Books of enduring scholarly value

Travel, Middle East and Asia Minor

This collection of travel narratives, primarily from the nineteenth century, describing the topography, antiquities and inhabitants of the Middle East, from Turkey, Kurdistan and Persia to Mesopotamia, Syria, Jerusalem, Sinai, Egypt and Arabia. While some travellers came to study Christian sites and manuscripts, others were fascinated by Islamic culture and still others by the remains of ancient civilizations. Among the authors are several daring female explorers.

Ierusalem

First published in two volumes between 1907 and 1908, this major work by the Scottish biblical scholar and geographer Sir George Adam Smith (1856–1942) is organised into three books. Volume 2 contains the third book and consists of a historical narrative that clarifies political and religious developments in ancient Jerusalem. It contains a number of useful maps, plans and photographs. Best known for his celebrated Historical Geography of the Holy Land (1894), Smith provides here a more detailed and specialist analysis, based on first-hand knowledge derived from the visits he made to the region over the years. Spanning more than fourteen centuries of Jerusalem's history from 1400 BCE to 70 CE, these well-illustrated volumes remain a standard work of scholarship, expertly elucidating the changing shape of the city.

Cambridge University Press has long been a pioneer in the reissuing of out-of-print titles from its own backlist, producing digital reprints of books that are still sought after by scholars and students but could not be reprinted economically using traditional technology. The Cambridge Library Collection extends this activity to a wider range of books which are still of importance to researchers and professionals, either for the source material they contain, or as landmarks in the history of their academic discipline.

Drawing from the world-renowned collections in the Cambridge University Library and other partner libraries, and guided by the advice of experts in each subject area, Cambridge University Press is using state-of-the-art scanning machines in its own Printing House to capture the content of each book selected for inclusion. The files are processed to give a consistently clear, crisp image, and the books finished to the high quality standard for which the Press is recognised around the world. The latest print-on-demand technology ensures that the books will remain available indefinitely, and that orders for single or multiple copies can quickly be supplied.

The Cambridge Library Collection brings back to life books of enduring scholarly value (including out-of-copyright works originally issued by other publishers) across a wide range of disciplines in the humanities and social sciences and in science and technology.

PREFATORY NOTE TO VOLUME II.

THIS volume contains Book III. of the present work—the History of Jerusalem, with such portions of the topography as are proper to particular periods. The size to which the volume has grown has rendered necessary the omission of a detailed history of the City through the Roman period and of a separate chapter on the siege by Titus. But in the last two chapters of Book II. a summary has already been given of the principal political events under the Romans and during the War of Independence, thus bringing the history down to 70 A.D.

I regret that the first proof of Chapter xiv. on the Rest of the Persian Period was corrected before Dr. Sachau's publication of the three papyri from Elephantine, and that in consequence I was unable to make any but the briefest allusion to these very important documents. They confirm the chronology adopted in Chapter xiii., that Nehemiah lived under the first Artaxerxes. But it has been impossible to discuss their bearing on the critical questions of the age of the Pentateuch. With regard to these I need state only one remarkable result of the discovery of the papyri. It has convinced Professor Nöldeke, who has so long resisted the Graf-Wellhausen hypothesis, of the impossibility of assigning the close of the Pentateuch to an earlier date than that of Ezra (Zeitschrift für Assyriologie, January 1908). Professor Nöldeke does not discuss how far the papyri affect the question of the date of Deuteronomy, a question which I hope to have other opportunities of discussing. I also regret that Professor Kittel's Studien zur Hebräischen Archäologie und Religionsgeschichte, containing treatises on the Rock es-Sakhra, the Serpentstone in the Kidron Valley and the movable lavers in Solomon's Temple (Leipzig, 1908), did not come into my hands till after this volume was passed for press.

In the History I have thought right to give a more exact transliteration of the Hebrew proper names than the conventional English spelling adopted in Volume I.; but some of the more important names, such as Solomon, Isaiah, and Jeremiah, I have left in their familiar forms. I have also altered one or two forms of reference to ancient works: for instance, the document cited in Volume I. as the Pseudo-Aristeas appears in this volume as the Letter of Aristeas.

To the list given in the Preface of those to whom I have been indebted for assistance in the preparation of this work, I wish to add the names of my colleague Professor Denney, whose suggestions on the New Testament period have been very helpful; Dr. D. M. Ross of Glasgow, Professor C. A. Scott of Cambridge, Dr. John Kelman of Edinburgh, and Mr. W. Menzies of Glasgow. I also thank, for the care and ability with which they have treated the somewhat intricate materials, the compositors and proofreaders of Messrs. T. and A. Constable, the printers of these volumes; and I owe a very special debt of gratitude to Messrs. Hodder and Stoughton and to Mr. J. Sinclair Armstrong of New York for their great patience with the many delays in the completion of the work, as well as for their generosity in the matter of its illustrations.

I call the attention of the reader to the list of Additions and Corrections to Vol. I. inserted in that volume; and to the list of those to Vol. II. on page xiv. I regret that the Appendix referred to on pages 327, 331, 333, and 334 has been crowded out.
