

Cambridge University Press
978-1-108-00958-4 - A History of Greece, Volume 9
George Grote
Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE LIBRARY COLLECTION

Books of enduring scholarly value

Classics

From the Renaissance to the nineteenth century, Latin and Greek were compulsory subjects in almost all European universities, and most early modern scholars published their research and conducted international correspondence in Latin. Latin had continued in use in Western Europe long after the fall of the Roman empire as the lingua franca of the educated classes and of law, diplomacy, religion and university teaching. The flight of Greek scholars to the West after the fall of Constantinople in 1453 gave impetus to the study of ancient Greek literature and the Greek New Testament. Eventually, just as nineteenth-century reforms of university curricula were beginning to erode this ascendancy, developments in textual criticism and linguistic analysis, and new ways of studying ancient societies, especially archaeology, led to renewed enthusiasm for the Classics. This collection offers works of criticism, interpretation and synthesis by the outstanding scholars of the nineteenth century.

A History of Greece

Widely acknowledged as the most authoritative study of ancient Greece, George Grote's twelve-volume work, begun in 1846, established the shape of Greek history which still prevails in textbooks and popular accounts of the ancient world today. Grote employs direct and clear language to take the reader from the earliest times of legendary Greece to the death of Alexander and his generation, drawing upon epic poetry and legend, and examining the growth and decline of the Athenian democracy. The work provides explanations of Greek political constitutions and philosophy, and interwoven throughout are the important but outlying adventures of the Sicilian and Italian Greeks. Volume 9 contains the story of Cyrus the Younger and the epic march of the Ten Thousand Greeks, and resumes the main historical narrative with the battle of Knidus and the rebuilding of the Long Walls at Athens, and the Peace of Antalkidas in 386 BCE.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00958-4 - A History of Greece, Volume 9

George Grote

Frontmatter

More information

Cambridge University Press has long been a pioneer in the reissuing of out-of-print titles from its own backlist, producing digital reprints of books that are still sought after by scholars and students but could not be reprinted economically using traditional technology. The Cambridge Library Collection extends this activity to a wider range of books which are still of importance to researchers and professionals, either for the source material they contain, or as landmarks in the history of their academic discipline.

Drawing from the world-renowned collections in the Cambridge University Library, and guided by the advice of experts in each subject area, Cambridge University Press is using state-of-the-art scanning machines in its own Printing House to capture the content of each book selected for inclusion. The files are processed to give a consistently clear, crisp image, and the books finished to the high quality standard for which the Press is recognised around the world. The latest print-on-demand technology ensures that the books will remain available indefinitely, and that orders for single or multiple copies can quickly be supplied.

The Cambridge Library Collection will bring back to life books of enduring scholarly value (including out-of-copyright works originally issued by other publishers) across a wide range of disciplines in the humanities and social sciences and in science and technology.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00958-4 - A History of Greece, Volume 9

George Grote

Frontmatter

More information

A History of Greece

VOLUME 9

GEORGE GROTE

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
978-1-108-00958-4 - A History of Greece, Volume 9
George Grote
Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town, Singapore, São Paulo, Delhi, Dubai, Tokyo

Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press, New York

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781108009584

© in this compilation Cambridge University Press 2009

This edition first published 1852
This digitally printed version 2009

ISBN 978-1-108-00958-4 Paperback

This book reproduces the text of the original edition. The content and language reflect the beliefs, practices and terminology of their time, and have not been updated.

Cambridge University Press wishes to make clear that the book, unless originally published by Cambridge, is not being republished by, in association or collaboration with, or with the endorsement or approval of, the original publisher or its successors in title.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00958-4 - A History of Greece, Volume 9

George Grote

Frontmatter

More information

HISTORY OF GREECE.

BY

GEORGE GROTE, Esq.

VOL. IX.

LONDON:

JOHN MURRAY, ALBEMARLE STREET.

1852.

CONTENTS.
VOL. IX.

CHAPTER LXIX.

Cyrus the Younger and the Ten Thousand Greeks.

	Page
Spartan empire	1
March of the Ten Thousand Greeks	2
Persian kings—Xerxes—Artaxerxes Longimanus	3
Darius Nothus	4
Cyrus the younger in Ionia—his vigorous operations against Athens	5
Youth and education of Cyrus	6
His esteem for the Greeks—his hopes of the crown	7
Death of Darius Nothus—succession of Artaxerxes Mnemon	9
Secret preparations of Cyrus for attacking his brother.....	10
Klearchus and other Greeks in the service of Cyrus.....	11
Strict administration, and prudent behaviour, of Cyrus	13
Cyrus collects his army at Sardis	15
The Ten Thousand Greeks—their position and circumstances.....	ib.
Xenophon	16
How Xenophon came to join the Cyreian army.....	17
Cyrus marches from Sardis—Kolossæ—Kelænæ	19
Peltæ—Keramôn-Agora, Käystru-Pedion	22
Distress of Cyrus for money—Epyaxa supplies him	24
Thymbrium—Tyriæum—review of the Greeks by Cyrus	ib.
Ikonium—Lykaonia—Tyana	26
Pass over Taurus into Kilikia	27
Syennesis of Kilikia—his duplicity—he assists Cyrus with money.	28
Cyrus at Tarsus—mutiny of the Greeks—their refusal to go farther	29
Klearchus tries to suppress the mutiny by severity—he fails	ib.
He tries persuasion—his discourse to the soldiers.....	30
His refusal to march farther—well received	31
Deceitful manœuvres of Klearchus to bring the soldiers round to Cyrus.....	32
The soldiers agree to accompany Cyrus farther—increase of pay...	33

	Page
March onward—from Tarsus to Issus	34
Flight of Abrokomas—abandonment of the passes	36
Gates of Kilikia and Syria	ib.
Desertion of Xenias and Pasion—prudence of Cyrus	37
Cyrus marches from the sea to Thapsakus on the Euphrates	39
Partial reluctance of the army—they ford the Euphrates.....	40
Separate manœuvre of Menon.....	41
Abrokomas abandons the defence of the river—his double dealing	42
Cyrus marches along the left bank of the Euphrates—the Desert
—privations of the army	43
Pylæ—Charmandê—dangerous dispute between the soldiers of Klearchus and those of Menon	46
Entry into Babylonia—treason of Orontes—preparation for battle	48
Discourse of Cyrus to his officers and soldiers	50
Conception formed by Cyrus of Grecian superiority.....	51
Present of Cyrus to the prophet Silanus	53
Cyrus passes the undefended trench	ib.
Kunaxa—sudden appearance of the King’s army—preparation of
Cyrus for battle.....	56
Last orders of Cyrus.....	58
Battle of Kunaxa—easy victory of the Greeks on their side.....	59
Impetuous attack of Cyrus upon his brother—Cyrus is slain	60
Flight of Ariæus and the Asiatic force of Cyrus	63
Plunder of the Cyreian camp by Artaxerxes. Victorious attitude of the Greeks	64
Character of Cyrus	65
If Cyrus had succeeded, he would have been the most formidable enemy to Greece	67

CHAPTER LXX.

Retreat of the Ten Thousand Greeks.

Dismay of the Greeks on learning the death of Cyrus. Klearchus offers the throne to Ariæus	69
Artaxerxes summons the Greeks to surrender—their reply—language of Phalinus.....	70
Ariæus refuses the throne, but invites the Greeks to join him for retreat	72
The Greeks rejoin Ariæus—interchange of oaths—resolution to retreat together.....	73
Position of the Greeks—to all appearance hopeless	74
Commencement of the retreat, along with Ariæus—disorder of the army	75

CONTENTS.

v

	Page
Heralds from the Persians to treat about a truce	77
The heralds conduct the Greeks to villages furnished with provisions. March over the canals.....	78
Abundant supplies obtained in the villages	79
Visit of Tissaphernes—negotiations	ib.
Convention concluded with Tissaphernes, who engages to conduct the Greeks home	81
Motives of the Persians—favourable dispositions of Parysatis towards Cyrus	ib.
Long halt of the Greeks—their quarrel with Ariæus.....	83
Secret despair of Klearchus.....	84
Retreating march begun, under Tissaphernes—they enter within the Wall of Media—march to Sittakê	ib.
Alarm and suspicions of the Greeks—they cross the Tigris	86
Retreating march up the left bank of the Tigris—to the Great Zab	91
Suspicious between the Greeks and Tissaphernes	93
Klearchus converses with Tissaphernes—and is talked over.....	94
Klearchus, with the other Grecian generals, visit Tissaphernes in his tent	95
Tissaphernes seizes the Greek generals. They are sent prisoners to the Persian court, and there put to death	96
Menon is reserved to perish in torture—sentiments of Queen Parysatis.....	97
How Klearchus came to be imposed upon	ib.
Plans of Tissaphernes—impotence and timidity of the Persians ...	100
The Persians summon the Grecian army to surrender	102
Indignant refusal of the Greeks—distress and despair prevalent among them	103
First appearance of Xenophon—his dream.....	104
He stimulates the other captains to take the lead and appoint new officers	105
Address of Xenophon to the officers. New generals are named, Xenophon being one.....	106
The army is convened in general assembly—speech of Xenophon..	109
Favourable augury from a man sneezing	ib.
Encouraging topics insisted on by Xenophon	110
Great impression produced by his speech—the army confirm the new generals proposed	112
Great ascendancy acquired over the army at once by Xenophon—qualities whereby he obtained it	113
Combination of eloquence and confidence, with soldier-like resource and bravery	115
Approach of the Persian Mithridates—the Greeks refuse all parley	118
The Greeks cross the Zab and resume their march, harassed by the Persian cavalry	119

	Page
Sufferings of the Greeks from marching under the attacks of the cavalry. Successful precautions taken	120
Tissaphernes renews the attack, with some effect	122
Comfortable quarters of the Greeks. They halt to repel the cavalry, and then march fast onward	124
Victory of the Greeks—prowess of Xenophon	126
The Greeks embarrassed as to their route—impossibility either of following the Tigris farther, or of crossing it.....	127
They strike into the mountains of the Karduchians	129
They burn much of their baggage—their sufferings from the activity and energy of the Karduchians	130
Extreme danger of their situation	131
Xenophon finds out another road to turn the enemy's position ...	ib.
The Karduchians are defeated and the road cleared	132
Danger of Xenophon with the rear division and baggage.....	133
Anxiety of the Greeks to recover the bodies of the slain	134
They reach the river Kentritès, the northern boundary of Karduchia	135
Difficulties of passing the Kentritès—dream of Xenophon	ib.
They discover a ford and pass the river	137
Xenophon with the rear-guard repels the Karduchians and effects his passage.....	139
March through Armenia. Heavy snow and severe cold	ib.
They ford the Eastern Euphrates or Murad	141
Distressing marches—extreme misery from cold and hunger	ib.
Rest in good quarters—subterranean villages well-stocked with provisions	143
After a week's rest, they march onward—their guide runs away ...	145
They reach a difficult pass occupied by the Chalybes—raillery exchanged between Xenophon and Cheirisophus about stealing ...	146
They turn the pass by a flank-march, and force their way over the mountain	148
March through the country of the Taochi—exhaustion of provisions—capture of a hill-fort.....	149
Through the Chalybes, the bravest fighters whom they had yet seen—the Skythini	150
They reach the flourishing city of Gymnias	151
First sight of the sea from the mountain-top Theches—extreme delight of the soldiers	152
Passage through the Makrônes	153
Through the Kolchians—who oppose them and are defeated	154
Kolchian villages—unwholesome honey.....	154
Arrival at Trapezus on the Euxine (Trebizond).....	155
Joy of the Greeks—their discharge of vows to the Gods—their festivals and games	156
Appendix	157

CONTENTS. vii

CHAPTER LXXI.

Proceedings of the Ten Thousand Greeks, from the time that they reached Trapezus, to their Junction with the Lacedæmonian Army in Asia Minor.

	Page
Greek cities on the Euxine—Sinôpê with her colonies Kerasus, Kotyôra, and Trapezus.....	164
Indigenous inhabitants—their relations with the Greek colonists...	165
Feelings of the Greeks on the Euxine when the Ten Thousand descended among them	166
Uncertainty and danger of what they might do.....	167
Plans of the army—Cheirisophus is sent to Byzantium to procure vessels for transporting them	169
Regulations for the army proposed by Xenophon, during his absence	170
Adopted by the army—their intense repugnance to farther marching	171
Measures for procuring transports. Marauding expeditions for supplies, against the Colchians and the Drilæ	ib.
The army leave Trapezus, and march westward along the coast to Kerasus	172
Acts of disorder and outrage committed by various soldiers near Kerasus	173
March to Kotyôra—hostilities with the Mosynœki	174
Long halt at Kotyôra—remonstrance from the Sinopians	175
Speech of Hekatonymus of Sinôpê to the army—reply of Xenophon	176
Success of the reply—good understanding established with Sinôpê	177
Consultation of the army with Hekatonymus, who advises going home by sea	ib.
Envoys sent by the army to Sinôpê to procure vessels.....	178
Poverty and increasing disorganization of the army	179
Ideas of Xenophon about founding a new city in the Euxine, with the army	ib.
Sacrifice of Xenophon to ascertain the will of the gods—treachery of the prophet Silanus	181
Silanus, Timasion, and others raise calumnies against Xenophon. General assembly of the army.....	182
Accusations against Xenophon—his speech in defence	183
He carries the soldiers with him—discontent and flight of Silanus	184
Fresh manœuvres of Timasion—fresh calumnies circulated against Xenophon—renewed discontent of the army	185
Xenophon convenes the assembly again.....	186
His address in defence of himself	187

viii	CONTENTS.
		Page
His remonstrance against the disorders in the army		188
Vote of the army unanimously favourable to Xenophon—dis- proving the disorders, and directing trial		190
Xenophon's appeal to universal suffrage, as the legitimate political authority. Success of his appeal		191
Xenophon recommends trial of the generals before a tribunal formed of the lochages or captains. Satisfaction of the army with Xenophon		192
Manner in which discipline was upheld by the officers		193
Complete triumph of Xenophon. His influence over the army, derived from his courage, his frankness, and his oratory		194
Improved feeling of the army—peace with the Paphlagonian Ko- rylas		196
The army pass by sea to Sinôpê		197
Return of Cheirisophus—resolution of the army to elect a single general—they wish to elect Xenophon, who declines—Cheiriso- phus is chosen	ib.
The army pass by sea to Herakleia—they wish to extort money from the Herakleots—opposition of Cheirisophus and Xeno- phon		199
Dissatisfaction of the army—they divide into three fractions. 1. The Arcadians and Achæans. 2. A division under Cheiriso- phus. 3. A division under Xenophon		200
Arcadian division start first and act for themselves—they get into great danger, and are rescued by Xenophon—the army reunited at Kalpê—old board of generals re-elected, with Neon in place of Cheirisophus		201
Distress for provisions at Kalpê—unwillingness to move in the face of unfavourable sacrifices—ultimate victory over the troops of the country		202
Halt at Kalpê—comfortable quarters—idea that they were about to settle there as a colony		203
Arrival of Kleander, the Spartan harmost, from Byzantium, toge- ther with Dexippus		204
Disorder in the army: mutiny against Kleander, arising from the treachery of Dexippus	ib.
Indignation and threats of Kleander—Xenophon persuades the army to submit—fear of Sparta		206
Satisfaction given to Kleander, by the voluntary surrender of Agasias with the mutinous soldier		207
Appeal to the mercy of Kleander, who is completely soothed		208
Kleander takes the command, expressing the utmost friendship both towards the army and towards Xenophon		209
Unfavourable sacrifices make Kleander throw up the command and sail away		210

CONTENTS. ix

	Page
March of the army across the country from Kalpê to Chalkêdon...	210
Pharnabazus bribes Anaxibius to carry the army across the Bosphorus into Europe—false promises of Anaxibius to the army...	211
Intention of Xenophon to leave the army immediately and go home—first proposition addressed to him by Seuthes of Thrace	ib.
The army cross over to Byzantium—fraud and harsh dealing of Anaxibius, who sends the army at once out of the town	212
Last orders of Anaxibius as the soldiers were going out of the gates	213
Wrath and mutiny of the soldiers, in going away—they rush again into the gates, and muster within the town	214
Terror of Anaxibius and all within the town	216
The exasperated soldiers masters of Byzantium—danger of all within it—conduct of Xenophon.....	ib.
Xenophon musters the soldiers in military order and harangues them	218
Xenophon calms the army, and persuades them to refrain from assaulting the town—message sent by them to Anaxibius—they go out of Byzantium, and agree to accept Kceratadas as their commander	219
Remarkable effect produced by Xenophon—evidence which it affords of the susceptibility of the Greek mind to persuasive influences	221
Xenophon leaves the army, and goes into Byzantium with the view of sailing home. Kceratadas is dismissed from the command...	224
Dissension among the commanders left	ib.
Distress of the army—Aristarchus arrives from Sparta to supersede Kleander—Polus on his way to supersede Anaxibius	225
Pharnabazus defrauds Anaxibius, who now employs Xenophon to convey the Cyreians across back to Asia.....	226
Aristarchus hinders the crossing—his cruel dealing towards the sick Cyreians left in Byzantium	227
His treacherous scheme for entrapping Xenophon	229
Xenophon is again implicated in the conduct of the army—he opens negotiations with Seuthes.....	230
Position of Seuthes—his liberal offers to the army	231
Xenophon introduces him to the army, who accept the offers	232
Service of the army with Seuthes, who cheats them of most of their pay	ib.
The army suspect the probity of Xenophon—unjust calumnies against him—he exposes it in a public harangue, and regains their confidence.....	233
Change of interest in the Lacedæmonians, who become anxious to convey the Cyrcians across into Asia, in order to make war against the satraps	234

x		CONTENTS.		Page
Xenophon crosses over with the army to Asia—his poverty—he is advised to sacrifice to Zeus Meilichios—beneficial effects.....				235
He conducts the army across Mount Ida to Pergamus.....				237
His unsuccessful attempt to surprise and capture the rich Persian
Asidates				238
In a second attempt he captures Asidates—valuable booty secured				239
General sympathy expressed for Xenophon—large share personally allotted to him				ib.
The Cyreians are incorporated in the army of the Lacedæmonian general Thimbron—Xenophon leaves the army, depositing his money in the temple at Ephesus				240
His subsequent return to Asia, to take command of the Cyreians
as a part of the Lacedæmonian army				241
Xenophon in the Spartan service, with Agesilaus against Athens—
he is banished				ib.
He settles at Skillus near Olympia, on an estate consecrated to
Artemis				243
Charms of the residence—good hunting—annual public sacrifice offered by Xenophon				244
Later life of Xenophon—expelled from Skillus after the battle of Leuktra—afterwards restored at Athens.....				245
Great impression produced by the retreat of the Ten Thousand upon the Greek mind				247

CHAPTER LXXII.

Greece under the Lacedæmonian Empire.

Sequel of Grecian affairs generally—resumed.....	250
Spartan empire—how and when it commenced	ib.
Oppression and suffering of Athens under the Thirty	251
Alteration of Grecian feeling towards Athens—the Thirty are put down and the democracy restored	252
The Knights or Horsemen, the richest proprietors at Athens, were the great supporters of the Thirty in their tyranny	253
The state of Athens, under the Thirty, is a sample of that which occurred in a large number of other Grecian cities, at the com-
menacement of the Spartan empire	254
Great power of Lysander—he establishes in most of the cities
Dekarchies, along with a Spartan harmost	255
Intimidation exercised everywhere by Lysander in favour of his own partisans	256
Oppressive action of these Dekarchies	257
In some points, probably worse than the Thirty at Athens	259
Bad conduct of the Spartan harmosts—harsh as well as corrupt.
No justice to be obtained against them at Sparta	261

CONTENTS. xi

	Page
Contrast of the actual empire of Sparta, with the promises of freedom which she had previously held out	262
Numerous promises of general autonomy made by Sparta—by the Spartan general Brasidas, especially	266
Gradual change in the language and plans of Sparta towards the close of the Peloponnesian war	268
Language of Brasidas contrasted with the acts of Lysander.....	269
Extreme suddenness and completeness of the victory of Ægospotami left Lysander almost omnipotent	270
The Dekarchies became partly modified by the jealousy at Sparta against Lysander. The harmosts lasted much longer	271
The Thirty at Athens were put down by the Athenians themselves, not by any reformatory interference of Sparta	273
The empire of Sparta much worse and more oppressive than that of Athens	275
Imperial Athens deprived her subject-allies of their autonomy, but was guilty of little or no oppression.....	276
Imperial Sparta did this, and much worse—her harmosts and decemvirs are more complained of than the fact of her empire ...	277
This is the more to be regretted, as Sparta had now an admirable opportunity for organizing a good and stable confederacy throughout Greece	278
Sparta might have reorganized the confederacy of Delos, which might now have been made to work well	280
Insupportable arrogance of Lysander—bitter complaints against him, as well as against the Dekarchies	282
Lysander offends Pharnabazus, who procures his recall. His disgust and temporary expatriation	283
Surrender of the Asiatic Greeks to Persia, according to the treaty concluded with Sparta	284
Their condition is affected by the position and ambitious schemes of Cyrus, whose protection they seek against Tissaphernes	285
After the death of Cyrus, Tissaphernes returns as victor and satrap to the coast of Asia Minor	286
Alarm of the Asiatic Greeks, who send to ask aid from Sparta. The Spartans send Thimbron with an army to Asia. His ill-success and recall—he is superseded by Derkyllidas	287
Conduct of the Cyreians loose as to pillage	288
Derkyllidas makes a truce with Tissaphernes, and attacks Pharnabazus in the Troad and Æolis	289
Distribution of the Persian empire: relation of king, satrap, sub-satrap	290
Mania, widow of Zênis, holds the subsatrapy of Æolis under Pharnabazus. Her regular payment and vigorous government	291
Military force, personal conquests, and large treasures, of Mania... ib.

xii	CONTENTS.	Page
	Assassination of Mania, and of her son, by her son-in-law Meidias, who solicits the satrapy from Pharnabazus, but is indignantly refused	293
	Invasion and conquest of Æolis by Derkyllidas, who gets possession of the person of Meidias	294
	Derkyllidas acquires and liberates Skepsis and Gergis, deposing Meidias, and seizing the treasures of Mania	295
	Derkyllidas concludes a truce with Pharnabazus, and takes winter quarters in Bithynia	298
	Command of Derkyllidas—satisfaction of Sparta with the improved conduct of the Cyreians	300
	Derkyllidas crosses into Europe, and employs his troops in fortifying the Chersonesus against the Thracians.....	301
	He captures and garrisons Atarneus	303
	He makes war upon Tissaphernes and Pharnabazus, upon the Mæander	304
	Timidity of Tissaphernes—he concludes a truce with Derkyllidas..	306
	Derkyllidas is superseded by Agesilaus	307
	Alienation towards Sparta had grown up among her allies in Central Greece.....	ib.
	Great energy imparted to Spartan action by Lysander immediately after the victory of Ægospotami; an energy very unusual with Sparta	308
	The Spartans had kept all the advantages of victory to themselves—their allies were allowed nothing.....	309
	Great power of the Spartans—they take revenge upon those who had displeased them—their invasion of Elis	310
	The Spartan king Agis invades the Eleian territory. He retires from it immediately in consequence of an earthquake	312
	Second invasion of Elis by Agis—he marches through Triphylia and Olympia: victorious march, with much booty.....	313
	Insurrection of the oligarchical party in Elis—they are put down..	ib.
	The Eleians are obliged to submit to hard terms of peace	314
	Sparta refuses to restore the Pisatans to the Olympic presidency...	317
	Triumphant position of Sparta—she expels the Messenians from Peloponnesus and its neighbourhood	ib.

CHAPTER LXXIII.

Agesilaus King of Sparta.—The Corinthian War.

Triumphant position of Sparta at the close of the war—introduction of a large sum of gold and silver by Lysander—opposed by some of the Ephors	319
The introduction of money was only one among a large train of corrupting circumstances which then became operative on Sparta	321

CONTENTS. xiii

	Page
Contrast between Sparta in 432 B.C., and Sparta after 404 B.C. ...	322
Increase of peculation, inequality, and discontent at Sparta.....	324
Testimonies of Isokrates and Xenophon to the change of character and habits at Sparta	325
Power of Lysander—his arrogance and ambitious projects—flat- tery lavished upon him by sophists and poets	327
Real position of the kings at Sparta	329
His intrigues to make himself king at Sparta—he tries in vain to move the oracles in his favour—scheme laid for the production of sacred documents, as yet lying hidden, by a son of Apollo ...	332
His aim at the kingship fails—nevertheless he still retains pro- digious influence at Sparta	334
Death of Agis king of Sparta—doubt as to the legitimacy of his son Leotychides. Agesilaus, seconded by Lysander, aspires to the throne	335
Character of Agesilaus	336
Conflicting pretensions of Agesilaus and Leotychides	338
Objection taken against Agesilaus on the ground of his lameness— oracle produced by Diopeithes—eluded by the interpretation of Lysander	339
Agesilaus is preferred as king—suspicions which always remained attached to Lysander’s interpretation	340
Popular conduct of Agesilaus—he conciliates the Ephors—his great influence at Sparta—his energy, combined with unscrup- ulous partisanship	341
Dangerous conspiracy at Sparta—terror-striking sacrifices	343
Character and position of the chief conspirator Kinadon—state of parties at Sparta—increasing number of malcontents	344
Police of the Ephors—information laid before them	346
Wide-spread discontent reckoned upon by the conspirators.....	347
Alarm of the Ephors—their manoeuvres for apprehending Kinadon privately.....	348
Kinadon is seized, interrogated, and executed—his accomplices are arrested, and the conspiracy broken up	349
Dangerous discontent indicated at Sparta	352
Proceedings of Derkyllidas and Pharnabazus in Asia	353
Spertian preparations for reviving the maritime war against Sparta —renewed activity of Konon	354
Agesilaus is sent with a land-force to Asia, accompanied by Ly- sander	355
Large plans of Agesilaus, for conquest in the interior of Asia	356
General willingness of the Spartan allies to serve in the expedition, but refusal from Thebes, Corinth, and Athens	357
Agesilaus compares himself with Agamemnon—goes to sacrifice at Aulis—is contemptuously hindered by the Thebans	ib.

xiv	CONTENTS.	Page
Arrival of Agesilaus at Ephesus—he concludes a fresh armistice with Tissaphernes.....		358
Arrogant behaviour and overweening ascendancy of Lysander—offensive to the army and to Agesilaus		359
Agesilaus humbles and degrades Lysander, who asks to be sent away		360
Lysander is sent to command at the Hellespont—his valuable service there		361
Tissaphernes breaks the truce with Agesilaus, who makes war upon him and Pharnabazus—he retires for the purpose of organizing a force of cavalry		362
Agesilaus indifferent to money for himself, but eager in enriching his friends		364
His humanity towards captives and deserted children		365
Spartan side of his character—exposure of naked prisoners—different practice of Asiatics and Greeks.....		367
Efforts of Agesilaus to train his army, and to procure cavalry		369
Agesilaus renews the war against Tissaphernes, and gains a victory near Sardis.....		370
Artaxerxes causes Tissaphernes to be put to death and superseded by Tithraustes		372
Negotiations between the new satrap and Agesilaus—the satraps in Asia Minor hostile to each other		373
Commencement of action at sea against Sparta—the Athenian Konon, assisted by Persian ships and money, commands a fleet of eighty sail on the coast of Karia.....		374
Rhodes revolts from the Spartan empire—Konon captures an Egyptian corn-fleet at Rhodes		375
Anxiety of the Lacedæmonians—Agesilaus is appointed to command at sea as well as on land.....		376
Severity of the Lacedæmonians towards the Rhodian Dorieus—contrast of the former treatment of the same man by Athens ...		377
Sentiment of a multitude compared with that of individuals		378
Efforts of Agesilaus to augment the fleet—he names Peisander admiral		380
Operations of Agesilaus against Pharnabazus.....	ib.
He lays waste the residence of the satrap, and surprises his camp—offence given to Spithridates		382
Personal conference between Agesilaus and Pharnabazus.....		384
Friendship established between Agesilaus and the son of Pharnabazus—character of Agesilaus		387
Promising position and large preparations for Asiatic land-warfare, of Agesilaus—he is recalled with his army to Peloponnesus.....		388
Efforts and proceedings of Konon in command of the Persian fleet—his personal visit to the Persian court.....		389
Pharnabazus is named admiral jointly with Konon		391

CONTENTS. xv
Page

Battle of Knidus—complete defeat of the Lacedæmonian fleet—death of Peisander the admiral 392

CHAPTER LXXIV.

From the Battle of Knidus to the Rebuilding of the Long Walls of Athens.

War in Central Greece against Sparta—called the Corinthian war.. 395 Relations of Sparta with the neighbouring states and with her allies after the accession of Agesilaus. Discontent among the allies ib.
Great power of Sparta, stretching even to Northern Greece—state of Herakleia 396
Growing disposition in Greece to hostility against Sparta, when she becomes engaged in the war against Persia 397
The satrap Tithraustes sends an envoy with money into Greece, to light up war against Sparta—his success at Thebes, Corinth, and Argos 398
The Persian money did not create hostility against Sparta, but merely brought out hostile tendencies pre-existing. Philo-Laconian sentiment of Xenophon 400
War between Sparta and Thebes—the Bœotian war..... 402 Active operations of Sparta against Bœotia—Lysander is sent to act from Herakleia on the northward—Pausanias conducts an army from Peloponnesus 403
The Thebans apply to Athens for aid—remarkable proof of the altered sentiment in Greece 404
Speech of the Theban envoy at Athens 405 Political feeling at Athens—good effects of the amnesty after the expulsion of the Thirty 406
Unanimous vote of the Athenians to assist Thebes against Sparta . 408
State of the Bœotian confederacy—Orchomenus revolts and joins Lysander, who invades Bœotia with his army and attacks Haliartus ib.
Lysander is repulsed and slain before Haliartus 409
Pausanias arrives in Bœotia after the death of Lysander—Thrasylbulus and an Athenian army come to the aid of the Thebans ... 411 Pausanias evacuates Bœotia, on receiving the dead bodies of Ly-sander and the rest for burial ib.
Anger against Pausanias at Sparta; he escapes into voluntary exile; he is condemned in his absence 413 Condemnation of Pausanias not deserved ib.
Sparta not less unjust in condemning unsuccessful generals than Athens 416

xvi	CONTENTS.	Page
	Character of Lysander—his mischievous influence, as well for Sparta, as for Greece generally	416
	His plans to make himself king at Sparta—discourse of the sophist Kleon.....	418
	Encouragement to the enemies of Sparta, from the death of Ly- sander—alliance against her between Thebes, Athens, Corinth, and Argos—the Eubœans and others join the alliance	419
	Increased importance of Thebes—she now rises to the rank of a primary power—the Theban leader Ismenias.....	ib.
	Successful operations of Ismenias to the north of Bœotia—cap- ture of Herakleia from Sparta	420
	Synod of anti-Spartan allies at Corinth—their confident hopes— the Lacedæmonians send to recall Agesilaus from Asia	421
	Large muster near Corinth of Spartans and Peloponnesians on one side, of anti-Spartan allies on the other	423
	Boldness of the language against Sparta—speech of the Corinthian Timolaus	ib.
	The anti-Spartan allies take up a defensive position near Corinth —advance of the Lacedæmonians to attack them	424
	Battle of Corinth—victory of the Lacedæmonians in their part of the battle; their allies in the other parts being worsted	426
	Lacedæmonian ascendancy within Peloponnesus is secured, but no farther result gained	428
	Agesilaus—his vexation on being recalled from Asia—his large plans of Asiatic conquest	429
	Regret of the Asiatic allies when he quits Asia—he leaves Euxenus in Asia with 4000 men	430
	Agesilaus crosses the Hellespont and marches homeward through Thrace, Macedonia, and Thessaly	432
	Agesilaus and his army on the northern frontier of Bœotia—eclipse of the sun—news of the naval defeat at Knidus	433
	Bœotians and their allies mustered at Koroneia	434
	Battle of Koroneia—Agesilaus with most of his army is victorious; while the Thebans on their side are also victorious	436
	Terrible combat between the Thebans and Spartans: on the whole, the result is favourable to the Thebans	437
	Victory of Agesilaus, not without severe wounds—yet not very de- cisive—his conduct after the battle.....	438
	Army of Agesilaus withdraws from Bœotia—he goes to the Py- thian games—sails homeward across the Corinthian Gulf—his honourable reception at Sparta	440
	Results of the battles of Corinth and Koroneia. Sparta had gained nothing by the former, and had rather lost by the latter	441
	Reverses of Sparta after the defeat of Knidus. Loss of the insular

CONTENTS. xvii
Page

empire of Sparta. Nearly all her maritime allies revolt to join Pharnabazus and Konon 442
Abydos holds faithfully to Sparta, under Derkyllidas 443 Derkyllidas holds both Abydos and the Chersonesus opposite, in spite of Pharnabazus—anger of the latter 445 Pharnabazus and Konon sail with their fleet to Peloponnesus and to Corinth 446
Assistance and encouragement given by Pharnabazus to the allies at Corinth—remarkable fact of a Persian satrap and fleet at Corinth 447
Pharnabazus leaves the fleet with Konon in the Saronic Gulf, and aids him with money to rebuild the Long Walls of Athens ib.
Konon rebuilds the Long Walls—hearty co-operation of the allies . 448 Great importance of this restoration—how much it depended upon accident 450
Maintenance of the lines of Corinth against Sparta, was one essential condition to the power of rebuilding the Long Walls. The lines were not maintained longer than the ensuing year 452

CHAPTER LXXXV.

From the Rebuilding of the Long Walls of Athens to the Peace of Antalkidas.

Large plans of Konon—organization of a mercenary force at Corinth 453
Naval conflicts of the Corinthians and Lacedæmonians, in the Corinthian Gulf..... 454
Land-warfare—the Lacedæmonians established at Sikyon—the anti-Spartan allies occupying the lines of Corinth from sea to sea 455
Sufferings of the Corinthians from the war being carried on in their territory. Many Corinthian proprietors become averse to the war ib.
Growth and manifestation of the philo-Laconian party in Corinth.
Oligarchical form of the government left open nothing but an appeal to force 457
The Corinthian government forestal the conspiracy by a coup
d'état 459
Numerous persons of the philo-Laconian party are banished:
nevertheless Pasimêlus the leader is spared, and remains at Corinth 462
Intimate political union and consolidation between Corinth and Argos..... ib.

	Page
Pasimélus admits the Lacedæmonians within the Long Walls of Corinth. Battle within those walls	463
The Lacedæmonians are victorious—severe loss of the Argeians...	464
The Lacedæmonians pull down a portion of the Long Walls between Corinth and Lechæum, so as to open a free passage across. They capture Krommyon and Sidus	466
Effective warfare carried on by the light troops under Iphikrates at Corinth—military genius and improvements of Iphikrates ...	467
The Athenians restore the Long Walls between Corinth and Lechæum—expedition of the Spartan king Agesilaus, who, in concert with Teutias, retakes the Long Walls and captures Lechæum	470
Alarm of Athens and Thebes at the capture of the Long Walls of Corinth. Propositions sent to Sparta to solicit peace. The discussions come to no result	473
Advantages derived by the Corinthians from possession of Peiræum. At the instigation of the exiles, Agesilaus marches forth with an army to attack it	476
Isthmian festival—Agesilaus disturbs the celebration. The Corinthian exiles, under his protection, celebrate it; then, when he is gone, the Corinthians from the city, and perform the ceremony over again	477
Agesilaus attacks Peiræum, which he captures, together with the Heræum, many prisoners, and much booty	478
Triumphant position of Agesilaus. Danger of Corinth. The Thebans send fresh envoys to solicit peace—contemptuously treated by Agesilaus	480
Sudden arrival of bad news, which spoils the triumph	481
Destruction of a Lacedæmonian mora by the light troops under Iphikrates	482
Daring and well-planned manœuvres of Iphikrates	483
Few of the mora escape to Lechæum	485
The Lacedæmonians bury the bodies of the slain, under truce asked and obtained. Trophy erected by Iphikrates	487
Great effect produced upon the Grecian mind by this event. Peculiar feelings of Spartans: pride of the relatives of the slain ...	ib.
Mortification of Agesilaus—he marches up to the walls of Corinth and defies Iphikrates—he then goes back humiliated to Sparta.	489
Success of Iphikrates—he retakes Krommyon, Sidus, and Peiræum—Corinth remains pretty well undisturbed by enemies. The Athenians recall Iphikrates	490
Expedition of Agesilaus against Akarnania—successful, after some delay—the Akarnanians submit, and enrol themselves in the Lacedæmonian confederacy	491

CONTENTS. xix

	Page
The Lacedæmonians under Agesipolis invade Argos	493
Manceuvre of the Argeians respecting the season of the holy truce. Agesipolis consults the oracles at Olympia and Delphi.....	ib.
Earthquake in Argos after the invasion of Agesipolis—he disre- gards it	496
He marches up near to Argos—much plunder taken—he retires...	497
Transactions in Asia—efforts of Sparta to detach the Great King from Athens.....	ib.
The Spartan Antalkidas is sent as envoy to Tiribazus. Konon and other envoys sent also, from Athens and the anti-Spartan allies .	498
Antalkidas offers to surrender the Asiatic Greeks, and demands universal autonomy throughout the Grecian world—the anti- Spartan allies refuse to accede to those terms	499
Hostility of Sparta to all the partial confederacies of Greece, now first proclaimed under the name of universal autonomy	500
Antalkidas gains the favour of Tiribazus, who espouses privately the cause of Sparta, though the propositions for peace fail. Tiribazus seizes Konon—Konon's career is now closed, either by death or imprisonment.....	501
Tiribazus cannot prevail with the Persian court, which still con- tinues hostile to Sparta. Struthas is sent down to act against the Lacedæmonians in Ionia	502
Victory of Struthas over Thimbron and the Lacedæmonian army. Thimbron is slain	ib.
Diphridas is sent to succeed Thimbron	504
Lacedæmonian fleet at Rhodes—intestine disputes in the island...	ib.
The Athenians send aid to Evagoras at Cyprus. Fidelity with which they adhered to him, though his alliance had now become inconvenient	506
Thrasybulus is sent with a fleet from Athens to the Asiatic coast —his acquisitions in the Hellespont and Bosphorus.....	507
Victory of Thrasybulus in Lesbos—he levies contributions along the Asiatic coast—he is slain near Aspendus	509
Character of Thrasybulus.....	ib.
Agyrrius succeeds Thrasybulus—Rhodes still holds out against the Lacedæmonians	511
Anaxibius is sent to command at the Hellespont in place of Der- kyllidas—his vigorous proceedings—he deprives Athens of the tolls of the strait	ib.
The Athenians send Iphikrates with his peltasts and a fleet to the Hellespont. His stratagem to surprise Anaxibius	513
Defeat and death of Anaxibius	514
The Athenians are again masters of the Hellespont and the strait dues	516

xx	CONTENTS.	Page
	The island of Ægina—its past history	516
	The Æginetans are constrained by Sparta into war with Athens.
	The Lacedæmonian admiral Teleutias at Ægina. He is superseded by Hierax. His remarkable popularity among the seamen. ib. Hierax proceeds to Rhodes, leaving Gorgôpas at Ægina. Passage of the Lacedæmonian Antalkidas to Asia	518
	Gorgôpas is surprised in Ægina, defeated, and slain, by the Athenian Chabrias; who goes to assist Evagoras in Cyprus	520
	The Lacedæmonian seamen at Ægina unpaid and discontented.
	Teleutias is sent thither to conciliate them	521
	Sudden and successful attack of Teleutias upon the Peiræus	522
	Unprepared and unguarded condition of Peiræus—Teleutias gains
	rich plunder, and sails away in safety	523
	He is enabled to pay his seamen—activity of the fleet—great loss inflicted upon Athenian commerce	524
	Financial condition of Athens. The Theôrikon	525
	Direct property-taxes	527
	Antalkidas goes up with Tiribazus to Susa—his success at the Persian court—he brings down the terms of peace asked for by Sparta, ratified by the Great King, to be enforced by Sparta in his name	531
	Antalkidas in command of the Lacedæmonian and Syracusan fleets in the Hellespont, with Persian aid. His successes against the Athenians	533
	Distress and discouragement of Athens—anxiety of the anti-Spartan allies for peace	ib.
	Tiribazus summons them all to Sardis, to hear the convention which had been sent down by the Great King	534
	Terms of the convention, called the peace of Antalkidas	ib.
	Congress at Sparta for acceptance or rejection. All parties accept.
	The Thebans at first accept under reserve for the Boeotian cities. 535
	Agésilas refuses to allow the Theban reserve, and requires unconditional acceptance. His eagerness, from hatred of Thebes, to get into a war with them single-handed. The Thebans are obliged to accept unconditionally	536
	Agésilas forces the Corinthians to send away their Argeian auxiliaries. The philo-Argeian Corinthians go into exile: the philo-
	Laconian Corinthians are restored	537