

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00937-9 - An Essay on the History and Management of Literary, Scientific, and Mechanics' Institutions

James Hole

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

HISTORY.—The Great Exhibition, and its Lesson.—Origin of Mechanics' Institutes.—Birkbeck.—Present Extent of the Institutes.—Their Influence and Effects.—Objects originally contemplated by their Founders, principally the Scientific Instruction of the Working Classes.—Have failed both in reaching the Operative Classes and in conveying Scientific Instruction.—Principal Cause of Failure in the Deficiency of Primary or Elementary Instruction, and not in the Disposition of our People.—Example of the United States.—Deterioration in the Character of Mechanics' Institutes, and Causes.—Nature of the Library, Lectures, and Classes.—Works of Imagination not to be quite excluded.—Why Lectures fail.—Value of good Class Instruction.—Comparatively small Share of the Classes in the Operations of the Institutes.—Neglect of Female Instruction, and its Consequences.—The Huddersfield Female Institute.—
Page 1

CHAP. II.

OBJECTS AND METHODS OF ADULT INSTRUCTION.—Education of the Artisan twofold in its Character.—General Instruction and Industrial Instruction.—Neglect of the latter in this Country.—Its Importance to our Manufacturing Supremacy and to Agricultural Improvement.—Ignorance of the Peasantry.—Nature and Objects of Industrial Instruction.—Edinburgh School of Arts.—Insufficient Class Instruction of Mechanics' Institutes attributable to want of properly qualified Teachers.—Defects of gratuitous Teaching.—Advantage of Examinations and Certificates of Proficiency.—Introduction of disputed Topics into Mechanics' Institutes inadvisable.—Institutes should be more intimately associated with the Social Welfare of the Working Classes.—Influence of Public Teaching.—How Mechanics' Institutes may operate beneficially in

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00937-9 - An Essay on the History and Management of Literary, Scientific, and Mechanics' Institutions

James Hole

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

vii

the Elevation of the People by other Methods than the direct Inculcation of Instruction.—Reply to Objections.—Use and Abuse of Newspapers.—Amusements.—Exhibitions.—Excursions.—Penny Savings' Banks.—Registry of Employers and Workmen
Page 44

CHAP. III.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT.—Methods of improving the Financial Position of the Institutes.—Working Classes pay too little.—Nature of the Assistance which should be afforded by the Rich.—Use of Patronage, and Influence of the Clergy.—Necessity of State Assistance to Industrial Education.—Nature and Conditions of such Assistance, and Reply to Objections.—Mechanics' Institutes have the first Claim to Consideration in any Plan of Industrial Instruction.—Advantages of a Day School in connection with Mechanics' Institutes.—Use of School Rooms, built with Aid from Government.—Grants should be given for Evening Instruction.—Importance of collecting Subscriptions when due.—Value of Proprietary Membership.—Work of the Institution should be paid for.—Managing Director or Secretary and Sub-Committees.—Institute should be kept constantly before the Public.—Franchise of the Members should be tolerably extensive.—Danger of Debt, and Plan of avoiding it.—Spirit in which the Institute should be conducted - - - - - 85

CHAP. IV.

UNION OF INSTITUTES.—Importance and Nature of such Combinations.—American Unions.—English Unions; Failure, and Causes.—Advantages which a Union ought to confer on the general and individual Interests of the Institute.—Promotion of Adult Instruction in destitute Places by formation of Institutes, Village Libraries, and by occasional Lectures.—Protection of Property.—Systematic Accounts.—Preparation of Rules.—Catalogues of Books.—Special Advantages to be conferred by Unions.—Affording Facilities for Lectures.—True and False Methods of economizing Expense of Lectures.—Union should have Assistance from Government in providing Scientific Lectures.—Method proposed.—Organization of unpaid Lectures, to be assisted by Diagrams and Apparatus furnished by the Union.—Society of Arts' Union should form the National Central Union.—Formation of Local Exhibitions and Establishment of Local Museums.—Journal of the Society of Arts.—Other Objects Union might promote.—Examinations of Pupils.—Interchange of Privileges.—Want of Vitality in Unions - - - - - 120

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00937-9 - An Essay on the History and Management of Literary,
Scientific, and Mechanics' Institutions

James Hole

Table of Contents

More information

viii

CONTENTS.

APPENDICES.

A.—Extracts from Memorials to the Royal Commissioners for the Exhibition of the Industry of all Nations, praying for the Estab- lishment of a Central Institution of Arts and Manufactures	Page 161
B.—Amusements - - - - -	167
C.—Subjects which ought to be known in various Trades -	169
D.—Exhibitions of Works of Art, Objects illustrative of General and Practical Science, Specimens of Natural History, and Produc- tions of Manufacturing Skill - - - - -	173
E.—Itinerating Libraries for Villages - - - - -	178
F.—Museums - - - - -	182