Zatton, Roger, abbot of Evesham :

account of his abbacy, 303, 310.

[The grants of Zatton described at pp. 306–9 are for the most part conveyed in a composition dated 1382, which is entered in Harl. MS.
3763, ff. 211b–12.][The somewhat obscure comparison, at
p. 310, of Zatton's life with the labours of a smith, is explained by a passage in Sulp. Severus' Life of St. Martin of Tours (chap. xxvi.), from which it is evidently taken. "Ut
"fabris ferrariis moris est, qui inter
"operandum pro quodam laboris
"levamine incudem suam feriunt,
"ita Martinus, etiam dum aliud
"agere videretur, semper orabat."—
Opera, 1741, vol. i., p. 36.]
