A CHRONOLOGICAL INDEX
of medical authors who have written particular books on the scurvy; as also the principal systematic, and other medical writers, whose sentiments are delivered in this treatise.

1534. Euritius Cordus, a celebrated Botanist. He died ann. 1538.
1539. Jo. Agricola (Ammon.), Professor of Medicine, &c. at Ingolstadt.
1541. Jo. Echthius, a physician at Cologne, by birth a Dutchman. He died ann. 1554.
1560. Jo Langius, chief physician to the Elector Palatine.
1564. Balduin. Ronssens, ordinary physician to the city of Goude in Holland.
1567. Jo. Wierus, chief physician to the Duke of Cleves and Juliers.
Adrian. Junius, an eminent physician and historian. He died ann. 1575.
1581. Rembert. Dodonæus, chief physician to the Emperor of Germany.
1589. Hen Brucæus, Professor at Rostock.
Balthaf Brunerus, chief physician to the Prince of Anhalt.
1593. Solomon Albertus, Professor of Medicine at Wittenburg.
1595. Petrus Forestus, physician at Alcmaer, Professor at Leyden, &c. (a).

1600.

(a) Besides the above authors, it is taken notice of by several other medical writers in the sixteenth century, viz. Cornelius Gemma (Cosmocratic. lib. 2. cap. 2.), Petrus Pena (adversar. siccipium, p. 121. & 122.), Schenckius (observat. medicinal.), Carrichterus (prax. Germanic. lib. 1. cap. 41.), Mithobius de peste, Taberjæmon de thermis, Peucerus

1600. Hieronymus Reusnerus, physician to the city of Norlingen.
1604. Severinus Evgalenus, a physician of Dockum in Friesland.
1608. Felix Platerus, Professor of Medicine at Basil in Switzerland.
1609. Gregorius Horstius, chief physician to the Landgrave of Hesse, Professor at Giessen.
- Mat. Martini*, physician at Eisleben.
1624. Daniel Sennertus, Professor of Medicine at Wittenburg, and chief physician to the Elector of Saxony.
1626. Arnold. Weickardus, a physician at Francfort.
1627. Ludov. Schmid, chief physician to the Marquis of Baden, &c.
1627. Gul. Fabric. Hildanus, physician and surgeon to the Marquis of Baden, &c.
1633. Jo. Hartmannus, Professor at Marburg.
1640. Lazar. Riverius, the celebrated Montpelier Professor.
1645. The faculty of physic at Copenhagen (b).
1647. Job. Drawitzs, physician at Leipsic, a celebrated chemist.
1657. Job. Rudolph. Glauberus, a celebrated chemist of Amsterdam.

Peuctrus de morbis contagiosi, &c. There were likewise two theses, or disputations, published upon it; one by Twestrengk, at Basil, in the year 1581, and another by Hambergerus, at Tübingen, in the year 1586. One Gul. Lemnius, a Zealander, is said to have wrote upon the scurvy. He seems to have been a very trifling author, believing it to be the same disease in man that the measles distemper is in hogs. It would appear from Solomon Albertus, that his performance was out of print in the year 1593.

(b) It was one of the most celebrated faculties of medicine at that time in Europe; of which Olaus Wormius, two of the Bartholines, and Simon Paulli, were then members. The latter, who was physician to the King of Denmark, has usually been ranked among the writers on the scurvy, upon account of an appendix which he added, ann. 1660, to his Digressio de vera causa februm, &c.
