

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-01426-7 - Travels on Horseback in Mantchu Tartary: Being a Summer's Ride
Beyond the Great Wall of China

George Fleming

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

Summer at Tien-tsin — Extremes of Temperature in North China — Ask Leave to Travel in the Country — Difficulty of obtaining Permission — Our Passports — Official and Non-Official — Our travelling Equipment and 'Mount' — Dislike of Chinese Interpreters to Travel, and our Juvenile Bargain PAGE 1

CHAPTER II.

Fugitive Sinologues — 'Have Whilo' — Start without Interpreters — Our Chinese Groom — The 'Heavenly Ford' — Its Streets, Shops, and People — The Peiho — A melting Sentry — The open Plain — Our First Attempt at the Flowery Language — 'Pigeon English' — Sight of the Western Mountains — The Village of Te-tau and its Inn — A Restless Night and a Mosquito Entertainment 14

CHAPTER III.

Story of the General Choo 38

CHAPTER IV.

Long Bills — Mosquito Tactics — Raised Villages and lonely Country — A watery District — Military Station — Chinese Soldiers, their Qualities and Traditions — Endurance of Pain — The Number-one Doctor — Ma-yuen, a Chinese Warrior — Discipline, Fidelity, Cruelty towards Prisoners — Death before Dishonour — The Aversion of the People to bear Arms — Imperial Armies — Military Institutions — Our Co-travellers — Great Thirst — Heads of the People — Beggardom — Heartless Pilferers . . . 49

CHAPTER V.

The Hundred-spirited Bird — Ancient Rustic — Inexpensive Costumes — The Inn at Che-tur — Mid-day Halt — Tartar Ponies — Superiority of Mules — Mandarin's travelling Equipage and Escort — Non-observance of Sunday in China — The Western Mountains 73

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-01426-7 - Travels on Horseback in Mantchu Tartary: Being a Summer's Ride
Beyond the Great Wall of China

George Fleming

Table of Contents

More information

x

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER VII.

Village of Tchung-wah-kow — River Pektang — Unpleasant Reminiscences
— A Disagreeable Immersion — Adventures of a Night — A Dreadful Dormitory — Hard Times — Town of Qui-toosa — Inn at Fung-tai — Bad Accommodation — Fellow-Lodger's excessive Curiosity — Refreshing
Sleep PAGE 89

CHAPTER VIII.

The Town of Fung-tai — An improving Country, and the Thrift of its Inhabitants — Its Agriculture — Recollections of Home — Grain-fields —
Gardens — Agricultural Industry — The Grave-yards — Wayside Wells
— The Village Patriarchs — The Hamlet of Hanchung — Our Reception
— 'Men of the Great English Nation' — Autograph-hunters — Faninscribing 103

CHAPTER IX.

Cultivation of Indigo — Bed of the Tau-hô — Manufacture of Pottery —
A Chinese Doctor — An Orator — New Door-fastening — Efficacy of Flagellation — A Row — Bad Water and worse Tea — Repulsive mode of serving up Poultry — Chinese Minstrel — Recollections of Celtic Music
— Chinese Singing — Native Fiddle 119

CHAPTER X.

An Uncivil and Extortionate Landlord — A Row — Presents — Advantages of being without an Interpreter — Ill-feeling between Northern and Southern Chinese — Peking and Canton Coolies — Three Roads — The Happy Medium — Market-day at Coo Yuh — Butcher's Meat — Pork —
Cattle — Lively Road — Family Groups — A Tien-tsin Merchant — Poverty in a Sandy Region — Respectful Recognition — Birds — 'The Bird of Joy,' and its Tradition 137

CHAPTER XI.

The Town of Lanchow — A Natural-footed Beauty — Native Merchant —
Eating-Houses — The Lan-hô — An Arcadia — Beautiful Landscape —
Travelling Soldiers — Greedy Boatmen — A Beau Sabreur — His friendly
Interposition — The Snug Inn at Shih Mun — North China Dwellings, and their Peculiarities — Gardens — Stone and Brick — Absence of Monuments and Paucity of Sculpture 158

CHAPTER XII.

Superstitious Fancies — The Horse-shoe — Words of Good Omen — Chinese
Lares and Penates — Household Furniture — Use of the Kang — Hot

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-01426-7 - Travels on Horseback in Mantchu Tartary: Being a Summer's Ride
Beyond the Great Wall of China

George Fleming

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xi

Air — The Domestic Hearth — Preference for an English Fireside — A Chinese Armoury—Use of the Bow—Muscular Development—Throwing the Stone — A Pleasant Reflection — Chinese Respect for Age — A Night Storm — Our Arms PAGE 187

CHAPTER XIII.

A miserable Morning — A Rainy Day in China — Glimpses of Sunshine — A Thunderstorm and a thorough Soaking — Chinese Thoroughfares after heavy Showers — Being Half Drowned — Bad Roads — Management of Animals by the Chinese — Chang-le-tow — Its Defences — Hostile Preparations — Roadside Scenery — The lost Cart — Chinese Sign-board for an Inn 209

CHAPTER XIV.

Old-fashioned Town — Mutilated Feet of Chinese Women — An Inspection and its Result — The Deformity considered a Proof of Gentility — Chinese Dogs — Town Scavengers — Losing our Way — Change in Costume — Comfortable Dress — Warm Clothing — Enormous Boots — A Chinaman's Wardrobe — Chinese Pigs and their Treatment — Singular Delicacies — A suspicious Inn, and its Occupants — The Opium-smoker — Use of that Drug — Its Effects exaggerated 227

CHAPTER XV.

Early Rising in Chinese Inns — The Ferry at the Yang-hô — The travelled Florin — Flooded Roads — Fear and Curiosity — Travellers on the Highway — Tubercles of the Water-lily, and its Uses — Arrowwort — A Marshy Region under Cultivation — A Chinese Albino 262

CHAPTER XVI.

Bird Slaughtering — Water Fowl — Masked Batteries — Gathering the Nelembium Root — Fishing — Roadside Sanctuaries — The Sea — Sand-hills — Midday Inn — First Peep of the Great Wall — Village Urchins — 'No Tails' — A Female Equestrian — The Gathering at Shan-hai Kwan — An Inhospitable Hostelry — The Value of our Passports — Sorry Quarters 274

CHAPTER XVII.

The Spy System — The Police — The Frontier Guard-room — A Polite Old Soldier — French Polish at the Great Wall — The Thumb-mometer — Official Objections to our ascending the Mountains — A Conference — Woo-shi — A sultry Morning — I attempt the Ascent alone — Staveley Peak — Taking Bearings — The End of the Great Wall — Its Present Condition and Wonderful Course — Accounts of Travellers — A vast Conception and a Monument of Industry 312

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-01426-7 - Travels on Horseback in Mantchu Tartary: Being a Summer's Ride
Beyond the Great Wall of China

George Fleming

Table of Contents

More information

xii

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER XVIII.

History of the Great Wall of China — Its Character as a worthy National Trophy compared with some other Works of Antiquity—A hot Descent and a lost Outlet — Fearful Midday Heat — Impending Sunstroke and its Sensations — A hard Day's Struggle — Merciful Fountains — A happy Resurrection and friendly Peasantry PAGE 335

CHAPTER XIX.

Accommodation Gratis—Leaving the City— Chinese Civility — Good-bye to the Hill-sea-barrier — The Punishment of the Cangue — The Koreans, Japanese, and Chinese — Our Consort — Beyond the Great Wall — Coast Line of Defence and Probable History — Grand View of the Wall — Father Verbiest — Hunting with Hawk and Hound — Hun-chow — A Tartar Caravansary — Rustic Theatres — Roadside Companions — The Village Blacksmith — The Shoeing Smith and Farrier 370

CHAPTER XX.

Pastoral Life — Industry — Yellow-skinned Vulcans—M. Abel Rémusat on the Influence of Asiatic Ingenuity on the Nations of the West—Horse-shoeing in China—Farrier's Instruments — The Chinese Veterinary Surgeon — Horse-flesh — Chung-hue-soh 392

CHAPTER XXI.

Sunday Morning — Lonely Scenery — Beggars — Ruins of Ning Yuen Chow — Grain Wagons — Manchurian Lí — Stupidity of the Country People — Shin Shan — A Pastoral Picture — Convoy of Cattle — The Flocks — Pack Saddle Transport — The Approach to Kin Chow — Kin Chow — The Market-place — Meat and Fruit — Good Humour of the Chinese . . . 410

CHAPTER XXII.

Rabid Curiosity — Filthy Habits of the People — Their Indifference to the Properties of Soap and Water — She-tsou-tang at Tien-tsin — Steaming Chinese — Cost of Vapour Bath — Physical Superiority of the Men of North China — Good Service — Ignorance of the Great English Nation — Cultivation of Tobacco — Wells of Ta-ling — Mantchu Horses — Suspicious Characters 426

CHAPTER XXIII.

Early Hours — Granite Houses — Carriers' Carts — Fear of Highwaymen — Marshy Country — Salt Manufactories at Ten-sha-hor — A Funeral Party — North China Song-birds — Their Capture, Treatment, and Qualities — Trained Falcons for Bird-catching — The Pe-ling — The Wha-mi — A Fixture and its Consequences 448

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-01426-7 - Travels on Horseback in Mantchu Tartary: Being a Summer's Ride
Beyond the Great Wall of China

George Fleming

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xiii

CHAPTER XXIV.

Pastoral Country — 'Koong-shi' — Farm-houses — Profitable Employment of Sewage — Ignorance of Dairy Produce — Humble Dormitory — A Young Mandarin — Banks of the Liau-hô — Boat Voyage — Arrival at Newchwang — An unfriendly Reception — Inhospitable Landlord . PAGE 463

CHAPTER XXV.

A welcome Halt — Approach to the New British Settlement at Ying-tsze — Mr. Meadows the English Consul — Enjoyment of English Comforts — Shock of an Earthquake — Sentiments of a Comprador respecting the unprofitableness of British Travellers — Trade at the New Port — Character of the People of this portion of China — Native Ships — New Passports 480

CHAPTER XXVI.

Our New Attendants — Precautions — Indisposition — Newchwang again — Our Conductors — 'Tea is not Tea, and Rice is not Rice' — A 'Sovereign' Remedy — The Village School-room — Shu Shan — The Mountains — A distant View of Liau Yang — Orchards — Harvest-time — Disagreeable Spectators — The City of Liau Yang in the Early Morning — Tradesmen and Mechanics — Northern and Southern Pagodas — The Taitse-hô — The Liau — Highways — The People 493

CHAPTER XXVII.

Elevation of the Land — Town of Pay-ta-pu — Games of Chance — The Huin-hô — Curious Monument and Llama Priests — Suburbs of Moukden — The Police and their Commander — Clearing the Way — The Streets and Trades and the Crowd — A Fat Boniface — Condition of the Capital — Tartar Traces — A Bird's-eye View 516

CHAPTER XXVIII.

History of Moukden — Account of it by Father Verbiest — Kien-lung's Eulogium of the Tartar Capital — The Pen and the Ke — Popular Excitement at our Appearance — A Moukden Merchant — The Tartars at a Discount — Our Visit to the Palace prevented — The Water-gun — Lower Temperature at Moukden — Chinese Artist — Return Journey — Lord John Hay — Doing the Dragons — On Board the 'Odin' — Revisiting the Wall 536

CHAPTER XXIX.

A Brief Narrative of a Journey beyond Peking, to the Coal-mines . . . 557