Mr. Brown's alarm respecting Mr. Martyn's health—His affectionate expression of his appre- hensions	331—333
Mr. Martyn's health sinks so much, that he resolves to remove from Cawnpore—He determines to visit Arabia and Persia	333—334
Mr. Brown's letter on this determination being communicated to him	334—335
Mr. Martyn leaves Cawnpore, and arrives at Aldeen and Calcutta, from whence in three months he departs	335—340

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00828-0 - Memoir of the Rev. Henry Martyn, B. D: Late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and Chaplain to the Honourable East India Company
John Sargent

Table of Contents

More information

xiv

CONTENTS.

PART III.

	PAGE
The occurrences which transpired between Mr. Martyn's leaving India and his arrival at Shiraz	341—364
He commences a translation of the New Testament into Persian, and has many private discussions with the Mahometans	364—380
A public controversy between Mr. Martyn and the professor of Mahometan law	380—386
Mirza Ibraheem, the preceptor of all the Moollahs, writes a treatise in defence of Mahometanism—Mr. Martyn replies to it	386—389
Mr. Martyn exposed to some personal danger and much contempt	389—392
An interview with a Soofie sage	393—395
Mr. Martyn attends the levee of the Prime Minister, when he is attacked by a Moollah	395—397
Candour of Mirza Ibraheem	397
Mr. Martyn visits Persepolis	398—403
His account of the fast of Ramazan	403—410
Mr. Martyn commences a version of the Psalms into Persian	411
The events of the last month of the year 1811	411—416
Mr. Martyn's reflection on the commencement of the last year of his life	417—418
The principal events of the early part of the year 1812	418—433
Mr. Martyn's bold confession of faith before numerous Moollahs	433—436
The Journal of the remainder of his abode at Shiraz	436—439
Mr. Martyn leaves Shiraz for Tebriz, and arrives at the King's camp	439—450
Mr. Martyn's intrepid conduct before the Prime Minister of Persia —His consolations under contemptuous treatment	450—453
He proceeds to Tebriz	453—463
After an illness of nearly two months, Mr. Martyn leaves Tebriz for Constantinople—He is hospitably received at an Armenian monastery, and after much suffering, under which he possesses his soul in peace and patience, he expires at Tocat	463—497
Mr. Martyn's character	497, et seq.