

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-05767-7 - The Life of Sir John Fowler, Engineer

Thomas Mackay

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

CHAPTER I.

EARLY LIFE

	PAGE
Birth—Parentage—Wadsley Hall—Education—Choice of a profession—Story-telling—Apprenticeship with Mr. Leather—Early opposition to Railways—First departure from home—Search for employment—Mr. Rastrick—Birmingham—London—A visit to Maidenhead Bridge . . . . .	1

CHAPTER II.

SUBORDINATE EMPLOYMENTS

Termination of first engagement with Mr. Rastrick—His younger brothers—Re-engagement with Mr. Rastrick—Surveying in Cumberland—Morecambe Bay—Plans for the future—Stockton and Hartlepool Railway—Parliamentary business—First engagements . . . . .	35
--	----

CHAPTER III.

THE RAILWAY ENGINEER, 1844-1850

Mr. Fowler sets up in business for himself—List of engagements—Parliamentary Committees—Expert witnesses—The Railway mania—Demand for Engineers—Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway—The Great Central—Railway politics—The duty of an Engineer—Mr. Sidney's ride—Railways and agriculture—New Holland—Torksey Bridge—Article on Railway accidents . . . . .	59
---	----

CHAPTER IV.

PROFESSIONAL CHARACTERISTICS AND WORK, 1850-1860

The modern engineer—Fowler's power of organisation—Success an index of worth—Fowler's professional courage—His subordinates—His partner, Mr. Baldry—Marriage—Early home—Mr. Hudson—Proposal to stand for Parliament—His industry—Ireland—Irish Railways—Other works . . . . .	105
---	-----

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-05767-7 - The Life of Sir John Fowler, Engineer

Thomas Mackay

Table of Contents

More information

viii

CONTENTS

CHAPTER V.

THE NENE IMPROVEMENT AND NORFOLK ESTUARY

	PAGE
Nene improvement—The Fens—The Nene outfall—Operations at Wisbech—Mr. Fowler's speech on Arterial Drainage—The Norfolk Estuary—Grunty Fen . . . . .	134

CHAPTER VI.

METROPOLITAN RAILWAY

Earlier proposals—Committee on Metropolitan Communications—Mr. Fowler's evidence—The Report—The State and Railways—The work begun—The cost—The underground rivers—Levels and gradients—Archæological discoveries—Methods of construction—Ventilation—Mr. Fowler's letter—The opening ceremony—Letter to Mr. Gladstone—Congratulations—Subsequent developments . . . . .	145
---	-----

CHAPTER VII.

PRESIDENT OF THE INSTITUTION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS

Visit to Glasgow Waterworks—Dunrobin—Fowler as Volunteer—President of the Institution—His address—Cooper's Hill—Visit to India—A great organiser . . . . .	179
--	-----

CHAPTER VIII.

MR. FOWLER AND GENERAL GARIBALDI: AN EPISODE

Roman Floods—The Engineering problem—Garibaldi's proposal—Fowler's interview with Garibaldi—His letter—Mr. Wilson's Report—Mr. Fowler's diplomatic success . . . . .	193
--	-----

CHAPTER IX.

A PROPOSAL FOR A CHANNEL FERRY

International Communications Bill—Water Station at Dover—Bill passes the Commons and is rejected in the Lords—Mr. Fowler's disappointment . . . . .	203
---	-----

CHAPTER X.

EGYPT

Fowler's power of enjoyment—His love of society—Arrival in Egypt—Is introduced to Khedive—Visits the Pyramids—His opinion on ancient Egyptian workmanship—Letter to a child—Travels with the Prince of Wales—Visits Suez Canal—Appointed Engineer to Khedive—The Pax Britannica —Sugar—Soudan Railway—Navigation of the Nile—Gordon—Construction of Railway discontinued—Letters from Gordon—A Sweet-water Canal—Lecture on Egypt—Irrigation—Barrage—Cleopatra's Needle—Finance—Ismail deposed—Letter from Lord Wolseley—Visits to Australia and India . . . . .	212
---	-----

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-05767-7 - The Life of Sir John Fowler, Engineer

Thomas Mackay

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS

ix

CHAPTER XI.

THE FORTH BRIDGE

	PAGE
The Firth of Forth—The old passage—Sir T. Bouch—Cantilever principle—The demand of the time—The cost—The foundations—Caissons—Wind pressure—Workshops at Queensferry—Building out the cantilevers—The central girder—The rocking pillar—Directors and staff—Sir John on the materials—Opening ceremony—Sir John's speech—Sir Benjamin Baker's reply to Mr. Morris—Letter from Mr. Waterhouse, R.A. . . . .	276

CHAPTER XII.

THE ENGINEER AT HOME

Private and public life—Friends and amusements—The making of Braemore—The Engineer as Highland laird—As yachtsman—His hospitality—A visitor's reminiscence—His admiration of intellect—Political views—Letters to the Times on Egypt—Candidate for Hallamshire—Views on Crofter and Deer Forest questions—His recreations and tastes—As chairman of a learned society—Letter from Sir Benjamin Baker—Last days—The greatness of the Arts of Peace . . . . .	318
--	-----

APPENDIX

Address of John Fowler, Esq., President of the Institution of Civil Engineers, on taking the chair, for the first time after his election, January 9th, 1866 . . . . .	365
INDEX . . . . .	393