

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02228-6 - The Works of Thomas Carlyle, Volume 5

Edited by Henry Duff Traill

Index

More information

INDEX

- ACINCOURT, Shakspeare's battle of, 110.
 Ali, young, Mahomet's kinsman and convert, 58.
 Allegory, the sportful shadow of earnest Faith, 5, 31.
 Ambition, foolish charge of, 222; laudable ambition, 225.
 Arabia and the Arabs, 47.
 Balder, the white Sungod, 18, 34.
 Belief, the true god-announcing miracle, 57, 76, 145, 173; war of, 204. See Religion, Scepticism.
 Benthamism, 75, 172.
 Books, miraculous influence of, 160, 164; our modern University, Church and Parliament, 161.
 Boswell, 183.
 Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, 6.
 Burns, 188; his birth, and humble heroic parents, 188; rustic dialect, 189; the most gifted British soul of his century, 190; resemblance to Mirabeau, 191; his sincerity, 192; his visit to Edinburgh, Lion-hunted to death, 194.
 Caabah, the, with its Black Stone and sacred Well, 49.
 Canopus, worship of, 9.
 Charles I. fatally incapable of being dealt with, 214.
 China, literary governors of, 169.
 Church. See Books.
 Cromwell, 208; his hypochondria, 212, 217; early marriage and conversion; a quiet farmer, 212; his Ironsides, 215; his Speeches, 219, 233; his 'ambition,' and the like, 221; dismisses the Rump Parliament, 230; Protectorship and Parliamentary Futilities, 233; his last days, and closing sorrows, 236.
 Dante, 86; biography in his Book and Portrait, 86; his birth, education, and early career, 87; love for Beatrice, unhappy marriage, banishment, 87; uncourtier-like ways, 88; death, 90; his Divina Commedia genuinely a song, 91; the Unseen World, as figured in the Christianity of the Middle Ages, 96; 'uses' of Dante, 99.
 David, the Hebrew King, 46.
 Divine Right of Kings, 198.
 Duty, 30, 63; infinite nature of, 75; sceptical spiritual paralysis, 170.
 Edda, the Scandinavian, 16.
 Eighteenth Century, the sceptical, 170-177, 208.
 Elizabethan Era, 101.
 Faults, his, not the criterion of any man, 46.
 Fichte's theory of literary men, 156.
 Fire, miraculous nature of, 17.
 Forms, necessity for, 205.
 Frost. See Fire.
 Goethe's 'Characters,' 105; notablest of literary men, 157.
 Graphic, secret of being, 93.
 Gray's misconception of Norse lore, 34.
 Hampden, 207.
 Heroes, Universal History the united biographies of, i, 28; how 'little critics' account for great men, 12; all Heroes fundamentally of the same stuff, 28, 43, 79, 115, 154, 191; Heroism possible to all, 127, 145; Intellect the primary outfit, 105; no man a hero to a valet-soul, 183, 208, 216.
 Hero-worship the tap-root of all Religion, 11-15, 42; perennial in man, 14, 84, 126, 203.
 Hutchinson and Cromwell, 207, 236.
 Iceland, the home of Norse Poets, 16.
 Idolatry, 120; criminal only when insincere, 122.
 Igdrasil, the Life-Tree, 20, 102, 171.
 Intellect, the summary of man's gifts, 106, 169.
 Islam, 56.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02228-6 - The Works of Thomas Carlyle, Volume 5

Edited by Henry Duff Traill

Index

More information

254 HEROES AND HERO WORSHIP

Job, the Book of, 48.

Johnson's difficulties, poverty, hypochondria, 178; rude self-help; stands genuinely by the old formulas, 179; his noble unconscious sincerity, 180; two-fold Gospel, of Prudence and hatred of Cant, 182; his Dictionary, 183; the brave old Samuel, 184, 225.

Jötuns, 17, 35.

Kadjiah, the good, Mahomet's first Wife, 53, 57.

King, the, a summary of all the various figures of Heroism, 196; indispensable in all movements of men, 229.

Knox's influence on Scotland, 144; the bravest of Scotchmen, 146; his unassuming career; is sent to the French Gallies, 147; his colloquies with Queen Mary, 148; vein of drollery; a brother to high and to low; his death, 151.

Koran, the, 64.

Lamaism, Grand, 5.

Leo x., the elegant Pagan Pope, 132.

Liberty and Equality, 127, 202.

Literary Men, 154; in China, 169.

Literature, chaotic condition of, 159; not our heaviest evil, 170.

Luther's birth and parentage, 127; hardship and rigorous necessity; death of Alexis; becomes monk, 128; his religious despair; finds a Bible; deliverance from darkness, 130; Rome; Tetzel, 132; burns the Pope's Bull, 133; at the Diet of Worms, 134; King of the Reformation, 138; 'Duke George's nine days running,' 140; his little daughter's deathbed; his solitary Patmos, 141; his Portrait, 142.

Mahomet's birth, boyhood, and youth, 51; marries Kadjiah, 53; quiet, unambitious life, 54; divine commission, 56; the good Kadjiah believes him; Seid; young Ali, 57; offences, and sore struggles, 59; flight from Mecca; being driven to take the sword, he uses it, 60; the Koran, 64; a veritable Hero, 71; Seid's death, 71; freedom from Cant, 72; the infinite nature of Duty, 75.

Mary, Queen, and Knox, 148.

Mayflower, sailing of the, 143.

Mecca, 50.

Middle Ages, represented by Dante and Shakspeare, 98, 101.

Montrose, the Hero-Cavalier, 229.

Musical, all deep things, 83.

Napoleon, a portentous mixture of Quack and Hero, 238; his instinct for the practical, 239; his democratic faith, and heart-hatred for anarchy, 239; apostatised from his old faith in Facts, and took to believing in Semblances, 241; this Napoleonism was unjust, and could not last, 242.

Nature all one great Miracle, 7, 68, 141; a righteous umpire, 61.

Novalis, on Man, 10; Belief, 57; Shakspeare, 107.

Odin, the first Norse 'man of genius,' 21; historic rumours and guesses, 23; how he came to be deified, 25; invented 'runes,' 27; Hero, Prophet, God, 28. Olaf, King, and Thor, 39.

Original man the sincere man, 45, 125.

Paganism, Scandinavian, 3; not mere Allegory, 6; Nature-worship, 7, 30; Hero-worship, 11; creed of our fathers, 16, 36, 41; Impersonation of the visible workings of Nature, 17; contrasted with Greek Paganism, 19; the first Norse Thinker, 21; main practical Belief; indispensable to be brave, 31; hearty, homely, rugged Mythology; Balder, Thor, 34; Consecration of Valour, 41.

Parliaments superseded by Books, 164; Cromwell's Parliaments, 230.

Past, the whole, the possession of the Present, 41.

Poet, the, and Prophet, 80, 100, 111.

Poetry and Prose, distinction of, 82, 90.

Poper, 136.

Poverty, advantages of, 101.

Priest, the true, a kind of Prophet, 115.

Printing, consequences of, 164.

Private judgment, 124.

Progress of the Species, 118.

Prose. See Poetry.

Protestantism, the root of Modern European History, 123; not dead yet, 137; its living fruit, 143, 200.

Purgatory, noble Catholic conception of, 95.

Puritanism, founded by Knox, 143; true beginning of America, 143; the one epoch of Scotland, 144; Theocracy, 151; Puritanism in England, 204, 206, 226.

Quackery originates nothing, 4, 40; age of, 175; Quacks and Dupes, 216.

Ragnarök, 39.

Reformer, the true, 116.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-02228-6 - The Works of Thomas Carlyle, Volume 5

Edited by Henry Duff Traill

Index

More information

INDEX

255

- Religion, a man's, the chief fact with regard to him, 2; based on Hero-worship, 11; propagating by the sword, 61; cannot succeed by being 'easy,' 70.
- Revolution, 197; the French, 201, 137.
- Richter, 9.
- Right and Wrong, 75, 97.
- Rousseau, not a strong man; his Portrait; egoism, 184; his passionate appeals, 186; is Books, like himself, unhealthy; the Evangelist of the French Revolution, 87.
- Scepticism, a spiritual paralysis, 170-177, 208.
- Scotland awakened into life by Knox, 144.
- Secret, the open, 80.
- Seid, Mahomet's slave and friend, 58, 71.
- Shakspeare and the Elizabethan Era, 102; his all-sufficing intellect, 103, 106; his Characters, 109; his Dramas, a part of Nature herself, 108; his joyful tranquillity, and overflowing love of laughter, 109; his hearty Patriotism, 110; glimpses of the world that was in him, 110; a heaven-sent Light-Bringer, 112; a King of Saxondom, 114.
- Shekinah, Man the true, 10.
- Silence, the great empire of, 101, 224.
- Sincerity, better than gracefulness, 30; the first characteristic of heroism and originality, 45, 54, 125, 127, 155.
- Theocracy, a, striven for by all true Reformers, 152, 226.
- Thor, and his adventures, 18, 34-38; his last appearance, 40.
- Thought, miraculous influence of, 21, 29, 165; musical Thought, 83.
- Thunder. See Thor.
- Time, the great mystery of, 8.
- Tolerance, true and false, 138, 149.
- Turenne, 79.
- Universities, 161.
- Valour, the basis of all virtue, 32, 35; Norse consecration of, 41; Christian Valour, 119.
- Voltaire-worship, 14.
- Wish, the Norse god, 18; enlarged into a heaven by Mahomet, 76.
- Worms, Luther at, 134.
- Worship, transcendent wonder, 9. See Hero-worship.
- Zemzem, the sacred Well, 49.