

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

I N D E X.

- ‘Adam Bede,’ ii. 440, 442.
 ‘Adam Blair,’ ii. 11, 26.
 Agent, literary, Alaric Watts, the first, i. 503.
 ‘Agriculture, Quarterly Journal of,’ the, ii. 19, 84.
 Ainsworth, Harrison, gives a dinner to celebrate the completion of the ‘Tower of London,’ ii. 260—leaves ‘Bentley’s Miscellany,’ 278.
 Aird, Thomas, poetical contributions to ‘Maga,’ i. 310 et seq.; ii. 18.
 Alison, Sir Archibald, first connection with William Blackwood, ii. 22—germ of the ‘History of Europe,’ 23—‘History of the French Revolution,’ 24—three articles in a week, ib.—an unknown advocate, 108—grateful allusions to William Blackwood, 207—immense industry, 208—three presses in motion at once, 209—reviewed by Dr Croly, 210—an extraordinary success, 211—praise from the ‘Edinburgh Review,’ 212—resents the editorial pruning-knife, 213—letter defending his treatment of Wellington in his History, 360, 361—a cheap edition of the History, 386 et seq.
Letters from: To William Blackwood, ii. 23—Alexander Blackwood, ii. 207, 209, 210, 212—John Blackwood, ii. 360.
 Ambrose’s, mythical symposia at, i. 261.
 ‘American Notes,’ Dickens’s, Warren reviews, ii. 231.
 ‘Amos Barton,’ John Blackwood’s acceptance of, ii. 434—a great success, 438.
 ‘Anastasius,’ a criticism of Hope’s, i. 498.
 ‘Annals of the Parish,’ Mr Blackwood revises Galt’s, i. 448.
 Architecture, condemnation of, in Edinburgh, by Mr Ruskin, ii. 99.
 ‘Armytage, Mrs,’ Mrs Gore’s, ii. 364.
 ‘Athenæum,’ beginning of the, i. 519.
 Australia, the book-market in, fifty years ago, ii. 272.
 ‘Ayrshire Legatees,’ Galt’s, ii. 11, 25.
 Aytoun, Professor, ‘Firmilian’ by, i. 210—an important contributor to ‘Maga,’ ii. 408—the “Glen-mutchkin Railway,” ib.—adverse criticism of George Eliot, 448—reputed editor of ‘Maga,’ 449—‘Firmilian,’ and other contributions, 450.
 ‘Bacon & Bungay,’ one of the originals of, i. 396.
 Baldwin, Cradock, & Co., agents for William Blackwood in London, i. 104—alarmed at the prospect of a libel, 134—end of the agency, 138.
 ‘Baldwin’s Magazine,’ a short-lived periodical, i. 496.
 Ballantyne, James, the confidential vassal of Scott, i. 50—offers Mr Blackwood Scott’s ‘Tales of my

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

492

INDEX.

- Landlord,' 57—the plausible Signor Aldiborontophoscophornio, 63 — letters to Mr Blackwood, ib. et seq. — an admiring critic, 66 — a piece of translation, 72, 73 — a light "rider" to a hard bargain, 80—continued bickerings, 81—unsatisfactory quibbling, 84—threatened lawsuits, 86—personal charm, 112—quaint arguments for high prices, 113—conceit, 211 — takes up arms in defence of Hogg, 338 —a sharp retort from the publisher, 339—death of, ii. 108.
- Letters from:* To William Blackwood, i. 60, 63-67, 69, 72, 73, 79-81, 84, 85, 112, 338, 339.
- Letters to:* From William Blackwood, i. 62, 67, 74, 76, 81 - 83, 85, 338, 340—John Murray, i. 30 —Sir Walter Scott, i. 71.
- Ballantyne, John, possession of the favour of Scott by, i. 26—quarrel with John Murray, 30 — Scott's curious proposal regarding his unsaleable stock, 58.
- Barham, Rev. R. H., "Tom of Ingoldsby," contributes a novel to 'Maga,' ii. 284.
- 'Baronial Antiquities,' Billings', a great undertaking, ii. 383 et seq.
- Beckford, William, i. 508.
- Bell & Bradfute, Messrs, William Blackwood's apprenticeship with, i. 9, 11.
- Bentley, R., an awkward meeting with J. F. Murray, ii. 331—a case of piracy, 345—Mrs Gore's transactions with, 349.
- 'Beppo,' Mr Blackwood's share in the publication of, ii. 2.
- 'Berwick Warder,' Robert Blackwood acquires the, ii. 311.
- Bibliomania, i. 11, 18.
- Billings' 'Baronial Antiquities,' a great undertaking, ii. 383 et seq.
- 'Biographia Literaria,' attack on Coleridge's, in the first number of 'Maga,' i. 133—Wilson's review of Coleridge's, 263.
- 'Black Dwarf,' the, Mr Blackwood's criticism and its tremendous result, i. 70, 71—publication of, 76.
- Blackmore, Mr R. D., a visit to Mrs Oliphant, ii. 21.
- 'Blackstone, A Commentary on,' Warren's, ii. 239.
- Blackwood, Alexander, birth, i. 21 —apprenticed to Messrs Baldwin & Cradock, 47, 49 — comments on Lockhart's advent to the 'Quarterly,' ii. 51 — cheerful acceptance of drudgery, 52—breakfasts with Galt, 53—London gossip, 54—news of the ruin of Constable, 56—his father's right hand, 117— "men in mind and character," 122 —superintending the literary side of the business, 139—a sister's reminiscences, 141—first illness, 144, 150—a journey to the Continent, 151 — French cookery, 154 — a jovial party at Aix, 155—settlement at Nice, 156—a meeting with Wordsworth at Milan, 158 et seq. — a tour through Italy, 159—a gentle monitor, 164 — Thackeray's Irish Sketch-book returned, 166—friendliness of Murray, 175 — a firm editor, 213 — a dual control, 215 —criticises Warren, 220 — an indignant author, 223 et seq. —a sharp correspondence with Warren, 225 et seq. —anxiety regarding a proposed Branch in London, 245 et seq. —hunting for premises in London, 253—sharp remonstrance with J. F. Murray, 324—deals firmly with a pretentious author, 326 — his nephew's kindly reminiscences, 372 —death, 374, 375.
- Letters from:* To John Blackwood, ii. 161, 164—Robert Blackwood, ii. 158, 176, 251, 253, 274, 337, 339, 344—William Blackwood, ii. 50, 53, 54, 56-58, 145 — Major William Blackwood, ii. 92, 93, 129 — Samuel Warren, ii. 225—Professor Wilson, ii. 172.
- Letters to:* From Sir Archibald Alison, ii. 207, 209, 210, 212—Archibald Blackwood, ii. 167, 249 —John Blackwood, ii. 257, 259, 260, 263, 274, 329, 330, 332, 335, 338, 345, 347, 350, 352, 353, 356, 358, 360, 364, 366, 369—Robert Blackwood, ii. 167, 246, 247, 249, 342—William Blackwood, i. 276—Major William Blackwood, ii. 130, 373—Patrick Branwell Bronte, ii.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

493

- 177, 180 — Rev. John Eagles, ii. 285—John Galt, i. 472—Frederick Hardman, ii. 294, 296, 297—John Hardman, ii. 287, 289–292—Walter Savage Landor, ii. 193 — John Gibson Lockhart, ii. 122, 132—Alfred Mallalieu, ii. 201, 203—W. M. Thackeray, ii. 240—Samuel Warren, ii. 207, 219–223, 226, 231, 232, 234, 236, 238.
- Blackwood, Archibald, boyhood, ii. 71, 72—obtains a cadetship, 167—preparations for India, 248—good reports from India, 264—a letter of happy boyish reminiscences, 389.
- Letters from : To Alexander Blackwood, ii. 167, 249*—Thomas Blackwood, ii. 389.
- Blackwood, Major George, death at Maiwand, ii. 374, 466.
- Blackwood, Miss Isabella, death of, i. 20—lively reminiscences of, 45 et seq.—ii. 136, 140, 250.
- Blackwood, James, a boy on his dignity, ii. 69—amiable character of, 70, 142, 143.
- Blackwood, Miss Janet, marriage of, ii. 71, 72, 412.
- Blackwood, John, boyish traits, ii. 71 — “a great disgrace,” 94—a schoolboy letter, 111 — a career decided on, 143—a lively journal, 147, 148—a tour on the Continent with his brother and William Hay, 151—youthful impressions of London, 152—founds golf on the Riviera, 157—an irregular education, 159—with Messrs Whittaker & Co., 161—the mysteries of the blue bag, 163—warm friendship with Thackeray, 197—the “Branch,” ib.—the question of a career, 242—amiable character of, 244—settlement of the “Branch,” 254, 255—Harrison Ainsworth gives a dinner, at which the “Branch” is toasted, 260—friendship with John Delane and Thackeray, 262—Frederick Hardman, ib.—a meeting with Mr Gladstone, 263—society in London, 268—difficulties regarding illustrations, 269—interviews with “old Gladstone,” 274—a visit to Lockhart and Warren, 276, 277—eminent success of the “Branch,” 282—friendship with Frederick Hardman, 299—an editor’s sense of delicacy, 315—early results of the “Branch,” 326—merry meetings, 327—a lively record, 329—bad accounts of Maginn, 334—meetings with Lockhart, 332, 335—recommends “a quiet village in the country” for troublesome authors, 340—a great number of ‘Maga,’ 341—traitors within the “Trade,” 345, 346—a publisher’s dilemma, 351—an Irish deputation, 352—an astute suggestion, 353—the shifting company at Pall Mall, 357—a dinner with Phillips to meet Thomas Hood, 366—business details, 368—proposed departure from Pall Mall, 370—letter acknowledging Lord Lytton’s condolence on the death of Alexander Blackwood, 375—removal to the “Row,” 377—return to Edinburgh, ib.—the index to ‘Maga’ overlooked, 383—a sagacious counsellor, 386—opposes the idea of a new weekly newspaper, 396—the effect of a pathetic letter, 415—chief and responsible editor, 417—Lytton’s confidence, 422—sound principles of remuneration, 426—high opinion of Sir Edward Hamley’s writings, 432—a humorous comment on authors, ib.—introduction of George Eliot, 433—acceptance of ‘Amos Barton,’ 434—encouraging a sensitive author, 435—a wrong surmise, 436—sanguine hopes for ‘Maga,’ ib.—“George Eliot,” 439—an accomplished letter-writer, 440—a temporary coolness, 443—the Joseph Liggins episode, ib. et seq.—a business complaint from George Eliot, 447—a sociable band of contributors, 454—a critical blunder, 456—opposition to Mudie, 458, 459—introduces G. S. Dallas to the ‘Times,’ 468—touching notice of his brother’s death, 488—the history of his private life, 489.
- Letters from : To Alexander Blackwood, ii. 257, 259, 260, 263, 274, 329, 330, 332, 335, 337, 345, 347, 350, 352, 353, 356, 358, 360, 364, 366, 369—*

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

494

INDEX.

Archibald Blackwood, ii. 125—
 Miss Isabella Blackwood, ii. 166
 —Robert Blackwood, ii. 244, 253,
 255, 275, 276, 278-280, 329, 330,
 332, 335, 337, 339, 340, 379, 381,
 382, 386, 388—Major William
 Blackwood, ii. 115, 482—Sir E. L.
 Bulwer, ii. 375, 432—George Eliot,
 ii. 436, 437—J. M. Langford, ii.
 436, 460, 468, 488—G. H. Lewes,
 i. 434, 435.

Letters to: From Sir Archibald Alison, ii. 360—Alexander Blackwood, ii. 161, 164—James Blackwood, ii. 376—Major William Blackwood, ii. 462, 464-467, 469, 470, 474, 475, 480—Robert Blackwood, ii. 163, 254, 378, 384, 387, 394, 395, 402, 403, 407, 409, 411—George Eliot, ii. 441, 442, 447—Frederick Hardman, ii. 319—A. W. Kinglake, ii. 451—G. H. Lewes, ii. 448—John Gibson Lockhart, i. 253—Sir E. Bulwer Lytton, ii. 420, 422, 425, 429-431—Samuel Phillips, ii. 301-303, 305-310, 312, 314-318—George Simpson, ii. 271.

Blackwood, Robert, a keen man of business, ii. 118—Lockhart's opinion of, 122—the complete harmony of the two brothers, 139—with his brothers in London, 149—increased responsibility, 160—turns a deaf ear to Branwell Bronte, 179—no respecter of person, 213—a dual control, 215—the question of a branch in London, 245 et seq.—a shop selected in Pall Mall, 254—solicitude for the “Branch,” ib.—a passing difficulty with Christopher North, 342, 343—effect of his brother's death, 375, 378—schemes for a great architectural work, 383—increased speculations, 387—establishment of the printing-office, 388—a projected London weekly newspaper, 393—Dickinson's decision, 396—signs of breaking down, 402—a literary dinner at Blackwall, 407—agreeably surprised with a ‘Noctes,’ 409—the diplomacy of rejection, 411—the “Dies Boreales,” ib.—failing health, 414—settles the question of the editorship of ‘Maga,’ 416—death, 417.

Letters from: To Alexander Blackwood, ii. 167, 246, 247, 249, 342—John Blackwood, ii. 163, 254, 378, 384, 387, 394, 395, 402, 403, 407, 409, 411—Major William Blackwood, ii. 94, 101, 115, 127, 142, 149—J. M. Langford, ii. 416.

Letters to: From Alexander Blackwood, ii. 158, 176, 251, 253, 274, 337, 339, 344—John Blackwood, ii. 244, 253, 255, 275, 276, 278-280, 329, 330, 332, 335, 337, 339, 340, 379, 381, 382, 386, 388—William Blackwood, ii. 48—Major William Blackwood ii. 130, 168, 169, 264, 391, 392, 397, 399—William Hay, ii. 155—J. G. Lockhart, ii. 323—J. F. Murray, ii. 321, 323, 325—John Sterling, ii. 187-189, 191—Samuel Warren, ii. 41—Alaric Attila Watts, ii. 174—Rev. James White, ii. 196, 198, 200.

Blackwood, Thomas, ii. 59, 143, 144, 149, 389.

Blackwood, Major William, Maginn pleads for his going to the University, i. 385—kindness of Mrs Hughes, 386—decision to enter the army, ii. 46—a holiday in Paris, 59—a long parting, 60—letters from his father, 61 et seq.—letters to his father, 72 et seq.—flattering reports of friends, 83—first ensign, the 59th Bengal Native Infantry, 92—appointed adjutant of his regiment, 100—marriage with Miss Emma Moore, 111—his father's last letter, 112—receipt of news of his father's death, 129—arrival of his brother Thomas in India, 145—birth of his eldest son, ib.—literary likings, 168—little wars in India, 169—good reports of his brother Archie, 264—threatened war in Nepal, 265—the children are sent home, 267—arrival of his children in Edinburgh, 372—an affair with the Rookees, 374—severe furlough rules, 391—planning careers for his children, 392—invitation to join the firm, 397—decision to come home, 399—settlement at “45,” 414—Mrs Oliphant's reminiscences, 415—taking his brother Robert's place,

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

495

417—the Editor's constant support, 455—in the Row, 462—a meeting with Lockhart, 463—takes charge of the 'Journal of Agriculture,' 464—Hamley's sketches, 467—objects to personalities in the 'Noctes,' 469—describes a visit to Mrs Oliphant, 470—amusing reports of Samuel Warren, 474, 475—a comical dinner at Warren's, 476—a domestic calamity at Mrs Oliphant's, 477—visits Lewes and sees "a Mrs Lewes," 484—of the type of Col. Newcome, 485—failing health, 488—his family, ib.—death, 489.

Letters from: To Alexander Blackwood, ii. 130, 373—John Blackwood, ii. 462, 464–467, 469, 470, 474, 475, 480—Robert Blackwood, ii. 130, 168, 169, 264, 391, 392, 397, 399—J. M. Langford, ii. 456, 457, 460—his mother, ii. 146.

Letters to: From Alexander Blackwood, ii. 92, 93, 129—John Blackwood, ii. 115, 482—Robert Blackwood, ii. 94, 101, 115, 127, 142, 149—William Blackwood, ii. 61–63, 68, 72, 74, 75–77, 79–83, 85–87, 89–91, 97, 98, 100, 103, 104, 107–109, 111.

Blackwood, William, born in Edinburgh, 1776, i. 3—social life in Edinburgh during his youth, 4—early home life, 8—apprenticeship with Bell & Bradfute, 9, 11—his taste for old books, 11—enters the service of Mundell & Co., 12—residence in Glasgow, 13—letter to Archibald Constable, ib.—introduction to Miss Steuart of Carfin, 15—short partnership with Robert Ross, 16—three years in London with Mr Cuthill, 17—establishment in the South Bridge, Edinburgh, 18—letter from Miss Janet Steuart, 19—marriage, ib.—residence at Newington, ib.—birth of Alexander Blackwood, 21—domestic qualities, 23—steady advancement, 24—outlived his rivals, 26—issues a notable catalogue, 27—letter from Sir Walter Scott, 28—letter from Dibdin, the bibliographer, 29—letter from Mr John Murray, ib.—appointed Murray's agent, 30—Murray's testimonial, 31—intimate relations with other publishers, 32—publishes M'Crie's 'Life of Knox,' 33—interest shown in his authors, 34—first dealings with the Ettrick Shepherd, 35—transference to 17 Princes Street, 36—agent for Cadell & Davies, ib.—the Scott incident, ib.—letters to Miss Susan Ferrier, 37–39—development of the publishing business, 40—criticism of Lady Charlotte Bury, 41—letters to Miss Ferrier, 43, 44—retail publisher for Ballantyne, 46—letter to Murray, ib., 47—spreading the news of Waterloo, 47—letter from Murray, 48—receives Byron's unpublished poems, 49—Scott as a genial guest, ib.—anxiety regarding Scott, 50—literary enthusiasm, 51—business controversy with Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe, 53—letter to Southey, 55—Lockhart's unfair account of the publisher's transaction with Scott, 56—offer from James Ballantyne of "a work of fiction" by the author of 'Waverley,' 57—a curious proposal, 58 et seq.—an anxious suspense, 61—letters from plausible James, 63—the proofs at last, 67—Lockhart's story, 70, 71—Scott's outburst, ib.—another version, 73—Murray's forgetfulness of the affair, 75—publication of the 'Black Dwarf,' 76—another "rider" to the bargain, 80—just indignation, 83 et seq.—lawsuits in the air, 86—end of the matter, 88—remonstrances with Murray, 89 et seq.—sage advice from John Murray, 94, 95—the 'Edinburgh Monthly Magazine,' 98 et seq.—dissatisfaction with the Editors, 99—two brilliant young recruits, 101, 102—dispute with Messrs Pringle and Cleghorn, 106 et seq.—the beginning of 'Maga,' 111—the launching of the Chaldee Manuscript, 115—a great success, 117—a merry dinner, 118—"a man clothed in plain apparel," 119—curious position as Editor, 125—the first number of 'Maga,' 127—an amusing charge of libel, 131—Leigh Hunt threatens,

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

496

INDEX.

134—a diplomatic letter, 135—the publisher bears the brunt, 139—Wilson and Lockhart advise their chief, 140—a successful attempt to secure Scott, 145—Scott's verdict on the first number of 'Maga', 151—"sent to Coventry by the Trade," 153—continued friendliness of Scott, 156—advice from John Murray, 159—Murray takes a share in the Magazine, 162—Murray proposes to alter the name of 'Maga', 167—Murray's final secession from the Magazine, 172—the Man of Feeling remonstrates, 174—as also do Patrick Fraser-Tytler and Dr M'Crie, 175 et seq.—a testimonial from France, 178—result of the Leslie libel case, 179—Lockhart's favourable reports, 190—management of his contributors, 193—confidence reposed in him by his coadjutors, 200—objection to the "Crafty's" reintroduction into the 'Noctes', 210—attainment of civic honours, 217—Lockhart is sickened with eternal expostulations, 221—a correspondence with Lockhart concerning remuneration, 224 et seq.—harmony restored, 234—farewell letter to Lockhart, 236—curbs Lockhart's relapse into frivolity, 244—early letter to Wilson projecting 'Maga', 262—sentimental remonstrance to Wilson, 268—renewed threats from Leigh Hunt, 274—a visit to Elleray, 276—screening Wilson in the Martin libel, 283 et seq.—sorely tried by the Professor's unpunctuality, 294—"basely cruel," 295—more friction, 303 et seq.—managing the Professor, 307—a eulogy of Wilson, 308—his patience with unpunctual contributors, 315—first connection with the Ettrick Shepherd, 319—in the strange capacity of Hogg's literary agent, 335—a remonstrance from James Ballantyne on behalf of Hogg, 338—a sharp retort, 340—another skirmish, 341—Hogg's real affection, 358—zeal for securing new writers, 362—the Leslie libel case, 368 et seq.—the publisher left to bear the brunt, 373—refuses

Maginn's blarney, 379—declines to sell 'Don Juan', 380—characteristic introduction of Maginn, 383—his confidence in Maginn, 384—Colonel Martin's estimate as reported by Maginn, 395—serious counsels to Maginn, 401—admiration for Maginn's style, 403—offers Coleridge a small retaining fee, 407—rebuts the calumnies of the Cockney School, 410—introduced to De Quincey by Christopher North, 423—long-suffering to unpunctuality, 424—a sharp editorial remonstrance, 425—an indignant answer to De Quincey's banter, 427—his exalted view of literature, 439—hoping always for another Scott, 447—cordial appreciation of Galt, 450—alertness for new writers, 477—his recruiting agents, 478—humorous consolation to a lady novelist, 495—a special coronation number, 505—invites a retort from the 'Glasgow Herald', 512—Isaac D'Israeli's comments, 517.

"The beard of Geordie Buchanan," ii. 1—large number of joint publications, 2—Byron, Hunt, and Shelley, ib.—a sound literary judgment, 3—success of M'Crie's 'Life of Knox', ib., 4—John Murray criticises a commercial calculation, 4—a quarrel with Murray, 7—trouble with Dr Brewster in connection with the 'Edinburgh Encyclopædia' and the 'Edinburgh Philosophical Journal', 9 et seq.—Chalmers, Galt, Wilson, Lockhart, and Dean Hook, 11—a new "unknown," 13—unfulfilled expectations, 17—Irving's 'Life of Buchanan', 18—Scott's 'Malachi Malagrowther', ib.—other early important publications, ib. et seq.—first connection with Alison, 22—expostulates with Maginn regarding Miss Ferrier, 27—two recruits after his own heart, 28—Warren reveals his identity, 29—the publisher abides by his decision, 35—Maginn's backbitings, 37—affecting memorial tribute from Samuel Warren, 41—"Tom Cringle's" confidence in his publisher, 43—a large family, 44—his eldest daughter's

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

497

reminiscences, 45—a man of strong family affections, 48—“my dear Blackwood,” 49—letters to his son in India, 61 et seq.—a model correspondent, 67—letters from his son William in India, 72 et seq.—“a capital Noctes,” 75—account of the opening of the Bridges in Edinburgh, 77—‘Maga’ in India, 79, 82—a letter from the Duke of Wellington, 80—a visit to St Paul’s with Sir W. Scott, 85—elected a Commissioner of Police, ib.—“a famous Noctes,” 86—Lord Dalhousie promises help, 87—removal to 45 George Street, 88—prosperity of ‘Maga,’ ib.—opening of the Edinburgh High School, 89—first Bailie, 91—failing health, 93—family changes, 96—another description of “45,” 97—Hogg’s opinion of “45,” 98—removal to Ainslie Place, 100—gratifying reports from India, ib.—proposed changes in the firm, 101—Reform Bill disturbances, 103—civic functions, 105—a letter from the Duke of Newcastle, 106—agitation against the Reform Bill, 109—Tait’s Magazine, ib.—last letter to his son William on receipt of tidings of his marriage, 111—lively symposia in London, 114—last visit to London, 118—an interview with Lockhart, 119—a fatal malady, 120—Lockhart’s solicitude for his old friend, 121—his portrait by Allan, 126—Robert Blackwood announces his death, 127—his last meeting with Lockhart and the Professor, 128—the funeral, ib.—tributes of respect, 131—Lockhart’s “first efficient friend,” 133—Lockhart’s memorial notice in ‘Maga,’ ib.

Letters from: To Baldwin & Cradock, i. 104, 135—James Ballantyne, i. 62, 67, 74, 76, 81-83, 85, 338, 340—Mrs Blackwood, i. 276—Alexander Blackwood, ii. 119—Robert Blackwood, ii. 48—Major William Blackwood, ii. 61-63, 68, 72, 74-77, 79-83, 85-87, 89-91, 97, 98, 100, 103, 104, 107-109, 111—S. T. Coleridge, i. 410—Mr Combe, i. 108—Archibald Constable,

i. 13—J. W. Croker, i. 448—Miss Ferrier, i. 37-39, 41, 43, 44—John Galt, i. 450, 451, 461—Dr Gifford, i. 511—James Hogg, i. 342, 343, 345, 347-349—Theodore Hook, ii. 13—Samuel Hunter, i. 511—W. Laidlaw, i. 150—Charles Lloyd, i. 266—J. G. Lockhart, i. 210, 226, 229, 236, 239, 244—William Maginn, i. 367 369, 376 - 380, 401, 402—John Murray, i. 46, 47, 57, 62, 68, 86, 88, 89, 160, 164; ii. 5, 8—T. Pringle and J. Cleghorn, i. 106—Thomas de Quincey, i. 424, 425, 427—Sir Walter Scott, i. 76, 145—Charles Kirkpatrick Sharpe, i. 53, 54—Robert Southey, i. 55—Samuel Warren, ii. 35—Professor Wilson, i. 127, 262, 268, 288, 301, 308.

Letters to: From Sir Archibald Alison, ii. 23—Messrs Baldwin & Cradock, i. 134—James Ballantyne, i. 60, 63-67, 69, 72, 73, 79-81, 84, 85, 112, 338, 339—Alexander Blackwood, ii. 50, 53, 54, 56-58, 145—Miss Caroline Bowles, i. 494—Samuel Taylor Coleridge, i. 408, 412-414, 416, 419—Crofton Croker, i. 517-519—John Wilson Croker, i. 366, 449, 474, 476—Rev. Dr Croly, i. 481, 482—Thomas Doubleday, i. 492—John Galt, i. 452, 453, 455-458, 460, 462, 463, 465, 466, 468, 469, 471—Rev. G. R. Gleig, i. 484, 488—James Hogg, i. 321, 323-325, 327, 329, 331, 333, 334, 336, 337, 346, 348, 351-355—Mrs Hogg, i. 359—William Laidlaw, i. 148, 155—John Gibson Lockhart, i. 141, 144, 157, 202, 203, 205-209, 217-219, 221, 224, 228, 231, 234, 237-240, 242, 243, 246, 248-251, 280, 283; ii. 121, 123—Dr Thomas M’Crie, i. 176—Henry MacKenzie, i. 174—William Maginn, i. 367, 371, 374, 375, 381, 385, 386, 389, 393, 394, 396—John Murray, i. 29, 48, 53, 61, 78, 94, 159, 162, 163, 170, 171; ii. 4—Duke of Newcastle, ii. 106—Thomas de Quincey, i. 426-429, 432, 435, 437, 440, 442—R. S. Rintoul, i. 513, 514—James Scott (the “Od-

VOL. II.

2 I

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

498

INDEX.

- ontist"), i. 212—Michael Scott, ii. 43—Sir Walter Scott, i. 28, 146, 149, 151, 154, 155 — Henry Stephens, ii. 20 — Miss Janet Steuart, i. 19 — Mrs Steuart, i. 21, 22—Patrick Fraser-Tytler, i. 174 — Samuel Warren, ii. 29, 33, 36, 38, 39—Alaric Attila Watts, i. 496, 497, 500, 501, 503, 505-508 — Professor John Wilson, i. 140-142, 263, 265, 270, 272, 274, 275, 281, 289, 291, 293, 295-300, 302-304, 309, 310, 312, 313.
- Blackwood, Mr William, ii. 145, 146, 195, 267, 372, 373, 392, 488.
- “Blackwood, In Praise of,” lines, the “Odontist’s,” i. 213.
- Blackwood, the family of, i. 3.
- Blackwood’s ‘Edinburgh Monthly Magazine,’ the starting of, i. 98 et seq.—character of, 111.
- ‘Blackwood’s Magazine’—vide ‘Maga.’
- Blanchard, Leman, ii. 260.
- Bon Gaultier, ii. 449.
- ‘Bonnie Kilmeny,’ by the Ettrick Shepherd, i. 319.
- ‘Book of the Farm,’ the, ii. 19.
- Booksellers, the early importance of, in Edinburgh, i. 5—hospitable, 7 — publishing enterprise of, 14—Coleridge’s opinion of, 408.
- ‘Borough,’ Galt’s, i. 468.
- Borrow, George, a remarkable missionary, ii. 295.
- Bowles, Caroline, contributions to ‘Maga,’ i. 494—letter from, ii. 18.
- Brewster, Sir David, admiration for Byron, i. 53—‘Essay on the Kaleidoscope,’ ii. 8—the ‘Edinburgh Philosophical Journal,’ 9—remissness with the ‘Edinburgh Encyclopædia,’ ib.—a broken engagement, 10.
- Bronte, Branwell, the hard fate of, ii. 177—a wonderful epistle, ib.—craves an interview, 180—extract from a poem “Misery,” 181, 182—lines from a later poem, 183, 184—a foil to his brilliant sisters, 185.
- Brougham, Lord, Lockhart’s opinion of, i. 251—quarrel with the ‘Times,’ ii. 124.
- Bruno, Giordano, i. 432.
- Buccleuch, Duke of, generosity of, to the Ettrick Shepherd, i. 320.
- Buchanan, George, the portrait of, on ‘Maga,’ ii. 1, 257, 357.
- ‘Buchanan, Life of George,’ Irving’s, ii. 18.
- Burns, Robert, friendship of, for William Creech, i. 7.
- Bury, Lady Charlotte, i. 41, 520.
- Byron, Lady, i. 491.
- Byron, Lord, offered a thousand guineas by Murray, i. 48—Mr Blackwood reads two unpublished poems, 49, 50—Mr Blackwood refuses to sell ‘Don Juan,’ 380—Mr Blackwood shares the publication of ‘Beppo’ and ‘Childe Harold,’ ii. 2.
- Cadell & Davies, Messrs, Blackwood obtains the agency for, i. 36—agents for Blackwood in London, 274—Coleridge’s introduction to, 408—publish M’Crie’s ‘Life of Melville,’ ii. 7.
- Caird, Principal, ‘Religion in Common Life’ reviewed by Mrs Oliphant, ii. 475.
- ‘Caleb Stukely,’ Samuel Phillips’, success of, ii. 305—a publisher’s dilemma, 351.
- Cambridge, Duke of, a story of the, ii. 247.
- Campbell, Thomas, publication of ‘The Pleasures of Hope’ by, i. 12—Mr Blackwood’s opinion of, 378—editor of ‘The New Monthly Magazine,’ 395.
- ‘Caxtons, The,’ ii. 355, 405, 419.
- Carlyle, Dr, ii. 281.
- Carlyle, Thomas, criticism of the ‘Life of Sterling,’ ii. 186.
- ‘Cecil,’ Mrs Gore’s, ii. 364.
- ‘Cenci,’ Mr Blackwood shares the publication of Shelley’s, ii. 2.
- Chaldee Manuscript, description of the, i. 116, 117—reputed origination by the Ettrick Shepherd, 118—the real authors, 119—selection from, ib. et seq.—real value of, 161.
- Chalmers, Dr Thomas, ‘Evidences of Christianity’ by, ii. 11.
- ‘Characteristics,’ Thomas Aird’s, ii. 77.
- ‘Childe Harold,’ Mr Blackwood’s share in the publication of, ii. 2.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

499

- 'Christabelliad,' Coleridge condones Maginn's parody of, i. 412.
 'Christian Characteristics,' Aird's, ii. 108.
 'Christianity, Evidences of,' Chalmers', ii. 11.
 'Chronicles of Carlingford,' Mrs Oliphant's, ii. 487.
 'Chronicles of the Canongate,' Sir W. Scott's, ii. 84.
 Cleghorn, James, joint editor of the 'Edinburgh Monthly Magazine,' i. 98 — The Magazine changes its editors, 104 — the Chaldee Manuscript, 119 — later career, 110.
 Cobbett, William, i. 205.
 Cockburn, Lord, reference to Constable by, i. 26.
 "Cockney School," Lockhart's attack on the, in the first number of 'Maga,' i. 133, 138 — origin of the name, 166 — continued attacks on, 196, 274.
 Colburn, Henry, inventor of a new art of puffery, i. 395 — "Bacon & Bunbury," 396 — novel publishing methods, 495 — an epigram on, 498 — takes a share in the 'Atheneum,' 519 — a charge of piracy, ii. 346 — a notable feat in puffing, 356 — Sydney Smith's little joke, ib.
 Coleridge, S. T., attacked in the first number of 'Maga,' i. 133 — "mad and unintelligible," 218 — Mr Blackwood offers him a retaining fee, 407 — a long letter of advice, 408 et seq. — a diplomatic reply, 411 — descending from a high horse, 412 — admiration of Maginn, ib. — an uncompleted volume, 413 — criticism of 'Maga,' 414 — a large scheme of articles, 415 — describes an alarming illness, 416 — in the capacity of peacemaker, 417 — criticism of Scott and De Quincey, 419 — a eulogy of 'Maga,' 420 — sonnet to "My Tin Shaving-Pot," 421.
Letters from: To William Blackwood, i. 408, 412-414, 416, 419.
Letter to: From William Blackwood, i. 410.
 Collins, Rev. Lucas, ii. 454.
 Colonies, the book-market in the, fifty years ago, ii. 273.
 Constable, Archibald, description of Creech by, i. 7 — friendship between William Blackwood and, 8 — taste of, for old books, 11, 18 — letter to, from William Blackwood, 13 — story of, and Scott's unwritten works, 25 — reference to, by Lord Cockburn, 26 — loss of Murray's agency by, 30 — letter to, from Murray, 31 — reason for Scott's reverting to, 79 — the fifth edition of the 'Black Dwarf,' 83 — the 'Edinburgh Review' and the 'Scots Magazine,' 97 — "the Crafty," 121 — a projected skit upon, 143 — jealousy of Blackwood's success, 160 — Mr Blackwood demurs to his praise in the 'Noctes,' 211 — first dealings with the Ettrick Shepherd, 319 — the failure, 518 — publishes the 'Edinburgh Philosophical Journal,' ii. 9 — Alexander Blackwood reports the news of the financial crisis, 56.
 Constable, Thomas, i. 13.
 Copyright Act, Talfourd's, Wordsworth's opinion of, ii. 158 — Sir Archibald Alison on, 207.
 'Courant, the Edinburgh,' ii. 393.
 'Course of Time,' Pollok's, extraordinary success of, ii. 18, 77, 81, 84, 94, 269.
 "Crafty," the, the name of Constable in the Chaldee Manuscript, i. 121 — Mr Blackwood demurs to his praise in the 'Noctes,' 211 — meeting with Lockhart at Abbotsford, 219 — the downfall, 238.
 Creech, William, printer and poet, i. 6, 7 — Burns and Constable on, ib.
 Crimean War, Cabinet dissensions regarding the, ii. 431, 478.
 Croker, Crofton, i. 478, 516 et seq.
 Croker, J. Wilson, contributions to 'Maga,' i. 187 — refuses to frank Maginn's letters, 366 — an admirable criticism of Galt, 449 — an unamiable personality, 473 — a carpentering commentary, 474 — Macaulay's review, 476 — a peculiar method of reading a book, ii. 359.
Letters from: To William Blackwood, i. 366, 449, 474, 476.
 Croly, Rev. Dr, a facile writer, i. 478 — multifarious and anonymous

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

500

INDEX.

- contributions, 479 — ‘Salathiel,’ 480—a volume on the Apocalypse, 482—a suspicious kind of criticism, ib.—a steady henchman of ‘Maga,’ ii. 173.
- Cruikshank, George, ii. 260, 261, 269. ‘Cruise of the Midge,’ Michael Scott’s, ii. 42.
- Cuthill, Mr, William Blackwood learns cataloguing with, i. 17.
- ‘Cyril Thornton,’ Captain Hamilton’s, ii. 26, 69—reviewed by Christopher North, 77, 78.
- Dalhousie, Lord, ii. 101.
- Dallas, G. S., introduced to the ‘Times’ by John Blackwood, ii. 468, 476.
- Dalyell, Sir J. G., anger regarding the Chaldee Manuscript, i. 124—an amusing charge of libel, 131—an unjustifiable attack, 132—the victim of a practical joke, 140—Lockhart and Wilson’s alarm at the libel action by, 141, 144.
- Darien Scheme, the, i. 3.
- De Quincey, Thomas, Coleridge’s eulogy of ‘Klosterheim,’ i. 419—the pitiful aspect of his story, 423—introduced to Mr Blackwood by Christopher North, ib.—unpunctuality, 424—Mr Blackwood sends a sharp remonstrance, 425—ill-advised banter, 426, 427—an indignant answer, 428—a tangled correspondence, 429—a model of punctuality, 430, 431—a list of projected articles, 432—compliments ‘Maga,’ 434—curious excuses for unpunctuality, 435—endless petitions, 437—expresses high praise for Tom Cringle, 443—his contributions to ‘Maga,’ 444.
- Letters from: To William Blackwood,* i. 426-429, 432, 435, 437, 440, 442.
- Letters to: From William Blackwood,* i. 424, 425, 427.
- Defoe, the Scottish, i. 459.
- Delane, John, a story of stolen spoons, ii. 261—friendship with John Blackwood, 262—“really a trump,” 330.
- “Delta,” introduction of Mrs Oliphant to Christopher North by, i. 315—success of ‘Mansie Wauch,’ ii. 173, 269.
- ‘Destiny,’ by Miss Ferrier, i. 45.
- ‘Diary of a Late Physician,’ immediate success of Warren’s, ii. 29.
- Dibdin, Dr Thomas, a notable collector of books, i. 18—letter from, 29—Lockhart’s opinion of, 207.
- Dickens, Charles, Samuel Warren considers himself superior to, ii. 219—a “fearless rival,” 231—erroneous contemporary criticisms, 305—congratulates Samuel Phillips, 306—projected paper to crush the ‘Times,’ 313—Warren’s review of, 341.
- Dickinson, John, a trusted friend of the Blackwoods, ii. 246, 250, 336, 342, 356, 396, 476.
- Disraeli, Benjamin, Murray’s ambassador to Lockhart, i. 235—‘Vivian Grey,’ 507—a traitor in the “Carlton,” ii. 369, 380—disliked by the Conservative party, 478—compliment to ‘Maga,’ 483.
- D’Israeli, Isaac, opinion of ‘Maga,’ i. 517.
- ‘Don Juan,’ Mr Blackwood refuses to sell, i. 380.
- Doubleday, Thomas, Radical politician, i. 490—‘Diocletian’ rejected, 491—an unchivalrous poet, 492.
- Doyle, Dr Conan, ii. 482.
- ‘Dublin University Magazine,’ extract from, describing Maginn’s first appearance in Edinburgh, i. 383.
- Dufferin, the Marquis of, i. 3.
- Dumas, Alexandre, fils, ii. 297.
- Dunlop, Dr John, the “Tiger” of the ‘Noctes,’ i. 239.
- Eagles, Rev. John, a prolific contributor to ‘Maga,’ ii. 285—proposes a Magazine of Art, ib.—death, 456.
- ‘Edinburgh Encyclopædia,’ beginning of the, ii. 3—troubles in connection with the, 9 et seq.
- Edinburgh, fame of, at the beginning of the century, i. 4—the booksellers of, 5.
- ‘Edinburgh Monthly Magazine,’ starting of Blackwood’s, i. 98 et seq.—a shortlived publication, 99.
- ‘Edinburgh Philosophical Journal,’

INDEX.

501

- Dr Brewster's editorship of the, ii. 9.
- 'Edinburgh Review,' Constable and Murray's quarrel over the, i. 32—beginning of the, 96—decline of, ii. 84—the crime of editorial interpolation, 235.
- 'Elia, Essays of,' characterised as silly pieces, i. 501.
- Eliot, George, reported speech to a lady novelist, i. 463—Lewes sends "Amos Barton" to John Blackwood, ii. 433—its reception by the editor, 434—a sensitive author, 435—presumably a clergyman, 436—divided critics, 438—popular applause, ib.—"Mr Gilfil's Love-Story," 439—"George Eliot," ib.—an editor's praise, 440—expostulations with the printer, 441—success of 'Adam Bede,' 442—a large bonus, 440—the Liggins episode, 439, 443 et seq.—a foolish public and 'The Mill on the Floss,' 445—complaints of deficient advertising, 447—a "timid fellow," 484.
- Letters from: To John Blackwood, ii. 441, 442, 447.*
- Letters to: From John Blackwood, ii. 436, 437.*
- Elleray, Professor Wilson's house at Windermere, i. 139—Mr Blackwood's description of, 276.
- 'Entail,' success of Galt's, i. 453.
- 'Eothen,' ii. 451.
- Epigram, Colburn's publishing methods satirised in an, i. 498.
- Evans, Sebastian, ii. 471.
- 'Evidences of Christianity,' Chalmers', ii. 11.
- 'Examiner,' warfare between 'Maga' and the, i. 197.
- 'Farm, The Book of the,' ii. 19.
- Ferrier, Miss Susan, letters from William Blackwood to, i. 37-39—publication of 'Marriage,' 39—letter from Mr Blackwood, 41—Scott's "sister shadow," 41—compared with Miss Austen, 42—modesty of, 43—the 'Inheritance,' 44—letters from Mr Blackwood, ib.—'Destiny,' 45—Murray's share in 'Marriage,' ii. 6—Maginn commits a crime of etiquette respecting, 27.
- Ferrier, Professor, ii. 281, 355, 432, 469.
- Fettes, Sir William, ii. 74.
- 'Firmilian,' Professor Aytoun's, i. 210; ii. 450.
- 'Foresters, The,' Wilson's, ii. 25.
- 'Fraser's Magazine,' Maginn's connection with, i. 404—Maginn the chief support of, ii. 37—Maginn attacks Alaric Watts, 174.
- Fraser-Tytler, Patrick, remonstrance respecting 'Maga,' i. 174.
- 'French Revolution, History of the,' Alison's, ii. 108.
- Frere, John Hookham, i. 168.
- Galt, John, Scott's indebtedness to, i. 290—Hogg's jealous criticism, 343—a letter from Maginn concerning, 390, 391—a pioneer of a certain class of fiction, 446—Croker's criticism, 449, 475—Mr Blackwood's cordial appreciation, 450—Wilson's praise of the 'Annals,' 451—anticipated by Scott, 452—unable to fill the shoes of Christopher, 454—critical incapacity, 455—unusual openness to criticism, 456—a passing outburst, 458—the Scottish Defoe, 459—removal to Canada, 461, 462—planting towns near Lake Huron, 463—difficulties in his new sphere, 465—'Ringan Gilhaize,' ib.—misfortunes, 467—the 'Borough,' 468—waning powers and popularity, 470—a final letter, 472—his first publication, ii. 11—'The Omen' and 'The Spaefife,' 25—friendship with Alexander Blackwood, 53—'The Omen,' 57—Sir Walter Scott reviews 'The Omen' in 'Maga,' 64.
- Letters from: To Alexander Blackwood, i. 472—William Blackwood, i. 452, 453, 455-458, 460, 462, 463, 465, 466, 468, 469, 471.*
- Letters to: From William Blackwood, i. 450, 451, 461—James Scott, i. 212.*
- George Street, "45," Mr Blackwood's removal to, ii. 88, 97, 98, 103, 104.
- Gifford, William, Scott's indignation at his inspection of the 'Black Dwarf,' i. 73-75—an unpunctual editor, ii. 10.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

502

INDEX.

- 'Gilbert Gurney,' Hook's, ii. 12.
 "Gilfil's Love-Story, Mr," ii. 439.
 Gillies, R. P., 'Recollections of a Literary Man' by, i. 124, 193—the effect of the first number of 'Maga' described by, 130.
 Gladstone, Mr, Alexander Blackwood calls on, ii. 252—John Blackwood's meeting with, 263.
 'Glasgow Herald,' 'Maga's' jokes over the, i. 511.
 Gleig, Rev. G. R., 'Chelsea Pensioners' by, i. 242—versatility as a writer, 478—Chaplain-General, 479—the 'Subaltern,' 483—faithfulness to the firm, ib. — a piqued author, 485—the 'Life of Wellington,' 489—Mr Blackwood reports the success of the 'Subaltern,' ii. 69—"The Siege of Bhurtpore," 83.
 "Glenmuitchkin Railway," Professor Aytoun's skit in 'Maga,' ii. 408.
 Goethe, Lockhart's acquaintanceship with, i. 195.
 Gordon, Mrs, 'Life of Professor Wilson' by, i. 211, 315.
 Gordon, Sir John Watson, ii. 484.
 Gore, Mrs, ii. 235, 236, 348, 364, 365.
 Grove, Mr Justice, ii. 235, 236.
 Hamilton, Sir William, reputed author of a verse in the Chaldee Manuscript, i. 118.
 Hamilton, Thomas, participation in 'Maga,' i. 207—'Cyril Thornton' by, ii. 26, 69, 77, 78—other books, 27—'History of the Peninsular War,' 90.
 Hamley, Sir Edward, John Blackwood's high opinion of the 'Story of the Campaign,' ii. 432—condemnation of George Eliot, 438, 448—close connection with 'Maga,' 450.
 Hardman, Frederick, Coleridge as peace-maker between Mr Blackwood and, i. 416—'Times' correspondent, ii. 286—wide attainments of, 287—introduction to the Blackwoods, 288—copartnership with his father, 291 et seq.—financial considerations, 294, 295—criticisms of Dumas, 296—wonderful versatility, 297—as a publisher's reader, 298—friendship with John Blackwood, 299—a projected London weekly newspaper, 394—Dickinson's adverse decision, 396.
Letters from: To Alexander Blackwood, ii. 294, 296, 297—John Blackwood, ii. 319.
 Hardman, John, "Amicus of P," ii. 287—introduces a "young friend," 288—numerous contributions, 289 et seq.—copartnership with his son, 291—an unselfish father, 293.
Letters from: To Alexander Blackwood, ii. 287, 289-292.
 Harris, Major Charles, ii. 358.
 Hastie, Mr Archibald, ii. 49, 51, 59.
 Hastings, Lady Flora, ii. 259.
 Hastings, Lady Sophia, ii. 259.
 Hay, William, poetical contributions to 'Maga,' i. 289—accompanies John Blackwood to the Continent, ii. 151.
 Hazlitt, Wm., Maginn's views on, i. 389—an "obscure Londoner," 397—Blackwood the joint-publisher of the 'Table-Talk,' ii. 11.
 Heber, Bishop, ii. 81.
 Heber, Richard, i. 18.
 Hemans, Mrs, Wilson's verdict on, i. 309—a frequent contributor to 'Maga,' 494; ii. 18.
 High School, Edinburgh, the opening of the, ii. 89.
 'History of the French Revolution,' Alison's, ii. 24.
 Hogg, James, early connection with William Blackwood, i. 34—publication of the 'Queen's Wake,' 35—claim to have originated the 'Edinburgh Monthly Magazine,' 98—reputed originator of the Chaldee Manuscript, 118—participation in the 'Noctes,' 201, 203—his humorous position in the 'Noctes,' 213—invoked by Lockhart to enlighten the shade of George Buchanan, 243—Lockhart apologises for strictures in the 'Quarterly,' 249—his position in the Blackwood circle, 317—his simple vanity, 318—first connection with Mr Blackwood, 319—"The Queen's Wake," 320—"at his Grace's table," 321—introduced to John Murray,

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

503

- 322—advice regarding the beginning of ‘Maga,’ 324—a mortified contributor, 326—a good-humoured victim, ib.—the story of how Cow Wat was prayed for, 327, 328—a transaction with Oliver & Boyd, 329—a remonstrance, 330—a mysterious sum of fifty pounds, ib.—a visit to Abbotsford, 331—Scott’s friendly help, 333—Mr Blackwood acts as his literary agent, 335—jealousy of Scott, 336—too much quizzing, 337—James Ballantyne takes up the cudgels in defence, 338 et seq.—the fifty pounds again, 341—a decided reply, 342—a mistaken criticism of Galt, 343—the misfortune of a too powerful imagination, 345—a bad head for details, 346—an offer of “glorious sport,” 347—the ‘Shepherd’s Calendar,’ 350—fading powers, 351—a modest recommendation, 352—free-and-easy terms with Longman, 353—a novel suggestion, 354—a naive critic, 355—jealous contempt for “Delta,” 356—wonderful self-complacence, 357—his sorrow at Mr Blackwood’s death, 358—a glimpse of the Shepherd’s home, 359—a humorous reproach, ii. 1—Murray accepts a share in the ‘Jacobite Relics,’ 6, 7—‘Queen Hynde,’ 18—a capital Noctes, 75—a merry meeting, 93—his ‘Life of Scott,’ 119, 123—audacious self-laudation, 120—Maginn handles him, 123—a eulogy from Branwell Brontë, 178.
- Letters from: To William Blackwood*, i. 321, 323-325, 327, 329, 331, 333, 334, 336, 337, 346, 348, 351-355—Professor Wilson, i. 358.
- Letters to: From William Blackwood*, i. 342, 343, 345, 347-349.
- Hood, Thomas, ii. 366.
- Hook, Dean, ‘Pen Owen,’ ii. 12 et seq.—‘Percy Mallory,’ 17.
- Hook, Theodore, Lockhart steals his puns, i. 202—offer to puff ‘Maga,’ 209—contemporary reputation of, ii. 12.
- Horner, Francis, writes to the ‘Edinburgh Review,’ i. 100.
- Houghton, Lord, ii. 248.
- Hughes, Mrs, ii. 50, 85.
- Hughes, Thomas, ii. 260.
- Hunt, Leigh, attacked by Lockhart in the first number of ‘Maga,’ i. 133—the ‘Story of Rimini,’ 137, 138—estimated higher than Shelley or Keats, 139—“a conceited, coxcombical incendiary,” 189—the ‘Indicator,’ 205—another threat of libel, 274, 275—giving the devil his due, 379—Mr Blackwood shares the publication of ‘Rimini,’ ii. 2—a castigation by Christopher North, 82.
- Hunter, Samuel, editor of the ‘Glasgow Herald,’ i. 511.
- “Hypocrisy Unveiled and Calumny Detected,” a virulent attack on ‘Maga,’ i. 168.
- ‘Indicator,’ Lockhart’s opinion of Leigh Hunt’s, i. 205.
- “Ingoldsby, Tom of,” Rev. R. H. Barham, contributes a novel to ‘Maga,’ ii. 284.
- ‘Inheritance,’ by Miss Ferrier, i. 44.
- ‘Inquiry into the History of Scotland,’ Pinkerton’s, ii. 11.
- Interpolation, the crime of editorial, ii. 235.
- ‘Irish Sketch-Book,’ Thackeray’s, declined by the Blackwoods, ii. 166.
- Irving, David, ‘Life of George Buchanan,’ ii. 18.
- Irving, Washington, promised support of ‘Maga,’ i. 377.
- ‘Isle of Palms,’ Wilson’s, ii. 18.
- ‘Jacobite Relics,’ Hogg’s, ii. 6, 7.
- James, G. P. R., ii. 408.
- “Janet’s Repentance,” ii. 441, 442.
- Jeffrey, Lord, apology of, for rewarding genius with money, i. 6—praises ‘Triermain,’ 47—beginning of the ‘Edinburgh Review,’ 96—humorous allusions to, in the “Odontist’s” “Lines to Blackwood,” 215.
- Johannot, Tony, ii. 278.
- ‘Journal of Agriculture, The Quarterly,’ ii. 19.
- Jerrold, Douglas, occasional contributor to ‘Maga,’ ii. 241.
- ‘Julia de Roubigné,’ Henry Mackenzie’s, i. 174.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

504

INDEX.

- 'Kaleidoscope, Essay on the,' Brewster's, ii. 8.
- 'Katie Stewart,' Mrs Oliphant's, ii. 415.
- Keats, John, 'Maga's' attack on, exaggerated, i. 374—Maginn's compunctions, 375.
- Kerr's 'Travels,' ii. 3.
- Kinglake, A. W., first mention of the 'History of the Crimean War,' ii. 451.
- Kinnear, Samuel, a reminiscence by, ii. 70.
- 'Klosterheim,' Coleridge's eulogy of De Quincey's, i. 419.
- Knight, Charles, criticism of 'Maga' in the 'Athenaeum' by, i. 221.
- 'Knox, Life of John,' success of M'Crie's, ii. 3, 4.
- Laidlaw, William, used by Mr Blackwood as a bait to secure Scott, i. 145—letter from, regarding work for 'Maga,' 148—diffidence as to his merits, 154—Hogg's account of Scott's help to, 331.
Letters from: To William Blackwood, i. 148, 155.
Letters to: From William Blackwood, i. 150—Sir Walter Scott, i. 153.
- Lamb, Charles, Alaric Watts criticises, i. 501.
- "Lament for Captain Paton," Lockhart's, i. 213.
- Landor, Walter Savage, a fiery letter, ii. 193—"Imaginary Conversation between Southeby and Porson," 199.
- Lang, Andrew, 'Life and Letters of Lockhart' by, i. 181, 232.
- Langford, Robert, ii. 256, 357, 377, 417.
- 'Last of the Lairds,' Galt's, i. 456.
- Lauder, Robert, the Scottish painter, ii. 269, 277, 331.
- Lawrie, Sir Peter, the second Scottish Lord Mayor, ii. 114.
- Leitch, W. L., ii. 269.
- "Leopard," the, the designation of John Wilson in the Chaldee Manuscript, i. 123.
- Leslie, Professor John, an attack in 'Maga' upon, i. 177—result of the libel action by, 179—action for libel against 'Maga,' 368 et seq.
- Lewes, G. H., introduces George Eliot by letter, ii. 433—John Blackwood's reception of "Amos Barton," 434—a frequent contributor to 'Maga,' 447—a characteristic note, 448—Major Blackwood visits, 484.
- Liggins, Joseph, claims the authorship of 'Adam Bede,' ii. 439, 443-445.
- 'Lights and Shadows of Scottish Life,' Wilson and the reviews of, i. 269 et seq.; ii. 11.
- Lines "In Praise of Blackwood," the "Odontist's," i. 213 et seq.
- Lloyd, Charles, the story of a tragic drama, i. 266.
- Lockhart, John Gibson, one-sided account of the dispute between Mr Blackwood and Sir Walter Scott, i. 56, 69—a frequenter of the Princes Street Saloon, 101, 102—preparations for launching 'Maga,' 114 et seq.—the Chaldee Manuscript, 119, 123—attacks Leigh Hunt in the first number of 'Maga,' 133—challenges the author of an anonymous pamphlet, 169—comparison with Wilson, 181—early life, 182—friendship with Wilson, 183—first connection with Blackwood, 184—a generous donor, 185—the editor of 'Maga,' ib.—a boyish effusion, 188—friendship with Scott, 190—a brief joint-editorship of 'Maga,' 191—"giggling and making giggle," 193—powers of caricature, 193—the "Scorpion," 194—literary versatility, 195—retiring nature, 199—extracts from his correspondence illustrating the composition of the 'Noctes Ambrosianæ,' 202 et seq.—his connection with Scott, 216—a meeting with the "Crafty," 217—mellowed views, 218—'Peter's Letters to his Kinsfolk,' 219, 221—a bogus first edition, 220—his novels, 222—distrust in his own powers, 223—vexatious money matters, 224 et seq.—the Scott duel, 232—denial of the editorship of 'Maga,' 233—harmony restored, 234—Disraeli's mission, 235—with Scott in Ireland, ib.—accepts the editorship of the 'Quarterly,' ib.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

505

—Blackwood's letter of farewell, 236—his old love, 237—renewed interest in ‘Maga,’ 239 et seq.—a question of loyalty, 241—an ebullition of the old spirit, 244—a rejected article, 245—“rowed” by Murray, 246—leaving Chiefswood, 249—a double offence, ib.—letter to Mr Blackwood concerning Scott’s monument, 252—his farewell to ‘Maga,’ 253—remonstrates with Wilson regarding the Martin libel, 284 et seq.—falsely implicated in the Leslie libel, 370—touching epitaph on Maginn, 405—publication of ‘Adam Blair,’ ii. 11—‘Ancient Spanish Ballads,’ ib.—general character of his novels, 25, 26—two thousand a-year, 54—dissatisfaction with the ‘Quarterly,’ 55—Mr Blackwood visits him in London, 119—indignation at Hogg’s ‘Life of Scott,’ 119, 123—solicitude for Mr Blackwood’s health, 121—a heavy and anxious task, 124—last meeting with Mr Blackwood, 128—a tribute to Wm. Blackwood in ‘Maga,’ 133—disappearance from ‘Maga,’ 173—unduly high opinion of Warren, 218—guilty of editorial interpolations, 235—friends in council, 253—approval of the “Branch,” 257—John Blackwood visits him in London, 276, 277—sits for his portrait to Lauder, 277—savage criticism of J. F. Murray, 323—death of Charles Scott, 332—a proposed ‘Noctes,’ ib., 333—the brothers Blackwood’s confidence in, 336—bad health, 353—a good story about Croker, 359—the Professor caricatures him, 387—selling the Scott copyrights, 402—the heir of Abbotsford, ib.—a pathetic glimpse of an old veteran, 463—a projected Life of Wilson, 463, 465.

Letters from: To Alexander Blackwood, ii. 122, 132—John Blackwood, i. 253—Robert Blackwood, ii. 323—William Blackwood, i. 141, 144, 157, 202, 203, 205-209, 217-219, 221, 224, 228, 231, 234, 237-240, 242, 243, 246, 248-251, 280, 283; ii. 121, 123—John Murray, i. 164, 169—Rev. Mr Williams, i. 187, 189, 190.

Letters to: From William Blackwood, i. 210, 221, 229, 236, 239, 244.

Longman & Co., Messrs, Mr Blackwood negotiates with, on behalf of Hogg, i. 335—Hogg’s boasted good terms with, 353—anecdote of Wordsworth and, 410.

‘Lounger,’ the, i. 6.

Lyons, the journey to, sixty years ago, ii. 153.

Lytton, Lord, first mention of, by the Blackwoods, ii. 341, 344—a mysterious secret, 354—‘The Caxtons,’ 355—death of Alexander Blackwood, 375—an anonymous venture, 405—‘Maga’s’ “pyramidal massiveness,” 407—his contemporary reputation, 418—‘The Caxtons,’ a new beginning, 419—a letter from Macaulay, ib.—‘My Novel,’ 421, 423—confidence in John Blackwood, 422—a four-volume novel, 423—curious method of writing a novel, 424—much in request, 425—remuneration for the Caxton novels, 426—‘What will He do with It?’ 428—a poor critic of his own, ib.—‘Ernest Maltravers’ thought unsuitable for a youthful mind, 429—an unkind cut at his lady devotees, ib.—forcibly expressed praise of ‘Maga,’ 430—a self-controlled politician, 479—tracking a thief of a despatch, 480, 481.

Letters from: To John Blackwood, ii. 420, 422, 425, 429-431.

Letters to: From John Blackwood, ii. 375, 432.

Macaulay, Lord, criticism of Lytton’s ‘Caxtons,’ ii. 420.

McCrie, Rev. Thomas, publication of the ‘Life of John Knox’ by, i. 33, 34—high opinion of the ‘Siege of Corinth,’ 53—remonstrates against ‘Maga,’ 176—success of the ‘Life of Knox,’ ii. 3, 4—negotiations regarding the publication of the ‘Life of Andrew Melville,’ 4 et seq.—Murray’s withdrawal from the ‘Life of Melville,’ 7.

- Mackenzie, Henry, reputation of, in Edinburgh, i. 6—"the Man of Feeling," remonstrance concerning 'Maga,' 174—contributions to 'Maga,' 187—reviews Wilson's 'Lights and Shadows of Scottish Life,' 269—an indignant author, 270—appreciation of Galt, 451.
- Mackintosh, Sir James, i. 168.
- Macdise, Daniel, ii. 260.
- M'Neill, Sir John, ii. 409, 410.
- Macnish, Dr., "A Modern Pythagorean," ii. 98.
- 'Maga,' the beginning of, i. 114—the first number, 127—an extraordinary sensation, 129—attack on S. T. Coleridge, 133—the question of the Editorship, 150, 185—Scott's verdict on the first number, 151—John Murray's advice regarding the composition of, 159—threatened change of name, 167, 168—a virulent pamphlet respecting, 168—Murray's final secession, 172—remonstrances from men of letters, 174 et seq.—a charge of profanity, 176—attack on Professor John Leslie, 177—contributions by Scott, 187—Lockhart's report on the early numbers, 191—Lockhart attacks the Cockney School, ib.—continued attacks on the Cockney School, 196—onslaught on the 'Scotsman,' ib.—warfare with the 'Examiner,' 197—improved temper, 206—a double number, 207—lines in praise of, 213 et seq.—change in length and number of articles, 224—Lockhart leaves for the 'Quarterly,' 236—strength of old ties, 237—Lockhart takes farewell, 253—the Martin libel and attack on Wordsworth, 280 et seq.—apologies, 285—Wilson's powerful aid, 288—articles with extracts, 292—unpunctual contributors, 293—the Editorship made explicit, 302—the Ettrick Shepherd as a literary adviser, 324—no longer a riotous periodical, 348—the Leslie libel case, 368 et seq.—the attack on Keats, 374—Washington Irving's opinion of, 377—the wonderful character of Maginn's contributions, 383, 384—Maginn's complaint of provincialism, 396—Coleridge becomes a contributor, 411—Coleridge's criticism, 414, 419—a splendid tribute from Coleridge, 420—De Quincey foresees that he must be the Atlas of the Magazine, 427—a compliment from De Quincey, 434—Croker's criticisms, 474, 476—recruiting agents, 478—the faithfulness of 'Maga's' servants, 483—a special Coronation number, 505—comments of Isaac D'Israeli, 517—"a large and changing company," 521—the portrait of Buchanan, ii. 1, 257, 357—Alison writes three articles in a week, 24—two valuable recruits, 29—"a glorious monument of British literature," 30—contributions from Scott, 64—Mr Blackwood reports continued success, 70—the recognised Tory organ, 75, 79—popularity in India, 79, 82—the Duke of Wellington buys a set, 80—more double numbers, 90—a large circulation, 102—another double number, 103—independence in politics, ib., 104—a complimentary letter from the Duke of Newcastle, 106—Lockhart's memorial tribute to Mr Blackwood, 133—Wilson's services after Mr Blackwood's death, 135, 136—Thackeray's rejected addresses, 166—survivors of the early group, 173—'Fraser' is framed after the model of 'Maga,' 174—praise and offered contributions from Branwell Brontë, 178, 184—a rejected aspirant, 185—John Sterling, 187—a stormy letter from Walter Savage Landor, 193—Alfred Mallalieu's advice, 202—contributions from Lord Neaves, 205—Wilson's continued support, ib., 206—a dual control, 215—Warren "heads the gallant ranks" again, 220—Warren introduces new recruits, 235—the political article, 252—"Tom of Ingoldsby" and Rev. John Eagles, 285—"Amicus of P.," 287—contributions from Samuel Phillips, 312, 316—a "splendid number," 341, 342—an averted change, 347, 348—"The Caxtons," 355—political articles by

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

507

- Alison and Warren, ib.—the political attitude of, 380 et seq.—a forgotten index, 383—Lytton's best work done in its service, 405—high opinion of 'Maga,' 407—Ayton's "Glenmutchkin Railway," 408—Mrs Oliphant's 'Katie Stewart,' 415—again the question of the Editorship, 416—a family inspiration, 417—Lytton's 'My Novel,' 423—fifteen instalments, 424—'Maga's' "trumpet-tone," 427—a forcible expression of praise from Lytton, 430—Sir Edward Hamley joins the ranks, 432—George Eliot's début, 436—a reputed editor, 449—'Firmilian,' 450—champions the cause of Sir Edward Hamley, ib.—a brilliant group of supporters, 453—compliment from Disraeli, 483.
- 'Maggie Reekie,' Lockhart's name for Constable's Magazine, i. 158.
- Maginn, William, creation of "Oehlenschlaeger," by, i. 210—deterioration commented on by Lockhart, 242—Wilson's eulogy, 273—lends his aid to screen Wilson, 283—his first appearance on the Blackwood stage, 362—Thackeray's "Captain Shandon," 363—"O'Doherty," 364—the anonymous R. T. S., 365—remarkable adaptability of style, 367—the Leslie libel, 368—a cool reply, 371—compunctions regarding Keats, 374—is complimented by the publisher, 376, 378—curious remuneration, 378—offers the publisher blarney, 379—characteristic introduction to Mr Blackwood in Edinburgh, 383—a joyous reception, 385—a serious letter, 387— indecision of character, 388—criticism of Galt, 390—interposition in the Martin libel affair, 392 et seq.—criticises 'Maga' for provincialism, 396—offered a free hand in the 'Quarterly,' 398—a fatal facility, 400—the editor's counsels, 401—Mr Blackwood admires his style, 403—degradation, 404—Lockhart's touching epitaph, 405—Coleridge's admiration for O'Doherty, 413—the only one allowed to don Christopher's robes, 454—a recruiting agent for 'Maga,' 478—commits an exquisite crime, ii. 27—the support of 'Fraser,' 37—attack on Hogg's 'Life of Scott,' 123—drifting away from 'Maga,' 173—attacks Alaric A. Watts in 'Fraser,' 174—anecdote of, and the Duke of Sussex' books, 257— renewing the old bonds, 281—bad accounts of, 334—a scandalous memoir, 360.
- Letters from:* To William Blackwood, i. 367, 371, 374, 375, 381, 385, 386, 389, 393, 394, 396.
- Letters to:* From John Wilson, i. 365—William Blackwood, i. 367, 368, 369, 376-380, 401, 402.
- 'Malachi Malagrowther,' publication of, ii. 18.
- Mallalieu, Alfred, a self-confident journalist, ii. 201—advice regarding extracts from 'Maga,' 202—condemns the tactics of the 'Times,' 203—advises a change in the form of 'Maga,' 347.
- Manners, Lord John, ii. 381.
- 'Mansie Wauch,' success of "Delta's," ii. 173, 269.
- 'Margaret Lyndsay,' Wilson's, ii. 25.
- 'Margaret Maitland,' Mrs Oliphant's, ii. 415.
- 'Marriage,' by Miss Ferrier, i. 42, 173—Murray's share in, ii. 6.
- Martin, John, contemporary reputation of, as an artist, 469.
- Martin, Richard, Wilson's libel on, i. 280 et seq., 286—Maginn's interposition, 392.
- Martin, Sir Theodore, ii. 241, 449.
- 'Melville, Life of Andrew,' the publication of Mc'Crie's, ii. 4 et seq.—Murray's angry withdrawal, 7.
- 'Mill on the Floss,' the, ii. 445.
- Milnes, R. Monckton, ii. 248.
- 'Mirror,' the, i. 6.
- Moir, D. M., "Delta," introduction of Mrs Oliphant to Christopher North by, i. 315—Hogg's jealous contempt for, 356—an account of Maginn in Edinburgh by, 383—success of 'Mansie Wauch,' ii. 173, 269.
- Moir, George, a genial contributor to 'Maga,' ii. 205, 295.
- Moncreiff, Sir Henry, ii. 79.
- Moore, Colonel George Frederick, ii. 101.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

- Moore, Miss Emma, Major Blackwood's marriage with, ii. 111.
 Moore, Thomas, ii. 124.
 'Morning Herald,' the, ii. 318.
 'Mothers and Daughters,' Mrs Gore's, ii. 349, 350.
 'Mountain Bard,' James Hogg's, i. 329.
 Mower, Arthur, the 'White Cottage' by, i. 95.
 Mudie's Library, ii. 457 et seq.
 Mundell & Co., William Blackwood enters the service of, i. 12.
 Murray, John, letter from, to Wm. Blackwood concerning a second-hand catalogue, i. 29—appoints Blackwood his agent instead of Ballantyne and Constable, 30—letter to Constable respecting Blackwood, 31—reason for embarking on the 'Quarterly,' 32—character as a publisher, 33—letters from Blackwood, 46, 47—letters to Blackwood, 48—offers handsome terms to Byron, ib.—literary enthusiasm, 51—criticism of Byron's poetry, 53—Mr Blackwood announces the offer of 'The Tales of my Landlord,' 57—his account of the 'Black Dwarf' transaction, 75—an attempt to "draw" Scott, 77—remonstrances from Mr Blackwood, 89 et seq.—advice to Mr Blackwood as to how to improve his business, 94—a publisher's grievance, 85—irregularity in the publication of the 'Quarterly,' 107—advises Mr Blackwood regarding the composition of 'Maga,' 159—buys a share in the Magazine, 162—remonstrances, 163—receives an ironical letter from Lockhart and Wilson, 164—proposes to change the name of 'Maga,' 167—annoyance at Lockhart and Wilson for revealing their identity, 170—finally breaks with 'Maga,' 172—an abortive magazine, 190—sends Disraeli on a mission to Lockhart, 235—a new "daily" and the 'Quarterly,' ib.—the "Emperor" "rowed" by the Cabinet, 246—patronage of the Ettrick Shepherd, 322—"the Representative," 518—joint-publications with William Blackwood, ii. 2—the honour of a Scotch edition of the 'Quarterly,' 3—criticises one of Mr Blackwood's business dealings, 4—accepting a "risque," 6—a share in Miss Ferrier and James Hogg, ib.—angrily withdraws from McCrie's 'Life of Melville,' 7—the unpunctual 'Quarterly,' 10—contemporary opinion of his shortlived newspaper, 57—his feelings regarding the Oxford Movement, 166—friendliness towards Alexander Blackwood, 175—death, 346.
- Letters from:* To James Ballantyne, i. 30—William Blackwood, i. 29, 48, 53, 61, 78, 94, 159, 162, 163, 170, 171; ii. 4—Thomas Blackwood, i. 172—Arch. Constable, i. 31—Sir Walter Scott, i. 77.
- Letters to:* From William Blackwood, i. 46, 47, 57, 62, 86, 88, 89, 160, 164; ii. 5, 8—John Gibson Lockhart, i. 164, 169—John Wilson, i. 164.
- Murray, J. F., author of "The World of London" in 'Maga,' ii. 276—a difficult contributor, 320—contributions to 'Maga,' 322—a savage criticism by Lockhart, 323—a stormy leave-taking, 324, 325—an amusing meeting with Bentley, the publisher, 330—"bilious and cross-grained," 337.
- 'My Novel,' Lytton's, ii. 421, 423.
- 'Napoleon, Life of,' Scott's, ii. 76-78.
 Neaves, Lord, contributes to 'Maga,' ii. 165, 205.
 'Nelson, Life of,' Southey's, ii. 354.
 Newby, Messrs, ii. 459.
 Newcastle, Duke of, a compliment to 'Maga' from the, ii. 106.
 Newdigate, Charles, ii. 314.
 'Noctes Ambrosianæ,' original germ of the, i. 197—critical value of the, 198—the machinery of the, 201—nature of their composition illustrated from Lockhart's letters, 202 et seq.—a safety-valve for 'Maga,' 206—Mr Blackwood objects to the introduction of the "Crafty," 210—purely fictitious character of, 261—the dangerous freedom of, 277—wanton attack of Wilson on

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

509

- Wordsworth, 278—Scott criticised, 279—apologies, 285, 286—Hogg's position in, 317—a “beastly Noctes,” 355—literary gossip provided by Alarie A. Watts, 499—Isaac D'Israeli's opinion, 517—Christopher revives “a sort of Noctes,” ii. 409—gone out of fashion, 412—Ferrier's republication of, 469.
- ‘Now and Then,’ Warren suggests a review of his own novel, ii. 237, 238.
- “Odontist,” Lockhart's jest on James Scott, the Glasgow dentist, i. 211—objection to “jocks,” 212—his elegy in praise of ‘Blackwood,’ 213 et seq.
- “Oehlenschlaeger,” humorous articles in ‘Maga’ under the name of, i. 207, 209.
- Oliphant, Francis, erroneous statements by W. B. Scott regarding, ii. 471—a memorial window at Aylesbury, 472.
- Oliphant, Laurence, the attainments of, ii. 287, 450, 475.
- Oliphant, Mrs, “Delta” introduces her to Christopher North, i. 315, 316—a visit from Mr Blackmore, ii. 21—“Katie Stewart” accepted for ‘Maga,’ 415—a recollection of ‘Ernest Maltravers,’ 429—contributions to ‘Maga,’ 454—the patronage of Mudie, 458—alluded to as “Katie” in the Blackwood correspondence, 470—Major Blackwood's account of a visit to, ib.—repudiation of W. B. Scott's assertions regarding Mr Francis Oliphant, 471—a scratch review for ‘Maga,’ 475—a spoilt dinner for Major Blackwood, 477—reminiscence of proposing a serial to John and Major Blackwood, 485 et seq.—the ‘Chronicles of Carlingford,’ 487.
- Oliver & Boyd, first printers of the ‘Edinburgh Monthly Magazine,’ i. 113—publish the Ettrick Shepherd's ‘Mountain Bard,’ 328.
- ‘Omen, The,’ Galt's, ii. 25, 57—reviewed by Scott, 64.
- Palmerston, Lord, ii. 427.
- ‘Parisina,’ i. 49—Mr Blackwood's share in the publication of, ii. 2.
- Parker, J. W., publisher of ‘Fraser,’ ii. 245.
- Payne & Foss, Messrs, ii. 249.
- Peel, Jonathan, a contributor to ‘Maga,’ ii. 235.
- Peel, Sir Robert, ii. 251.
- ‘Pelham,’ Lytton's, ii. 355, 418.
- ‘Pen Owen,’ the romance attaching to the publication of, ii. 12 et seq.—a comparative failure, 17.
- ‘Peninsular War, History of the,’ Captain Hamilton's, ii. 90.
- ‘Percy Mallory,’ Dean Hook's, ii. 17.
- ‘Peter's Letters to his Kinsfolk,’ i. 101, 184, 219.
- Phillips, Samuel, mythical account of his first connection with the Blackwoods, ii. 300—the true story, 301—speculative publishers, ib.—a grateful author, 302—writing a novel under difficulties, 303—success of ‘Caleb Stukely,’ 305—a letter of congratulation from “Boz,” 306—ill-health, 307—an indomitable writer, 308—a kind physician, 310—“Warden of the Borders,” 311—connection with the ‘Times,’ 312—gratitude to the Blackwoods, ib.—an overworked journalist, 316—the apotheosis of the “Jew Boy,” 317—the ‘Morning Herald,’ 318—death, 320—John Blackwood reports his personal appearance, 340—the Wandering Jew, 366.
- Letters from: To John Blackwood,* ii. 301-303, 305-310, 312, 314-318.
- ‘Philosophical Journal, Edinburgh,’ Dr Brewster's editorship of the, ii. 9.
- Pinkerton, John, ‘Inquiry into the History of Scotland,’ ii. 11.
- ‘Pirate,’ the, Lockhart's opinion of, in MS., i. 218.
- Pirates, book, i. 232, 233; ii. 338, 345, 346, 353.
- Pollok, Robert, extraordinary success of ‘The Course of Time’ by, ii. 18—early death, ib.—77, 81, 84, 94, 269.
- Porter, Mrs, ii. 489.
- Pringle, Thomas, joint-editor of the ‘Edinburgh Monthly Magazine,’ i.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

510

INDEX.

- 98 — the Magazine changes its editors, 104—later career, 110—Sir Walter Scott's joke regarding, ii. 115—the Chaldee Manuscript, 119.
- Printing-office, establishment of Blackwood's, ii. 388—Major Blackwood's proposed management of, 397.
- 'Prometheus Unbound,' Blackwood's share in Shelley's, ii. 11.
- Publishing, early combination of, with bookselling, i. 14—rapid development of, 24 et seq.—intimate relations in, at beginning of century, 32.
- Puffing, Colburn's notable feat in, ii. 356.
- 'Quarterly Journal of Agriculture,' ii. 19.
- 'Quarterly Review,' the early sobriety of the, i. 33, 97—irregularity in the publication of the, 107—Lockhart accepts the editorship of the, 235—an ultra-respectable organ, 237—a Scotch edition of the, ii. 3—an unpunctual editor, 10—Lockhart to get two thousand a-year, 54—second-rate contributors, 55.
- 'Queen Hynde,' Hogg's, ii. 18.
- 'Queen's Wake,' the publication of Hogg's, i. 319.
- 'Quentin Durward,' Coleridge compares, and De Quincey's 'Klosterheim,' i. 419.
- Ramsay, Allan, the shop of, in High Street, i. 5, 6.
- Reading, peculiar method of, J. W. Croker's, ii. 359.
- Reform Bill, disturbances in Edinburgh over the, ii. 103.
- 'Reginald Dalton,' ii. 26.
- 'Review, Edinburgh,' beginning of the, i. 96.
- Richardson, John, mediation of, in the Leigh Hunt libel case, i. 136.
- 'Rimini,' Mr Blackwood shares the publication of, ii. 2.
- 'Ringan Gilhaize,' Galt's, i. 465.
- Rintoul, R. S., beginning of the 'Spectator,' i. 512—high ideals, 514.
- Ross, Robert, William Blackwood's brief partnership with, i. 16.
- Ruskin, Mr, condemnation of Edinburgh architecture by, ii. 99—the 'Modern Painters,' 403.
- Russell, Lord John, ii. 380.
- 'Salathiel,' Dr Croly's, i. 480.
- "Saloon, the Old," the Conservative headquarters in Edinburgh, ii. 268.
- 'Sayings and Doings,' Hook's, ii. 12.
- 'Scenes of Clerical Life,' John Blackwood's acceptance of the first of the, ii. 434.
- 'Schlegel's Lectures on the History of Literature,' Lockhart's translation of, i. 185.
- "Scorpion," the, the designation of Lockhart in the Chaldee Manuscript, i. 123.
- 'Scotch Heraldry,' Nisbet's, ii. 11.
- 'Scots Magazine,' the, i. 98.
- 'Scotsman,' the, attacked by 'Maga,' i. 196.
- Scott, James, the original of Lockhart's "Odontist," i. 211.
- Scott, John, the tragedy of, i. 229, 232—Leigh Hunt's account of the duel, 379.
- Scott, Michael, De Quincey's praise of 'Tom Cringle's Log,' i. 443—an immediate success, ii. 29—'The Cruise of the Midge,' 42—confidence in his publisher, 43.
- Scott, Thomas, suggested author of 'Waverley,' ii. 78.
- Scott, Sir Walter, early visit to William Blackwood, i. 24—fluence in the new revival of letters, 25, 27—letter from, 28—a literary dinner with Mr Blackwood, 49—excitement regarding, 50—early publishing connections, 56—first mention of the 'Tales of my Landlord,' 57—a curious proposal, 58—one of the "Black Hussars of Literature," 71—another version of an angry letter, 73—indignation at Gifford's interference, ib. et seq.—publication of the 'Black Dwarf,' 76—"either by Walter Scott or the devil," 77—his own reviewer, 78—more bickerings over the 'Black Dwarf,' 81 et seq.—Constable publishes a fifth edition, to the indignation of Blackwood and Murray, 83

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

511

- the end of his publishing connection with Blackwood, 88—explanation of the transaction, 91—mentioned in the Chaldee Manuscript, 122—endeavours to enlist him for ‘Maga,’ 140, 144, 145—solicitude regarding William Laidlaw, 147—his opinion regarding the first number of ‘Maga,’ 151—“good-humoured pleasantness,” 152—“I never write poetry nowadays,” 154—occasional service as a reader, 155—continued friendliness to ‘Maga,’ 156—contributions to ‘Maga,’ 187—interest in Constable, 211—his affectionate relations with Lockhart, 216 et seq.—‘The Pirate,’ 219—with Lockhart in Ireland, 235—Lockhart sounds the alarm of the fall of Constable, 237—a polite dismissal, 239—attacked by Wilson in the ‘Noctes,’ 249, 250—the question of a monument to, 252—relations with the Ettrick Shepherd, 317—Hogg’s account of Scott’s interest in Willie Laidlaw, 331—vexation at Lockhart’s connection with ‘Maga,’ 370—Coleridge criticises his style, 419—his extraordinary prudence, 438—anticipation of Galt, 452—‘Malachi Malagrowther,’ ii. 18—present-day neglect, 25—a letter of advice to Samuel Warren, 32—reviews Galt’s ‘Omen’ in ‘Maga,’ 64—‘Life of Napoleon,’ 76-78—a visit to St Paul’s, 85—bon-mot at the Six-Foot Club, 115—a joke about Thomas Pringle, ib.—Lockhart’s indignation at Hogg’s ‘Life,’ 119, 123.
- Letters from:* To James Ballantyne, i. 71—William Blackwood, i. 28, 146, 149, 151, 154, 155—W. Laidlaw, i. 153—Samuel Warren, ii. 32.
- Letters to:* From William Blackwood, i. 76, 145—John Murray, i. 77.
- Scott, W. B., refutation of statements in the ‘Reminiscences’ of, ii. 471.
- Sharpe, Charles Kirkpatrick, dispute between Mr Blackwood and, i. 53 et seq.
- “Shaving-Pot, to my Tin,” sonnet, Coleridge’s, i. 421.
- Shelley, Mr Blackwood’s share in the ‘Cenci,’ ii. 2—Blackwood’s share in ‘Prometheus Unbound,’ 11.
- Shorter, Mr Clement, ii. 179.
- ‘Siege of Corinth,’ the, i. 49.
- Simeon, Rev. Charles, ii. 2.
- Simmons, B., ii. 339.
- Simpson, George, ii. 256, 271 et seq., 417.
- Six-Foot Club, a, ii. 115.
- ‘Sketch of British America,’ Macgregor’s, ii. 22.
- Smellie, William, printer and author, i. 6.
- Smith, Sheriff Archibald, ii. 72, 412.
- Smith, Sydney, a joke at the expense of Colburn, ii. 356.
- Sonnet “To my Tin Shaving-Pot,” Coleridge’s, i. 421.
- Southey, Robert, letter from Mr Blackwood to, suggesting an article, i. 55—Lockhart relents in his criticism, 206—De Quincey criticises his attitude to periodical literature, 434—‘Life of Nelson,’ ii. 354.
- ‘Spaewife,’ the, Galt’s, ii. 25.
- ‘Spanish Ballads,’ Lockhart’s, ii. 11.
- ‘Spectator,’ the, i. 6, 432.
- Spectator*, character of the, 512.
- Stamp Act, repeal of the, ii. 395.
- ‘Standard,’ the, ii. 511.
- ‘Statistical Account of Scotland,’ the, ii. 22.
- Stephens, Henry, the ‘Book of the Farm,’ ii. 19, 464.
- Sterling, John, contemporary reputation of, ii. 185—the two biographies, 186—contributes to ‘Maga,’ 187—complains of detained manuscripts, 189—favourably reviewed by Wilson, 190—a translation of Goethe, 191—a curious specimen of ignorance, 192—friendship with Rev. James White, 200.
- Letters from:* To the Editor of ‘Maga,’ ii. 187-189, 191.
- Steuart, Miss Elizabeth, i. 20.
- Steuart, Miss Janet, of Carfin, William Blackwood’s introduction to, i. 15—letter from, 19—marriage of, ib.
- Steuart, Surgeon Frederick, ii. 92.
- ‘Story of Rimini,’ curious charges respecting Leigh Hunt’s, i. 137, 138.
- ‘Subaltern,’ Gleig’s, i. 483, 487—Mr

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

512

INDEX.

- Blackwood reports the success of, ii. 69.
- Sym, Robert, "Timothy Tickler," uncle of Christopher North, i. 197.
- 'Table-Talk,' Hazlitt's, Blackwood the joint-publisher of, ii. 11.
- 'Tait's Magazine,' ii. 109.
- 'Tales of my Landlord,' offer of, to Mr Blackwood, i. 57—a strange bargain, 58—a work of "splendid merit," 68.
- Talfourd, Sir Henry, the Copyright Act of, ii. 207.
- 'Tatler,' the, i. 95.
- Tegg & Son, Messrs, the 'Edinburgh Encyclopædia' sold to, ii. 11.
- 'Ten Thousand a-Year,' immediate popularity of, ii. 32—the history of its appearance in 'Maga,' 217 et seq.—a sharp correspondence regarding, 221 et seq.—the original MS. kept as an heirloom, 230—dramatised, 275, 276, 279.
- Thackeray, W. M., portrait of Maginn as Captain Shandon, i. 363, 392, 405—the 'Irish Sketch-Book' declined by the Blackwoods, ii. 166—friendship with John Blackwood, 197—a letter from, 240—rejections, 241—reviewed in the 'Quarterly,' 456.
- Thomson, Dr Andrew, ii. 11, 79.
- 'Three Perils of Man,' Hogg's, i. 335.
- "Tickler, Timothy," pseudonym of Robert Sym, i. 197.
- "Tiger," the, pseudonym in 'Maga' for Dr John Dunlop, i. 239.
- 'Tom Cringle's Log,' immediate success of, ii. 29—Delane proposes a review in the 'Times,' 330.
- 'Tower of London,' Harrison Ainsworth gives a dinner to celebrate the completion of his, ii. 260.
- 'Travels,' Kerr's, ii. 3.
- 'Trierman,' the publication of, i. 47.
- Trollope, Anthony, founder of fiction as a serious profession, i. 438.
- 'Vivian Grey,' i. 507.
- 'Warder, the Berwick,' Robert Blackwood acquires the, ii. 311.
- Warren, Samuel, immediate popularity of, ii. 29—reveals his identity to Mr Blackwood, ib.—naïve self-esteem, 31—'Ten Thousand a-Year,' 32, 217—a letter of advice from Scott, ib.—a man of "prodigious talents," 33—dismay at a rejected article, 35—declines to write for 'Fraser,' 37—an abortive attempt to imitate Christopher, 38—a secret betrayed, 40—the American market, ib.—affecting letter on Mr Blackwood's death, 41—vastly superior to Dickens, 219—a comical fear, 220—Alexander Blackwood lops his MS., 223—a passage-at-arms, 224 et seq.—reconciliations, 229—an amusing souvenir, 230—the "fearless rival" of Dickens, 231—a crusade against book-pirates, 232—a plaintive appeal, 234—new recruits introduced to 'Maga,' 235—suggests a review of his own book, 237, 238—a commentary on Blackstone, 239—a magnanimous act, 275, 276—in the seventh heaven, 278, 279—recommends Mrs Gore to try Blackwood, 349—a pessimistic prophet, 386—plans for the production of 'Now and Then,' 403—Master of Lunacy, 404—a rejected article, 410—absurdity of 'The Lily and the Bee,' 456—elected M.P. for Midhurst, 473—complex and amusing character, ib.—coolness towards the Duke of Wellington, 474—a comical method of toasting his aunt, 476—expecting a summons to join the Government, 479.
- Letters from:* To Alexander Blackwood, ii. 217, 219–223, 226, 231, 232, 234, 236, 238—Robert Blackwood, ii. 41—William Blackwood, ii. 29, 33, 36, 38, 39—Mrs Gore, ii. 349.
- Letters to:* From Alexander Blackwood, ii. 225—William Blackwood, ii. 35—Mrs Gore, ii. 348—Sir Walter Scott, ii. 32.
- Waterloo, a contemporary comment on, i. 47.
- Watts, Alaric Attila, his share in the 'Noctes,' i. 209—provides literary gossip, 499—a youthful littérateur, 495—a mild remonstrance, 497—

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

INDEX.

513

- curious criticism of Lamb, 501—suggests a sheet of extracts from ‘Maga,’ 502—the first literary agent, 503—a literary egotist, 504—‘Maga’s’ Coronation number, 506—attacked by Maginn in ‘Fraser,’ ii. 174.
- Letters from: To William Blackwood*, i. 496, 497, 500, 501, 503, 505–508—Robert Blackwood, ii. 174.
- Webbe, Cornelius, curious contemporary criticism regarding, i. 139.
- Wellington, Duke of, universal homage paid him, i. 485—Gleig deputed to write his Life, 486—a compliment to ‘Maga,’ ii. 80—conduct of, at Waterloo, 233, 360, 361—story of, and Samuel Warren, 474.
- ‘White Cottage,’ the, Murray’s grievance concerning, i. 95.
- White, Rev. James, a prolific contributor to ‘Maga,’ ii. 194 et seq.—a hospitable house, 195—a friend of Thackeray, 196—genial criticism, 198 et seq.—friendship with John Sterling, 200.
- Letters from: To Robert Blackwood*, ii. 196, 198, 200.
- Wilson, John (Christopher North), a frequenter of the Princes Street Saloon, i. 101, 102—first mentioned in connection with the Magazine, 107—preparations for launching ‘Maga,’ 114 et seq.—the Chaldee Manuscript, 119, 123—powers of rapid composition, 124—challenges the author of an anonymous pamphlet, 169—early appreciation of Wordsworth, 171—friendship with Lockhart, 183—a brief joint-editorship of ‘Maga,’ 191—“giggling and making giggle,” 193—attacks Scott in the ‘Noctes,’ 249—careless brilliancy, 255—the ‘Noctes,’ 256—a descendant of Montrose, 257—meeting with Lockhart, 258—the professorship, 259—Scott’s advocacy, 260—early letters to Mr Blackwood, 263 et seq.—attack on Coleridge, 265—a curious argument for inserting a tragedy, 266—Mr Blackwood’s feelings injured, 268—‘Lights and Shadows of Scottish Life,’ 269—furious re-joiner on the Man of Feeling, 270—a lecture to Mr Blackwood on reviewing, 273—more threats from Leigh Hunt, 274—a visit at Elleray from Mr Blackwood, 276—an unprovoked attack on Wordsworth, 278—a curious criticism of Scott, 279—perturbation over the Martin libel, 280 et seq.—“midsummer madness,” 285—a bad joke, 287—powerful aid to ‘Maga,’ 288—a poor printer’s devil, 292—unpunctuality with articles, 293—a burst of sentiment, 295—glorious resolutions, 298—unearned money returned, 300—the question of editorship cleared up, 302—another sentimental quarrel, 303—eulogy from Mr Blackwood, 308—a criticism of Mrs Hemans, 309—an ambiguous literary criticism, 311—proposals regarding his collected poems, 312—further irregularities, 314—the traditional Christopher, 315—Mrs Oliphant’s visit, 316—Mr Blackwood’s account of the election to the chair, 376—Maginn’s interposition in the Martin libel, 392—introduces De Quincey to Mr Blackwood, 423—cordial appreciation of Galt’s ‘Annals,’ 451—‘Lights and Shadows of Scottish Life,’ ii. 11—‘Isle of Palms,’ 18—general character of his novels, 25—the difficulty of imitating Christopher, 38—a high-flown oration, 39—a castigation to Leigh Hunt, 82—“a very splendid poem,” 104—Christopher as a political speaker, 107—jealous of interference with the ‘Noctes,’ 121—last meeting with Mr Blackwood, 128—services to ‘Maga’ after Mr Blackwood’s death, 135, 136—space reserved for him in ‘Maga,’ 162—responds to the young Blackwoods’ appeal, 171—supreme in contemporary reputation, 172—a ludicrous exaggeration, 193—Rev. James White’s criticism, 199—the central figure of ‘Maga,’ 205, 206—the Professor’s portrait, 339—a difficult case of “managing the Professor,” 342, 343—reputation as an orator, 364—death of his wife, 408—a ‘Noctes’

VOL. II.

2 K

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02140-1 - Annals of a Publishing House, Volume 2

Margaret Oliphant

Index

More information

514

INDEX.

- of the old kind, 409—the “Dies Boreales,” 411—John Blackwood’s comment, 432.
- Letters from* : To William Blackwood, i. 140-142, 263, 265, 270, 272, 274, 275, 281, 289, 291, 293, 295-300, 302-304, 309, 310, 312, 313—William Maginn, i. 365—John Murray, i. 164.
- Letters to* : From Alexander Blackwood, ii. 172—William Blackwood, i. 127, 262, 268, 288, 301, 308—James Hogg, i. 358.
- Wilson, Sir Erasmus, ii. 476.
- Wordsworth, William, early appreciation shown by Professor Wilson, i. 171—attacked in the ‘Noctes’ by Wilson, 278—an apology, 285, 286—a story of, and Messrs Longman, 410—a meeting with Alexander and John Blackwood at Milan, ii. 158—high opinion of his own works, ib.—a curious contemporary criticism of, 199.
- Zangwill, Mr, ii. 314.

THE END.

PRINTED BY WILLIAM BLACKWOOD AND SONS.