

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

	PAGE
Arrival at Bombay—The Parsís—Bombay—Its public buildings— Saugor—Festival of the Mohurrum—Agra—Slight sketch of the history of the Moghul Empire in India from Tamerlane to Aurungzebe, . . . . .	1

CHAPTER II.

Buildings at Agra—Those in the fort successively the work of Akbar, Jehangir, and Shah Jehan—Jumma Musjid—Taj Mehal —Tombs at Secundra, &c., . . . . .	17
--	----

CHAPTER III.

Delhi—Its early history—Some account of the slave, Khilgi, and Toghlok dynasties—Jain temples at Delhi—The Jains and their religious tenets—Jumma Musjid—Other mosques—The fort— Asoka's lîts , or pillars—The ridge—Its connection with the Mutiny of 1857, . . . . .	31
---	----

CHAPTER IV.

Lahore—Early Hindú traditions respecting it—Afghan incursions— Invasion by Mohammedan forces—Mahmood of Ghusnee—His campaigns in Hindostán—Comparisons between Hindús and Mohammedans—Tamerlane and Baber, their expeditions to India —Palace in the fort at Lahore—Kashi work—How supposed to have been made—Jehangir's tomb at Shadera—Nur-Mehal's tomb —Persian invasion of India—Lahore comes under Sikh rule— Tomb of Ranjit Singh—Mosque of Wazir Ali Khan, . . . . .	46
--	----

CHAPTER V.

- Preparing for camp life in Kashmir—Srinagar—Boats used in navigating the river Jelum—The races which people Kashmir—Liddar valley—Snowstorm in May—Lovely vegetation—Ancient temples at Martund and Avantipore—Gulmurg—Our log huts—Return to Srinagar—Dal Lake—Its floating islands—Gardens and palaces on its shores, . . . . . 67

CHAPTER VI.

- Starting for Ladakh—Sonamurg—Ascent of the Zoji-la Pass—Dras—Native polo-playing—Namyika and Fot-la passes—Lama Yuru—Chinese account of the origin of the Thibetans—Their religion—Exclusion of Europeans from Chinese Thibet—Visit to Lama Serai, or monastery at Lama Yuru—Description of a religious service heard there—Nature of country between Lama Yuru and Leh, . . . . . 84

CHAPTER VII.

- Leh—The dress of the inhabitants—Festival of the Dasera—Review of troops—Native dances—Lama religious dances—Visit to the Ranees—How tea is made in Thibet—Funeral rites—Buddha and his early history—Return to Srinagar—Détour to the temples at Wangat in the Sind valley—Temple at Pandrethan, near Srinagar—Leave Kashmir by Banihal Pass—Sialkote—Proclamation ceremonies at Delhi, . . . . . 96

CHAPTER VIII.

- Belgaum—Sketch of the history of the Dekhan, and rise of the Mahratta empire—Sevaji—His bold incursions—Country round Belgaum—Its climate—Old Jaina temples in fort—'Idgah at Kurar—Old fort at Sattara—Buddhist cave-temples at Carlee, . . . . . 113

CHAPTER IX.

- A Hindú women's festival at Saugor—Famine immigrants—Food of people in that district—Ghazipore—Opium factory—Tobacco cultivation and manufacture—Afghan population at Lumaneah—Buddhist remains at Sydpore—Lât at Bithri, . . . . . 130

CHAPTER X.

- Benares—Hionen Thsang, the Chinese pilgrim, visited Sarnath—Stupa there—Remains of supposed Buddhist buildings near the Bakariya Kund at Benares, . . . . . 140

CONTENTS.

ix

CHAPTER XI.

- Modern Benares—Particulars of a conversation with a learned Hindú Pundit—Pooja, or certain forms of Hindú worship as practised at Benares—Descriptions of various temples in that city—Curious statements taken down from the mouth of a high-caste Brahmin, 152

CHAPTER XII.

- Commissioner's durbar at Benares—March to Jounpore—Interesting mosques at that place, . . . . . 168

CHAPTER XIII.

- Allahabad—Its fort—Miraculous tree in ancient temple—Lât of Asoka—Second visit to Agra—My husband's impressions of Taj—Futtehpore Sikri, . . . . . 177

CHAPTER XIV.

- Muttra—Ancient Buddhist statues found there—Distress amongst the native population—Old and modern temples at Bindrabun—Goverdhun—Temple of Hari Deva—Deeg—Bhurtpore, . . . 191

CHAPTER XV.

- Jeypore—Amber the old capital of that state—Ajmere—Mayo College for native chiefs—Mosque said to have been built in two days and a half—Mohammedan mosque—Its rich foundation—Ulwar—Hindú reverence for the peepul-tree—Rajah's palace at Ulwar, . . . . . 206

CHAPTER XVI.

- Third visit to Delhi—Description of various tombs in the neighbourhood—Patán emperors of Delhi—Kutb Minar—Iron lât, or pillar—Toghlak dynasty—The city of Toghlakabad—S.P.G. mission work in Delhi, . . . . . 218

CHAPTER XVII.

- Meerut—Red-Sandstone tomb there—Sikh festival of the New Year at Amritsar—Baptism of Sikhs—Requirements of their religion—Origin of city at Amritsar—Golden Temple—Hindú festival of the diwali, . . . . . 245

CHAPTER XVIII.

- Kashmir closed to travellers—Consequent change of plans—Dalhousie—Chumba—Visit to native ladies—Dharmasala—Old temples at Bijnath and Harra-bagh—Native states of Mundi, Sukét, Bilaspore, and Erki—Singular mode of putting children to sleep—Simla, . . . . . 256

CHAPTER XIX.

- March from Simla towards Kulu—Jalouri Pass—Old temple at Bajoura—Sultanpore—Visit to Ranee—Tea-cultivation in Kulu—Nugger, the old capital—Manāli, and curious wooden temple near Rotang Pass—Lahoul—Sheep and goats used as beasts of burden—German missionary establishment—Prophecy in Thibet respecting Queen Victoria—Snowed up in tents at nearly 15,000 feet above the sea—Passes into Kashmir again closed—Return to Kulu, . . . . . 275

CHAPTER XX.

- The Solang valley—Annual fair at Sultanpore—Meeting of the gods of the various villages in Kulu—Parbuti valley—Novel mode of crossing a river—Hot springs at Manikern—Bubu Pass—Return to Kangra valley—Fort at Kangra—Juwala Muki—Its sacred fires—Singular aspect of country near Hoshiarpore—Native Christian missionary—Jullunder—Return to Lahore, . . . . 294

CHAPTER XXI.

- Lucknow—Its sad associations—Residency—Sketch of the History of Oudh and its rulers—Buildings at Lucknow—Claude Martin, the French adventurer—Fyzabad—Two large tombs—Ajoudhya—Cawnpore, . . . . . 305

CHAPTER XXII.

- Cawnpore to Poona—Rock-hewn temples at Poona—Hyderabad in the Dekhan—Short historical sketch of the present reigning family—The native city—Its varied and turbulent population—A breakfast at Sir Salár Jung's—Conclusion, . . . . . 316