

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

VOL. XI.

CHAPTER LXXXIII.

Sicilian Affairs (continued).—From the Destruction of the Carthaginian Army by Pestilence before Syracuse, down to the Death of Dionysius the Elder.

	Page
Frequent occurrence of pestilence among the Carthaginians, not extending to the Greeks in Sicily	2
Mutiny among the mercenaries of Dionysius—Aristoteles their commander is sent away to Sparta	ib.
Difficulties of Dionysius arising from his mercenaries—heavy burden of paying them	3
Dionysius re-establishes Messênê with new inhabitants	4
Conquests of Dionysius in the interior of Sicily	5
Alarm at Rhegium—Dionysius attacks the Sikel town of Tauromenium—desperate defence of the Sikels—Dionysius is repulsed and nearly slain.....	6
Agrigentum declares against Dionysius—reappearance of the Carthaginian army under Magon	8
Expedition of Dionysius against Rhegium—he fails in surprising the town—he concludes a truce for one year.....	9
Magon again takes the field at Agyrium—is repulsed by Dionysius—truce concluded	10
Dionysius again attacks Tauromenium—captures it, drives out the Sikels, and plants new inhabitants	11
Plans of Dionysius against the Greek cities in Southern Italy—great pressure upon these cities from the Samnites and Lucanians of the interior	ib.
Alliance contracted among the Italiot Greeks, for defence both against the Lucanians and against Dionysius. Dionysius allies himself with the Lucanians	14

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

	Page
Dionysius attacks Rhegium—the Rhegines save the Krotoniate fleet—fleet of Dionysius ruined by a storm	15
Defeat of the inhabitants of Thurii by the Lucanians. Leptines with the fleet of Dionysius off Läsus—his conduct towards the survivors	17
Fresh expedition of Dionysius against the Italiot Greeks—his powerful armament—he besieges Kaulonia	19
United army of the Italiot Greeks advances to relieve the place—their advanced guard is defeated, and Helôris the general slain	ib.
The whole army is defeated and captured by Dionysius	20
Generous lenity of Dionysius towards the prisoners	21
Dionysius besieges Rhegium—he grants to them peace on severe terms	22
He captures Kaulonia and Hipponium—inhabitants transported to Syracuse—territory made over to Lokri	23
Artifices of Dionysius to impoverish and disarm the Rhegines.....	24
He besieges Rhegium—desperate defence of the town under the general Phyton. Surrender of the place from famine, after a blockade of eleven months	25
Cruel treatment of Phyton by Dionysius	26
Strong sympathy excited by the fate of Phyton	27
Rhegium dismantled—all the territory of the southern Calabrian peninsula united to Lokri.....	29
Peace of Antalkidas—ascendent position of Sparta and of Dionysius. Kroton conquered by Dionysius. Splendid robe taken from the temple of Hêrê	30
Schemes of Dionysius for transmarine colonies and conquests, in Epirus and Illyria	32
Dionysius plunders the coast of Latium and Etruria, and the rich temple of Agylla	34
Immense power of Dionysius—his poetical compositions	35
Olympic festival of 384 B.C., the first after the peace of Antalkidas. Dionysius sends thither a splendid legation—also chariots to run—and poetical compositions to be recited	37
Feelings of the crowd at the festival—Dikon of Kaulonia	38
Harangue of Lysias at the festival against Dionysius, in reference to the political state of the Grecian world, and the sufferings of the enslaved Sicilians	40
Hatred of the past, and fear of the future conquests of Dionysius, both prevalent	41
Lysias exhorts his hearers to destroy the tents of the Syracusan legation at Olympia, as an act of retribution against Dionysius	43

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

vii

	Page
Explosion of antipathy against the poems of Dionysius recited at Olympia—insults heaped upon his name and person.....	45
Excessive grief, wrath, and remorse, of Dionysius on hearing of this manifestation against him—his suspicions and cruelties	46
Marked and singular character of the manifestation against Dionysius.....	47
Plato visits Syracuse—is harshly treated by Dionysius—acquires great influence over Dion.....	52
New constructions and improvements by Dionysius at Syracuse ...	54
Intention of Dionysius to renew the war with Carthage	55
War with Carthage. Victory of Dionysius over the Carthaginian army under Magon	56
Second battle with the Carthaginians at Kronium, in which Dionysius is defeated with terrible loss.....	57
He concludes peace with Carthage, on terms very unfavourable to himself: all the territory west of the river Halykus is surrendered to Carthage: he covenants to pay tribute to Carthage.....	58
Affairs of Southern Italy: wall across the Calabrian peninsula projected, but not executed	59
Relations of Dionysius with Central Greece	60
New war undertaken by Dionysius against Carthage. He is at first successful, but is ultimately defeated near Lilybæum, and forced to return home	61
Dionysius gains the prize of tragedy at the Lenæan festival at Athens. His joy at the news. He dies of fever soon afterwards.....	63
Character of Dionysius.....	ib.

CHAPTER LXXXIV.

Sicilian Affairs after the Death of the Elder Dionysius—Dionysius the Younger—and Dion.

Family left by Dionysius at his death.....	75
Dion—his connection with the Dionysian family	76
Personal character of Dion	77
Plato, Dion, and the Pythagorean philosophers.....	78
Extraordinary influence of Plato upon Dion	79
Dion learns to hate the Dionysian despotism—he conceives large political and reformatory views	81
Alteration of habits in Dion—he brings Plato into communication with Dionysius	82

	Page
Dion maintains the good opinion and confidence of Dionysius, until the death of the latter—his visits to Peloponnesus	84
Death of the elder Dionysius—divergences of interest between the two lines of family	86
The younger Dionysius succeeds his father—his character	87
Conduct of Dion—he submits to the younger Dionysius—gives him frank and wholesome advice.....	88
Dion acquires great influence and estimation from Dionysius	89
Recall of Philistus from exile	91
Dion tries to work upon the mind of Dionysius, towards a freer political government and mental improvement	92
His earnest exhortations produce considerable effect, inspiring Dionysius with a strong desire to see and converse with Plato .	93
Invitation sent to Plato, both by Dion and by Dionysius	95
Hesitation of Plato—he reluctantly consents to visit Syracuse ...	96
Plato visits Syracuse—unbounded deference and admiration manifested towards him at first by Dionysius—Fear and hatred felt by Philistus and other courtiers	98
Injudicious manner in which Plato dealt with Dionysius	100
Strenuous exhortations addressed by Plato and Dion to Dionysius, to reform himself	101
Plato damps the inclination of Dionysius towards political good...	102
If Plato had tried to impel Dionysius towards a good practical use of his power, Dionysius might at that time have obeyed him, with the aid of Dion.....	104
Difficulties which they would have encountered in trying to realise beneficent projects	105
Intrigues by Philistus and others to set Dionysius against Plato and Dion	ib.
Relations between Dionysius and Dion—natural foundation for jealousy on the part of Dionysius	107
Dionysius loses his inclinations towards political improvements—comes to hate Dion	ib.
Banishment of Dion from Syracuse to Italy	108
Dionysius retains Plato in the acropolis, but treats him well, and tries to conciliate his esteem	109
He dismisses Plato—then recalls him—second visit of Plato to Syracuse—his dissatisfaction—Dionysius refuses to recall Dion	111
Dionysius confiscates the property of Dion—mortification of Plato, who with difficulty obtains leave to depart from Syracuse.....	112
Resolution of Dion to avenge himself on Dionysius, and to force his way back to Syracuse by arms	114
Plato rejoins Dion in Peloponnesus—exasperation of Dion—

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

ix

	Page
Dionysius gives his sister Aretê, the wife of Dion, in marriage to Timokrates	115
Means of auxiliaries of Dion—Plato—the Academy—Alkimenēs.
Dion musters his force at Zakynthos	116
Small force of Dion against the prodigious power of Dionysius.
Resolution of Dion to conquer or perish	118
Circumstances which told against Dionysius—discontent at Syracuse	ib.
Herakleides exiled from Syracuse—he projects an attack upon Dionysius, at the same time as Dion	119
Weakness of character—dissolute and drunken habits—of Dionysius himself	121
Alarm of the soldiers of Dion at Zakynthos, when first informed that they were going against Dionysius	ib.
Eclipse of the moon—religious disquietude of the soldiers—they are re-assured by the prophet Miltas—fortunate voyage from Zakynthos to Sicily	122
Dion lands at Herakleia—he learns that Dionysius with a large fleet has just quitted Syracuse for Italy	124
March of Dion from Herakleia to Syracuse	125
Dion crosses the river Anapus, and approaches the gates of Syracuse	126
Mistake of Timokrates, left as governor of Syracuse in the absence of Dionysius	127
General rising of the Syracusans to welcome and assist Dion. Timokrates is obliged to evacuate the city, leaving Ortygia and Epipolæ garrisoned	128
Entry of Dion into Achradina—joy of the citizens—he proclaims liberty	129
Dion presents himself at the Pentapyla in front of Ortygia—challenges the garrison of Ortygia to come out and fight—is chosen general by the Syracusans, with his brother Megakles.....	130
Dion captures Epipolæ and Euryalus. He erects a cross-wall from sea to sea, to block up Ortygia	132
Return of Dionysius to Syracuse. He tries to negotiate with Dion and the Syracusans—deceives them by fallacious propositions...	133
Sudden sally made by Dionysius to surprise the blockading wall—great bravery, efforts, and danger of Dion—he at length repulses the attack and recovers the wall	135
Ortygia is again blocked up by land—efforts of Dionysius with his fleet—arrival of Herakleides from Peloponnesus with a fleet to cooperate against Dionysius	137
Arrival of Philistus with his fleet to the aid of Dionysius. Battle

	Page
in the Great Harbour between the fleet of Philistus and that of the Syracusans—Philistus is defeated and slain.....	138
Intrigues of Dionysius against Dion in Syracuse	139
Relationship of Dion to the Dionysian dynasty—suspicions entertained against him by the Syracusans—his haughty manners. Rivalry of Herakleides.....	140
Herakleides is named admiral. Dion causes him to be deposed, and then moves himself for his re-appointment.....	142
Intrigues and calumnies raised against Dion in Syracuse, by the management of Dionysius	143
Mistrust of Dion by the Syracusans, mainly in consequence of his relationship to the Dionysian family. Calumnies of Sôsis	144
Farther propositions of Dionysius. He goes away from Ortygia to Italy, leaving his son Apollokrates in command of the garrison	145
Increased dissension between Dion and Herakleides—Dion is deposed and his soldiers deprived of the pay due to them—new generals are named	146
Dion is forced to retreat from Syracuse—bad conduct of the new generals and of the people towards his soldiers	147
Dion reaches Leontini—the Leontines stand by him against the Syracusans—arrival of Nypsius with a reinforcement to the Dionysian garrison in Ortygia	148
Advantage gained by Herakleides and the Syracusans over Nypsius as he came into Ortygia—extravagant confidence in Syracuse—Nypsius sallies from Ortygia, and forces his way into Neapolis and Achradina	150
Danger and distress of the Syracusans—they send to Leontini to invoke the aid of Dion.....	151
Assembly at Leontini—pathetic address of Dion	152
Reluctance of Herakleides to let Dion into Syracuse—renewed assault from Nypsius—unanimous prayers now sent to invite Dion	153
Entrance of Dion into Syracuse—he draws up his troops on Epipolæ. Frightful condition of the city	154
Dion drives back Nypsius and his troops into Ortygia—he extinguishes the flames, and preserves Syracuse	155
Universal gratitude on the part of the Syracusans, towards Dion. Herakleides and Theodotes throw themselves upon his mercy	157
Dion pardons Herakleides—his exposition of motives	ib.
Remarkable features in this act of Dion.....	159
Dion re-establishes the blockade of Ortygia, and ransoms the captives taken	160

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xi

	Page
Dion is named general on land, at the motion of Herakleides, who is continued in his command of the fleet	161
Attempt to supersede Dion through Gæsylyus the Spartan—good conduct of Gæsylyus	163
Surrender of Ortygia by Apollokrates to Dion	164
Entry of Dion into Ortygia—restoration of his wife—speedy death of his son	ib.
Conduct of Dion in the hour of triumph	165
Suspicious previously entertained respecting Dion—that he was aiming at the despotism for himself—confirmed by his present conduct	166
He retains his dictatorial power, with the fortress and garrison of Ortygia—he grants no freedom to Syracuse	167
Intention of Dion to constitute himself king, with a Lykurgean scheme of government and discipline.	ib.
Mistake of Dion as to his position	168
Dion takes no step to realise any measure of popular liberty	169
Opposition raised against Dion by Herakleides—impatience of the Syracusans to see the demolition of the Dionysian strongholds and funeral monument.....	170
Dion causes Herakleides to be privately slain	171
Increased oppressions of Dion—hatred entertained against him in Syracuse	ib.
Disquietude and irritability of Dion on account of his unpopularity	172
Conspiracy of Kallippus against him—artifices and perjury.....	173
Kallippus causes Dion to be assassinated	175
Life, sentiments, and altered position, of Dion	176

CHAPTER LXXXV.

Sicilian Affairs down to the close of the Expedition of Timoleon.
B.C. 353–336.

Position and prospects of Kallippus, after the assassination of Dion	181
He continues master of Syracuse more than a year. His misrule. Return of Hipparinus son of Dionysius to Syracuse. Expulsion of Kallippus	182
Miserable condition of Syracuse and Sicily, as described by Plato	183
Plato's recommendations fruitless—state of Syracuse grows worse. Dionysius returns to Ortygia, expelling Hipparinus	185
Drunken habits of the Dionysian princes	186

	Page
Lokri—dependency and residence of the younger Dionysius	186
Sufferings of the Italioi Greeks from the Lucanians and Bruttians of the interior	187
Dionysius at Lokri—his unpopularity and outrageous misrule— cruel retaliation of the Lokrians upon his female relatives	188
Distress of the Syracusans—fresh danger from Carthage. They invoke the aid of Hiketas—in concert with Hiketas, they send to entreat aid from Corinth	189
Secret alliance of Hiketas with the Carthaginians—he conspires to defeat the application to Corinth	190
Application from Syracuse favourably received by the Corinthians —vote passed to grant aid	191
Difficulty in finding a Corinthian leader—most of the leading citi- zens decline—Timoleon is proposed and chosen	ib.
Antecedent life and character of Timoleon.....	192
His conduct towards his brother Timophanes, whose life he saves in battle.....	ib.
Timophanes makes himself despot, and commits gross oppression —Timoleon with two companions puts him to death	193
Beneficial effects of the act upon Corinth—sentiment towards Ti- moleon	195
Bitter reproach of Timoleon by his mother	196
Intense mental distress of Timoleon. He shuts himself up and retires from public life	197
Different judgements of modern and ancient minds on the act of Timoleon. Comments of Plutarch.....	198
Timoleon is appointed commander to Syracuse—he accepts the command—admonition of Telekleides	200
Preparations made by Timoleon—his scanty means—he engages some of the Phokian mercenaries	201
Bad promise of the expedition—second message from Hiketas, withdrawing himself from the Corinthian alliance, and desiring that no troops might be sent to Sicily	202
Timoleon sets out for Sicily with a small squadron—favourable omens and oracular answers from the gods	ib.
Timoleon arrives at Rhegium—is prevented from reaching Sicily by a Carthaginian fleet of superior force—insidious message from Hiketas.....	203
Stratagem of Timoleon to get across to Sicily, in collusion with the Rhegines	204
Public meeting in Rhegium—Timoleon and the Carthaginians both present at it—long speeches, during which Timoleon steals away, contriving to send his fleet over to Sicily.....	205

CONTENTS.

xiii

	Page
Timoleon at Tauromenium in Sicily—formidable strength of his enemies—despots in Sicily—despondency at Syracuse.....	207
Success of Timoleon at Adranum. He surprises and defeats the troops of Hiketas, superior in number	208
Improved position and alliances of Timoleon—he marches up to the walls of Syracuse	210
Position of Dionysius in Ortygia—he resolves to surrender that fortress to Timoleon, stipulating for safe conveyance and shelter at Corinth	211
Timoleon sends troops to occupy Ortygia, receiving Dionysius into his camp.....	213
Timoleon sends news of his success to Corinth, with Dionysius himself in a trireme	214
Great effect produced at Corinth—confidence of the citizens—reinforcement sent to Timoleon	215
Sight of the fallen Dionysius at Corinth—impression made upon the Greeks—numerous visitors to see him. Conversation with Aristoxenus	ib.
Immense advantage derived by Timoleon from the possession of Ortygia—numerous stores found in it	219
Large Carthaginian army under Magon arrives to aid in attacking Ortygia. Defeated by Neon, during the absence of Magon and Hiketas. Neon acquires Achradina, and joins it by a line of wall to Ortygia	220
Return of Magon and Hiketas to Syracuse—increased difficulty of their proceedings, since the victory of Neon	222
Return of Timoleon to Syracuse—fortunate march and arrival of the Corinthian reinforcement	ib.
Messênê declares in favour of Timoleon—he establishes his camp near Syracuse	223
Magon distrusts Hiketas and his position at Syracuse—he suddenly withdraws his army and fleet, leaving Syracuse altogether	224
Timoleon masters Epipolæ and the whole city of Syracuse—Hiketas is obliged to escape to Leontini	226
Languid defence made by the troops of Hiketas	227
Great effect produced by the news that Timoleon was master of Syracuse	228
Extraordinary admiration felt towards Timoleon—especially for the distinguished favour shown to him by the gods	ib.
Timoleon ascribes all his successes to the gods	230
Temptations to Timoleon in the hour of success—easy possibility of making himself despot of Syracuse.....	231

	Page
Timoleon invites the Syracusans to demolish the Dionysian stronghold in Ortygia	233
He erects courts of justice on the site	234
Desolate condition of Syracuse and other cities in Sicily. Recall of exiles. Application on the part of Timoleon and the Syracusans to Corinth	235
Commissioners sent from Corinth to Syracuse—they revive the laws and democracy enacted by Dioklès—but with various changes and additions	236
Poverty at Syracuse—necessity for inviting new colonists	237
Large body of new colonists assembled at Corinth for Sicily	ib.
Influx of new colonists into Sicily from all quarters	239
Relief to the poverty of Syracuse	ib.
Successes of Timoleon against Hiketas, Leptines, and other despots in Sicily.....	241
Hiketas invites the Carthaginians again to invade Sicily	ib.
The Carthaginians land in Sicily with a vast army, including a large proportion of native troops.....	242
Timoleon marches from Syracuse against the Carthaginians—mutiny of a portion of his mercenaries under Thrasius.....	243
Timoleon marches into the Carthaginian province—omen about the parsley.....	245
He encounters the Carthaginian army while passing the Krimésus. War chariots in their front—Timoleon orders his cavalry to charge	246
Strenuous battle between the infantry of Timoleon and the native Carthaginian infantry. Terrible storm—complete victory of Timoleon	248
Severe loss of the Carthaginians in the battle, especially of their native troops. Booty collected by the soldiers of Timoleon ...	250
Discouragement and terror among the defeated army as well as at Carthage itself	251
Great increase of glory to Timoleon—favour of the gods shown to him in the battle	252
Timoleon returns to Syracuse—he dismisses Thrasius and the mercenaries who had deserted him—he sends them out of Sicily—their fate	254
Success of Timoleon against Hiketas and Mamerkus	ib.
Victory gained by Timoleon over Hiketas, at the river Damurius..	256
Timoleon attacks Hiketas at Leontini. The place (with Hiketas in person) is surrendered to Timoleon by the garrison. Hiketas and his family are put to death	257

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xv

	Page
Timoleon gains a victory over Mamerkus—he concludes peace with the Carthaginians.....	258
Timoleon conquers and takes prisoners Mamerkus and Hippon. Mamerkus is condemned by the Syracusan public assembly ...	259
Timoleon puts down all the despots in Sicily.....	260
Timoleon lays down his power at Syracuse	261
Gratitude and reward to him by the Syracusans	262
Great influence of Timoleon, even after he had laid down his power.....	ib.
Immigration of new Greek settlers into Sicily, to Gela, Agrigentum, Kamarina, &c.	264
Value and importance of the moral ascendancy enjoyed by Timoleon, in regulating these new settlements	265
Numerous difficulties which he would be called upon to adjust ...	266
Residence of Timoleon at Syracuse—chapel to the goddess Automatia	268
Arrival of the blind Timoleon in the public assembly of Syracuse, during matters of grave and critical discussion	269
Manner in which Timoleon bore contradiction in the public assembly—his earnest anxiety to ensure freedom of speech against himself	270
Uncorrupted moderation and public spirit of Timoleon	272
Xenophontic ideal—command over willing free men—qualities, positive as well as negative, of Timoleon	273
Freedom and comfort diffused throughout all Sicily for twenty-four years, until the despotism of Agathokles	ib.
Death and obsequies of Timoleon	274
Proclamation at his funeral—monument to his honour	275
Contrast of Dion and Timoleon	276

CHAPTER LXXXVI.

Central Greece : the Accession of Philip of Macedon to the Birth of Alexander. 359–356 B.C.

Central Greece resumed	279
State of Central Greece in 360–359 B.C. Degradation of Sparta	280
Megalopolis—Messênê—their fear of Sparta—no central action in Peloponnesus	281
Corinth, Sikyon, &c.	282
Comparatively good condition of Athens	ib.
Power of Thebes	283

	Page
Extinction of the free cities of Bœotia by the Thebans—repugnant to Grecian feeling	285
Thessaly—despots of Pheræ	286
Alexander of Pheræ—his cruelties—his assassination	287
Tisiphonus despot at Pheræ—loss of power in the Pheræan dynasty	290
Macedon—reign and death of Perdikkas	291
Philip as a youth at Thebes—ideas there acquired—foundation laid of his future military ability.....	294
Condition of Philip at the death of Perdikkas	296
Embarrassments and dangers with which he had to contend	297
Macedonian government	ib.
Proceedings of Philip against his numerous enemies. His success—Thracians—Athenians	300
He evacuates Amphipolis. He defeats Argæus and the Athenians—his mild treatment of Athenian prisoners	ib.
Philip makes peace with Athens—renounces his claim to Amphipolis	301
Victories of Philip over the Pæonians and Illyrians	302
Amphipolis evacuated by Philip—the Athenians neglect it	304
State of Eubœa—the Thebans foment revolt and attack the island—victorious efforts of Athens	306
Surrender of the Chersonese to Athens	309
Social War—Chios, Kos, Rhodes, and Byzantium revolt from Athens	310
Causes of the Social War—conduct of the Athenians—Synod at Athens	ib.
Athens acts more for her own separate interests, and less for that of her allies—her armaments on service—badly paid mercenaries—their extortions	311
The four cities declare themselves independent of Athens—interference of the Karian Mausólus	313
Great force of the revolters—armament despatched by Athens against Chios—battle at Chios—repulse of the Athenians, and death of Chabrias	315
Farther armaments of Athens—Iphikrates, Timotheus, and Chares—unsuccessful operations in the Hellespont, and quarrel between the generals	316
Iphikrates and Timotheus are accused by Chares at Athens	318
Iphikrates is acquitted, Timotheus is fined and retires from Athens	320
Arrogance and unpopularity of Timotheus, attested by his friend Isokrates	ib.
Exile of Timotheus—his death soon afterwards.....	323
Iphikrates no more employed—great loss to Athens in these two generals.....	ib.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xvii

	Page
Expedition of Chares—Athens makes peace with her revolted allies, recognising their full autonomy	324
End of the Social War—great loss of power to Athens.....	326
Renewed action of Philip. He lays siege to Amphipolis.....	ib.
The Amphipolitans send to ask assistance from Athens—manœuvres of Philip to induce Athens not to interfere	327
The Athenians determine not to assist Amphipolis—their motives—importance of this resolution	329
Capture of Amphipolis by Philip, through the treason of a party in the town	330
Importance of Amphipolis to Philip—disappointment of the Athenians at his breach of promise.....	331
Philip amuses the Athenians with false assurances—he induces them to reject advances from the Olynthians—proposed exchange of Pydna for Amphipolis.....	ib.
Philip acts in a hostile manner against Athens—he conquers Pydna and Potidæa—gives Potidæa to the Olynthians—remissness of the Athenians	332
Increase of the power of Philip—he founds Philippi, opens gold mines near Mount Pangæus, and derives large revenues from them	336
Marriage of Philip with Olympias—birth of Alexander the Great ..	337

CHAPTER LXXXVII.

From the commencement of the Sacred War to that of the Olynthian War.

Causes of the Sacred War—the Amphiktyonic assembly	339
Political complaint brought before the assembly, first by Thebes against Sparta	340
Next, by Thebes against the Phokians. The Phokians are condemned and heavily fined.....	342
The assembly pass a vote consecrating the Phokian territory to Apollo	343
Resolution of the Phokians to resist—Philomelus their leader ...	344
Question of right raised as to the presidency of the temple—old right of the Phokians against that of the Delphians and the Amphiktyons.....	345
Active measures taken by Philomelus. He goes to Sparta—obtains aid from king Archidamus. He seizes Delphi—defeats the Lokrians	347
Philomelus fortifies the temple—levies numerous mercenaries—

VOL. XI.

b

	Page
tries to conciliate Grecian sentiment. The Grecian world divided	349
Philomelus tries to retain the prophetic agency—conduct of the Pythia	351
Battles of Philomelus against the Lokrians—his success	352
Exertions of the Thebans to raise a confederacy against the Phokians	353
Danger of the Phokians—they take part of the treasures of the temple, in order to pay a mercenary force	354
Numerous mercenaries employed by the Phokians—violence and ferocity of the war—defeat and death of Philomelus	356
Onomarchus general of the Phokians—he renews the war—his power by means of the mercenaries.....	357
Violent measures of Onomarchus—he employs the treasures of the temple to scatter bribes through the various cities	358
Successes of Onomarchus—he advances as far as Thermopylæ—he invades Bœotia—is repulsed by the Thebans	360
The Thebans send a force under Pammenes to assist Artabazus in Asia Minor.....	361
Conquest of Sestos by Chares and the Athenians	ib.
Intrigues of Kersobleptes against Athens—he is compelled to cede to her his portion of the Chersonese—Athenian settlers sent thither, as well as to Samos.....	362
Activity and constant progress of Philip—he conquers Methônê—remissness of Athens.....	363
Philip marches into Thessaly against the despots of Phæræ	366
Great power of Onomarchus and the Phokians—plans of Athens and Sparta—the Spartans contemplate hostilities against Megalopolis.....	367
First appearance of Demosthenes as a public adviser in the Athenian assembly.....	368
Parentage and early youth of Demosthenes—wealth of his father—dishonesty of his guardians	369
Youth of Demosthenes—sickly and feeble constitution—want of physical education and bodily vigour	372
Training of Demosthenes for a speaker—his instructors—Isæus—Plato—his devoted study of Thucydides.....	375
Indefatigable efforts of Demosthenes to surmount his natural defects as a speaker	376
Value set by Demosthenes upon action in oratory. His mind and thoughts—how formed.....	379
He becomes first known as a logographer or composer of speeches for litigants	380

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.	xix
	Page
Phokion—his antithesis and rivalry with Demosthenes—his character and position—his bravery and integrity	381
Lasting hold acquired by his integrity on the public of Athens.
Number of times that he was elected general.....	382
His manner of speaking—effective brevity—contempt of oratory .	384
His frankness—his contempt of the Athenian people—his imper- turbability—his repulsive manners	385
Phokion and Eubulus the leaders of the peace-party, which repre- sented the strongly predominant sentiment at Athens	386
Influence of Phokion mischievous during the reign of Philip—at that time Athens might have prevailed over Macedonia	388
Change in the military spirit of Greece since the Peloponnesian war. Decline of the citizen soldiery; increased spread of mercenary troops. Contrast between the Perikleian and the Demosthenic citizen	390
Decline of military readiness also among the Peloponnesian allies of Sparta	392
Multiplication of mercenary soldiers—its mischievous consequences —necessity of providing emigration	ib.
Deterioration of the Grecian military force occurred at the same time with the great development of the Macedonian force	395
Rudeness and poverty of the Macedonians—excellent material for soldiers—organising genius of Philip	396
First parliamentary harangue of Demosthenes—on the Symmories —alarm felt about Persia.....	398
Positive recommendations in the speech—mature thought and sagacity which they imply	401
His proposed preparation and scheme for extending the basis of the Symmories	403
Spirit of the Demosthenic exhortations—always impressing the ne- cessity of personal effort and sacrifice as conditions of success...	404
Affairs of Peloponnesus—projects of Sparta against Megalopolis— her attempt to obtain cooperation from Athens.....	405
Views and recommendations of Demosthenes—he advises that Athens shall uphold Messênê and Megalopolis	406
Philip in Thessaly—he attacks Lykophron of Pheræ, who calls in Onomarchus and the Phokians—Onomarchus defeats Philip ...	408
Successes of Onomarchus in Bœotia—maximum of the Phokian power.....	409
Philip repairs his forces and marches again into Thessaly—his complete victory over the Phokians—Onomarchus is slain	410
Philip conquers Pheræ and Pagasæ—becomes master of all Thes- saly—expulsion of Lykophron.....	411

	Page
Philip invades Thermopylæ—the Athenians send a force thither and arrest his progress. Their alarm at this juncture, and unusual rapidity of movement	413
Phayllus takes the command of the Phokians—third spoliation of the temple—revived strength of the Phokians—malversation of the leaders.....	415
War in Peloponnesus—the Spartans attack Megalopolis—interference of Thebes	418
Hostilities with indecisive result—peace concluded—autonomy of Megalopolis again recognised	419
Ill-success of the Phokians in Bœotia—death of Phayllus, who is succeeded by Phalækus	421
The Thebans obtain money from the Persian king	ib.
Increased power and formidable attitude of Philip. Alarm which he now begins to inspire throughout the Grecian world	422
Philip acquires a considerable navy—importance of the Gulf of Pagasæ to him—his flying squadrons annoy the Athenian commerce and coast	424
Philip carries on war in Thrace—his intrigues among the Thracian princes	427
He besieges Heræon Teichos: alarm at Athens: a decree is passed to send out a fleet: Philip falls sick: the fleet is not sent	428
Popularity of the mercenary general Charidemus—vote in his favour proposed by Aristokrates—speech composed by Demosthenes against it	430
Languor of the Athenians—the principal peace-leaders, Eubulus, Phokion, &c., propose nothing energetic against Philip—Demosthenes undertakes the duty	ib.
First Philippic of Demosthenes, 352–351 B.C.	431
Remarks and recommendations of the first Philippic. Severe comments on the past apathy of the people	434
He insists on the necessity that citizens shall serve in person, and proposes the formation of an acting fleet and armament	435
His financial propositions.....	437
Mischiefs of the past negligence and want of preparation—harm done by the mercenary unpaid armaments, serving without citizens	438
Characteristics of the first Philippic—prudent advice and early warnings of Demosthenes	440
Advice of Demosthenes not carried into effect: no serious measures adopted by Athens	443
Opponents of Demosthenes at Athens—speakers in the pay of Philip—alarm about the Persian king still continues	ib.

CONTENTS.

xxi

CHAPTER LXXXVIII.

Euboic and Olynthian Wars.

	Page
Change of sentiments at Olynthus—the Olynthians afraid of Philip —they make peace with Athens	446
Unfriendly feelings of Philip towards Olynthus—ripening into war in 350 B.C.	447
Fugitive half-brothers of Philip obtain shelter at Olynthus	449
Intrigues of Philip in Olynthus—his means of corruption and of fomenting intestine discord	ib.
Conquest and destruction of the Olynthian confederate towns by Philip, between 350–347 B.C.—terrible phænomena	452
Philip attacks the Olynthians and Chalkidians—beginning of the Olynthian war—350 B.C.	454
The Olynthians conclude alliance with Athens	455
The Athenians contract alliance with Olynthus—earliest Olynthiac speech of Demosthenes	456
The Second Olynthiac is the earliest—its tone and tenor	457
Disposition to magnify the practical effect of the speeches of De- mosthenes—his true position— \rightarrow he is an opposition speaker	460
Philip continues to press the Olynthian confederacy—increasing danger of Olynthus—fresh applications to Athens	462
Demosthenes delivers another Olynthiac oration—that which stands first in the printed order. Its tenor	463
Just appreciation of the situation by Demosthenes. He approaches the question of the Theoric Fund	466
Assistance sent by Athens to Olynthus. Partial success against Philip	467
Partial and exaggerated confidence at Athens. The Athenians lose sight of the danger of Olynthus. Third Olynthiac of Demo- sthenes	468
Tenor and substance of the third Olynthiac	470
Courage of Demosthenes in combating the prevalent sentiment ...	472
Revolt of Eubœa from Athens	473
Intrigues of Philip in Eubœa	ib.
Plutarch of Eretria asks aid from Athens. Aid is sent to him under Phokion, though Demosthenes dissuades it	474
Treachery of Plutarch—danger of Phokion and the Athenians in Eubœa—victory of Phokion at Tamynæ	476
Dionysiac festival at Athens in March, 349 B.C.—Insult offered to Demosthenes by Meidias	478
Reproaches against Demosthenes for having been absent from the battle of Tamynæ—he goes over on service to Eubœa as a hoplite—he is named senator for 349–348 B.C.	479

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

xxii

CONTENTS.

	Page
Hostilities in Eubœa, during 349–348 B.C.	481
Great efforts of Athens in 349 B.C. for the support of Olynthus and the maintenance of Eubœa at the same time	483
Financial embarrassments of Athens. Motion of Apollodorus about the Theoric Fund. The assembly appropriate the surplus of revenue to military purposes—Apollodorus is indicted and fined	484
The diversion of the Theoric Fund proves the great anxiety of the moment at Athens	486
Three expeditions sent by Athens to Chalkidikê in 349–348 B.C.—according to Philochorus.....	487
Final success of Philip—capture of the Chalkidic towns and of Olynthus	488
Sale of the Olynthian prisoners—ruin of the Greek cities in Chalkidikê.....	489
Cost incurred by Athens in the Olynthian war	491
Theoric Fund—not appropriated to war purposes until a little before the battle of Chæroneia	492
Views respecting the Theoric Fund	ib.
It was the general fund of Athens for religious festivals and worship—distributions were one part of it—character of the ancient religious festivals	493
No other branch of the Athenian peace-establishment was impoverished or sacrificed to the Theoric expenditure	494
The annual surplus might have been accumulated as a war-fund—how far Athens is blameable for not having done so.....	495
Attempt of the Athenian property-classes to get clear of direct taxation by taking from the Theoric Fund.....	496
Conflict of these two feelings at Athens. Demosthenes tries to mediate between them—calls for sacrifices from all, especially personal military service	498
Appendix	499

CHAPTER LXXXIX.

From the Capture of Olynthus to the termination of the Sacred War by Philip.

Sufferings of the Olynthians and Chalkidians—triumph and festival of Philip	505
Effect produced at Athens by the capture of Olynthus—especially by the number of Athenian captives taken in it	507
Energetic language of Eubulus and Æschines against Philip	508
Increased importance of Æschines	ib.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xxiii

	Page
Æschines as envoy of Athens in Arcadia	510
Increasing despondency and desire for peace at Athens	511
Indirect overtures for peace between Athens and Philip, even before the fall of Olynthus—the Eubœans—Phrynon, &c.	512
First proposition of Philokrates—granting permission to Philip to send envoys to Athens	514
Effect produced upon the minds of the Athenians by their num- erous captive citizens taken by Philip at Olynthus	516
Mission of the actor Aristodemus from the Athenians to Philip, on the subject of the captives. Favourable dispositions reported from Philip	518
Course of the Sacred War—gradual decline and impoverishment of the Phokians. Dissensions among themselves.....	519
Party opposed to Phalækus in Phokis—Phalækus is deposed—he continues to hold Thermopylæ with the mercenaries	520
The Thebans invoke the aid of Philip to put down the Phokians..	ib.
Alarm among the Phokians—one of the Phokian parties invites the Athenians to occupy Thermopylæ—Phalækus repels them ..	521
Increased embarrassment at Athens—uncertainty about Phalækus and the pass of Thermopylæ	523
The defence of Greece now turned on Thermopylæ—importance of that pass both to Philip and to Athens	524
Motion of Philokrates in the Athenian assembly—to send envoys to Philip for peace	526
Ten Athenian envoys sent—Demosthenes and Æschines among them	527
Journey of the envoys to Pella	528
Statements of Æschines about the conduct of Demosthenes—ar- rangements of the envoys for speaking before Philip	529
Harangue addressed by Æschines to Philip about Amphipolis. Failure of Demosthenes in his speech	530
Answer of Philip—return of the envoys.....	ib.
Review of Æschines and his conduct, as stated by himself	532
Philip offers peace on the terms of uti possidetis —report made by the Athenian envoys on their return	534
Proceedings in the Athenian assembly after the return of the envoys—motions of Demosthenes	536
Arrival of the Macedonian envoys at Athens—days fixed for dis- cussing the peace	537
Resolution taken by the synod of allies at Athens	538
Assemblies held to discuss the peace, in presence of the Macedo- nian envoys	541
Philokrates moves to conclude peace and alliance with Philip. He proposes to exclude the Phokians specially	542

	Page
Part taken by Æschines and Demosthenes—in reference to this motion. Contradictions between them.....	542
Æschines supported the motion of Philokrates altogether—Demosthenes supported it also, except as to the exclusion of the Phokians—language of Eubulus.....	546
Motion of Philokrates carried in the assembly, for peace and alliance with Philip.....	547
Assembly to provide ratification and swearing of the treaty.....	549
Question, Who were to be received as allies of Athens?—about the Phokians and Kersobleptes.....	ib.
The envoy of Kersobleptes is admitted, both by the Athenian assembly and by the Macedonian envoys.....	550
The Macedonian envoys formally refuse to admit the Phokians ...	551
Difficulty of Philokrates and Æschines. Their false assurances about the secret good intentions of Philip towards the Phokians.....	ib.
The Phokians are tacitly excluded—the Athenians and their allies swear to the peace without them.....	552
Ruinous mistake—false step of Athens in abandoning the Phokians—Demosthenes did not protest against it at the time.....	553
The oaths are taken before Antipater, leaving out the Phokians ...	555
Second embassy from Athens to Philip.....	556
Demosthenes urges the envoys to go immediately to Thrace in order to administer the oath to Philip—they refuse—their delay on the journey and at Pella.....	558
Philip completes his conquest of Thrace during the interval.....	559
Embassies from many Grecian states at Pella.....	560
Consultations and dissensions among the Ten Athenian envoys—views taken by Æschines of the ambassadorial duties.....	561
The envoys address Philip—harangue of Æschines.....	ib.
Position of Demosthenes in this second embassy.....	563
March of Philip to Thermopylæ—he masks his purposes, holding out delusive hopes to the Phokians. Intrigues to gain his favour.....	564
The envoys administer the oaths to Philip at Pheræ, the last thing before their departure. They return to Athens.....	567
Plans of Philip on Thermopylæ—corrupt connivance of the Athenian envoys—letter from Philip which they brought back to Athens.....	568
Æschines and the envoys proclaim the Phokians to be excluded from the oaths with Philip—protest of Demosthenes in the Senate, on arriving at Athens, against the behaviour of his colleagues—vote of the Senate approving his protest.....	569
Public assembly at Athens—successful address made to it by Æschines—his false assurances to the people.....	571

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xxv

	Page
The Athenian people believe the promises of Philokrates and Æschines—protest of Demosthenes not listened to	574
Letter of Philip favourably received by the assembly—motion of Philokrates carried, decreeing peace and alliance with him for ever. Resolution to compel the Phokians to give up Delphi ...	575
Letters of Philip to the Athenians, inviting them to send forces to join him at Thermopylæ—policy of these letters—the Athenians do nothing	576
Phokian envoys heard these debates at Athens—position of Phalækus at Thermopylæ	578
Dependence of the Phokians upon Athenian aid to hold Thermopylæ	579
News received at Thermopylæ of the determination of Athens against the Phokians	581
Phalækus surrenders Thermopylæ under convention to Philip. He withdraws all his forces	582
All the towns in Phokis surrender at discretion to Philip, who declares his full concurrence with the Thebans	ib.
Third embassy sent by the Athenians to Philip—the envoys return without seeing him, on hearing of the Phokian convention	583
Alarm and displeasure at Athens—motion of Kallisthenes for putting the city in a good state of defence	584
Æschines and other Athenian envoys visit Philip in Phokis—triumphant celebration of Philip's success	585
Fair professions of Philip to the Athenians, after his conquest of Thermopylæ: language of his partisans at Athens	586
The Amphiktyonic assembly is convoked anew. Rigorous sentence against the Phokians. They are excluded from the assembly, and Philip is admitted in their place	588
Ruin and wretchedness of the Phokians	589
Irresistible ascendancy of Philip. He is named by the Amphiktyons presiding celebrator of the Pythian festival of 346 B.C.	591
Great change effected by this peace in Grecian political relations...	593
Demosthenes and Æschines—proof of dishonesty and fraud in Æschines, even from his own admissions	ib.
This disgraceful peace was brought upon Athens by the corruption of her own envoys	597
Impeachment and condemnation of Philokrates	598
Miserable death of all concerned in the spoliation of the Delphian temple	599

CHAPTER XC.

From the Peace of 346 B.C., to the Battle of Chæroneia and the Death of Philip.

	Page
Position of Philip after the conclusion of the Sacred War	601
Sentiments of Demosthenes—he recommends acquiescence in the peace, and recognition of the new Amphiktyonic dignity of Philip	602
Sentiments of Isokrates—his letter to Philip—his abnegation of free Hellenism	603
Position of the Persian king Ochus—his measures against revolters in Phenicia and Egypt	605
Reconquest of Phenicia by Ochus—perfidy of the Sidonian prince Tennes	606
Reconquest of Egypt by the Persian force under Mentor and Bagôas	608
Power of Mentor as Persian viceroy of the Asiatic coast—he seizes Hermeias of Atarneus	609
Peace between Philip and the Athenians, continued without formal renunciation from 346–340 B.C.	611
Movements and intrigues of Philip everywhere throughout Greece	612
Disunion of the Grecian world—no Grecian city recognised as leader	614
Vigilance and renewed warnings of Demosthenes against Philip ... ib.
Mission of Python to Athens by Philip—amendments proposed in the recent peace—fruitless discussions upon them	616
Dispute about Halonnesus	618
The Athenians refuse to accept cession of Halonnesus as a favour, claiming restitution of it as their right	619
Halonnesus taken and retaken—reprisals between Philip and the Athenians	620
Movements of the philippising factions at Megara—at Oreus—at Eretria	621
Philip in Thrace—disputes about the Bosphorus and Hellespont—Dioppeithes commander for Athens in the Chersonese. Philip takes part with the Kardians against Athens. Hostile collisions and complaints against Dioppeithes	623
Accusations against Dioppeithes at Athens by the philippising orators—Demosthenes defends him—speech on the Chersonese, and third Philippic	624
Increased influence of Demosthenes at Athens—Athenian expedition sent, upon his motion, to Eubœa.—Oreus and Eretria are liberated, and Eubœa is detached from Philip	625

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xxvii

Page

Mission of Demosthenes to the Chersonese and Byzantium—his important services in detaching the Byzantines from Philip, and bringing them into alliance with Athens.....	627
Philip commences the siege of Perinthus—he marches through the Chersonesus—declaration of war by Athens against him	629
Manifesto of Philip, declaring war against Athens.....	630
Complaints of Philip against the Athenians—his policy towards Athens—his lecture on the advantages of peace.....	633
Open war between Philip and the Athenians	634
Siege of Perinthus by Philip. His numerous engines for siege—great scale of operations. Obstinacy of the defence. The town is relieved by the Byzantines, and by Grecian mercenaries from the Persian satraps	ib.
Philip attacks Byzantium—danger of the place—it is relieved by the fleets of Athens, Chios, Rhodes, &c. Success of the Athenian fleet in the Propontis under Phokion. Philip abandons the sieges both of Perinthus and Byzantium	636
Votes of thanks from Byzantium and the Chersonesus to Athens for her aid—honours and compliments to Demosthenes	637
Philip withdraws from Byzantium, concludes peace with the Byzantines, Chians and others, and attacks the Scythians. He is defeated by the Triballi, and wounded, on his return	638
Important reform effected by Demosthenes in the administration of the Athenian marine.....	639
Abuses which had crept into the trierarchy—unfair apportionment of the burthen—undue exemption which the rich administrators had acquired for themselves	640
Individual hardship, and bad public consequences, occasioned by these inequalities	641
Opposition offered by the rich citizens and by Æschines to the proposed reform of Demosthenes—difficulties which he had to overcome	643
His new reform distributes the burthen of trierarchy equitably ...	ib.
Its complete success. Improved efficiency of the naval armaments under it	645
New Sacred War commences in Greece	646
Kirra and its plain near Delphi consecrated to Apollo, in the first Sacred War under Solon	ib.
Necessity of a port at Kirra, for the convenience of visitors to Delphi. Kirra grows up again, and comes into the occupation of the Lokrians of Amphissa	648
Relations between the Lokrians of Amphissa and Delphi—they had stood forward earnestly in the former Sacred War to defend Delphi against the Phokians	649

	Page
Amphiktyonic meeting at Delphi—February 339 B.C. Æschines one of the legates from Athens	650
Language of an Amphissian speaker among the Amphiktyons against Athens—new dedication of an old Athenian donative in the temple	ib.
Speech of Æschines in the Amphiktyonic assembly	652
Passion and tumult excited by his speech	654
Violent resolution adopted by the Amphiktyons	655
The Amphiktyons with the Delphian multitude march down to destroy Kirrha—interference of the Amphissians to rescue their property. They drive off the Amphiktyons	656
Farther resolution taken by the Amphiktyons to hold a future special meeting and take measures for punishing the Lokrians...	658
Unjust violence of the Amphiktyons—public mischief done by Æschines	ib.
Effect of the proceeding of Æschines at Athens. Opposition of Demosthenes, at first fruitless	660
Change of feeling at Athens—the Athenians resolve to take no part in the Amphiktyonic proceedings against Amphissa	661
Special meeting of the Amphiktyons at Thermopylæ, held without Athens. Vote passed to levy a force for punishing Amphissa. Kottyphus president	663
The Amphiktyons invoke the intervention of Philip	664
Motives which dictated the vote—dependence of most of the Am- phiktyonic voters upon Philip	666
Philip accepts the command—marches southward through Thermo- pylæ	667
Philip enters Phokis—he suddenly occupies, and begins to re-fortify, Elateia	ib.
He sends an embassy to Thebes, announcing his intention to attack Attica, and asking either aid, or a free passage for his own army	668
Unfriendly relations subsisting between Athens and Thebes. Hopes of Philip that Thebes would act in concert with him against Athens	669
Great alarm at Athens, when the news arrived that Philip was fortifying Elateia	670
Athenian public assembly held—general anxiety and silence—no one will speak but Demosthenes	671
Advice of Demosthenes to despatch an embassy immediately to Thebes, and to offer alliance on the most liberal terms	672
The advice of Demosthenes is adopted—he is despatched with other envoys to Thebes	673
Divided state of feeling at Thebes—influence of the philippising party—effect produced by the Macedonian envoys	676

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xxix

	Page
Efficient and successful oratory of Demosthenes—he persuades the Thebans to contract alliance with Athens against Philip	677
The Athenian army marches by invitation to Thebes—cordial co-operation of the Thebans and Athenians	678
Vigorous resolutions taken at Athens—continuance of the new docks suspended—the Theoric Fund is devoted to military purposes.....	679
Disappointment of Philip—he remains in Phokis, and writes to his Peloponnesian allies to come and join him against Amphissa ...	680
War of the Athenians and Thebans against Philip in Phokis—they gain some advantages over him—honours paid to Demosthenes at Athens	681
The Athenians and Thebans reconstitute the Phokians and their towns	ib.
War against Philip in Phokis—great influence of Demosthenes—auxiliaries which he procured	683
Increased efforts of Philip in Phokis	685
Successes of Philip—he defeats a large body of mercenary troops—he takes Amphissa	686
No eminent general on the side of the Greeks—Demosthenes keeps up the spirits of the allies, and holds them together	687
Battle of Chæroneia—complete victory of Philip	690
Macedonian phalanx—its long pikes—superior in front charge to the Grecian hoplites	691
Excellent organization of the Macedonian army by Philip—different sorts of force combined.....	692
Loss at the battle of Chæroneia	ib.
Distress and alarm at Athens on the news of the defeat	693
Resolutions taken at Athens for energetic defence. Respect and confidence shown to Demosthenes	694
Effect produced upon some of the islanders in the Ægean by the defeat—conduct of the Rhodians.....	696
Conduct of Philip after the victory—harshness towards Thebes—greater lenity to Athens	697
Conduct of Æschines—Demades is sent as envoy to Philip.....	698
Peace of Demades, concluded between Philip and the Athenians. The Athenians are compelled to recognise him as chief of the Hellenic world	700
Remarks of Polybius on the Demadean peace—means of resistance still possessed by Athens	701
Honorary votes passed at Athens to Philip	702
Impeachment brought against Demosthenes at Athens—the Athenians stand by him	703
Expedition of Philip into Peloponnesus. He invades Laconia ...	704

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-00960-7 - A History of Greece, Volume 11

George Grote

Table of Contents

More information

xxx

CONTENTS.

	Page
Congress held at Corinth. Philip is chosen chief of the Greeks against Persia	706
Mortification to Athenian feelings—degraded position of Athens and of Greece. No genuine feeling in Greece now, towards war against Persia	706
Preparations of Philip for the invasion of Persia	707
Philip repudiates Olympias at the instance of his recently married wife, Kleopatra—resentment of Olympias and Alexander—dissension at court.....	708
Great festival in Macedonia—celebrating the birth of a son to Philip by Kleopatra, and the marriage of his daughter with Alexander of Epirus	709
Pausanias—outrage inflicted upon him—his resentment against Philip, encouraged by the partisans of Olympias and Alexander	711
Assassination of Philip by Pausanias, who is slain by the guards	712
Accomplices of Pausanias.....	713
Alexander the Great is declared king—first notice given to him by the Lynkestian Alexander, one of the conspirators—Attalus and queen Kleopatra, with her infant son, are put to death.....	714
Satisfaction manifested by Olympias at the death of Philip	716
Character of Philip	ib.