

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-04544-5 - Threading My Way: Twenty-Seven Years of Autobiography

Robert Dale Owen

Index

More information

I N D E X.

	PAGE
Agricultural School, Fellenberg's, . . . . .	135
Allen, William; a London Quaker, 85; objects to dancing at New Lanark, 87; his idea of a lie, 87; exhorts me to resist the Devil, . . . . .	130
Ajax, his shield, . . . . .	52
Ancestors, my maternal, 3; paternal, . . . . .	22
Arkwright, Sir Richard, his quarrel with my grandfather Dale, . . . . .	9
Arrival, my first, in America, . . . . .	232
Aunt Mary, her rejected suitor, . . . . .	94
Austrian students recalled from Hofwyl by their Emperor, . . . . .	140
Bentham, Jeremy, visit to, 176; his standing, . . . . .	178
Ben, how he was managed, and the result, . . . . .	247
Besetting sins, my, . . . . .	59
Book, The first, I published, . . . . .	173
Books read by me in early years, 51; later, . . . . .	95
Borromeo, Carlo, his colossal statue, . . . . .	147
Braxfield, residence of my father, 34; my boy-life there, 36; seen with a neighbour's eyes, 49; society at, . . . . .	182
Breadalbane, Earl of, my great-great-great-grandfather, . . . . .	3
Bressler, Carl, and the dog, . . . . .	123
Brougham, Henry, defends my father, . . . . .	104
B. yarn, the, . . . . .	243
Campbell family, . . . . .	3
Campbell, Colin, my great-great-grandfather, 3; his love-match, . . . . .	5
Campbell, John, my great-grandfather, . . . . .	3 and 5
Campbell, Ann Caroline, my grandmother; her beauty which did not re-appear in some of her descendants, . . . . .	6
Campbell, Ann Caroline, my mother, meets my father, 29; courtship, 31; marriage, . . . . .	34
Campbell, Sir Guy, marries Pamela Fitzgerald, . . . . .	186
Camelopard, 273; caricatures to which its arrival in Paris gave rise, . . . . .	274
Chambers', Robert, opinion of municipal government of Edinburgh, . . . . .	30
Child labour substituted for that of adults in manufactures, . . . . .	12
Christianity, practical, evinced by my father, . . . . .	75
Clarkson, Thomas, 107; my interview with him, 107; his interview with Pitt and its effects, . . . . .	168
Colquhoun, on resources of British Empire, . . . . .	214
Community, if reputable, a great charm in, . . . . .	245
Contrivance, a simple industrial; its vast results, . . . . .	11
Convert my father, unsuccessful attempt to, . . . . .	60

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-04544-5 - Threading My Way: Twenty-Seven Years of Autobiography

Robert Dale Owen

Index

More information

328

Threading my Way.

	PAGE
Co-operative stores and manufactories in England, . . . . .	227
Co-operation, successful, in a practical form, 258; and furnishes the solution of the problem how to reconcile capital and labour . . . . .	259
Co-operative congress, annual, in April, 1873, sketch of its proceedings, . . . . .	226
Corporal punishment in Dr Bell's school in London, . . . . .	249
Cost of bad materials and poor workmanship, . . . . .	244
Courtship, my father's, 31; and marriage, . . . . .	34
Culprit, the infant, his first lesson, . . . . .	35
Dale, David, my grandfather, 2; his marriage, 6; his quarrel with Arkwright, 9; management of new Lanark, 14; his generosity, 15; his religion, 16; anecdotes regarding, 17; his funeral, 19; sells New Lanark to my father and others, 32; first refuses, then consents to, the marriage of his daughter with my father, . . . . .	34
Dancing master, his idea of shortness of life, . . . . .	89
Dannecker, his studio, 152; his statue of Christ, . . . . .	153
Demonstrations, public, when Robert Owen bought New Lanark, . . . . .	86
De Vile, noted phrenologist, his chart of my head, . . . . .	300
Drunken man, the first, I ever saw, . . . . .	71
Duels or boxing, none at Hofwyl, . . . . .	138
Dunn, James, 37; comes into favour, 38; his generosity and what it led me to, . . . . .	39
Economical condition of England, fifty years since, affords a clue to my father's motives as a reformer, . . . . .	214
English, their good qualities and shortcomings, 315; what "breeds hard Englishmen," 317; their statesmen, . . . . .	318
English mail-coach days, a tale of, . . . . .	318
Enigma, the old, comes up, . . . . .	65
Escape, narrow, from death on my part, . . . . .	46
Escape from the delusion that I was a poet, . . . . .	95
Essays on the Formation of Character, my father's first work, . . . . .	77
Excursions; annual, made by Hofwyl students, . . . . .	145
Factory children, their sufferings, . . . . .	104
Factory Girl's Last day, . . . . .	105
Failure of Community experiment at New Harmony, 261; causes which led to this, . . . . .	263
Fate of a new-born hypothesis, . . . . .	297
Fellenberg, his college, 121; his character, . . . . .	134
Fencing-master at Hofwyl and his visitor, . . . . .	143
Fitzgerald, Lord Edward, 183; his daughters, . . . . .	185
Flower, Richard, offers New Harmony for sale to my father, . . . . .	209
Food and clothing paid for at expense of heart and soul, . . . . .	213
Fox hunting, my experience of, 96; incidents of, . . . . .	97
French Revolution, excesses of, fomented by British Government, . . . . .	282
French rule on the Rhine, . . . . .	155
Fulton, Robert, aided by my father, . . . . .	28
Garcia, the singer, and his son and daughters, 229; anecdote of, . . . . .	230
German Baron, old, charming visit to, . . . . .	158
Goats, our master of the, a Russian Prince, 187; I meet him, thirty years later, in Naples, . . . . .	148
Godwin, William, visit to him, . . . . .	180
Good times at New Harmony, . . . . .	250
Greenwood, Mr, invites death by lightning, . . . . .	251

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-04544-5 - Threading My Way: Twenty-Seven Years of Autobiography

Robert Dale Owen

Index

More informationIndex. 329

	PAGE
Hairdresser, a Paris, his idea of the "Colonies," . . . . .	287
Harmonie, Rapp's colony, 210; the labyrinth there, 212; the colonists well fed and clothed, at cost of heart and soul, 213; my father encouraged by their pecuniary success, . . . . .	214
Hasty conclusions touching co-operation and riches, . . . . .	239
Hills of Birmingham, a remarkable family, . . . . .	342
Hill, Rowland, his penny postage system, 309; an unmixed good, . . . . .	310
Hofwyl, Fellenberg's College, 125; its constitution and laws, . . . . .	128
Hofwyl, what I owe to my life there, . . . . .	148
"Honest man," my grandfather's idea of, . . . . .	17
How I spent the summer of 1828, and what I projected, . . . . .	325
Hughes, Thomas, his opinion of the excellent influence of the co-operative movement, . . . . .	241
Hunter of the leather-stocking school gives me my first lessons in wood-craft, . . . . .	237
Illness, my dangerous, 98; its results, . . . . .	99
Infant Schools, Robert Owen the founder of . . . . .	90
Intemperance, in early days, in Scotland, . . . . .	69
Intolerance, madness of, . . . . .	157
Inventions and discoveries, labour saving, since 1760, . . . . .	6
Invention, a simple, its vast results, . . . . .	11
Irving, the Rev. Edward, his appearance, 303; his sermon on marriage, 305; loses his popularity by asserting the reality of certain spiritual manifestations, . . . . .	307
Jessie, 187; her beauty, 188; her parents, 190; at church, 190; adopted by Anne Owen, 195; at Braxfield, 196; my mother's opinion of her, 199; in the Braxfield woods, 201; thirty years later confesses her affection, and we part, . . . . .	202
Labour saving machinery of Great Britain, equal to twice the manual labour power of the world, . . . . .	216
Labourer, English, now paid half as much as his ancestor received five hundred years ago, . . . . .	221
Labyrinth at Harmonie, description of, . . . . .	212
Lafayette, General, 276: I accompany him to La Grange, 276; relates to me anecdote of Washington, 277; his opinion about solitary confinement as punishment, 279; his opinion of causes of failure of French Revolution, 280; why he supported Louis Phillipe, 281; gives me a remarkable letter, 282; his granddaughter Nathalie and Ary Scheffer, . . . . .	283
La Grange, 283; whom I found there, . . . . .	284
Lakes Maggiore, Lugano, Como, visit to, . . . . .	147
Lancaster, Joseph, aided by my father, . . . . .	76
Landon, Miss L. E., 314; her character, wedding, and death, . . . . .	315
Lion, a young, escape from, . . . . .	113
Literary pretensions, my early, . . . . .	92
Louis Philippe, why Lafayette supported him, . . . . .	281
Love, early, in the "Beach Walk," . . . . .	21
Love to, better than to be loved, . . . . .	197
Love no respecter of ages: an Irish story, . . . . .	208
Machinery, labour saving, what has been its effect in Great Britain? . . . . .	216
Man possesses powers in advance of capacity to use them, . . . . .	240

Y

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-04544-5 - Threading My Way: Twenty-Seven Years of Autobiography

Robert Dale Owen

Index

More information

330

Threading my Way.

	PAGE
Manson, my tutor, fails to resolve my religious doubts, . . . . .	64
Marriages, French, . . . . .	284 and 285
Marriage of the Soul contrasted with mercenary Espousals, . . . . .	304
Martyr to leisure, a, . . . . .	79
Marvellous life in a little Republic, . . . . .	126
M Donald, Captain, gets a shock, . . . . .	235
Meetings at the City of London Tavern in 1817, . . . . .	169
Money, not to be grasped after, yet an element of personal independence, . . . . .	263
Mother, my, her religious views, 53; her mistaken mode of presenting them, 54; in a strait, 55; presses the doctrine of infallibility too far, 62; her grief at my backsliding, 64; grudges her nice forks and spoons, 119; her appeal to me in regard to Jessie, 200; its result, . . . . .	202
Münchhausen, Baron, and his daughters, 158; his patriarchal kindness, . . . . .	160
Municipal affairs, how conducted in the chief cities of Scotland, . . . . .	31
Neal, John, and Henry Brougham, . . . . .	109
Neef, Joseph, anecdote of, . . . . .	253
New Harmony, description of, 211; distinguished emigrants to, 236; Community of equality there, 250; its constitution, 254; its gradual failure, . . . . .	257 to 259
New Lanark Schools, 114; much visited, . . . . .	115
Nicolas of Russia, his visit to Braxfield, . . . . .	115
New Lanark under David Dale, . . . . .	15
Novel reading on Sunday, . . . . .	58
O'Neill, Miss, what led to her marriage, . . . . .	204
Over-production, does it necessarily result in famine? . . . . .	224
Owen, Anne, my sister, her letter to my father about Jessie, . . . . .	194
Owen, Robert, my grandfather, . . . . .	22
Owen, Robert, my father, 22; supports himself at age of ten; his early life, 24; with M'Guffog, in Stamford, 24; manager under Drinkwater, 26; connection with Fulton, 28; courts his future wife, 30; buys New Lanark off my grandfather, 32; marriage, 34; his treatment of me in the Wilson matter, 42; how he treated trespassers in Braxfield Woods, 44; his ruling passion, 66; his early reading, 67; his earnest convictions, 68; reforms effected by him at New Lanark, 72; his respect for rights of conscience, 74; how he treated culprits, 74; his first appearance as speaker, 75; aids Lancaster, 75; his various partnerships, 77; his three propositions, 81; runs to extremes, 83; buys New Lanark, 84; reception by inhabitants, 86; the founder of infant schools, 90; his exertions in favour of factory children, 101; his popularity, 165; his religious views, 166; incorrectly estimates Christianity, 167; his mistakes as a reformer, 169; denounces all religions, 170; loses caste with the upper classes, 171; but remains popular with the masses, 172; mistaken for Lord Brougham, 180; clue to his motives as a reformer, 214; his statistical calculations of labour saving power, 215; his solution of the great problem of the age, 225; his pecuniary sacrifices, . . . . .	261
Oxford students, four, a tale of, . . . . .	321
Page of Nature, all in green, . . . . .	234

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-04544-5 - Threading My Way: Twenty-Seven Years of Autobiography

Robert Dale Owen

Index

More informationIndex.

33 I

	PAGE
Paris in 1827, under Charles X., . . . . .	273
Philosophy without a wig, . . . . .	183
Pictet, Charles, of Geneva; his character, 121; the historian of Fellenberg's educational enterprises, . . . . .	122
Politeness, test of French, . . . . .	281
Porridge, oatmeal, breakfast fare in Scotland, . . . . .	40
Powell, Baden, his opinion of the alleged spiritual manifestations in Edward Irving's church (note), . . . . .	307
Praise, effect of, on me as a child, . . . . .	47
Prayer, my attempt to prove its efficacy, . . . . .	57
Princes of Thurn and Taxis, their offence, 131; they evade a trial, . . . . .	133
Problems of the Age, one of the great, . . . . .	215
Progress in male dress since Queen Elizabeth's day, . . . . .	241
Quaker definition of a lie, . . . . .	87
Quarrels, how settled at Hofwyl, . . . . .	138
Rank and titles ignored at Hofwyl, . . . . .	136
Rapp, George, brings a German Colony to America, 210; calls it Harmonie, 209; it has wonderful pecuniary success, 210; sells out to my father, . . . . .	211
Reminiscence, pleasant, of college life, . . . . .	150
Rhine, journey down the, . . . . .	151
Roland, Madame, Lafayette's opinion of her, . . . . .	280
Rosebank, my grandfather's country seat, 19; its charms and mysterious glamour, . . . . .	20
Rural mirth and manners, decay of, . . . . .	311
Sabbath-breaking, my besetting sin, . . . . .	58
Sandy, the worst of bad boys, 37; his narrow escape, . . . . .	40
Saussure, Hippolyte de, his considerate reticence, . . . . .	141
Scenery on the Rhine, . . . . .	153
Scotchman, a, mistaken for a Hanoverian, . . . . .	162
Scott, Walter, his novels, their charm, . . . . .	95
Sea-captain, ruler in his own ship, restores peace, . . . . .	231
Seeing with a neighbour's eyes, . . . . .	49
Self-government in Fellenberg's College, . . . . .	127
Sheddon, William, . . . . .	120
Shelley, Mary, 288; her personal character, 289; not an ultra-reformer, 290; her influence, for good, over her husband, . . . . .	295
Shelley, Percy Bysshe, his later opinions regarding Christ and God and immortality, 292, to . . . . .	294
Shipwreck, in danger of, . . . . .	163
Slaves, inanimate, Great Britain has six hundred millions of them, . . . . .	217
Slaves, Frances Wright's plan of emancipating, . . . . .	266
Society, Preliminary, at New Harmony, . . . . .	253
Solitary confinement, Lafayette's opinion of it, as punishment, . . . . .	279
Spear, Miss, introduces my father to his future wife, 29; tells tales out of school, . . . . .	31
Spurzheim, Dr, his modesty and candor, 298; his chart of my head compared with De Ville's, . . . . .	300
Tentative years, close of, . . . . .	326
Time, an important element in human progress, . . . . .	240

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-04544-5 - Threading My Way: Twenty-Seven Years of Autobiography

Robert Dale Owen

Index

More information

332

Threading my Way.

	PAGE
Toleration, religious, complete at Hofwyl, . . . . .	137
Too much of a good thing, . . . . .	100
Universalist, I become a, . . . . .	65
Wages in England, four and five hundred years ago, . . . . .	219
Wages in United States, at this day, . . . . .	228
Wallace's Cave, in Cartland Crag; its political effect, . . . . .	51
Washington, anecdote of, told to me by Lafayette, . . . . .	277
What can one expect for a hundred francs? . . . . .	286
Wilson, Miss, her sad fate, 40; her jolly tea parties, 41; pardons me, . . . . .	43
Wright, Frances, 264; her appearance and character, 265; a pioneer in the anti-slavery movement, 268; her experiment at Nashoba, 268; her Deed of Trust for the benefit of the Negro Race, 269; the Trustees named by her, 271; her illness, 271; her visit to Europe, . . . . .	272
Wurtenburg, Prince Alexander of, the lesson he got, . . . . .	139

TURNBULL AND SPEARS, PRINTERS, EDINBURGH.