

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-07514-5 - Narrative of an Expedition to the East Coast of Greenland: Sent by Order of the King of Denmark, in Search of the Lost Colonies, Under the Command of Captain W. A. Graah of the Danish Royal Navy
 Wilhelm August Graah Translated by George Gordon Macdougall

Table of Contents

More information

CONTENTS.

INTRODUCTION.

	Page
Object of the expedition—First colonization of Greenland, by Erik Raude—Contradictory accounts of the country—Discovery of North America by the Greenland colonists—Arnold, first bishop of Greenland—The West Bygd destroyed by the Skrællings—Andreas, last resident bishop of Greenland—Intercourse with Greenland discontinued—Letter of Pope Nicholas V., mentioning the partial destruction of the East Bygd, in 1418—Conjectured to have been effected by an English fleet—Archbishop Walckendorff proposes an expedition for the rediscovery of the lost colonies—Prevented by his exile and death—Expeditions despatched without success by Christian III. and Frederick III.—Expedition of Lindenow and Hall—Second expedition of Lindenow—Attempt of Carsten Rikardsen—Jens Munk's expedition; miserable fate of his crew—The Chancellor Früs despatches two ships to Greenland in search of gold—Voyages of Daniel Danel; information respecting the East coast furnished by them—Expedition of Otto Axelsen—Hans Egede becomes pastor of a settlement in Greenland—Attempts to visit the East coast, and discovers some remarkable ruins—Major Paars and Captain Landorf's attempts—Population of the West coast—Expedition of Peter Olsen Valløe—Fallacy of Scoresby's opinion respecting the approach to the East coast—Uncertainty of the site of the East Bygd—Preparations for a new expedition—Authorities for the map . . .	1—16

VOYAGE TO GREENLAND.—1828.

Sail from Copenhagen—Experiments on the local attraction of the compass—Pass Sumborough Head, Shetland—Error in the dead-reckoning—Uniform system of signals desirable—Land-birds at sea—The Sunkenland-van-Buss, an imaginary danger—Easterly current in the latitude of 57°—58°—The "Great Ice;" unusual appearance of the sea—Temperature of the sea—Current along the shores of Greenland—Reach Frederick's-hope—Otto Fabricius	17—24
---	-------

VOYAGE IN A BOAT TO JULIANA'S-HOPE, DETENTION THERE, AND AT NENNORTALIK.—1828—29.

Leave Frederick's-hope—The angmaksak fishery—Icelandic ruins; supposed to be those of the Middle Bygd—Aurora harbour—Arrival at Juliana's-hope; its history—Greenland woman's-boat—The kajak, or man's-boat—Ernenek engaged for the expedition—Ruins near Juliana's-hope—Arrival at Lichtenau—Nennortalik; Friederichsthal—Hot-springs at Ounartok—Remarkable cavern at Akkia—Akkia supposed to be the "Langey" of the ancients—Exploration of the ruin called Kakkortok church—Its comparatively perfect condition—Traditions of the natives—Survey of the district of Juliana's-hope—Reindeer hunting—Greenland earth-huts—Excursion to the eastward—Nick-names—Return to Nennortalik, to pass the winter—Visits from the natives—Winter occupations—Aurora borealis	25—54
--	-------

EXPEDITION TO THE EAST COAST.—1829.

Explanation of the regular appearance of the drift-ice—Preparations for departure—Leave Nennortalik—Detention at Nukalik; game caught—Position of Cape Farewell—Itibirsoak—Detention at Kikkertak—Activity of Ernenek—Departure from Kikkertak—Island of Alluk;
---	--

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-07514-5 - Narrative of an Expedition to the East Coast of Greenland: Sent by Order of the King of Denmark, in Search of the Lost Colonies, Under the Command of Captain W. A. Graah of the Danish Royal Navy
 Wilhelm August Graah Translated by George Gordon Macdougall

Table of Contents

More information

vi

CONTENTS.

Page

annual fair held there—Detention at Nenneetsuk; notions of a future state—Optical delusion—Tents of the natives—Manners and appearance of the East Greenlanders—Magnetic influence of the rocks at Serketnoua—A bear killed by one of the kajakkers—Taterat; the inhabitants little resembling the Esquimaux—A ship's cannon discovered at Koremiut—Angekkoks, or sorcerers—Curiosity respecting the compass—Want of provisions—The author proceeds alone—Dangerous passage—Signs of mourning—Singular effects of refraction—Snow-blindness—A Greenland entertainment—Cascades near Asioukasik—Fondness for snuff—Account of the Erkilliks; Mr. Wormskiold's conjectures concerning them—Great thickness of the ice off Cape Mösting—Icebergs—Curiosity of the natives of Aluik—Mode of preparing coffee—Refusal to taste brandy—Have no knowledge of any Icelandic ruins—Effects of the fog, near Skram's Islands—Hvid Sadlen, and Cape King Frederick III.—Gunbiörn's Skerries—Distance between Iceland and the Bygd—Variation of the compass at Sneedorff's Island—Dannebrog's Island, northern limit of the expedition—Dangerous passage to Aluik—Sound of Ekallumiut—Luxuriant vegetation—The tambourinence—Preparations for winter quarters 54—110

WINTERING AT NUKARBIK; WITH SOME REMARKS ON THE CLIMATE, POPULATION, &c. OF THE EAST COAST.—1829—30.

Take possession of our winter dwelling—Scarcity of provisions and fuel—Climate of the East coast—Tides; Currents; Icebergs—Population of the East coast—Much reduced by famine—The inhabitants bear little resemblance to the Esquimaux—Better clothed than the West Greenlanders—Manners and customs; affection for their children; education—Filthiness of their dwellings—Civility and hospitality—Contempt of servitude—Prescriptive usages—Rules of succession—Murder, how avenged—Morality and honesty; no terms of abuse in their language—No religious worship—An incantation—Superstitions regarding eclipses, &c.—Diseases—Treatment of a wounded man—Voluntary death—Superstitious fear of the dead—Language 110—130

FRUITLESS ATTEMPT TO PENETRATE FURTHER NORTH—RETURN.

Departure from Nukarbik—Greenland arithmetic—Detention at the "Isle of Twins"—Death of two children—Robbery at Nukarbik—Perilous situation off Colberger Heide—Want of provisions—Siorakitsok carries off one of the boat-women—Removal of the Eastlanders to Friederichsthal—Quarrel with Ernenek—Humanity of an old angekkok—Sufferings from sickness and famine—Reach Friederichsthal—Survey of the district of Juliana's-hope—Return to Copenhagen 130—152

APPENDIX.

I.—On the Situation of the East and West Bygds; with Remarks on Eggers' and Wormskiold's Treatises on that subject	155
II.—Botany and Zoology	177
III.—Temperature of the Sea	181
IV.—Magnetic Observations	182
V.—Table of Latitudes and Longitudes	184
Details of Experiments on the Intensity of the Magnetic Force	187