

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

OF

THE THIRD VOLUME.

BOOK II.

MARIE DE MEDICIS AS REGENT.

[Continued.]

CHAPTER IX.

[1617.]

The royal forces march against the insurgent princes—Indignities offered to the young sovereign—Louis XIII. and his favourite — Arrogance of the Maréchal d'Ancre — Indignation of the King — Confiscation of the property of the rebel princes — Household of Louis XIII.—Cabal of de Luynes—Infatuation of the Maréchal d'Ancre — An evil counsellor — Marie de Medicis resolves to withdraw from the government, but is dissuaded from her purpose—Popular discontent—Precautions of Concini—Alarm of Louis XIII.—The Duke de Nevers is declared guilty of lèse-majesté—Firmness of the Queen-mother — Insolence of Concini and Richelieu—Condé is refused permission to justify himself — Success of the royal forces — Louis XIII. consents to the arrest of the Maréchal d'Ancre—Bassompierre warns Marie de Medicis of her danger—She disregards the warning—Concini and Leonora prepare to leave France—Old grievances renewed—A diplomatic Janus—Blindness of Marie and her ministers—A new conspirator—How to b 2

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

vi

CONTENTS.

be made a marshal—Incaution of de Luynes—Treachery of Richelieu—A narrow escape—A morning mass—Singular position of the court—Assassination of Concini—Public rejoicings—Imprisonment of the Queen-mother—Barbin is sent to the Bastille—The seals are restored to du Vair—A royal reception—Anguish of Marie de Medicis—She demands to see the King, and is refused—Her isolation—A Queen and her favourite—A mother and her son—Arrest of Madame d'Ancre—The crown jewels—Political pillage—The maréchale in the Bastille 3

CHAPTER X.

[1617.]

The Count de la Péna—Anne of Austria and the orphan—Popular atrocities—The wages of crime—Submission of the Duke de Mayenne—Suspension of hostilities—The great nobles return to the capital—Louis refuses to be reconciled with his mother—Insolence of Vitry—Generosity of the Duke de Rohan—Marie de Medicis resolves to retire from the court—Richelieu offers to share her exile—He becomes the secret emissary of de Luynes—Gratitude of the deluded Queen—A parting interview—Marie de Medicis proceeds to Blois—Destitution of the Maréchale d'Ancre—Her despair—Royal recreations—A fatal parallel—Madame de Condé requests permission to share the captivity of her husband—Trial of Madame d'Ancre—Her execution—Cupidity of de Luynes—Justice of the Grand-Duke of Tuscany—Death of the President de Thou—Marriage of de Luynes with Mademoiselle de Montbazou—De Luynes is created duke and peer—Death of M. de Villeroy—Recal of the old ministers—Policy of de Luynes—His suspicion—His ambition—De Luynes lodges his brothers in the Louvre—The sign of “The Three Kings”—Louis resolves to re-establish the Roman religion in Bearn, and to annex that principality to the crown of France—Meeting of the Notables at Rouen—The French march to the support of the Duke of Savoy 55

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

vii

BOOK III.

MARIE DE MEDICIS AS EXILE.

CHAPTER I.

[1618.]

De Luynes resolves to compel the Queen-mother to remain at Blois—Treachery of Richelieu—The suspicions of Marie are aroused—Her apprehensions—She demands permission to remove to Monceaux, and is refused—She affects to resign herself to her fate—A royal correspondence—Vanity of the Duke d'Epemon—A court broil—The Abbé Rucellai offers his services to Marie de Medicis—He attempts to win over the great nobles to her cause—He is compelled to quit the court, and retires to Sedan—The Duke de Bouillon refuses to join the cabal—The Duke d'Epemon consents to aid the escape of the Queen-mother—The ministers become suspicious of the designs of Richelieu—He is ordered to retire to Coussay, and subsequently to Avignon—Tyranny of M. de Roissy—The Queen-mother resolves to demand a public trial—De Luynes affects to seek a reconciliation with the Prince de Condé—Firmness of the Queen-mother—The three Jesuits—Marie pledges herself not to leave Blois without the sanction of the King—False confidence of de Luynes—The malcontents are brought to trial—Weakness of the ministers—Political executions—Indignation of the people—The princes resolve to liberate the Queen-mother 93

CHAPTER II.

[1619.]

The Duke d'Epemon leaves Metz—A traitor—A minister at fault—The Duke de Bellegarde offers an asylum to the Queen-mother—Marie de Medicis escapes from Blois—Is conducted by M. d'Epemon to Angoulême—Gaieties of the capital—Marriage of the Princess Christine and Mademoiselle de Vendôme—Louis XIII. is apprised of the escape of the Queen—Alarm of the King—Advice of de Luynes—The

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

viii

CONTENTS.

council resolve to dispatch a body of troops under M. de Mayenne to remove Marie de Medicis from the keeping of the Duke d'Epéron—Discontent of the citizens—Louis XIII. enters into a negociation with his mother—She rejects his conditions—Richelieu offers himself as a mediator, and is accepted—The royal forces march on Angoulême—Marie prepares for resistance—The princes withdraw from her cause—Schomberg proposes to blow up the powder-magazine at Angoulême—Critical position of the Queen-mother—She appeals to the Protestants, but is repulsed—Schomberg takes up arms against the Duke d'Epéron—Alarm of Marie de Medicis—Richelieu proceeds to Angoulême—He regains the confidence of the Queen—Successful intrigue of Richelieu—Marie is deserted by several of her friends—A treaty of peace is concluded between the King and his mother—The envoy of Marie incurs the displeasure of Louis XIII.—The malcontents rally round the Queen-mother—The Prince of Piedmont visit Marie at Angoulême—Their reception—Magnificence of the Duke d'Epéron—The Queen-mother refuses to quit Angoulême—Ambition of Richelieu—Weakness of Marie de Medicis—Father Joseph endeavours to induce the Queen-mother to return to the court—She is encouraged in her refusal by Richelieu—The rival queens—Marie leaves Angoulême—Her parting with the Duke d'Epéron—She is received at Poitiers by the Cardinal de Retz and the Duke de Luynes—The Prince de Condé offers the hand of his sister Eleonore de Bourbon to the brother of de Luynes as the price of his liberation—The sword of the Prince is restored to him—Duplicity of the favourite—Marie resolves to return to Angoulême, but is dissuaded by her friends—The Duke de Mayenne espouses the cause of the Queen-mother—A royal meeting—Return of the court to Tours—Marie proceeds to Chinon, and thence to Angers—The Protestants welcome the Queen-mother to Anjou—Alarm of de Luynes—Liberation of the Prince de Condé—Indignation of Marie de Medicis—Policy of Richelieu—De Luynes solicits the return of the Queen-mother to the capital—She refuses to comply—De Luynes is made Governor of Picardy—His brothers are ennobled. 121

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

ix

CHAPTER III.

[1620.]

Louis XIII. creates several Knights of the Holy Ghost without reference to the wishes of his mother—Indignation of Marie de Medicis—Policy of de Luynes—Richelieu aspires to the cardinalate—A court quarrel—The Countess de Soissons conspires to strengthen the party of the Queen-mother—Several of the great princes proceed to Angers to urge Marie to take up arms—Alarm of the favourite—He seeks to propitiate the Duke de Guise—The double marriage—Caustic reply of the Duke de Guise—Royal alliances—An ex-Regent and a new-made duke—The Queen-mother is threatened with hostilities should she refuse to return immediately to the capital—She remains inflexible—Condé advises the King to compel her obedience—De Luynes enters into a negotiation with Marie—An unskilful envoy—Louis XIII. joins his army in Normandy—Alarm of the rebel princes—They lay down their arms, and the King marches upon the Loire—The Queen-mother prepares to oppose him—She garrisons Angers—The Duke de Mayenne urges her to retire to Guienne—She refuses—Treachery of Richelieu—League between Richelieu and de Luynes—Marie de Medicis negotiates with the King—Louis declines her conditions—The defeat at Pont de Cé—Submission of the Queen-mother—A royal interview—Courtly duplicity—Marie retires to Chinon—The Dukes of Mayenne and Epernon lay down their arms—The court assemble at Poitiers to meet the Queen-mother—Louis proceeds to Guienne, and Marie de Medicis to Fontainebleau—The King compels the resumption of the Romish faith in Bearn—The court return to Paris 163

CHAPTER IV.

[1621—24.]

Attempt to secure a cardinal's hat for Richelieu frustrated by de Luynes—Death of Philip III. of Spain—De Luynes is created

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

x

CONTENTS.

Constable of France—Discontent of the great nobles—Disgust of the Maréchal de Lesdiguières—The Protestants of Bearn rise against their oppressors—The royal troops march against them—They are worsted, and despoiled of their fortified places—The King becomes jealous of his favourite—"Le Roi Luynes"—Domestic dissensions—The favourite is threatened with disgrace—Cruelty of Louis XIII.—Death of de Luynes—Louis determines to exterminate the Protestants—A struggle for power—Prudence of Bassompierre—Condé encourages the design of the King—The old ministers are recalled—They join with the Queen-mother in her attempt to conclude a peace with the reformed party—Marie de Medicis solicits a share in the government—The King complies, but refuses to sanction the admission of Richelieu to the council—The Duchess de Luynes and Anne of Austria—Frustrated hopes—Condé aspires to the French throne—Louis XIII. leaves the capital by stealth in order to join the army at Nantes—The Queen-mother prepares to follow him, but is overtaken by illness—Ruthless persecution of the Protestants—Siege of La Rochelle—Venality of the Protestant leaders—Indignation of the Catholic nobles—Resistance of the citizens of Montpellier—Military incapacity of Condé—The Duke de Rohan negotiates a peace, and Condé retires to Rome—Montpellier opens its gates to the King—Bad faith of Louis XIII.—Triumphal entry of the King at Lyons—Marriage of the Marquis de la Valette and Mademoiselle de Verneuil—Richelieu is created a Cardinal—Exultation of the Queen-mother—Death of the President Jeannin—Prospects of Richelieu—His duplicity—Misplaced confidence of Marie de Medicis—Louis XIII. returns to Paris—Change in the ministry—Anne of Austria and the Prince of Wales—The Queen-mother and her faction endeavour to accomplish the ruin of the chancellor, and succeed—Richelieu is admitted to the council—Indignation of Condé—Richelieu becomes all-powerful—His ingratitude to the Queen-mother—The Queen-mother is anxious to effect a matrimonial alliance with England—Richelieu seconds her views—The King of Spain applies for the hand of the Princess Henriette for Dom Carlos—His demand is negatived by the Cardinal-minister

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xi

— Vieuville is dismissed from the ministry — Duplicity of Louis XIII.—Arrest of Vieuville—Change of ministers—Petticoat intrigues — The Duke d'Anjou solicits the hand of Mademoiselle de Montpensier—The alliance is opposed by the Guises and forbidden by the King. 189

CHAPTER V.

[1625—28.]

Death of James I.—The Princess Henriette is married by proxy to Charles I.—The Duke of Buckingham arrives in France to conduct his young sovereign to her new country—An arrogant suitor — Departure of the English queen — Indisposition of Marie de Medicis—Arrival of Henriette in London—Growing power of Richelieu — Suspicions of the Queen-mother — Influence of the Jesuit Berulle over Marie de Medicis — Richelieu urges Monsieur to conclude his marriage with Mademoiselle de Montpensier — Character of Gaston — He refuses to accept the hand of the lady—Arrest of M. d'Ornano — Vengeance of Richelieu—Indignation of Monsieur—Alarm of the Queen-mother—Pusillanimity of Gaston—Arrest of the Vendôme princes—Edicts issued against the great nobles—Sumptuary laws—Execution of the Count de Bouteville—The reign of Richelieu Policy of Marie and her minister—Distrust of the King — Conspiracy against the Cardinal — Richelieu threatens to retire from office—A diplomatic drama—Triumph of the Cardinal — Execution of Chalais — Heartlessness of Gaston—Monsieur consents to an alliance with Mademoiselle de Montpensier—A royal marriage—The victims of Richelieu — Marie de Medicis and the Cardinal endeavour to increase the dissension between Louis XIII. and his Queen—Exile of the Duchess de Chevreuse—Accusation against Anne of Austria — She becomes a state prisoner — Subtlety of Richelieu — Anticipated rupture with England—Embassy of Bassompierre — Death of the Duke de Lesdiguières — Favour of Saint-Simon — Pregnancy of the Duchess of Orleans—Dissolute conduct of Monsieur—Birth of Mademoiselle—Death of Madame—Marie

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

xii

CONTENTS.

de Medicis seeks to effect a marriage between Monsieur and a Florentine princess — Buckingham lands in France, but is repulsed — Illness of Louis XIII. — Disgust of the Duke d'Orleans—Louis wearies of the camp—He is incensed against the Cardinal—The King returns to Paris—Monsieur affects a passion for the Princess Marie de Gonzaga which alarms the sovereign — His distrust of the Queen-mother — Marie de Medicis withdraws her confidence from the Cardinal—Mother and son—Louis returns to La Rochelle—The city capitulates —Triumphal entry of Louis XIII. into Paris—Exhortation of the papal nuncio 233

CHAPTER VI.

[1629.]

Richelieu resolves to undermine the power of Austria—State of Europe — Opposition of the Queen-mother to a new war— Perseverance of the Cardinal — Anne of Austria joins the faction of Marie de Medicis—Gaston is appointed general of the royal army—Richelieu retires from the court—Alarm of Louis XIII.—A King and his minister—Louis leaves Paris for the seat of war—Monsieur is deprived of his command, and retires to Dauphiny—Marie de Gonzaga is sent to the fortress of Vincennes—Monsieur consents to forego his marriage until it shall receive the royal sanction, and the Princess returns to the Louvre—Marie is invested with a partial regency—Forebodings of the Cardinal — Termination of the campaign — Renewed discord—Richelieu becomes jealous of Bassompierre —Louis abandons his army, and is followed by the minister—Counterplots — An offended mistress and an ex-favourite— A hollow peace—Gaston retires to the court of Lorraine, where he becomes enamoured of the Princess Marguerite—The Cardinal invites him to return to Paris—Monsieur accepts the proposed conditions—The French troops march upon Piedmont —Richelieu is appointed lieutenant-general of the royal forces in Italy—The King resolves to follow him—Anxiety of Marie

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xiii

de Medicis to avoid a rupture with Spain — Dissensions between the two queens — Mademoiselle de Hautefort — Failing influence of Marie de Medicis — Self-distrust of the King — The Queen-mother endeavours to effect a reconciliation between her sons 281

CHAPTER VII.

[1630.]

Gaston returns to France — Precarious position of the French armies — Death of the Duke of Savoy — The French besiege Pignerol — Richelieu urges the King to possess himself of the Duchy of Savoy — Marie de Medicis opposes the measure — Louis XIII. overruns Savoy — The French lose Mantua — Jules Mazarin — The King is attacked by fever at Lyons — Moral effects of his indisposition — He consents to dismiss the Cardinal from office — Reconciliation of the royal family — The court return to the capital — Richelieu endeavours to regain the favour of the Queen-mother — Policy of Marie — Richelieu seeks to effect the disgrace of Marillac — The two queens unite their interests — Meeting of the royal brothers — Gaston inveighs bitterly against the Cardinal — The Queen-mother takes up her abode at the Luxembourg — Louis proceeds in state to bid her welcome — Monsieur publicly affronts Richelieu — A treaty is concluded with Italy — Public rejoicings in Paris — Marie dismisses the Cardinal and his relations from her household — A drama at court — Richelieu prepares to leave Paris; but is dissuaded, and follows the King to Versailles — Exultation of the citizens at the anticipated overthrow of the Cardinal-minister — The courtiers crowd the Luxembourg — Bassompierre at fault — Triumph of Richelieu — Hypocrisy of the Cardinal — “The Day of Dupes” — A regal minister — The Marillacs are disgraced — Anne of Austria is suspected of a secret correspondence with Spain — Gaston conspires with the two queens against Richelieu — Divided state of the French court — A fête at the Louvre 311

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

xiv

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER VIII.

[1631.]

Richelieu interdicts all correspondence between Anne of Austria and the King of Spain—The Queen asks permission to retire to Val de Grâce—Her persecution by the Cardinal—Marie de Medicis protects her interests—Monsieur pledges himself to support her cause—Gaston defies the minister—Alarm of Richelieu—He resolves to effect the exile of the Queen-mother—Monsieur quits the capital—Superstition of Marie de Medicis—An unequal struggle—Father Joseph and his patron—The Queen-mother resolves to accompany her son to Italy—Richelieu assures the King that Marie and Gaston have organised a conspiracy against his life—The court proceed to Compiègne—The Queen-mother refuses to retain her seat in the council—Richelieu regains all his influence over the King—Revenge of the Cardinal upon his enemies—Desperate position of Marie de Medicis—Her arrest is determined upon by the council—Louis leaves her a prisoner at Compiègne—Parting interview of the two queens—Indignity offered to Anne of Austria—Death of the Princess de Conti—Indignation of the royal prisoner—A diplomatic correspondence—Two noble gaolers—The royal troops pursue Monsieur—The adherents of Gaston are declared guilty of lèse-majesté—Gaston addresses a declaration to the Parliament—The Queen-mother forwards a similar protest, and then appeals to the people—A paper war—The garrison is withdrawn from Compiègne—Marie resolves to effect her escape to the Low Countries—She is assured of the protection of Spain and Germany—The Queen-mother secretly leaves the fortress—She is betrayed by the Marquis de Vardes, and proceeds with all speed to Hainault, pursued by the royal troops—She is received at Mons by the Archduchess Isabella—Whence she addresses a letter to the King to explain the motives of her evasion—Reply of Louis XIII.—Sympathy of Isabella—The two princesses proceed to Brussels—Triumphal entry of Marie de

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

XV

Medicis into the capital of Flanders—Renewed hopes of the exiled Queen—The Belgian ambassador at the French court—Vindictive counsels of the Cardinal—The property of the Queen-mother and Monsieur is confiscated—They are abandoned by many of their adherents—Richelieu is created a duke—A King and his minister—Marie consents to the marriage of Monsieur with Marguerite of Lorraine—The followers of the Queen-mother and the Duke d'Orleans are tried and condemned—Louis XIII. proceeds to Lorraine to prevent the projected alliance of his brother—Intrigues of Gaston—Philip of Spain refuses to adopt the cause of Marie de Medicis—Marriage of Monsieur and the Princess of Lorraine—The Queen-mother endeavours to negotiate her return to France—Richelieu determines the King not to consent—Charles of Lorraine makes his submission to the French monarch—And signs a compulsory treaty 351

CHAPTER X.

[1632.]

Gaston d'Orleans proceeds to Brussels—His reception—Vanity of Monsieur—Exultation of the Spanish cabinet—Montmorency abandons the interests of Richelieu—Marie de Medicis solicits his support—He consents to second the projects of Monsieur—The Queen-mother and the Duke d'Orleans sell their jewels in order to raise troops for the invasion of France—Trial of the Maréchal de Marillac—Marie and Gaston exert themselves to save his life—He is executed—The adherents of the two royal exiles create dissensions between the mother and son—Gaston joins the Spanish army—Munificence of Isabella—Gaston marches upon Burgundy—Remonstrance of Montmorency—An undigested campaign—Battle of Castelnaudery—Slaughter of the rebel leaders—Cowardice of Monsieur—Montmorency is made prisoner—Gaston endeavours to make terms with the King—He abandons the cause of his mother, and that of his allies—He stipulates for the pardon of Montmorency—Richelieu refuses the condition—The treaty is signed by

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

xvi

CONTENTS.

Monsieur—Jealousy of Louis XIII.—The miniature—Montmorency is conveyed to Toulouse, and put upon his trial—Double-dealing of the Cardinal—Obduracy of the King—Execution of Montmorency—Despair of the Queen-mother—Death of the Countess du Fargis—the Jesuit Chanteloupe and Madame de Comballet—A new conspiracy—The Archduchess Isabella refuses to deliver up the servants of Marie de Medicis—Gaston retires to Burgundy 405

CHAPTER X.

[1633.]

Monsieur returns to Flanders—The Queen-mother retires in displeasure to Malines—Influence of Chanteloupe—Selfishness of Monsieur—Death of Gustavus Adolphus—Richelieu seeks to withdraw the Queen-mother and her son from the protection of Spain—Marie is urged to retire to Florence—The Tuscan envoy—Two diplomatists—Mortification of the Queen-mother—She desires to seek an asylum in England—Charles I. hesitates to grant her request—Helpless position of Marie de Medicis—The iron rule of Richelieu—The Cardinal-dramatist—Gaston avows his marriage to the King—Louis enters Lorraine, and takes Nancy—Madame escapes to the Low Countries—Her reception at the court of Brussels—Marie de Medicis takes up her residence at Ghent—Serious indisposition of the Queen-mother—She solicits the attendance of her physician Vautier, and is refused—Hypocrisy of the Cardinal—Indignation of the dying Queen—She rejects the terms of reconciliation offered by the King—Attachment of her adherents—Richelieu negotiates the return of Gaston to France—The favourite of Monsieur—Gaston refuses to annul his marriage—Alfestion is broken on the wheel for attempting the life of the Cardinal—The Queen-mother is accused of instigating the murder—The body-guard of the Cardinal-minister is increased—Estrangement of Monsieur and his mother—Madame endeavours to effect the dismissal of Puylaurens—Insolence of the favourite—Heartlessness of Monsieur—Marie solicits permis-

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xvii

sion to return to France—She is commanded as a condition to abandon her followers, and refuses—Death of the Archduchess Isabella—Gaston negotiates, and consents to the most humiliating concessions 437

CHAPTER XI.

[1634.]

Increasing trials of the exiled Queen—Her property is seized on the frontier—She determines to conciliate the Cardinal—Richelieu remains implacable—Far-reaching ambition of the minister—Weakness of Louis XIII.—Insidious arguments of Richelieu—Marie de Medicis is again urged to abandon her adherents—Cowardly policy of Monsieur—He signs a treaty with Spain—The Queen-mother refuses to join in the conspiracy—Puylaurens induces Monsieur to accept the proffered terms of Richelieu—He escapes secretly from Brussels—Gaston pledges himself to the King to “love the Cardinal”—Gaston again refuses to repudiate his wife—Puylaurens obtains the hand of a relative of the minister, and becomes Duke of Puylaurens—Monsieur retires to Blois 471

CHAPTER XII.

[1635—38.]

Richelieu resolves to accomplish the disgrace of Puylaurens—Gaston proceeds to Paris during the carnival, and his favourite is arrested in the Louvre—He is conveyed to Vincennes, where he dies—The Queen-mother and Madame take up their abode at Antwerp—Marie de Medicis solicits the protection of the Pope—Her letter is coldly received—She is accused by Richelieu of favouring the Spanish cause—She endeavours to dissuade Louis XIII. from a war with Spain, and her arguments are haughtily repulsed—Her envoy is ordered to quit the capital—The Queen-mother once more appeals to the Sovereign-Pontiff, who declines to excite against himself the enmity of the Cardinal-

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

xviii

CONTENTS.

minister—Louis XIII. pursues the war with Spain—Monsieur and the Count de Soissons enter into a conspiracy to assassinate Richelieu—The Queen-mother joins the faction—The plot is betrayed—Gaston returns to his allegiance—Marie de Medicis induces the Count de Soissons to enter into a treaty with Spain—The intrigue is discovered by the Cardinal—The Queen-mother once more solicits an asylum in England—Charles I. accedes to her request, and endeavours to effect her reconciliation with the French king—Richelieu determines Louis to reply by a refusal—Monsieur abandons his wife, who becomes dependent for her support upon the Spanish government—Insignificance of Gaston—The Duchess of Savoy endeavours to effect the recal of her royal mother to France—The three churchmen—Pregnancy of Anne of Austria—Renewed hopes of the Queen-mother—She is again urged to reside in Tuscany—She proceeds to Holland, and is magnificently received—The Prince of Orange intercedes in her behalf with the French king—Richelieu reiterates his wish that she should retire to Florence—The Dutch request her to leave the country—Marie de Medicis embarks for England—She is received at Gravesend by Charles I.—Takes up her abode in St. James's Palace—Meeting between the two queens—Precarious position of the English king—The court of the Queen-mother—The French ambassador is instructed to abstain from all intercourse with the royal exile—A last appeal—Obduracy of the Cardinal—Richelieu, his sovereign, and his benefactress . . . 495

CHAPTER XIII.

[1639—42.]

Charles I. dispatches an envoy to Louis XIII. to negotiate the recal of the Queen-mother—Richelieu aspires to the regency—The embassy fails—Queen Henrietta resolves to proceed in person to Paris—Her visit is declined by the French king—Charles I. recalls his ambassador from the court of France—The increasing animosity of the English people against the Queen-mother compels her to seek another retreat—She is

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02039-8 - The Life of Marie de Medicis, Queen of France, Volume 3

Julia S. H. Pardoe

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

xix

requested by the Parliament to leave the country—Philip of Spain refuses to afford her an asylum—She proceeds to Holland, and thence to Antwerp—The painter-prince—A voluntary envoy—The last letter—Marie de Medicis is commanded to quit the Low Countries—She takes refuge at Cologne—The last home of fallen royalty—Waning health of Richelieu—His intellectual energy—Trial of the Duke de la Valette—Trial of the Duke de Vendôme—Affected magnanimity of the Cardinal—Senatorial sycophancy—Exile of the Duke and Duchess de Vendôme—Execution of M. de Saint-Preuil—Conspiracy against Richelieu—The stolen meetings—The titled beggar—Secret service—Complicity of Cinq-Mars discovered—Execution of Cinq-Mars and de Thou—Cowardice of the Duke d'Orleans—Lingering hopes of Marie de Medicis—Rubens and Richelieu—The abortive mission—Rubens proceeds to Madrid—The Kings of England and Spain withhold all pecuniary aid from the Queen-mother—Despair of Marie de Medicis—Her utter destitution—Death-bed of a crowned head—Tardy honours—Filial affection and priestly piety—The vaults of St. Denis 527