

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-05183-5 - My Autobiography and Reminiscences: Volume 3

William Powell Frith

Index

More information

INDEX.

- ADELAIDE, Queen, and Lord Dudley's habit of thinking aloud, vol. ii., pp. 8, 9
Agnew, Mr., purchase of a picture, vol. i., p. 389
Allan, Sir William, vol. i., p. 194
Allingham, Mrs., her pictures, vol. ii., pp. 324, 325
Andersen, Hans C., and Mark Lemon, vol. i., p. 180
Andrews, Mr., railway speculations—his death, vol. i., pp. 153, 154
Angel, Mrs., her pictures, vol. ii., p. 325
Astley's views of perspective scene-painting, vol. iii., pp. 107, 108
Austin, Alfred, and "The Season," vol. ii., p. 338
Avory, Mr., as a model for "The Race for Wealth," vol. ii., p. 145

B—, Miss (Mr. Jones's young model), vol. i., p. 58
B—, Mrs., her habit of thinking aloud, vol. i., pp. 66, 67
Ballantine, Mr. Serjeant, as a model for "The Race for Wealth," vol. ii., p. 145
Bancroft, Mrs., vol. ii., p. 345; story of Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft's snow-bound guests behind the scenes at the Haymarket, vol. iii., pp. 323-327
Barlow, Mr., engraver of Dickens' portrait, vol. i., p. 317
Barnum, and Jenny Lind's contract with him, vol. ii., pp. 319, 320
Basset, Mr., and Bredman, the 'pious' model, vol. ii., pp. 61, 62
Beatrice, Princess, sitting for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," vol. i., p. 351; a wedding gift for Lady Augusta Bruce, vol. i., p. 362
Beauclerk, Lady Diana, portrait for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," vol. i., p. 346
Bedford, Duke of, transaction with Sheepshanks, vol. i., pp. 204, 205
Beckford, author of "Vathek," first meeting with—the Fonthill story—"Beckford's Folly," vol. ii., pp. 131-137
Beckingham, Mr., visit to Flatow—his "corns"—gives introductions to Flatow, vol. ii., pp. 230-232
Belgians, Queen of the. See Brabant, Duchess of Bell, Jacob, vol. i., p. 41-43; his taste for pretty models, pp. 279, 280; petitions for a railing round "The Derby Day" at the Academy, pp. 287-289
Berkeley, Grantley, met at the Shelleys', vol. ii., pp. 123, 124
Bernhardt, Sarah, her studio at Paris—her preference for sculpture over acting, vol. ii., p. 140
Betts, Mr., purchase of Landseer's picture "Braemar," vol. iii., p. 247
Bewick's "British Birds," vol. iii., p. 370
Bewick, Miss, letter from, vol. iii., pp. 370, 371
Birt, Mr., and "The Little Gleaner," vol. i., pp. 193, 194; disagreement about "Ramsgate Sands," pp. 259, 260; his dogs—"Ducky" on the dinner-table—a mud bath—"Ducky" as a model—"Ducky's" sore throat, vol. iii., pp. 126-131
Bishop, a model for "The Derby Day"—cause of non-appearance—Sir E. Landseer's story about, vol. i., pp. 275, 276
Black, a model—his depressing views and remarks, vol. iii., pp. 119-123

INDEX.

435

- Blessington, Lady, as editor of the "Book of Beauty," vol. ii., pp. 199, 200; at Gore House—"The Book of Beauty"—destruction of Gore House—sculptured hands, vol. iii., pp. 249-251
- Bonheur, Rosa, her studio at Fontainebleau, vol. ii., pp. 328, 329
- Boxall's portrait-painting, mentioned in a letter from Mr. John Gibbons, vol. iii., pp. 203, 208
- Brabant, Duchess of (Queen of the Belgians), portrait and costume for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales"—"no smoke or beer allowed"—portrait painted from description, vol. i., pp. 343, 344
- Braddon, Miss (Mrs. Maxwell), her novels—her portrait—sketches for "Lady Audley's Secret," vol. ii., pp. 345, 346; stolen letters—suggested subjects for pictures—her portrait again—letters from, vol. iii., pp. 400-406
- Bradford, Charley, his pictures at Sass's Academy—an exhibition, a supper, and a challenge, vol. iii., pp. 18-24
- Brassey, vol. ii., p. 26
- Bredman, the "pious" model—his imposition, vol. ii., pp. 56-63; returns from Australia—a model again, pp. 118, 119; a letter from, in Australia, vol. iii., pp. 362-364
- Brett and Haydon, police models for "The Railway Station," vol. i., p. 330
- Brooks, Shirley, his wit, vol. ii., pp. 259, 260; ludicrous letter from, about a signboard, pp. 331-333; retort to a rude critic on Punch, p. 334; verse on Frith's contribution to Punch, p. 351; meeting at Lecch's—his novels—the nickname of "Cottle"—"The Epistle of Shegog"—humorous letters from, vol. iii., pp. 270-293; birthday verses to Mrs. Frith—humorous letter about Miss Furtado, pp. 387-389; various letters and jokes, pp. 390-394
- Broughton, Miss Rhoda, vol. ii., p. 348
- Brown, Claude Lorraine Richard Wilson, origin of Christian names—nicknamed "Cerberus" at Sass's Academy—"Change for a Sovereign"—no muffins, vol. iii., pp. 12-18; as drawing-master at a country school, p. 24
- Browning, Robert, lost letters, vol. iii., p. 432
- Bruce, Lady Augusta (Lady Augusta Stanley) secures the Duchess of Brabant's dress for Frith to paint from, vol. i., pp. 343, 344
- Brunskill, the tipsy model, vol. i., pp. 56, 57
- Bundy, model of a jockey for "The Derby Day," vol. i., p. 283
- Burdett, Sir Francis, story of, with Lord John Russell, vol. ii., pp. 258, 259
- Burke, Bennet Langton, and Sir J. Reynolds' forgotten picture. See Reynolds
- Burlington, Lady, as a model to Sir Joshua Reynolds and Sir Francis Grant, vol. iii., pp. 123, 124
- Burnand, F. C., editor of Punch—pun on "Ouida," vol. ii., pp. 338, 339; letters from, vol. iii., pp. 413-416
- Burnand, the brothers—connoisseurs of art, vol. ii., p. 2
- Byng, "Poodle"—reminiscences of George IV.—a good walker, vol. i., pp. 354, 355
- Byron, Lord, memorial statue to—transactions with Murray, vol. ii., pp. 119, 120
- Cambridge, Duchess of, portrait for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," vol. i., p. 355
- Canterbury, Archbishop of. See Longley
- Canziani, Madame. See Starr, Miss
- Caracciolo's death, Lord Northwick's description of, vol. i., pp. 145, 146
- Carlyle's verdict on Charles Dickens, vol. i., p. 267; portrait of, rejected by the Academy, afterwards accepted, vol. ii., p. 290
- Carpenter, Mrs., her pictures—Miss Carpenter's letter regarding them—portrait-painting, vol. iii., pp. 419-421
- Cartwright's "stroll" with Dickens and Frith at Gad's Hill, vol. iii., p. 232
- Castlereagh, Lord, and the Ghost at Knebworth, vol. ii., pp. 309, 310
- Cecil, Mr. Arthur, sequel to the story of Mr. Bancroft's snow-bound guests at the Haymarket, vol. iii., p. 327
- Chalon, Mr. Alfred, vol. i., p. 23
- Charles I., a piece of his flesh, vol. i., pp. 364, 365; "Charles I.'s Last Sunday," p. 368; and Cromwell—"Cruel Necessity," vol. ii., p. 275

- Charles II. and Nell Gwynne, amusing story regarding models for, vol. i., p. 126
- Chester, Bishop of, portrait for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales" — "Neck, or Nothing," vol. i., p. 358
- Christie's and "The Bride of Lammermoor," vol. i., pp. 225-227; and Poole's forgotten picture, vol. ii., pp. 316, 317
- Claude Duval, picture of, engraved by Stocks, vol. iii., p. 160
- Codrington, Sir Edward, distributing medals at the Hanover Square Rooms for the Society of Arts, vol. iii., pp. 53, 54
- Collins, Wilkie, "The Frozen Deep," vol. i., pp. 265, 266; playing bagatelle with, p. 314; his good temper under rude criticism, vol. ii., pp. 333, 334
- Compton as a Shakesperian actor, vol. i., p. 375
- Constable, vol. i., p. 47; his death, with a story thereupon, p. 49; picture rejected by the Hanging Committee, pp. 237, 238; anecdote of a gardener's criticism, vol. iii., p. 36; interview with—public want of appreciation of his pictures—method of painting, pp. 318-320
- Cooke, E. W., his habit of constant sketching, vol. iii., p. 137
- Coope, Mr., gives £900 for "Sterne's Grisette," vol. ii., p. 14
- Cooper and Webster on the hanging of "The Hunchback," vol. i., pp. 255, 256; on painting on Sundays, p. 284; pictures at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., p. 82
- Cope, picture of an Italian nobleman in prison, vol. iii., p. 51
- Corbet, Mr., picture damaged at the Academy—Charles Landseer's joke thereupon, vol. ii., p. 23
- Cottle, Elizabeth, "a direct descendant from Queen Elizabeth," vol. iii., p. 271
- Cousins' drawing of Edmund Kean, vol. iii., pp. 226-228
- Cowper, Douglas, vol. i., p. 44; conversation with concerning pictures, p. 63; and Ennis, the old model, vol. ii., p. 113; intimacy with Frith—paints Frith's portrait, vol. iii., pp. 68-70; his picture of "The Bride of Lammermoor," p. 71
- Cox, David, fluctuations in prices of his pictures, vol. iii., pp. 320, 321
- Creswick's advice to Frith to aspire to become A.R.A., vol. i., p. 114; paints landscape for Frith's picture—a friend's criticism on same, p. 125; sketching up the Rhine—"Janus'" criticism, vol. iii., pp. 137, 138; a French guest at his house—phenomenal English, pp. 169, 170; treatment of autograph-collectors, p. 230; story of "Mr. Envious" and Francis Grant's election, pp. 350-352
- Cruikshank, George, adventure with a highwayman—total abstinence—encounter with a burglar—delusions about Dickens' and Ainsworth's novels, vol. i., pp. 209-212; puzzle letter from, vol. iii., p. 370
- Cundali, Mr., a visit from a descendant of David Garrick, vol. i., pp. 387, 388
- Cust, Sir Edward, sitting for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales"—objection to smoking, vol. i., p. 355
- Dadd, Richard, vol. i., p. 62; expedition to the Holy Land with Sir Thomas Phillips—intimacy with Frith—designs from Tasso—announcement of his madness—his visit to Frith—"a mind diseased"—commission of a murder—confinement in an asylum—his death, vol. iii., pp. 177-182; letter from, dated on board H.M.S. Hecate, off Jafia, 1842, pp. 182-195
- Danby's pictures mentioned in a letter from Mr. John Gibbons, vol. iii., p. 208
- Darnley, Lord, lends model of carriage for "Claude Duval," vol. i., p. 306
- Darnley, Lord, sketch of the murder of, lent by J. A. Froude to Frith, vol. ii., pp. 277, 278
- Darrell, Mr., and the tragic story of Dr. and Mrs. Rose, vol. ii., pp. 200-207
- Da Vinci, Leonardo, a picture by, for £5, vol. ii., pp. 225-227
- Dean, John, his ugliness—his art—his love of flattery—a male "Mrs. Harris," vol. iii., pp. 301-303
- Delaroche, Paul, picture mistaken for "The Colleen Bawn," vol. ii., p. 34
- Denbigh, Lord, possesses a Holbein portrait of Anne Boleyn, vol. ii., p. 24
- Denison (Speaker of the House of Commons). See Ossington, Lord

- Denmark, Queen of, and the Danish Princesses' portraits for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," vol. i., p. 344
- Detaille's and Meissonier's studios in Paris, vol. ii., p. 139
- Deville, the phrenologist, vol. iii., pp. 71, 72
- Dhuleep Singh, Maharajah. See under Singh
- Vol. I. Dickens, Charles, criticism on Maclise's and other pictures, vol. i., p. 95; letter to Frith commissioning for two pictures, p. 103; advertisement for "Kate Nickleby," p. 105; declines Thackeray's illustrations—dislike to being seen looking at "Dombey and Son" pictures at the Academy, p. 121; Dickens and Cruikshank, pp. 211, 212; acts in "The Frozen Deep," p. 265; portrait of—his moustache—letters from, regarding sitting—Maclise's portrait of him—first sitting to Frith, pp. 307-309; public readings—character of Sam Weller misunderstood—Elmore's account of the reading—Dickens "in the wrong," pp. 311, 312; Tavistock House—"Tale of Two Cities"—George Eliot's "Adam Bede"—Gad's Hill purchased, pp. 313, 314; a story of a bear—presentation to Frith—a lady's comment on Dickens' portrait, pp. 315, 316
- Vol. II. treatment of anonymous letters, vol. ii., p. 5; the portrait for John Forster—his beard and moustache—letters from Forster to Frith about the portrait, pp. 184-192; Flatow's opinion of, pp. 236, 237; remark on Leech's singing, p. 299; interest in art, p. 326; dislike to being "lionized," p. 347; opinion of
- Vol. III. Bulwer's "Lady of Lyons"—interview with Bulwer and Macready behind the scenes on its production, vol. iii., pp. 103, 104; at Ivy Cottage—intimacy with Egg, pp. 216-218; proposed compliment to Egg's cook, p. 219; letters from, regarding Landseer's "Lions," pp. 230, 231; Cartwright's and the author's "stroll" with Dickens at Gad's Hill—Dickens' kindness of heart, pp. 232-234; acting in "Oliver Twist," pp. 234, 235; banquet given to Dickens before his departure for America—his new scarf-pin—placards of "The Railway-Station" copyright, pp. 235, 236; an invitation to go to the Moray Minstrels, pp. 246, 247; letters from—"Kate Nickleby" again—"Bill Sykes," pp. 379-381
- Dickens, Mrs. Charles, Maclise's portrait of, vol. ii., pp. 30, 31 [Mrs. Dickens, Miss Kate. See Perugini, Disraeli, Mr., portrait for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales"—John Phillip's portrait of, vol. i., pp. 359, 360
- Disraeli, Mrs., admiration for her husband, vol. i., pp. 359, 360
- Dixon, and Charley Bradford's challenge for practical joking at Sass's Academy, vol. iii., pp. 21-24
- Domenichino's picture, "A Pack of Fox-hounds," vol. ii., pp. 220, 221
- Doran, Dr., literary work—tutor to Lord Glenlyon, to Mr. Lascelles, and to Lord Portman's sons—takes his degree at Marburg—refuses Church preferment for literature—fondness for art—story of Rachel—stories of spirit-rapping—letters to Mrs. Frith, vol. ii., pp. 263-272; invitation to dinner in verse from, vol. iii., p. 378
- D'Orsay, Count, his picture of the Queen and the Duke of Wellington—arrested for debt—a difficulty—Landseer overcomes it—a visit to Madame Tussaud's—a knowing dog, vol. ii., pp. 340-344
- Ducrow's circus, performance of "The Dumb Man of Manchester," vol. iii., p. 109; a stolen banner for a waistcoat, p. 110
- Dudley, Lord, habit of thinking aloud—occurs with Queen Adelaide, vol. ii., pp. 8-9
- Du Maurier's illustrations and pictures—letters from (with pen-and-ink sketches), vol. iii., pp. 407-411
- Duval, Claude, picture of, vol. i., pp. 304, 307, 317
- Dysart, Charles, choice of his profession—his love, his courtship, and his disastrous marriage, vol. iii., pp. 143-155
- Eastlake, Sir Charles, warning regarding picture-hanging at the Academy, vol. i., p. 232; introduces Frith to the Queen, p. 257; picture at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., p. 81; first meeting of Frith with Adelaide Proctor at the house of, pp. 135, 136; his presidency—his art—a good orator, p. 349

- Eaton, Mr., Secretary of the Royal Academy, vol. iii., p. 175
- Ebury, Lord, and Lord Westbury on the Burial Service, pp. 347, 348
- Edwards, Miss Amelia B., letter from, suggesting subject for a picture, vol. iii., pp. 394-397; her books—"Barbara's History," p. 423
- Egley, Maw, picture of "Pamela," vol. ii., p. 53
- Egg, trip up the Rhine with, vol. i., p. 109; picture of Queen Elizabeth, p. 156; friendship with, p. 157; trip to Belgium and Holland with—settling travelling expenses, pp. 160, 161; the trip continued, pp. 162-176; at Ivy Cottage, p. 178; sketch of a scene at the cottage after a burglary, p. 184; altercation with a Derby "clergyman," pp. 271, 272; a recipient of some home truths about his picture, p. 295; announcement of Richard Dadd's insanity, vol. iii., p. 179; dinner at Ivy Cottage—Egg as an actor—Dickens' desire to compliment the cook—Mark Lemon's story of a termagant in the kitchen—Leech's story of the hairdresser—Dickens' gambling—the story of a portrait of Edmund Kean—Mulready "a bruiser," pp. 216-228
- Eliot, George, Dickens' comment upon "Adam Bede," vol. i., p. 314
- Elliott, Sir Gilbert, criticism on Reynolds' picture "Cymon and Iphigenia," vol. iii., p. 386
- Ennis, the model—present at the Gordon Riots—his beard, vol. ii., pp. 102-108; his portrait—"an imitation Lawrence"—sits as model to Douglas Cowper—his death, p. 109-114
- Etty, vol. i., p. 100; devotion to his art—migration of the Academy from Somerset House to Trafalgar Square, vol. ii., p. 10; personal appearance of, vol. iii., p. 35; stands godfather to Sass's son, p. 45; change of fashion in appreciating his works, p. 331
- Evans, Mr., his picture rejected—assault upon Mr. Knight, vol. iii., pp. 170-173 (p. 367)
- Evelyn's Diary, extract from, vol. i.,
- F—, Mr., his collection of spurious pictures, vol. i., pp. 198-202
- Faed, picture of "His Only Pair," vol. ii., p. 30
- Farren, William, as an actor, vol. ii., p. 351
- Farrer, the last of the men servants, vol. ii., p. 255
- Fechter, Charles, at Pembridge Villas, vol. i., p. 374; Flatow's opinion of his "Hamlet," vol. ii., p. 237
- Fielden, Mr., possesses original of "Claude Duval," vol. i., p. 318
- Finden, Edward and William, engravers, vol. ii., p. 199
- Flatow, Louis Victor, agreement with Frith for "The Railway-Station," vol. i., p. 328; wins bet from Frith regarding engraving of picture, p. 335; his origin—how "Old Masters" are made—want of appreciation of "Old Masters" in Scotland—a chiropodist—Mr. Beckingham's corns—Flatow as a picture-dealer—how to get orders for engravings—at Maurice's with Dickens—opinion of Dickens—on Fechter's acting, vol. ii., pp. 228-237; fondness for jewellery—his illness—an unlucky doctor—his death, pp. 238, 239
- Forster, John, commission to paint a portrait of Charles Dickens, vol. i., p. 307; satisfaction at same, p. 317; his brusque manner, vol. ii., p. 184; the portrait of Charles Dickens—letters from Forster to Frith thereupon, pp. 184-192
- Frith, W. P., date of birth—at Aldfield—parentage and family—left Aldfield for Harrogate—father became landlord of "The Dragon"—sent to school at Knaresborough, vol. i., p. 2; copies engraving of a dog—family admiration at his artistic efforts—sent to school at St. Margaret's, Dover—fight with a French schoolfellow—love for Scott's novels, pp. 3-7; desire of the family that he should become an artist—his wish to be an auctioneer—description of "the Dragon Hotel"—a night alarm, pp. 9-17; first arrival in London—introduction to Mr. Partridge and Mr. Chalon—first visit to the theatre—"King John"—left under care of Mr. Sass, pp. 19-31; life at Mr. Sass's School of Art—introduction to various artists of note—a dinner with Eastlake, Constable, Wilkie, Etty, etc.—death of Constable—first attempts at drawing from Nature—Mr. Sass's "Gibus" hat—his falling mind, pp. 32-55; the life school—the tipsy model — Mr. Jones's interesting model — Sir Edwin Landseer — riotous Academy students — John Phillip, and Richard Dadd — conversation upon pictures with Douglas Cowper, pp. 56-63; practice in portrait-painting — Mrs. N —'s reading of "Pickwick" — Mrs. B —'s habit of thinking aloud — her portrait — a creaseless coat — uneven merit of the painter's portraits, pp. 64-69; posting from Harrogate to London — an amateur post-boy — arrival at Upper Brook Street — a house taken in Osnaburgh Street, pp. 70-77; first attempts at "subject" pictures — "The Last Minstrel" — "Madge Wildfire" — "Othello and Desdemona" — first press criticism — Haydon and Wilkie — Vandyke's portraits — "Dolly Varden" — first Academy picture ("Malvolio and the Countess Olivia") — "toning down" the Admiral — more Lincolnshire portraits — an implacable squire, pp. 78-89; admiration for Maclise — his pictures — Charles Dickens on art — "The Vicar of Wakefield" hung on the line — advice to young artists — a converted Academician — Charles Dickens' commission for two pictures — first meeting with Thackeray — visit to Antwerp with Egg — critics in Stoke Poges Churchyard, pp. 90-112; commission from Mr. Gibbons for a picture — "The Deserted Village" — elected A.R.A. — Mr. and Mrs. Pickersgill — further commissions — first Academy banquet — Duke of Wellington's speech — his comment on Turner's pictures — Thackeray and Dickens, pp. 114-121; the "Bourgeois Gentilhomme" sold — "An Old English Merry-making" — a scared gipsy model — Creswick's "touches" on a picture — story of models for Charles II. and Neil Gwynne — Turner's criticism on "An Old English Merry-making" — stories about Turner — collectors and dealers, pp. 122-142; dinner-party at Lord Northwick's — story of Caracciolo's execution — an unlucky pun — Lord Northwick's old butler, pp. 143-151; "Sir Roger de Coverley and the Saracen's Head" — pictures by Ward, Egg, and Phillip — meeting with Frank Stone, pp. 152-159; trip to Belgium and Holland with Egg and Stone — letters to his mother — a speech to the moon — Rubens' pictures — end of the trip, pp. 160-176; reminiscences of Stone, Douglas Jerrold, Mulready, Leech, Mark Lemon, etc. — service of art in detection of crime, pp. 177-184; "The Coming of Age" — working on Sunday — Peter Powell's ghost story — "The Little Gleaner" — Wilkie and his mother, and Mulready — a princely patron — Mr. F —'s collection of spurious pictures, pp. 185-202; Sheepshanks collection — "The Good-natured Man" — "Hogarth before the Governor of Calais" — "A Stage-Coach Adventure" — Cruikshank — another picture from "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" — "La Belle Marquise" — Macready's acting — the Macready banquet, pp. 203-217; picture of a mother and child — "Sherry, sir?" — "Pope and Lady Mary" — enlightened patronage — "The Bride of Lammermoor" — a clever copy — forged pictures — the Hanging Committee — quarrel between Roberts and Mulready — a good hater — Academy carpenters, pp. 218-235; hanging reminiscences — Constable and the Council — "touching up" the "portrait of a clergyman" and picture of "Charity," pp. 236, 242; "Rams-gate Sands" — diary regarding same — various criticisms — "The Sleepy Model" — Mulready's verdict on "The Sands" — hanging "The Hunchback" — introduction to the Queen — Mr. Birt and "The Sands" — "The Birthday" — "The Pilgrim" public-house sign — Harlow and Sir T. Lawrence, pp. 243-265; "The Frozen Deep," pp. 266-267; "The Derby Day" — race-course incidents — Egg and the "clergyman" — various models for "The Derby Day" — Bishop — Miss Gilbert — Miss H — — Bundy — Mac-lise's letter — the Queen and Prince Consort's criticism — a railing for the picture — candid friends — the face an index to the mind — a huntsman in spite of himself, pp. 268-303; "Claude Duval" — Lord Darnley's model of a coach — portrait of Dickens painted for Forster — letters from Dickens — a suggestion to Dickens for his readings — Sam Weller — pro-

- gress of the portrait—Landseer and the Duke of Wellington—stories of Landseer, pp. 304-326; "The Railway-Station"—agreement with Flatow for same—success of the picture—Haydon's suicide—the picture exhibited—bet with Flatow, pp. 327-335; the three pictures, "Morning, Noon, and Night"—agreement with Gambart for ten thousand pounds—"The Marriage of the Prince of Wales"—a visit from a bridesmaid's mamma, pp. 336-342; difficulties about costumes and sitters for the picture—"smoke and beer objected to"—the various sitters for the portraits—the Princess of Wales a restless sitter—the royal family—stories of bishops—the royal children and Lord —'s foot—disentombment of Charles I.—"The Marriage of the Prince of Wales" exhibited, pp. 343-366; "Charles I.'s Last Sunday"—the Belgian Order of Leopold conferred—a stigma thrown on the honour—correspondence thereupon—actors, past and present—Sothorn's practical joking—Lord Dundreary's "creation"—picture of "Dr. Johnson and his friends"—Nollekens the sculptor—David Garrick's descendant—a handsome price for a picture, pp. 367-389; Sterne's "Maria"—the obstreperous goat—the model for "Maria"—her history and disappearance—an anonymous critic—Mr. X—'s habit of thinking aloud—Lord Dudley and Queen Adelaide—pictures of "Hope" and "Fear"—a bogus collection of pictures—the dado of Somerset House a receptacle for purses—first appearance at Somerset House—a subject from "Don Quixote"—"Nell Gwynne"—"A Man in Armour"—depression at non-success of pictures—Sterne's "Grisette"—a visit to Homburg—"The Salon d'Or"—"The Cigarette Smoker"—a model's marriage—"all weddings is risks"—Mrs. Rousby—"Henry VIII. and Anne Boleyn"—a subject from Vanbrugh, vol. ii., pp. 1-26; rejected subjects—picture of Lady M. Montagu and the Duke of Kingston—intelligent spectators at the Academy—"original" suggestions for subjects—"Whiteley's at four o'clock"—the Tichborne Claimant—"Pamela," pp. 27-55; Bredman, the "pious" model, pp. 56-63; a visit to Italy—Marseilles—Nice—Monaco—Genoa—Count Ugolino—Siena—Rome—Naples—Pompeii—Baïæ—Assisi—the Bridge of Sighs—Venice—the Swiss courier—Bologna—Milan—Lago Maggiore, pp. 64-99; "The Last of the Stuarts"—Ennis, the bearded model—his recollection of the Gordon Riots—"an imitation Lawrence"—death of Ennis, pp. 100-114; picture suggested by the Doges' Dungeons—Bredman again—the Byron statue—amateur criticism—the Shelleys—more models—Green and Gloster—"The Road to Ruin" exhibited, pp. 114-130; Beckford—the Fonthill story, pp. 131-137; "The Race for Wealth"—a visit with Millais to Paris—Sarah Bernhardt—description of subject of "The Race for Wealth"—the Old Bailey—Millbank—Peace, the burglar—a subject from Tenby, pp. 138-153; visit to Holland and Belgium—the Wiertz Gallery—Rembrandt and the Six family, pp. 193-198; "The Book of Beauty"—tragic story of Dr. and Mrs. Rose, pp. 199-207; "For Better, for Worse"—the Jew model—story of Wilkie's picture "The Parish Beadle"—Swift, Stella, and Vanessa, pp. 208-214; models—the young thief and the watch-chain, pp. 216-219; selecting "Old Masters" for the Academy—a wonderful Domenichino—Vandykes and Lelys—Reynolds or Romney?—story of a gentleman and his carriage—a Leonardo da Vinci for £5, pp. 220-227; Flatow—how "Old Masters" are made—anecdotes of Flatow—his illness and death, pp. 228-239; the mysterious sitter—Miss K—model for "Claude Duval"—Mrs. Y—her madness, pp. 240-247; a chapter on men servants, pp. 248-255; the æsthetic craze—"The Private View"—sitters for the picture—Gladstone—Sir Francis Burdett and Lord John Russell—Bernal Osborne's wit—Shirley Brooks' wit—an unpunctual model—"The Private View" exhibited, pp. 256-262; raconteurs in general—a chapter on Dr. Doran—recollections of Rachel—spirit-rapping—letters to Mrs. Frith, pp. 263-

Vol. III.

272; revisiting "The Dragon" at Harrogate—"Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Siddons"—"Cruel Necessity"—"John Knox and the Ladies of Queen Mary's Court"—"No Jesters in Scotland"—J. A. Froude lends sketch of the murder of Darnley—Rizzio's blood—a proposed picture, pp. 273-279; Mr. Stokes' transaction with the Jews for a Gainsborough—its purchase by a Duke, pp. 280-288; awkward questions for the Hanging Committee—a portrait of Carlyle—a mad artist and his pictures—"Kamschatka"—"Moses and the Tables of the Law"—a "moon-struck" picture—models and dresses for "Knox at Holyrood," pp. 289-295; a chapter on Leech, pp. 296-302; Mr. Westwood's ghost story—a sketch of the ghost—another ghost story—"The Yellowboy's Room," pp. 303-311; story of the painter's portrait—buys the portrait—valuable information regarding himself—an anecdote of Sir J. Reynolds, pp. 312-318; Jenny Lind and Barnum—society at Mr. J. M. Levy's house—"The Midgets" and Madame Nilsson, pp. 319-322; lady artists, past and present—a visit to Rosa Bonheur, pp. 323-329; a chapter on various celebrities known by the author—concluding remarks, pp. 330-352; introduction to vol. iii.—great names and their value—Michael Angelo Green—Claude Lorraine Richard Wilson (Cerberus) Brown—attempts at flute-playing—a student's supper—a practical joke and a challenge, vol. iii., pp. 10-24; prelude to correspondence—necessity for work, pp. 25-28; early correspondence—a brief description of the artist's father and mother—his grandmother, pp. 30-32; letters to his mother (1835) describing early attempts at Sass's Academy—introduction to Wilkie, Etty, and Constable—a story of Constable's—a ball at the Sasses'—application for a tail-coat, pp. 35-37; pen-and-ink etching—the tail-coat again—Scruton's crime and punishment, pp. 37-39; Wilkie's, Etty's and Landseer's pictures at Somerset House—a plea for razors—an advance upon outline drawing—the Copes—the new tail-coat worn—study of anatomy, pp. 39-41; a visit to the Raphael cartoons at Hampton Court—Mr. Hope's gallery—Sass and O'Connell—Sir Thomas Lawrence's collection of Old Masters—notes on the foregoing letter, pp. 42-44; letter to his father—the "ball" completed—Etty's commendation—an invitation to Willingdon refused—progress in work, pp. 44-46; letter to his mother—drawing from "the round" a contemplated holiday at Uncle Ade's—economy in clothes—hard work—visit to the Dulwich Gallery on foot—commendatory letter from Mr. Sass, pp. 46-49; letters to his mother (1836)—the want of a purse—wins the medal of the Society of Arts—the French gold medal won in 1857, pp. 49, 50; a visit to the Exhibition—Wilkie's picture of Napoleon and Pope Pius VII.—Cope's picture of an Italian nobleman in a dungeon—further attempts at flute-playing and a demand for a flute—studies from the antique—a pickpocket, pp. 50-53; the distribution of medals by Sir E. Codrington at the Hanover Square rooms—investment in an instruction book for the flute—the highest medal for drawing—the "worth" of the medal—the Lawrence collection of Old Masters—Mr. Sass's wedding-day—expenses for the flute, pp. 53-55; the Vice-Chancellor's notes—"trying for the Academy"—first attempt in sepia—injudicious bathing—kindness of the Sasses in illness—Mr. Sass's intention to paint Frith's portrait—the baths at Marshgate—young ladies' boarding-schools, pp. 55-58; a trip to Hastings—Mr. Slye at Willingdon, and Mr. Wyatt's collection of pictures at Hastings, pp. 59-61; "contributions thankfully received"—a new cloak—postscript from Mr. Sass, pp. 61, 62; visit to St. James's Palace—O'Connell—the King and Queen—Mr. Sass's action against a bookbinder, p. 63; The Pickwick Papers—"The Laccoon" completed, pp. 64, 65; Turner, the engraver—a "grumpy" character—his club-foot, pp. 66, 67; Douglas Cowper's friendship with Frith—paints Frith's portrait—the frontispiece to this volume—George Robins or Rubens? pp. 68, 69; more of Douglas Cowper—his picture of "The Bride of Lammermoor"—

- Deville the phrenologist, pp. 71, 72 ; desire for a crimson velvet waist-coat—on being out late at night—crushes to see Macready and Malibran—a fatal age for geniuses, pp. 72-74 ; Malibran's death—uncle Ade and the "Camera Obscura"—the London University on fire, pp. 74, 75 ; close of the correspondence with his mother—gives Sass notice that his instruction is no longer required—a disagreement thereat—Mrs. Sass's letter to Mrs. Frith—peace proclaimed—return to Sass's Academy, pp. 75-78 ; Douglas Cowper's letter of criticism upon the pictures at the Royal Academy of 1838—a chapter on madhouses—Dr. G——'s patients—Colonel X—— as an art critic—Mr. Gow's curious experiences of madmen—story of the Duke of Gloucester's visit to an asylum, pp. 85-101 ; a chapter of anecdotes—Bulwer Lytton and his plays—"The Lady of Lyons" performed anonymously—Macready—Charles Dickens—"The Lady of Lyons" at Scarborough—Sothorn—Astley—Ducrow—dropping the aspirate—Mr. Moss, the Jew model—Black, a model—Lady Burlington—Mr. Humby's dead wall—Mr. Birt and his dogs—Solomon Hart's uncivil treatment on being elected R.A.—a change of religion—Presidents' dinners—Miss Proctor—Landseer and Ruskin—Creswick up the Rhine—Miss Thompson—a table for "The Road to Ruin," pp. 102-140 ; story of Charles Dysart's disastrous marriage, pp. 141-155 ; scraps—"The Road to Ruin"—"The Derby Day"—anecdotes of Sir Edwin and Thomas Landseer, pp. 156-164 ; story of the Yorkshireman, Lord Melbourne, and the Queen at Windsor—a Frenchman's English—an irate Welshman and Mr. Knight—Mr. X—— secretaries of the Royal Academy, pp. 165-176 ; Richard Dadd's expedition to the Holy Land—his insanity—letter from him to Frith dated from Jaffa—his death, pp. 177-195 ; letters from Mr. John Gibbons, pp. 196-215 ; another dinner at Ivy Cottage—Charles Dickens, Mark Lemon, John Leech, Forster, etc., as guests—various stories—a termagant cook—"I'll thin your top"—drawing of Edmund Kean, pp. 216-228 ; letters from Dickens—about Landseer—"Oliver Twist," etc.—his charity—departure for America—copyright of "The Railway Station," pp. 229-237 ; Maclise's frescoes for the Houses of Parliament—a proposed testimonial—letters from Landseer—the Moray Minstrels—more letters, pp. 238-248 ; Heath, Lady Blessington, and the "Book of Beauty" again—a request for a picture—Gore House—Soyer's "Symposium"—G. A. Sala, letters from, pp. 249-260 ; Leech's letter-writing—a "quiet horse"—Montague and his horse—letters from Leech—his children—Mrs. Leech, pp. 261-269 ; Shirley Brooks—first met—his novels—the nickname of "Cottle"—"The Epistle of Shegog"—humorous letters from, pp. 270-293 ; a chapter on admiration—John Parry—a loyal subject—Irving's admirers—Ellen Terry's joke—George IV. as a patron—John Dean, pp. 294-303 ; self-delusion and picture-hanging, pp. 304-313 ; fashion in art—Vandyke neglected—Hogarth, Gainsborough, Romney, Constable, Cox, etc., pp. 314-321 ; a story of a snowy night—weather-bound at the Haymarket—Mr. Bancroft's guests behind the scenes—Mr. Cecil's sequel to the story, pp. 322-327 ; the French and English schools of painting, pp. 328-334 ; public ignorance of art—another bogus collection of "Old Masters"—a gigantic swindle—"a tip-topper" painted to order—morality or mayoralty, pp. 336-343 ; a chapter on oratory—various Presidents of the Academy and their powers of speaking, pp. 344-355 ; supposititious pictures—ignorant amateurs—an imitation Van Eyck—a genuine Rembrandt, pp. 356-361 ; a letter from Bredman, "the pious model"—anonymous verses upon "The Road to Ruin"—letters from unknown geniuses—begging letters—Doran's verses—letters from Dickens—undesirable models—Anthony Trollope—letters and "quips" from Shirley Brooks—Amelia B. Edwards—H. J. Rose, pp. 362-398 ; "Picture-Sunday" impostors—stolen autographs—Mrs. Maxwell's portrait—letters—sugges-

INDEX.

443

- tions for pictures, etc., pp. 399-406 ; Punch artists—letters from Tenniel, Du Maurier, Burnand, etc.—Wilkie's picture of "The Rent Day" on the stage, pp. 407-417 ; more "people I have known," pp. 418-433
- Frith, John, father of the artist, vol. iii., p. 31
- Froude, J. A., and the picture of John Knox—lends sketch of Darnley's murder to Frith, vol. ii., pp. 276, 277
- Furtado, Miss, Shirley Brooks' letter about, vol. iii., pp. 388, 389
- Fuseli votes for Mrs. Moser as President of the Royal Academy, vol. ii., p. 327
- G—, Mr., and "The Little Gleaner," vol. i., pp. 193, 194
- G—, Dr., and his mad patients, vol. iii., pp. 86-92
- Gabriel, Alderman Sir Thomas, as a model for "The Race for Wealth," vol. ii., p. 145
- Gainsborough's "Portrait of a Man in Armour," vol. ii., p. 222 ; portrait by, transaction of Mr. Stokes with the Jews for—sold to a duke for three thousand guineas, pp. 280-288 ; his rival, Glover—an opinion upon his pictures, vol. iii., p. 317
- Gallait, Mr., his studio at Brussels, vol. i., pp. 169, 170
- Gambart, Mr. Ernest, agreement with Frith to paint "The Streets of London" ("Morning, Noon, and Night") for ten thousand pounds, vol. i., pp. 338, 339 ; commission to paint "Charles I.'s Last Sunday," p. 368 ; description of his house at Nice, vol. ii., pp. 69, 70 ; introduces Frith to Sarah Bernhardt, p. 140 ; introduces Frith and Millais to Rosa Bonheur, pp. 328, 329 [i., p. 388
- Garrick, David, a descendant of, vol. i., p. 170
- Geefs, Mr., his group in commemoration of the French Revolution, vol. i., p. 170
- George IV., reminiscence of, by "Poodle" Byng, vol. i., p. 354 ; as an art patron—a story thereupon, vol. iii., pp. 299-301
- Gibbons, Mr., commission for a picture, vol. i., pp. 113, 114 ; parts with picture for a higher sum, p. 122 ; an old-fashioned patron—letters to Frith upon the subjects of his pictures, "The Vicar of Wakefield," "The Sentimental Journey," etc., vol. iii., pp. 196-215
- Gibson, R.A., and the Princess of Wales sitting for her bust, vol. i., pp. 349, 350 ; as an orator—his "yesses," vol. iii., pp. 353, 354
- Gilbert, Miss, "the pretty horse-breaker," vol. i., pp. 278, 279
- Gordon's hand bitten by a lion, vol. i., p. 315
- Giotto, his pictures in the Church of St. Francis of Assisi, vol. ii., pp. 88, 89
- Gladstone as a sitter for "The Private View," vol. ii., pp. 257, 258
- Gloster, the "gentleman" model—"Wanted, a pair of spectacles," vol. ii., pp. 126-129
- Gloucester, Duke of ("Silly Billy"), and the madman, vol. iii., pp. 99-102
- Goldschmidt, Madame Otto. See Lind, Jenny
- Gordon Riots, Ennis, the old model, present at, vol. ii., pp. 104-107
- Gow, Mr., curious stories about madmen—the Duke of Gloucester and the madman—"Silly Billy," vol. iii., pp. 93-101
- Grant, Sir Francis, a listener to dispraise of his pictures, vol. i., pp. 292, 293 ; his portrait of Lady Burlington, vol. iii., pp. 123, 124 ; as an orator—Creswick's story of "Mr. Envious" and Grant's election, pp. 349-352
- Greece, Prince Frederick of, and the Crown Prince of Prussia's sittings for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," vol. i., pp. 344, 345
- Green, Benjamin Aplin Newman, vol. i., p. 45
- Green, a model for "The Road to Ruin"—"a teetotaler"—story of the miracles, vol. ii., pp. 125, 126
- Green, Michael Angelo, cause of Christian names—career spoiled—early death, vol. iii., pp. 11, 12
- Guthrie, Anstey, acquaintance with—literary work, vol. iii., pp. 422, 423
- Gwillim, Mr., as a model for figure in "Ramsgate Sands," vol. i., pp. 250, 251
- H—, Miss, an indignant model, vol. i., pp. 280, 281
- H—'s, Mr., pictures—his portrait of Frith's mother—the portrait-hanging at the Granby Hotel, Harrogate—Mr. H—'s distress at the non-appreciation of his pictures, vol. i., pp. 12-14

- Hall, Mrs. S. C., Tom Moore at her house, vol. ii., pp. 346, 347
- Hamilton, Lady, Lord Northwick's remarks upon, vol. i., pp. 145, 146
- Hardman, Sir William, as model of Henry VIII.—his beard, vol. ii., p. 25
- Hardy, Thomas, his novels, vol. iii., pp. 431, 432
- Harlow, George, trick upon Sir T. Lawrence, vol. i., p. 265
- Hart, Mr., trick played upon by B. R. Haydon, when painting "The Mock Election," vol. i., pp. 331-333
- Hart, Solomon Alexander, pictures at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., p. 82; "Mr. Christian's" incivility to, on his election as R.A.—the story of the boar's head, pp. 132-134
- Harvey, Captain Talbot, Governor of Millbank Gaol, vol. ii., pp. 146, 147
- Havers, Alice (Mrs. Morgan), her pictures, vol. ii., p. 324
- Haydon, Benjamin Robert, vol. i., p. 82; his cartoons for the Houses of Parliament, p. 84; reflections on public criticism, p. 97; trick upon Mr. Hart when painting "The Mock Election," pp. 331, 332; suicide, and Turner's comment thereon—failure of his cartoons for the Houses of Parliament, pp. 333, 334; lessons to Landseer, vol. iii., p. 342
- Haydon and Brett, police models for "The Railway-Station," vol. i., p. 330
- Hayter's portrait of the Queen at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., p. 83
- Heath's "Book of Beauty" and Lady Blessington, vol. ii., pp. 199, 200; a request for a portrait for "The Book of Beauty," vol. iii., p. 250
- Helena, Princess, with the Princess Louise at the Great Exhibition, vol. i., p. 360; opinion of the portrait of the Queen in "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," p. 363
- Herring, Dr., vol. i., p. 49
- Hill, Captain, and Miss Street, mysterious love-story of, vol. ii., pp. 154-183
- Hogarth, Fashion's fickleness regarding his pictures, vol. iii., p. 316
- Holl, Frank, "Sherry, sir?" vol. i., p. 219
- Horsley, Mr., R.A., and the spurious Leonardo da Vinci, vol. ii., pp. 225-227
- Huddleston, Baron, as model for "The Race for Wealth," vol. ii., p. 145
- Humby, Mr., his dining-room and pictures—painting a dead wall—a customer's opinion of "painters," vol. iii., pp. 125, 126
- Huskisson, Mr., and Lord Northwick, vol. i., pp. 148, 149 [p. 197
- Huth, Mr., his liberality, vol. i.,
- Irving compared with Macready, vol. i., p. 214; in "Hunted Down"—his kindness, vol. ii., pp. 350, 351; story of his young admirers, vol. iii., pp. 297, 298; Ellen Terry's joke, p. 299
- Jefferson, as actor and painter, vol. i., p. 375
- Jerrold, Douglas, sarcasm to Stone and Compton, vol. i., pp. 177, 178; "England preserved in Brine," vol. ii., p. 28; play of "The Rent Day" suggested by Wilkie's picture—Wilkie and Mulready present at its representation, vol. iii., pp. 416, 417 [p. 213
- Jervas's portrait of Swift, vol. ii.,
- Johnson, Dr., Nolleken's bust of, vol. i., p. 386; and Mrs. Siddons, picture of, vol. ii., pp. 274, 275; criticism on Sterne, p. 335
- Johnson, the drunken butler, vol. ii., pp. 250-255
- Jones, Mr., his likeness to the Duke of Wellington, vol. i., p. 57; the female model for one of his pictures—her history, pp. 58, 59; speech to the rebellious students at the Academy, p. 61
- K—, Miss, a model for "Claude Duval"—her mysterious commission for a portrait—Mrs. Y—her madness, vol. ii., pp. 240-247
- Kean, comparison between Edmund and Charles, vol. iii., pp. 222, 223; story of Cousins' drawing of Edmund, pp. 226-228
- Keeley, Mrs., vol. ii., pp. 344, 345
- Kemble, Charles, and Macready in "King John," vol. i., pp. 27-29; speech at the "Macready banquet," pp. 215, 216
- Kendal, Mrs. (Madge Robertson), vol. iii., p. 431
- Keyser, De, of Antwerp—portraits of Frith and Millais for Mr. Gambart's house at Nice, vol. ii., pp. 139, 140

- King, Mrs., upon Shakespeare, vol. i., p. 123
- Knight's picture of "Saints' Day" at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., p. 82; secretary of the R.A.—and Mr. Evans' assault upon him for rejection of his picture, pp. 169-173; a provoking manner—a difference with Mr. X—about "hanging"—resigns office, pp. 173, 174
- Knowles, Sheridan—his son—actor and author—absent-minded acceptance of dinner invitation, vol. iii., pp. 425-427
- Knox, John, and the ladies of Queen Mary's Court, picture of, vol. ii., pp. 275, 276
- Landseer, Charles—puns, vol. i., p. 212; joke on a damaged picture at the Academy—more jokes, vol. ii., p. 23
- Vol. I. Landseer, Sir Edwin—visit to the Academy class—riotous proceedings of the students, vol. i., pp. 60-62; pictures for Duke of Bedford and Sheepshanks, pp. 204, 205; story about Bishop and the Queen's "pig-wash," p. 276; portrait of Miss Gilbert, p. 279; no copyist—his accomplishments—rapidity of execution—"Hare attacked by a Stoat"—pictures for Mr. Wells, pp. 318, 319—want of punctuality at dinner—instance of the Duke of Wellington's liberality—the Duke's absence of mind—his portrait in "The Visit to Waterloo," pp. 322-324; the King of Portugal's "left-handed" compliment, p. 326; remark upon Frith's undertaking "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," p. 337; story of Nollekens and George IV., p. 387; and Count D'Orsay—a visit to Madame Tussaud's, vol. ii., p. 340-343; pictures at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., pp. 80, 81; with Ruskin at a dinner at Sir Charles Eastlake's, pp. 136, 137; pictures engraved by Thomas Landseer, p. 161; his sculpture—a sharp retort, pp. 163, 164; his sister (Mrs. Mackenzie) as a model in "Bolton Abbey," p. 164; the lions in Trafalgar Square, Dickens' letter about, pp. 230, 231; letter regarding a proposed testimonial to Maclise, p. 240; early efforts in art—his family—lessons from Haydon, pp. 241, 242; letter from, concerning an early picture, p. 243; another, concerning the Queen's desire for a picture of Phillips's—the Moray Minstrels—estimate of his own work—prices paid for "Braemar," pp. 244-248
- Landseer, John (father of Sir Edwin), vol. i., p. 60
- Landseer, Thomas, as an engraver—his deafness—anecdotes concerning this infirmity—on board The Warrior—his marriage and the death of his son, vol. iii., pp. 158-164
- Lawrence, Sir T.—a trick played by his pupil, George Harlow, vol. i., p. 265; his influence on young painters, vol. ii., pp. 108, 109; a bad orator, vol. iii., pp. 347, 348
- Lear, Edward, vol. i., p. 14
- Lea, Mrs., portrait of, vol. ii., p. 262
- Leech, John, and Mulready, vol. i., pp. 179, 180; first acquaintance with—connection with Punch—opinions on painting—his sketches—his singing—his subjects in Punch—his illness and death, vol. ii., pp. 296-302; and John Forster at Ivy Cottage—story of a hair-dresser—its effect upon a lawyer, vol. iii., pp. 223-225; dislike to letter-writing, p. 262; procures a "quiet horse" for Frith, pp. 263-265; letter from, concerning same, pp. 266, 267; letters from, concerning Thackeray's lectures, and John Parry—his children—Mrs. Leech, pp. 267-269
- Leighton, Sir Frederick, dinners to artists and Academicians, vol. iii., p. 135; dinner-party in a snow-storm, p. 322; as an orator—his courtesy and patience, pp. 352, 353
- Lely, Sir Peter—"pictures by Vandyke," vol. ii., p. 221
- Lemon, Mark—his inebriate friend B—and Hans Andersen, vol. i., p. 180; and Dickens at Ivy Cottage—story of a termagant cook, vol. iii., pp. 219-222
- Leonardo da Vinci. See Da Vinci
- Leslie's picture from "The Merry Wives of Windsor," vol. iii., p. 83
- Levy, Miss Emily, portrait of, vol. ii., p. 262
- Levy, Mr. J. M.—evenings at Lancaster Gate and Grosvenor Street, vol. ii., pp. 321, 322
- Lewis, Arthur, president of the Moray Minstrels, vol. iii., p. 245
- Lewis, George, as a model for "The Race for Wealth," vol. ii., p. 145

- Lind, Jenny — her contract with Barnum—society at Lancaster Gate — "The Midgets" and Madame Nilsson, vol. ii., pp. 318-322
- Liston's command of facial expression, vol. ii., p. 264
- Lloyds, Messrs., honourable dealings — transaction regarding "Ramsgate Sands," vol. i., pp. 258-262
- Lockhart's oratory, vol. iii., pp. 344, 345
- London, Bishop of—the "miserliness" of a certain Marquis, vol. i., p. 358
- Longley (Archbishop of Canterbury), sitting for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales"—story of Harrow schoolboys, vol. i., p. 357
- Lover, Samuel, "helped by the fairies," vol. ii., pp. 339, 340 [422]
- Lynn Linton, Mrs., vol. iii., p. 421
- Lytton, Lord, and the ghost-story of Knebworth, vol. ii., pp. 309-311; adverse criticism upon his plays—anonymous production of "The Lady of Lyons" — Macready as "Claude Melnotte" — Charles Dickens' opinion of the play — "The Lady of Lyons" at Scarborough, vol. iii., pp. 102-107
- Mackenzie, Mrs. (Miss Landseer), as a model in "Bolton Abbey," vol. iii., p. 164
- Maclise, vol. i., pp. 90-94; letter to Frith about "The Derby Day," p. 284; portrait of Dickens, allusions to, pp. 309, 310; portrait of Mrs. Charles Dickens, vol. ii., pp. 30, 31; his pictures at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., pp. 81, 82; designs for the Houses of Parliament—a proposed testimonial—Landseer's letter thereupon—the silver pencil-case—Maclise's brother, pp. 238-241
- MacJan, Mr. and Mrs., Leech first met at the house of, vol. ii., p. 296
- MacLray, as painter and patron, vol. i., pp. 298, 299
- Macready and Charles Kemble in "King John," vol. i., pp. 27-29; his acting generally—the "Macready banquet," pp. 214-217; performance in the production of Bulwer's "Lady of Lyons"—congratulations of Charles Dickens to the anonymous author, vol. iii., pp. 103, 104
- Maguire's lithography killed by photography, vol. ii., p. 212
- Malibran, sudden death of, vol. iii., p. 74
- Manning, Cardinal, vol. ii., p. 54
- "Maria," Sterne's, the model for—her brutal husband—her disappearance, vol. ii., pp. 3, 4
- "Marquise, La Belle," a model who sat for—afterwards met at the theatre—a nobleman's wife, vol. i., pp. 213, 214
- Marshall, Mrs., spiritualistic stances—Sothorn's practical joke, vol. i., pp. 378, 379
- Martin and his daughters at a ball, vol. iii., pp. 36, 37
- Mary, Princess, portrait for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," vol. i., p. 355
- Matthews, Mr., possesses "Charles I.'s Last Sunday," vol. i., p. 368
- Maxwell, Mrs. See Braddon, Miss
- Meissonier's and Detaille's studios in Paris, vol. ii., p. 139
- Melbourne, Lord, mistaken for a footman at Windsor—a loyal Yorkshireman—a "good view" of the Queen, vol. iii., pp. 165-169
- "Midgets, The," at Mr. Levy's house, vol. ii., pp. 321, 322
- Millais, as a boy, vol. i., p. 33; at Paris, vol. ii., pp. 139, 140; at the Hague, p. 196; at Kosa Bonheur's studio with Frith and Gambart, pp. 328, 329; meeting with Pot-herd—"What do you do for a living?" pp. 337, 338—first medal gained at the Society of Arts, vol. iii., p. 50
- Miller, Mr., his collection of pictures at Preston, vol. i., pp. 155, 156; purchase of "Ramsgate Sands, the Little," p. 261; present of "The Pilgrim" to, p. 264
- Monckton, Lady, as an actress, vol. ii., p. 345
- Montagu, Lady Mary Wortley, pictures of, vol. i., pp. 220-224; receiving visit from the Duke of Kingston, vol. ii., p. 29
- Montague, the landscape-painter, and his horse, vol. iii., pp. 265, 266
- Montalbo, the Sisters, vol. ii., p. 324
- Morland's unhappy habit of intemperance, vol. iii., p. 125
- Morris's gold medal picture at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., p. 84
- Moore, George, picture of Lady Mary Montagu bought by, vol. ii., p. 29
- Moore, Tom, at Mrs. S. C. Hall's house, vol. ii., pp. 346, 347

- Morgan, Mrs. F. See Havers, Alice
- Moses and the Tables of the Law—a mad artist's picture of, vol. ii., pp. 292, 293
- Moss, Benjamin, the Jew model—his troubles with schoolboys—a shady transaction—religious distinctions, vol. iii., pp. 113-119
- Mulready, misunderstanding of Leech's signature, vol. i., p. 179; story of a highwayman, pp. 180-182; fondness for criminal cases—sketches of criminals in court, p. 183; visit to Wilkie during his mother's illness—Mrs. Wilkie and the bagpipes, pp. 195, 196; quarrel with David Roberts about hanging pictures, pp. 229, 230; criticism on "Rams-gate Sands," pp. 253, 254; visit to Nollekens, pp. 386, 387; picture of "All the World's a Stage," vol. iii., p. 81; "a bruiser," p. 228; with Wilkie at the representation of Douglas Jerrold's play of "The Rent Day," p. 416
- Munro, Mr., offer to buy Turner's pictures—the offer refused, vol. i., pp. 135, 136
- Murray, John, transactions with Lord Byron, vol. ii., pp. 119, 120
- N—, Mrs., her reading of Pickwick, vol. i., pp. 65, 66
- N—, Captain, suggests trial of the Tichborne Claimant as a subject for a picture—his belief in the Claimant, vol. ii., pp. 41-45
- Napolini, Marquis of, "spoils the face" of a model, vol. ii., p. 51
- Nelson and Lady Hamilton, Lord Northwick's remarks on, vol. i., pp. 144-146
- Nemours, Duke de, in Frith's studio at the Castle, vol. i., p. 361
- Newsham, Mr., his collection at Preston, vol. i., p. 213
- Nilsson, Madame, and "The Midgets," at Mr. Levy's house, vol. ii., pp. 321, 322
- Nolleken's bust of Dr. Johnson—interview with Macready—"Yorick's busto"—Landseer's story of, vol. i., pp. 386, 387
- Norman, Mrs. Ernest. See Ray, Miss
- Northwick, Lord, mimicked by Ward—account of the execution of Caracciolo—speeches on the Corn Laws—Lord Northwick and Huskisson—a reprimand to Ward—the old butler, vol. i., pp. 143-151
- O'Connell, Daniel, description of personal appearance of, at St. James's Palace, vol. iii., p. 63
- O'Neil, Mr., his conviction of a thief by a sketch, vol. i., pp. 183, 184
- Osborne, Bernal, his wit, vol. ii., p. 259
- Ossington, Lord (Speaker of the House of Commons), story about Lord Ebury and Lord Westbury—possesses study of portrait of the Princess of Wales, vol. i., pp. 347, 348
- "Ouida." See Ramé, De la
- Owen, Mr. and Mrs., madness of Mr. Owen, vol. i., pp. 16-19
- Oxford, Bishop of, and Lord Westbury, "passing compliments," vol. i., p. 347; and the Bishop of Chester, p. 358
- Parkinson, Mr. J. C., a purchaser of Frith's portrait—a contributor to Household Words, vol. ii., p. 313
- Parry, John, his entertainment, vol. i., p. 375; general recognition of, at Holman Hunt's picture exhibition—mixed criticism, vol. iii., pp. 294-296
- Partridge, Mr., vol. i., p. 23
- Patten's picture of "The Passions," vol. iii., p. 83
- Patti, Madame Adelina, at Mr. Levy's house, vol. ii., p. 321
- Peace, the burglar, in Millbank Gaol, vol. ii., pp. 149-152
- Penn, John, his servants, vol. ii., p. 248
- Perugini, Mrs. (Miss Kate Dickens), her artistic success, vol. ii., p. 326
- Phillip, Colin (son of John Phillip), vol. i., p. 371
- Phillip, John, vol. i., p. 62; his pictures, pp. 157, 158; undertakes picture of "The Marriage of the Prince of Prussia with the Princess Royal" in lieu of Frith, p. 337; picture of the House of Commons—Mrs. Disraeli, p. 359; his death, pp. 370, 371
- Phillips, Mr., vol. i., p. 22; and Beckford, vol. ii., p. 130
- Phillips, Sir Thomas, expedition to the Holy Land with Richard Dadd, vol. iii., pp. 177, 178
- Pickersgill, Mr. and Mrs., on Frith's election as A.R.A., vol. i., p. 117
- Pope and Lady Mary Montagu, picture of, pp. 220-224
- Poland, Mr., as a model for "The Race for Wealth," vol. ii., p. 145

- Poole, R.A., his forgotten picture—repudiates his own work, vol. ii., pp. 316, 317
- Portugal, King of, a "left-handed" compliment to Landseer, vol. i., p. 326
- Potherd and Millais, vol. ii., pp. 337, 338
- Powell a student at the Royal Academy—his powers of drawing—want of appreciation of composition, etc., vol. i., p. 8
- Powell, Peter, a ghost-story, vol. i., pp. 189-191
- Powell, Miss (Mrs. Frith, the mother of the artist), her wedding-dress, vol. iii., pp. 30, 31
- Price, Mr., collection in Queen Anne Street—duplicate of "The Bride of Lammermoor," vol. i., pp. 225, 226; duplicate of "Claude Duval," p. 318
- Proctor, Miss Adelaide, first meeting with, at Sir Charles Eastlake's—her absence of vanity, vol. iii., pp. 135, 136
- Prussia, Crown Prince of, marriage with the Princess Royal—command to paint—declined—Phillip undertakes the picture, vol. i., p. 337; sitting with Prince Frederick of Greece for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," pp. 344, 345; portrait of, for the picture, p. 352; a navy's warning, p. 362
- Prussia, Prince William of, "a little Turk"—in paint and mischief—a painful remedy, vol. i., pp. 351-353
- Prussia, Crown Princess. See Royal, Princess
- Queen, the, and Prince Albert, introduction to—"Ramsgate Sands," vol. i., p. 257; appreciation of "The Derby Day," pp. 285, 286; the Queen's approval of sketch for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," p. 340; sittings for that picture, p. 350; useful suggestions, p. 354; unflattered portrait, pp. 362, 363; visit to the studio at Pembroke Villas, p. 366; at Windsor with Prince Albert—a Yorkshireman's desire for a "good view" of her Majesty—the request to "a footman"—Lord Melbourne in the Windsor uniform, vol. iii., pp. 165-169; desire to purchase a picture of Phillips's, p. 244
- Rachel, Dr. Doran's story of, vol. ii., pp. 266, 267
- Raumbach's engraving of Wilkie's picture, "The Rent Day," vol. iii., p. 159
- Ramé, Mademoiselle de la ("Ouida"), her drawings—origin of her nom de plume, vol. ii., p. 347
- Ray, Miss (Mrs. Norman), pictures at the Academy, vol. ii., p. 324
- Rembrandt's pictures at Amsterdam, vol. ii., p. 196; a "Holy Family" of his found in Shropshire, vol. iii., pp. 360, 361
- Reinagle, his peculiarities—quips with Turner, vol. i., pp. 129, 130
- Reynolds, Sir Joshua, on Michael Angelo, vol. ii., p. 65; picture of "Ugolino," p. 75; pictures in demand for the Academy—"a Reynolds by Romney," pp. 222, 223; disbelief in an artist's forgetting his own pictures—put to the proof, vol. ii., pp. 317, 318; his sister's pictures, p. 327; Lady Burlington's description of, when painting her portrait, vol. iii., p. 124
- Reynolds, the engraver, and Cousins' drawing of Edmund Kean, vol. iii., pp. 226-228
- Rivers, Mr., the "imitation Lawrence" portrait, vol. ii., pp. 110-112
- "Rivers, William," and the mysterious love-story of Captain Hill and Miss Street, vol. ii., pp. 154-183 [279
- Rizzio, murder of, vol. ii., pp. 278,
- Roberts, David, passage of arms with Turner, vol. i., p. 128; his picture in juxtaposition with Turner's, p. 132; quarrel with Mulready about picture-hanging, pp. 229, 230
- Robertson, Tom, a close friend—first meeting with—hard early life—contempt for the press—plans for plays—illness—a joke at his doctor's expense—his sister, Mrs. Kendal, vol. iii., pp. 427-431
- Roffey, Mr., an engraving of "The Salon d'Or," vol. ii., p. 16
- Rogers, Samuel, going downstairs with Dickens, vol. i., p. 120; remark on a picture of Adam and Eve, p. 325
- Rogers, Rev. Mr., book of reminiscences—Anthony Trollope's letter describing his character, vol. iii., pp. 386, 387
- Romney's portrait of a lady mistaken for a Reynolds, vol. ii., pp. 222, 223; Fashion's fickleness regarding his pictures, vol. iii., p. 318

- Rose, Dr. and Mrs., tragic story of, vol. ii., pp. 200-207
- Rose, Hugh James, letter from, suggesting subject for a picture, vol. iii., pp. 397, 398
- Rousby, Mrs., a model for "Amy Robsart"—her loss of beauty—a model for Queen Elizabeth, vol. ii., p. 21
- Rowe, Captain, and Mr. Owen's madness, vol. i., pp. 17-19
- Royal, Princess, marriage of, with the Prince of Prussia—command to paint—declined—Phillips undertakes the picture, vol. i., p. 337; sitting for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales," p. 345; her knowledge of art, p. 353; fête in honour of, at Venice, vol. ii., pp. 91-93
- Rubens' pictures, vol. i., pp. 174, 175; pictures at Brussels, vol. ii., p. 194
- Ruskin and Edwin Landseer at a dinner at Sir Charles Eastlake's, vol. iii., p. 136, 137
- Russell, Lord John, story of, with Sir Francis Burdett, vol. ii., pp. 258, 259
- Ryali, H. T., vol. i., p. 198
- S—, Mr., and "Ramsgate Sands," vol. i., p. 252
- Sala, George Augustus, vol. ii., p. 333; introduction to—artistic proclivities—as a critic—in private life, vol. iii., pp. 252, 253; letter from, dated Calais, 1866, pp. 253-257; another, dated from Sloane Street, proposing "Mrs. Montagu and the Chimney Sweep" as subject for a picture, pp. 257, 258; more letters—a white waistcoat—"The Private View," pp. 259, 260
- Sass's, Mr., school of art, vol. i., p. 26; description of Mr. Sass and his school and system—his loss of mind, pp. 32-55; remarks upon an idle student, vol. iii., p. 25; a friend of O'Connell's, p. 43; commendatory letter to Mr. Frith, pp. 48, 49; disagreement with Mrs. Frith about the artist's giving up instruction—letter from Mrs. Sass to Mrs. Frith on the subject—postscript by Sass—peace proclaimed, pp. 75-78 [p. 44
- Savage, "black and white," vol. i.,
- Scaife, Mr. and Mrs., vol. i., p. 21; Mr. Scaife's death, p. 70
- Scheffer's portrait of Charles Dickens, vol. i., p. 310
- Seymour, the first illustrator of Pickwick, vol. iii., p. 407
- Seymour-Lucas, Mrs., her pictures, vol. ii., p. 327
- Shee, Sir Martin Archer, as chairman at Frith's first Academy banquet, vol. i., p. 118; dinners to Academicians, vol. iii., p. 135; his presidency—Mr. Jones as his representative during illness, pp. 348, 349
- Sheepshanks, Mr., his collection—purchase of Landseer's pictures, vol. i., pp. 203-205
- Shelley, Percy Bysshe and Mary Godwin, allusion to, vol. ii., pp. 123, 124
- Shelley, Sir Percy, and Lady, vol. ii., pp. 123, 124
- Siddons, Mrs., and Dr. Johnson—picture of, vol. ii., pp. 274, 275
- Simson, a new painter at the Royal Academy, 1837 (? 1838), vol. iii., p. 83
- Singh, Maharajah Dhuleep, portrait for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales"—his jewels, pp. 345, 346; type of face—"a good young man"—the "Koh i-Noor," pp. 355, 356
- Six family, The, at Amsterdam, vol. ii., pp. 197, 198
- Slye, Mr., of Willington, and Mr. Wyatt's collection of pictures at Hastings, vol. iii., pp. 60, 61
- Smith, Sydney, popular mot to Landseer contradicted, vol. i., p. 326
- Solomon, Abraham, vol. i., pp. 52, 53
- Sothorn, as "Lord Dundreary," vol. i., p. 375; a practical joke in spirit-rapping, pp. 376-378; a practical joke at the play—more spirit-rapping—story of origin of "Lord Dundreary," pp. 379-384; practical joke with Toole at a restaurant, vol. ii., pp. 349, 350; and the provincial "Claude Melnotte" at Scarborough Theatre, vol. iii., pp. 105-107
- Soyer's "Symposium" at Kensington, vol. iii., pp. 251, 252
- Stanley, Lady Augusta. See Bruce, Lady Augusta
- Starr, Miss (Madame Canziani), her artistic honours, vol. ii., p. 326
- Stella, Vanessa, and Swift. See Swift
- Stirling, Mrs., as "Peg Woffington," vol. ii., p. 344
- Stocks' engraving of "Claude Duval," vol. iii., p. 160
- Stokes, Mr., his transaction with the Jews for a Gainsborough, and with a Duke for its purchase, vol. ii., pp. 280-288

- Stone, Frank, first meeting with—"always in the right," vol. i., pp. 158, 159; trip to Belgium and Holland with, pp. 160-174; his pictures—Douglas Jerrold's sarcasm, pp. 177, 178; at the "Macready banquet," p. 217
- Stothard's "Canterbury Pilgrims" mentioned in a letter from Mr. John Gibbons, vol. iii., pp. 205, 206
- Street, Miss, and Captain Hill, mysterious love-story of, vol. ii., pp. 154-183
- Stuarts, the last of the, vol. ii., p. 101
- Sullivan, Mr., artist of Fun—travesty of "The Race for Wealth," vol. ii., p. 144
- Sunner, Bishop of Winchester—"regimen" of diet—the bottle of port, vol. i., p. 357
- Sutherland, Duke of, in possession of Charles I.'s Order of the Garter, vol. i., p. 372
- Swift, Stella, and Vanessa, vol. ii., pp. 212-214
- Tadema, Mrs. Alma, vol. ii., p. 326
- Tawell, Sothern's practical joke with, vol. i., pp. 376-378
- Taylor, Fredk., President of the Water Colour Society, his picture in oils, vol. i., pp. 192, 193
- Taylor, Tom, answer to autograph collectors, vol. iii., p. 229
- Tenniel, John, pictures in the House of Lords, vol. iii., p. 408; pictures in Punch—"Alice in Wonderland"—portrait in "The Private View," pp. 411-413
- Terry, Miss Ellen, "germs of genius," vol. i., p. 384; reference to, vol. ii., p. 344; joke about Irving's supper, vol. iii., p. 299
- Thompson, Miss (Lady Butler), directions for obtaining a dead horse, vol. iii., p. 138
- Tichborne Claimant, trial of—suggested as a subject for a picture—Captain N——'s belief in the Claimant, vol. ii., pp. 41-45
- Thackeray, Frith's first meeting with, vol. i., pp. 106-108; his desire to become an artist—Dickens declines his illustrations, pp. 120, 121
- Thurtell's murder of Mr. Weare—Mulready's sketch in Court, vol. i., p. 183
- Titens, Theresa, at Mr. Levy's house, vol. ii., p. 321
- Toole, Mr., practical joke on the railway—joke with Sothern, vol. ii., p. 349
- Toursel, Abbé, sits for model in "The Procession at Boulogne," vol. ii., p. 50
- Trelawney and the Byron memorial statue, vol. ii., pp. 119, 120
- Trip, Miss Jenny, "the unpunctual model," vol. ii., pp. 260-262
- Trollope, Anthony, vol. ii., p. 335; letter about Rev. Mr. Rogers, vol. iii., pp. 386, 387
- Troughton, Zouch, Mr., vol. i., p. 97
- Turner, his kindly treatment of young artists—criticism on "An Old English Merry-making"—censure of David Roberts's pictures—Roberts's retaliation, vol. i., pp. 127, 128; quips with Reinagle—ridicules his own pictures—his picture in juxtaposition with David Roberts's—"Masaniello" in "the blues"—Turner and the printseller—Mr. Munro makes him an offer—the offer refused—Turner's desire to be buried in two of his own pictures—Chantrey's comment thereon—Turner's death, pp. 129-140; story of Turner's reception of a picture-dealer, p. 142; comment on Haydon's suicide, p. 333
- Turner, the engraver, at the R.A. banquet—a "grumpy" character—story of his club-foot and the boot-maker, vol. iii., pp. 66, 67
- Ugolino, Count, vol. ii., p. 75
- Vanbrugh's "Relapse"—subject for a picture, vol. ii., pp. 25, 26
- Vandyke's reason for painting pale complexions, vol. i., p. 83; a painter of Lely's pictures, vol. ii., p. 221
- Vanessa, Stella, and Swift. See Swift Vestris, Madame, vol. i., p. 29
- Wales, Prince of, sitting for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales"—at Gibson's studio, vol. i., pp. 348-350
- Wales, Princess of, first sitting for "The Marriage of the Prince of Wales"—a restless sitter—at Gibson's studio, vol. i., pp. 348-350
- Ward, E. M., mimicry of Lord Northwick, vol. i., p. 144; an unlucky pun, p. 149; "The South Sea Bubble," p. 156; pictures at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., pp. 82, 83

- Ward, Mrs. E. M., vol. ii., p. 326
- Webster and Cooper on the hanging of "The Hunchback," vol. i., pp. 255, 256
- Wellington, Duke of, at the Academy banquet—comment on Turner's pictures, vol. i., pp. 119, 120; liberality to Landseer—absence of mind—portrait of, with Lady Douro, in "The Visit to Waterloo," pp. 323, 324; interest in pictures of his own exploits—public veneration for, pp. 324, 325
- Wells, Mr., relations with Landseer—his collection of pictures—"not at home," vol. i., pp. 319-322
- West, the unpunctual manservant—as a model for "The Railway Station," vol. ii., pp. 249, 250
- Westbury, Lord, and the Bishop of Oxford—"passing compliments"—Lord Ebury and the burial service, vol. i., pp. 347, 348
- Westmacott, Sir Richard, description of Marat, vol. iii., pp. 34, 35
- Westwood, Mr., a ghost story—the ghost sketched—origin of the ghost, vol. ii., pp. 303-309
- Whiteley, William, suggests his shop as subject for a picture, vol. ii., pp. 38-41
- Wiertz's pictures at Brussels, vol. ii., pp. 193, 194
- Wigram, Vice-Chancellor, story of Queen Adelaide and Lord Dudley, vol. ii., p. 8
- Wilberforce, Samuel. See Oxford, Bishop of
- Wilkie, vol. i., pp. 46, 47; his first picture, "The Village Politicians," accepted—Haydon and Jackson's congratulations, pp. 82, 83; Wilkie's mother and the bagpipes, 195, 196; Wilkie and Mac—'s picture, pp. 236, 237; "Announcement of Battle of Waterloo to Chelsea Pensioners," p. 268; a railing round his picture, reference to, pp. 287-289; story of his picture, "The Parish Beadle," vol. ii., p. 211; sister's engagement to a brother of Claude Lorraine Wilson Brown—his tragic death from heart disease—her marriage afterwards, vol. iii., p. 14; personal appearance of Wilkie—dancing a quadrille, vol. iii., pp. 35, 36; picture of Napoleon and Pope Pius VII., p. 51; picture of the Queen—picture of "The Bride at her Toilet"—portraits of Mrs. Maberley and O'Connell, pp. 79, 80; picture of "The Rent Day," engraved by Raimbach, p. 160; "The Rent Day"—the grouping reproduced in Douglas Jerrold's play of that title, p. 416
- Williams, Montagu, as a model for "The Race for Wealth," vol. ii., p. 145
- Williamson, the Academy Porter, vol. i., p. 115
- Wilson, Colonel Townshend, his portrait in "The Race for Wealth"—remarks overheard by him regarding "The Derby Day," vol. iii., pp. 156, 157
- Wood, Mrs. Henry, "East Lynne," vol. ii., p. 348
- Winchester, Bishop of. See Sumner
- Wyatt, Mr., collection of pictures at Hastings, vol. iii., pp. 60, 61
- X—, Mr., his habit of thinking aloud, an instance of it, vol. ii., pp. 7, 8
- X—, Colonel, at a lunatic asylum—dispute with Frith about Watts—an apology demanded—his visits to the Royal Academy—his death, vol. iii., pp. 89-93
- X—, Mr., disagreement with Mr. Knight about the hanging of his picture at the Royal Academy, vol. iii., pp. 173, 174
- Y—, Mrs. See K—, Miss
- Yates, Edmund, vol. ii., p. 333
- Zimmermann, Gustave, the Swiss courier—his broken English, vol. ii., pp. 94-96

THE END.

BILLING AND SONS, PRINTERS, GUILDFORD.

I. D. & Co.