

INDEX TO THE KEY.

- AIR, as contributing to the health or disease of the human body, 163; various kinds, 168.
- Anemone, 57, 58.
- Anger, various effects of, 183.
- Angina pectoris, an uncommon disorder, 227.
- Animalcula infusoria, 70.
- Animalcules, various kinds, 62; the cause of many diseases, 76; particularly of bad teeth and offensive breath, 78.
- Animal flowers, 56; clustered, 57; the Barbadoes, 59.
- Animal magnetism, 257; Dr. Bell's process, 258; arguments to prove that animal magnetism is the cause of sympathy in man and other animals, and even in plants, 276.
- Animals can exist without air, 74.
- Atoms, nature of, 23; properties, magnitude, figure, weight, and motion, of, 24.
- Bell-flower animalcule, or plumed polypus, 66.
- Brutes, an enquiry into the nature of, 49; curious instances of friendship among brutes of different species, 91; Bougeant's curious hypothesis, 104.
- Cantharides, their effects on the body, 349.
- Conception, progress of, and growth of the foetus, illustrated with curious plates, 311; remarkable conceptions, owing to the conflict of the male and female procreative tinctures, 332.
- Crisis, or critical turn, of a disease, 376.
- Diseases, divided into hereditary and accidental, 289; at what time hereditary diseases are communicated to the foetus, 308; diseases masculine, or solar, 338; Hippocrates's instructions for the cure of slight diseases, 381.
- Eels in paste, 63.
- Electricity, medical, 241; curious experiments, 246.
- Exercise, as conducive to health, 167.
- Fear, extraordinary effects of, 183; a ludicrous anecdote, 189.
- First matter explained, 22.
- Fixedair, as a medicine, 239.
- Flower-fish, their remarkable properties, 57.
- Foetus, how nourished in the womb, 313; its growth, and the disorders occasioned thereby, 313, 314, &c.
- Food, its nature and qualities, 158.
- Fox, sagacity of, &c. 117.
- France, king and queen of, their nativities examined, 392.
- Generation, occult properties of, in plants and herbs, 39.
- Globe-animal, various kinds, 67.
- God, his existence clearly pointed out, 4.
- Grief, a destructive passion, 194.
- Hair-like insect, 62.
- Hare, account of the, 113.
- Health, rules for preserving, 233—239.
- Heaven, enquiries into the nature and situation of, 7.
- Hunter, Mr. curious experiments made by him, 338.
- Jackall, vulgarly called the lion's provider, 122.
- Impotency, sometimes occasioned by fear, 189; other causes of it, 191; cure, 194.
- Impregnation, the process of, 290.
- Insect with net-like arms, 69.
- Instinct distinguished from reason, 81, 82; curious instances of, in various animals, 82—112; bees, 82; caterpillars, and wasps, 84; a cat, 85; crows, 85, 91; cuckows, 86; horses, 91, 97; ravens, 92; elephants, with some uncommon anecdotes, 93; dogs, 99; the land-crab, 109.
- Intemperance, destructive effects of, 181.
- Longevity, remarkable instances of, 144; causes of, 147, &c.
- Love, its foundation and effects, 195.
- Lunar Table, pointing out the various turns of a disease, 380; explained by the nativities and decumbitures of Charles Thomas and Dr. Till Adams, &c. 382, &c. farther explained by a decumbiture only, 389.
- Lunar Tincture, its action on female constitutions, 317—332; with cases annexed in proof of its efficacy, in irregularity of the menses, 323; green sickness, 324; fluor albus, 327; barrenness, 331; recommended to all married women, 335; and to women at the turn of life, 336; case of a tainted habit in a state of pregnancy relieved by this medicine, 360.
- Man considered in his various relations, 122; varieties of the human species, as enumerated by Linnæus, 126, how arranged by Dr. Gmelin, 126, &c. how differing from brutes, 127; natural history of man, 129; considerations on the indispositions and diseases of, 280; formed originally perfect, and capable of propagating from his own essence, 285; separation of the male and female essences in the formation of Eve; 286; man's fall, 287; thence became subject to disease and death, 289.
- Melancholy, enquiry into the causes of, 204.
- Mole, or false conception, 315.
- Monsters, 127.
- Nature, definition of it, 9; its properties, visible and occult, explained, 13.
- Nutrition in the animal economy, 155.
- Oesophagus, a dangerous affection of, 232.
- Passions of the mind, 183—205.
- Perspiration, insensible, a medium whereby bad humours are carried off, 346.
- Pipe-animal, 68.
- Polypus, 56, 60.
- Pregnancy, diseases attendant on, 332.
- Prognostics of diseases, 205.
- Proteus, a curious animalcule, 64.
- Puberty, the changes it produces in the human system, 302.
- Quickening, action of, described, 342.
- Rabbit, great fecundity of, 115.
- Salivation, accidental, a curious case, 361.
- Scent, 112—122.
- Scrophula, its progress in undermining the human frame, 350.
- Sea-anemone, 58.
- Sea-carnation, 59.
- Sleep, a due regulation of, 172.
- Solar and Lunar Tincture, two medicines invented by the author, 317.
- Solar Tincture, its action on the blood, 350; directions for its use in the scurvy and king's evil, 352; with a remarkable case, 353; cases of premature debility, 355; weak nerves, 356; nocturnal emissions, or incontinence of the semen, 357; onanism, 358; tainted habit, 359; tabes dorsalis, or consumption of the back, 362; rheumatic gout, 363; spasms, cholick, and bloody flux, 364; diseases of the breast and lungs, asthma, dropsy, or consumption, 365; mental depression, ibid. bile on the stomach, 366; bite of a mad dog, &c. 366; gun-shot wounds, cuts, stabs, &c. 369; cases of (apparently) sudden death, 371.
- Spermatic animals, 69, 72, &c.
- Stag, his sagacity in avoiding the hunters, 117.
- Sympathy and antipathy in natural bodies, 29, 279; in brutes, 49, 277; operate very powerfully on females in a state of pregnancy, 334.
- Teeth, how to cleanse and preserve, 78; other remarks on them, 80.
- Turn of life in women, the danger attending this period, and cautions to be observed, 336.
- Valerudinarians, advice to, 233.
- Water-creffes, disorders caused by, 76.
- Wheel-animal, or vorticella, 65.
- Wolf, natural history of, 118.
- Worm, aquatic, 69.

DIRECTIONS FOR PLACING THE CUTS.

Frontispiece to face the Title,		Animal Magnetism	260
System of the Interior Heaven	page 8	Progressive Formation of the Foetus, Plate I.	311
Symbol of the universal Spirit of Nature	28	Ditto	312
Polypes and Animal Flowers	62	The Action of Conception	344
Animalcules	74	The Insensible Perspiration	349
Electrical Stars	246	Nativities of the King and Queen of France	391
Crystals formed from Salts	256

THE END.