

I N D E X.

A

- ABUL FAZEL*, minister to Akber, sovereign of Indostan, publishes the Ayeen Akbery, 273. and Heeto-Pades — 356
- Acefines*, a city built on that river by Alexander the Great — 191
- Æras of Indian chronology*, explained, 359. remarks on — 360
- Africa*, general idea of the continent of, and of its trade, 145. origin of the slave trade — 166
- Agathemerus*, his account of the island of Saprohana, 76. his character of Ptolemy the geographer — 212
- Agathodæmon*, illustrates the geography of Ptolemy, by maps — 213
- Akber*, sovereign of Indostan, his character — 272. 349
- Albuquerque*, Alphonso, the Portugueze admiral, seizes the island of Ormus, 139. his operations in the Red Sea, 140
- Alexander the Great*, his extensive views respecting India, 12. his expedition to India, 13. his war with Porus, 15. how reduced to relinquish his enterprize, 16. his measures for opening a maritime communication with India, 17. his account of India confirmed by modern observations, 20. his political views in exploring that country, 22. his measures to unite his European and Asiatic subjects, 24. consequences of his death, 28. the sufferings of his army from the periodical rains, 184. his surprize at the tides of the Indian ocean, 188. cities built by him in India, 191. 193. intended a survey of the Caspian sea — 206
- Alexandria*, long the chief seat of commerce with India, 12. the lighthouse on the Pharos erected by Ptolemy Lagus, 35. mode of conducting the silk trade at that port, 55. the Venetians trade there for silk, 114. and the Florentines, 117. is subjected to the Turks — 142
- Allahabad*, the modern name of the ancient city of Palibothra, 30. account of this city by Megasthenes, 32. remarks on Major Rennel on this subject — 196
- America*, discovered by Christopher Columbus, 132. the East India trade a continual drain from its silver mines, 165. origin of the slave-trade, 166. contrast between the natives of America and of India when first discovered, 167. the trade of Europe with each compared, 170. was obliged to be colonized, in order to be improved, 170. supplies Europe with its products, in return for manufactures

171

Antiochus

I N D E X.

- Antiochus the Great*, his inroad into India 199
- Antoninus*, Marcus, emperor, notices of an embassy sent by him to the emperor of China — — 71
- Antwerp*, greatly enriched by becoming the staple of the Hanseatic league 128
- Arabians*, anciently great dealers in spices from the East, 52. great alterations affected in their manners by the religion of Mahomet, 92. they conquer Egypt and Persia, ib. a view of their commercial navigation, 94. are the first who mention porcelane and tea, 96. derived the knowledge of the mariner's compass from Europe, 227. make no scruple to plunder the caravans travelling to Mecca — — 246
- Aristotle*, his political advice to Alexander the Great, 23. his just description of the Caspian sea, 205. doubted the expediency of commerce in a well-regulated state — — 208
- Aromatics*, why much used by the ancients, 51
- Arrian*, character of his History of the Indian expedition of Alexander the Great, 19. his account of the commerce of the ancients, 56. inquiry into his geographical knowledge of India, 59. is the first ancient writer who had any knowledge of the Eastern coast of the great peninsula of India, 61. his account of Alexander's Indian fleet corroborated, 186. character of his Indian History, 187. his account of the Caspian sea, 204. his Periplus compared with modern names and situations 211. 218
- Arts and Sciences*, where first cultivated, 2
- Asbestos*, its extravagant price among the Romans — — 208
- Astronomy*, testimonies of the great proficiency of the Indostans in 302
- Augsburg*, greatly enriched by becoming a mart for Indian commodities 128
- Augustus*, emperor, reduces Egypt to a Roman province — — 41
- Ayeen Akbery*, account of the intercourse of the East Indians by water from, 186. See Sanskreet literature.
- B
- Babelmandeb*, derivation of the name 200
- Bactria*, rise of the kingdom of, and its acquisitions in India, 33. is overwhelmed by the Tartars 34. 199
- Baghvot-Geeta*, the pure theology taught in that poem — — 327
- Bailly*, M. his examination into the antiquity of astronomy in India 306
- Bank of Venice*, the first establishment of that kind formed in Europe 241
- Barygaza*, a considerable emporium on the coast of ancient India, its situation ascertained — — 57
- Bassora*, the city of, founded by the Caliph Omar — — 93
- Benares*, the peculiar seat of Indostan science and literature, 310. account of the observatory there 363
- Berenice*, the city of, founded to facilitate the trade between Alexandria and India — — 36
- Bernier*, M. his account of the Indian chronology — — 361
- Boddam*, East India ship, remarkable speedy voyage of, from Portsmouth to Madras 207
- Brahmins*, in India, their sacred rights and high privileges, 265. inquiry into the state of scientific knowledge among them, 296. their religious hierarchy and worship, 311. their great learning taught them a theology superior to the popular superstition, 325. their doctrines coincide with the tenets of the Stoical School, 331. studiously concealed religious truths from the people 334
- Bruce*, the insight his travels afford into the maritime expeditions of king Solomon — — 9
- Bruges*, made the staple of the trade of the Hanseatic league, 120. is greatly enriched — — 128
- Baron Sunker*, a class among the Hindoos, described — — 339
- Byzantine* historians, a character of 102

Caffa,

I N D E X.

C

- Caffa*, the great trade carried on there 232
- Cairo*, account of the caravan that travels from thence to Mecca 245
- Calicut*, reception of Vasco de Gama in that country — 135
- Call*, colonel, his general opinion of the antiquity of arts and sciences in India 352
- Camel*, the valuable properties of that animal, 3. is peculiarly formed for traversing sandy deserts — 242
- Candabar*, under what name known to Alexander the Great — 14
- Canton*, in China, a factory settled there by the early Arabs — 95
- Cape of Good Hope*, circumstances that led to the discovery of a passage to India that way, 133. is said by Herodotus to have been passed by some Phœnician ships, 153. importance of the discovery of this passage by the Portuguese — 173
- Caravans*, the origin of, 3. were protected and encouraged under the Roman dominion, 70. great commercial use of, in the East, 144. account of the caravans which visit Mecca, 245. a considerable slave-trade carried on by the African caravans — 247
- Caspian sea*, erroneous opinion of the ancient geographers concerning, 39. 204. by whom first described in modern times 205
- Casts*, or orders of society among the native Gentoos, described, 258. remarks on the policy and tendency of this arrangement, 259. their peculiar names, ranks, and offices described 338
- Catbay*, the ancient name of China 122
- Ceylon*, supposed to be the island described by ancient geographers under the name of Taprobana, 77. Christian churches planted there by Persian missionaries, 97. is visited by Marco Polo the Venetian — 122
- Chardin*, Sir John, his testimony that the Orientals derived the use of the mariner's compass from the Europeans, 227.
- his account of the trade of Caffa 232
- Ghillambrum*, description of the pagoda there — 282
- China*, the only country from whence the Romans obtained silk, 55. through what medium they received it, 59. how the silk-worm was conveyed from thence to Europe, 88. is traded to by the Arabians, 95. first mention of porcelain and tea, 96. the Christian religion propagated there by Persian missionaries, 97. how the silk of, was conveyed to Constantinople, after the Greeks were excluded from the port of Alexandria, 98. estimate of the Chinese practice of navigation, 226. how the number of Mahometans increase in China, 230. a commercial intercourse, by land, opened between that country and Russia, 249. amazing exportation of tea from, to Europe — 252
- Chronology*, Indian, the four æras of, 359. remarks on — 360
- Cleopatra*, value of her famous pearl earrings. — 54
- Calchos*, the ancient pearl fishery there, still carried on by the Dutch 60
- Colours*, Indian, for dying, account of . 352
- Columbus*, his views in that voyage by which he discovered America, 132. his reliance on the authority of Marco Polo, the Venetian traveller, 238. See Gama.
- Commerce*, the extension of, abated the hostile sentiments which actuated one nation against another, 120. unfavourable opinion of Plato concerning 207
- Common law*, the origin of, traced 270
- Comorin*, Cape, is accurately described by Arrian — 60
- Compass*, mariner's, was unknown by the ancient Chinese and Arabs 227
- Constantinople*, taken and plundered by the crusaders, 110. subversion of the Latin empire there, 112. is conquered by the Turks, and made the seat of their government — 123
- Conveyancing*, specimen of the ancient Indian style of — 358
- Coromandel*

I N D E X.

- Coromandel coast*, the inhabitants of, always great traders — 83
- Cosmas Indicopleustes*, some account of, and of his Christian topography, 84. his account of the island of Taprobana 85
- Cotton manufactures*, evidence of their not being common among the Romans 211
- Crusades to the Holy Land*, the origin of, traced, and their commercial effects, 104. the crusaders acquired the policy and arts of the people whom they subdued, 107. brought different nations acquainted with each other 120
- D
- Damascus*, account of the caravan that travels from thence to Mecca 246
- Damask*, the name of that species of silk manufacture, whence derived 126
- Dandulo*, Andrew, character of his Venetian Chronicle — 231
- D'Anville*, M. his opinion as to the course pursued in the trading voyages of king Solomon's ships, 9. his corrections of Ptolemy's geography of India, 66. corroborates Nearchus's account of India, 190. his geography of India controverted by M. Goffellin 216
- Darius*, the son of Hyftaspes, king of Persia, his researches into, and conquests in India — — 10
- Deccan*, the ancient Dachanos of Arrian 219
- Delta of the Indus*, the general state of the weather there — 185
- Diamonds*, not so highly esteemed by the Romans as pearls — 208
- Diodorus Siculus*, his history of the Indian expedition of Sesostris examined 180
- Dow*, colonel, account of his translation of the Shaster, 298. 359. his account of the Indian chronology 361
- Dowlatabad*, the same with the ancient Tagara — — 211
- Du Halde*, his description of a peculiar species of silk — — 210
- Dutch states*, became the first rivals of the Portugueze in the trade to India 163
- Dyes*, Indian, the excellence of 352
- E
- East*, the regions of, where arts and sciences were first cultivated, 2. the intercourse between different countries how first carried on, 3. the first maritime communication with, from the West, 5. See India.
- Eclipses*, how calculated by the Brahmins of India — — 305
- Egypt*, ancient prejudice of the inhabitants against any intercourse with foreigners, 5. how the Egyptians became a commercial people, 6. the city of Alexandria built, 12. the seat of government fixed there by Ptolemy Lagus, 35. intercourse between the city of Berenice and India, 36. its opulence derived from its commerce with the East, 38. is reduced to a Roman province, 40. manner of conducting the silk trade at the port of Alexandria, 55. conquest of, by the Arabs, 92. the Venetians resort to Alexandria for silk, 114. and the Florentines, 117. commercial view of the countries, 126. is subdued by the Turks, 142. how the Indian trade has been conducted through that country at different times — 200
- Elagabalus*, the first Roman emperor who wore silk — — 54
- Elephanta*, island, account of the ancient pagoda there — — 278
- Ellore*, general account of the pagodas there — — 351
- Æsop's fables*, the origin of, traced 356
- Ethiops*, state of, in India 299
- Europe*, a review of the state of, at the time of the subversion of the Greek empire, 123. extensive operation of the commercial genius of, 167. the Europeans receive the products of America, and supply it with manufactures, 171. the exportation of silver to India, how beneficial to Europe, 172. importance of the discovery of the passage to India round the Cape of Good Hope 173
- Faquirs*

I N D E X.

F

- Faquirs* of India, unite trade with devotion in their pilgrimages, 106. 232. brief account of — 341
Figures, arithmetical, originally derived from India — 301
Five Gems, an ancient Sanskreet poem, account of — 357
Flourance, rise of the state of, by manufactures and the banking business, 116. a commercial treaty concluded with Egypt, 117. summary of the instructions to their ambassadors to the Soldan 235

G

- Gama*, Vasco de, his voyage from Lisbon to India — 134
Ganges, account of that river by Major Rennel — 195
Genoa, motives that stimulated the Genoese to assist in subverting the Latin empire at Constantinople, 112. the great advantages they derived from this measure, 113. character of the Genoese government, 114. the Genoese expelled from all their Grecian settlements by the Turks, 123. character of, by Nicephorus Gregoras — 233
Gentil, M. le, his account of the Indian chronology — 361
Gentoos, see Brahmins, and Hindoos.
Gibbon, Mr. the Roman historian, testimony in favour of his accuracy 223
Goffelin, M. character of his geography of the Greeks analyzed — 216
Greeks, their national pride at the time of Alexander the Great, 23. how they attained the breeding of silk-worms under the emperor Justinian, 88. are shut out from the port of Alexandria by the Mahometan Arabs, 92. the Greek empire conquered by Mahomet II. 123. how they were deprived of Bactria, 199. origin of the ancient mythology of — 317
Gum Lacca, natural history of, and its uses in manufacture — 353

H

- Halhed*, Mr. his account of the Sanskreet literature — 355
Hanno, commanded the only voyage for discovery undertaken by any of the ancient states in the Mediterranean 250
Hanseatic league, formed, and the staple fixed at Bruges — 120
Hastings, Mr. governor-general of Bengal, his attention to forming a code of Hindoo laws — 273
Heeto-Pades, or Amicable Instruction, an ancient Sanskreet composition, account and character of — 356
Herodotus, affirms the Cape of Good Hope to have been passed by some Phenician vessels, 153. his history of Sesostris examined, 180. his unsatisfactory account of the tides in the Red Sea, 189. his just description of the Caspian sea 205
Hindoos, that people exactly described in the account of the Indian expedition of Alexander the Great, 21. their inflexible adherence to their religion, and cast, 229. their four orders, or casts, described, 258. remarks on the policy and tendency of this popular arrangement, 259. their high antiquity, and nature of their institutions, 274. character of their judicial code, 275. state of sciences among them, 296. their religious tenets and practices, 311. the names, ranks, and offices of their several casts described — 338
Hiram, king of Tyre, assists king Solomon in his naval undertakings 8
Hippalus, captain of an Egyptian vessel, avails himself of the monsoons, in failing from the Arabian gulf to the Malabar coast — 48
Hipparchus, the first who attempted to make a catalogue of the stars 63
History, authentic, the period of, extremely limited, 1. is minute in the records of blood, but silent as to the progress of useful arts — 47
Hydaspes, river, a numerous fleet raised there by Alexander the Great 17
Hyphasis, river, the utmost limit of Alexander the Great's progress in India 16
3 B Jenau,

I N D E X.

J

- Jenoub*, a city built on that river by Alexander the Great — 191
- Jenkinson*, Anthony, the first modern traveller who gives a just description of the Caspian sea — 205
- Jeswont Sing*, his letter to Aurengzebe, containing a character of sultan Akber — 349
- Jewels*, their great use, and high estimation among the ancients — 53
- Jews*, when they effected a commercial intercourse with India, 8. inquiry into the maritime commerce of king Solomon, 9. their commercial effort limited to his reign — 10
- India*, the first naval communication with, from the West, 5. the trade of the Phenicians with, how conducted, 7. naval expedition of the Persians to, 10. conquests of Darius Hystaspes in, 11. Alexandria, for many centuries the chief seat of trade with, 12. expedition of Alexander the Great to, 13. flourishing state of the country at that time, 15. Alexander's voyage down the Indus, 17. political state of the country at that time, 20. Alexander's views in this expedition, 22. expedition of Seleucus, the successor of Alexander, 29. embassy of Megasthenes to, 30. conquests of the Bactrian princes in, 33. remains afterward undisturbed by Europeans, until the Cape of Good Hope was doubled by the Portugueze, 34. a commercial intercourse established with Egypt, 35. how Rome was supplied with Eastern commodities, 44. advantage taken of the monsoons, in sailing from the gulf of Arabia to the Malabar coast, 48. its commodities articles of luxury, 50. spices and aromatics, 51. precious stones, 53. silk, 54. general view of its exports and imports, 56. comparison between the ancient and modern trade with India, 58. D'Anville's corrections of Ptolemy's geography of, 66. the trade by caravans protected and encouraged by the Romans, 70. the inhabitants of the Coromandel coast always great traders, 83. the account given of India by Cosmas Indicopleustes, 85. the Romans rivalled in the India trade by the Persians, 86. the Italian states engage in the India trade, 101. account of the India trade by Marino Sanudo, 118. comparative view of the India trade, as carried on by different nations at different times, 125. a direct voyage to India effected by the Portugueze, 134. the staple of the Portugueze trade, established at the city of Malacca, 137. a commercial empire established in the East, by the Portugueze, 143. how it came to pass, that the discovery of a direct navigation to India was reserved for modern times, 150. the conduct of ancient and modern navigators to the East, compared, 154. the prices of Indian commodities greatly reduced by the opening a direct communication with India, 156. the India trade a continual drain of American silver from Europe, 164. contrast between the state of the natives of India and America, when first discovered, 167. the trade of Europe with each, compared, 170. the silver exported to India contributes to enrich instead of impoverishing Europe, 172. importance of the discovery of the passage to India round the Cape of Good Hope, to Europe, 173. examination of the improbabilities attending the supposed expedition of Sesostris to India, 179. remarks on the weather there, 185. remarks on the naval expedition of Nearchus, 188. peculiarities in the Indian tides, 189. aversion of the natives of the East to the sea, 192. Major Rennel's account of the river Ganges, 195. endeavours to ascertain the situation of the ancient city of Palibothra, 196. how the Indian trade has been carried on through Egypt at different times, 200. erroneous descriptions of the Caspian sea by ancient writers, 204. Deccan, the ancient Dachanos of Arrian, 219. the use of the mariner's compass learned by the Easterns from the Europeans, 227. the

I N D E X.

- the Gentoos inflexible in their religion, 229. computed number of Mahometans in India, 230. extensive circulation of Eastern goods by the caravans, 248. the natives of India the earliest known people who were civilized, 257. their division into casts, 258. the perfection of Indian-manufactures accounted for, 251. the general tenure of land there, 266. character of the Hindoo code of laws, 275. general account of the pagodas, 277. fortresses, 284. mechanic arts, 285. literature, 287. their sciences, 295. their religious tenets, 311. origin of superstition, 315. the pure theology of the Brahmins, 325. general reflections formed on the preceding review of the Eastern nations, 334. the manners and customs of the natives influenced by the Mahometan and European intruders, 342. account of the Sanskreet literature, 354. the Heeto-Pades, 356. the Five Gems, 357. Ode from Wulli, 358. specimen of Indian conveyancing, ib. the four æras of Indian chronology, explained ——— 359
- Indicum* of the ancients, the same with modern Indigo ——— 352
- Indus*, river, passed by Alexander the Great, 14. his voyage down that river 17
- Institutions* of India, the permanency of, accounted for ——— 261
- Interest* of money, the most exact standard of commercial profits, 129. chronological review of ——— ib.
- Joanna* of Navarre, her exclamation at the wealth of the city of Bruges 239
- Italy*, rise of the commercial states of, 100. they import the productions of India, 101. the profits they reaped from the crusades, 108. See Venice, Genoa, &c.
- Itineraries* of the Roman empire, how formed ——— 213
- Julius Cæsar*, his magnificent present to Servilia, the mother of Brutus, 54. his ignorance of the British tides, 189. a general survey of the whole Roman empire undertaken by him 213
- Justin*, observations on his account of the progress made by Seleucus in India 194
- Justinian*, emperor, how he introduced the silk-worm into the Greek empire 88
- L
- Land*, the general tenures of, in India, 266. 344. specimen from an ancient grant of ——— 358
- Latitudes*, how ascertained by the ancient geographers, 78. were more readily determined by them than longitudes 81. 219
- Lawyers*, European, the style of, compared with that of the Eastern Pundits 358
- Leibnitz*, his account of the instructions given to the Florentine ambassadors to the Soldan of Egypt ——— 235
- Logic* and Metaphysics, state of, in India 297
- Longitudes* of places, how determined by ancient geographers ——— 79. 221
- M
- Magellan*, effects a passage to the East Indies Westward from America 162
- Mahabarat*, an ancient Indian epic poem, account of, 288. extracts from 297. 299. 327
- Mahmoud* of Gaznah, the vast fleet that opposed his invasion of India 186
- Mahomet*, rapid spread of his religion, and the great effects produced by it, 91. contributed greatly to extend the commerce of Asia and Africa 146
- Mahomet* II. emperor of the Turks, subdues the Grecian empire ——— 123
- Mahudel*, M. his proofs of the ignorance of the ancients as to the nature of silk 210
- Malabar* coast, probable derivation of its name, 85. how mentioned by the Arabian writers ——— 96
- Malacca*, the city of, rendered the staple of the trade carried on in the East, by the Portuguese ——— 137
- Maldivè* Islands, probable derivation of their name ——— 85
- 3 B 2 Man,

I N D E X.

- Man*, a review of his progress in social life ——— 263
- Manufactures*, Indian, the perfection of, accounted for ——— 261
- Maps*, none known prior to those formed to illustrate Ptolemy's geography 78
- Marco Polo*, the Venetian, account of his travels, 121. objections to his relations ——— 236
- Marfeilles*, opens a trade with Constantinople for Indian commodities 103
- Maffoudi*, the Arabian, his account of India ——— 225
- Mecca*, the temple there visited as well by commercial as by devout pilgrims, 105. the pilgrimages to, contributed greatly to facilitate trade, 146. account of the caravans which visit the temple there 245
- Medici*, Cosmo di, a Florentine merchant, negotiates a commercial treaty with Egypt, in favour of his countrymen 117
- Mediterranean sea*, the chief seat of ancient commerce ——— 152
- Meghasthenes*, his embassy from Seleucus, king of Macedonia, to India, 30. his account of India ——— 31
- Mocenigo*, doge of Venice, in the fifteenth century, his account of the naval strength of that republic — 242
- Monkish annalists*, a character of 102
- Monsoons*, the first application of them in voyages to India ——— 48
- Moses*, the books of, the most ancient and genuine record of the early ages of the world ——— 1
- Mufiris*, a port on the coast of Malabar, frequented by ancient navigators in the Indian trade ——— 48
- Mythology of the Greeks*, the natural origin of ——— 317
- N
- Nadir Shah*, general review of his Indian expedition ——— 185
- Nagara of Ptolemy*, its latitude according to D'Anville ——— 73
- Navigation*, origin of, traced, 4. where first cultivated, 5. how introduced among the Egyptians — 6
- Nearchus*, commands the naval expedition of Alexander the Great down the Indus, 17. remarks on ——— 188
- Nicephorus Gregoras*, his character of the Genoese at Constantinople 233
- Niebbuhr*, his evidence in favour of the European origin of the mariner's compass ——— 228
- O
- Omar*, caliph, founds the city of Bassora, 93
- Ormus*, the island of, seized by the Portuguese ——— 139
- P
- Pagodas of India*, general account of, 277. 351. are placed with astronomical precision ——— 362
- Palibothra*, endeavours to ascertain the situation of that city — 196
- Palmyra*, by whom, and on what occasion built, 45. its stupendous ruins, 46. its present state — 47
- Panjab*, progress of Alexander the Great through that country — 15
- Papyrus*, occasion of its being disused for writing on ——— 231
- Parchment*, when first used for the record of charters and deeds — 231
- Pariars*, the most contemptible race of men in India ——— 229. 339
- Patna*, evidences of its not being the ancient city of Palibothra — 197
- Pearls*, their high estimation among the Romans, 53. were dearer than diamonds ——— 208
- Pera*, the chief suburb of Constantinople, granted to the Genoese on the subversion of the Latin empire there, 112. the Genoese expelled by the Turks 123
- Persia*, how the commerce between that country and India was conducted, 38. vigorous cultivation of the India trade, 86. the silk trade engrossed by the Persians, 87. their extortions introduce the silk-worm to Europe, 88. is conquered by the Arabs, 92. Nestorian

I N D E X.

- rian churches planted there, 97. amount of the revenue of the Persian monarchs from Herodotus, 183. instances of their ancient aversion to the sea ——— 192
- Phalanx*, Macedonian, how formed by Alexander the Great — 25
- Phenicians*, how they opened a commercial intercourse with India, 7. are said by Herodotus to have passed the Cape of Good Hope ——— 153
- Philosophy*, the cure for superstition 322
- Pilgrimages* to the Holy Land, undertaken as well from commercial as from pious motives, 105. account of the pilgrimages to Mecca ——— 245
- Pilpay's* fables, the origin of, traced 356
- Plato*, his political objections to commerce in a well regulated commonwealth 207
- Pliny* the elder, his slender knowledge of India, 62. his account of the island of Taprobana, 75. observations on his account of the progress of Seleucus in India ——— 195
- Pomponius Mela*, his account of the island of Taprobana, 75. and of the Caspian sea ——— 204
- Porcelane*, the first mention of, by Arabian travellers ——— 96
- Portugal*, circumstances that led the Portuguese to the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope, 133. vigorous exertions of the Portuguese to cultivate the Eastern trade, 137. they aim at a monopoly of the trade to the East, 139. establish a commercial empire in the East, 143. their activity in exploring the Eastern countries, 154. they drive the Venetians out of the European markets, by reducing the prices of India goods, 157. how they remained so long in the exclusive possession of the India trade, 161. are rivalled at length in the Indian ocean by the Dutch, 163. and by the English, ib repulse the efforts of Solyman the Magnificent, to drive them from India, 175. their intercourse with infidels licenced by a Pappal bull ——— 234
- Porus*, opposes the progress of Alexander the Great in India, 15. remains steady to the Macedonian interest 29
- Potosi*, the discovery of the silver mines of, the first permanent source of wealth derived by Spain from America 169
- Ptolemy*, the geographer, estimate of his scientific knowledge, 63. established geography upon its proper principles, 64. his accounts of the continent of India examined, 65. his geography of India corrected to modern times by M. D'Anville, 66. instances of his exactness, 73. his account of the island of Taprobane, 76. his character, by Agathemerus, 212. his geographical errors, 214. from what materials he composed his geography of India 221
- Ptolemy Lagus*, establishes the seat of the Egyptian government at Alexandria, and erects the light-house on the Pharos 35
- Ptolemy Philadelphus*, projects a grand canal to facilitate the intercourse between Egypt and India, 35. founds the city of Berenice ——— 36
- Pultanah*, the ancient Plithania of Arrian, 211

R

- Ramuzia*, detects the geographical errors of Ptolemy ——— 214
- Raynal*, Abbe, character of his history of the East and West Indies 173
- Red Sea*, derivation of the name, and the different applications of it by the ancients and the moderns — 190
- Religion* and superstition, discriminated 313
- Renaudot*, M. his translation of the Eastern voyage of two Mahomedans, from the Arabic, vindicated from the charge of imposition ——— 224
- Rennel*, Major, his illustrations of the Indian expedition of Alexander the Great, 18. his account of the river Ganges, 195. remarks on his account of the situation of the city of Palibothra, 196. his opinion of the Egyptian navigation examined ——— 202
- Rhinocolura*, the ancient port of communication between Phenicia and India 7
- Roger*, M. his account of the Indian chronology ——— 361
- Rome*, rise of the power of, 40. how supplied with Indian commodities, 44. its

I N D E X.

- its imports from thence, articles of luxury, 50. spices, 51. precious stones, 53. silk, 54. remained ignorant of the nature or production of silk, 55. how the breeding silk-worms was introduced into the Eastern empire, 88. consequences of the Roman empire being dissolved by the Barbarians, 119. how the itineraries of the empire were formed ———— 213
- Ruffia*, a commercial intercourse by land opened between that country and China 249
- Ryots* of Indostan, inquiry into the tenure by which they hold their possessions 345
- S
- Sacotala*, an ancient Indian dramatic poem, account of ———— 290
- Sacotecas*, the mines of, in Mexico, importance of the discovery of, to Spain 169
- Saint Croix*, Baron de, observations on his Critique des Historiens d'Alexandre le Grand ———— 193
- Samarcand*, by what name known to Alexander the Great, 13. its latitude, as ascertained by D'Anville 73
- Sandracothis*, an Indian prince, his revolt against, and treaty with, Seleucus king of Macedonia ———— 29
- Sanskreet* literature, a new acquisition, 354. Mr. Halhed's account of 355
- Sanudo*, Marino, his account of the Venetian trade with India in the fourteenth century ———— 118
- Sciences* and Arts, where first cultivated, 2. a view of the state of, in India 296
- Scylax* of Caryandra, his naval expedition to India, 10. gives fabulous accounts of the country, 11. why his voyage is not mentioned by Arrian 187
- Seapoys*, modern, established upon the same principle with the phalanx of Persians formed by Alexander the Great 25
- Seleucus*, the successor of Alexander, his expedition to India, 29. observations on ———— 194
- Selim*, sultan, the conqueror of the Mamelukes, his attention to the advances of the Indian commerce 174
- Semiramis*, the vast fleet that opposed her invasion of India ———— 186
- Sera Metropolis*, of Ptolemy, its latitude according to D'Anville ———— 73
- Seringham*, description of the pagoda there 282.
- Sesostris*, king of Egypt, the first who rendered the Egyptians a commercial people, 6. improbabilities attending his supposed expedition to, and conquest of, India ———— 179
- Shafter*, some account of ———— 298. 359
- Sielediba*, account given of this island, by Cosmas Indicopleustes ———— 85
- Silk*, its high estimation among the Romans, 54. the trade for, engrossed by the Persians, 87. silk-worms obtained and cultivated by the Greeks, 88. account of the Venetian and Florentine trade for silk, 114. ignorance of the ancients as to its production, 210. why disliked by the Turks 211
- Silver*, is continually drained from Europe to carry on the East India trade, 165. Europe, how enriched by this exportation ———— 172
- Sinæ Metropolis*, of Ptolemy, endeavours of M. D'Anville to ascertain its situation 69
- Slave-trade*, modern, the origin of, 166. is largely carried on by the African caravans ———— 217
- Solomon*, king of Judea, inquiry into his maritime commerce, 9. builds Tadmor in the desert ———— 45
- Solyman* the Magnificent, his efforts to drive the Portuguese from India 174
- Soul*, description of, from the Mahabarat 297
- Spain*, how that country happened to have the advantage and honour of discovering America, 132. gold and silver the only profitable articles they first found in America, 169. are obliged to colonize in order to improve their discoveries 170
- Spices*, and aromatics, why much used by the ancients, 51. vast modern consumption of them ———— 160
- Strabo*, his obscure knowledge of India, 61. his account of the island of Tapropane, 74. denies that Sesostris ever entered

I N D E X.

- entered India, 182. evidences of his slender knowledge of India, 202. his account of the Caspian sea, 204. how he justifies his neglect of Hipparchus, 212. his free exposition of ancient theology, 332. his account of the ancient dyes ——— 352
- Sumatra*, the island of, visited by the early Arabians ——— 95
- Superstition* and religion, discriminated, 313. origin of superstition, 314. progress of, 318. picture of Oriental superstition, 319. philosophy fatal to 322
- Sylla*, vast quantities of spices consumed in his funeral pile ——— 51
- T
- Tadmor* in the desert, by whom built, and for what purpose, 45. its stupendous ruins, 46. its present state 47
- Tamerlane*, his judicious choice of the season for his Indian campaign 185
- Taprobane*, Strabo's account of that island, 74. Pliny's account of it, 75. Ptolemy's account, 76. appears to be the island of Ceylon, 77. account given of this island by Cosmas Indicopleustes 85
- Tatta*, great drought there, 185. vast numbers of vessels for water-carriage there ——— 186
- Tea*, has within a century become a necessary of life in many parts of Europe, 252. amazing annual importation of ib.
- Tea-tree*, first mention of, by Arabian travellers ——— 96
- Tides* of the Indian ocean, peculiarities in 189
- Trade*, how at first conducted between different countries, 3. between Egypt and India, 35. exports and imports of India ——— 51
- Transmigration* of souls, the Eastern doctrine of, explained ——— 330
- Turks*, their scruples against the wearing of silk ——— 211
- Tyre*, the best account of the commercial transactions of that city, to be found in the prophet Ezekiel ——— 183
- V
- Venice*, first rise of, as a commercial state, 100. Constantinople taken, in conjunction with the crusaders, 109. the Venetians engage largely in the trade and manufacture of silk, 110. the Latin empire in the East subverted, 112. the Venetians supplanted in the trade with Constantinople by the Genoese, 114. they settle a trade with Alexandria, 115. account of the Venetian trade with India in the fourteenth century, 118. travels of Marco Polo, 121. their trade extended by the Turks subduing the Greek empire, 123. remarks on their trade for Indian goods, 125. evidences of the great wealth they acquired by this trade, 129. alarm taken at the direct voyage to East India, by Vasco de Gama, 136. measures prosecuted by the Venetians to check the progress of the Portuguese in the East, 140. the Portuguese supplant them in the European market, by reducing the prices of India goods, 157. of the great extent of their trade, 240. the bank of Venice the first formed of any in Europe, 241. amount of the Venetian naval strength in the fifteenth century ——— 242
- Ulug Beg*, his astronomical tables 73
- Virgil*, a good natural historian, as well as a descriptive poet ——— 210
- Volney*, M. his account of the camel, 244. and of the caravan from Damascus to Mecca ——— 246
- W
- Wilford*, lieutenant, his examination of Arrian's Periplus by modern names and situations ——— 211
- Wilkins*, Mr. account of his translation of the Hecto-Pades ——— 356
- Wulli*, character of an ode translated from ——— 358
- Z
- Zemindars*, their office in the government of Indostan ——— 345

T H E E N D.