CAMBRIDGE LIBRARY COLLECTION

Books of enduring scholarly value

History of Printing, Publishing and Libraries

The interface between authors and their readers is a fascinating subject in its own right, revealing a great deal about social attitudes, technological progress, aesthetic values, fashionable interests, political positions, economic constraints, and individual personalities. This part of the Cambridge Library Collection reissues classic studies in the area of printing and publishing history that shed light on developments in typography and book design, printing and binding, the rise and fall of publishing houses and periodicals, and the roles of authors and illustrators. It documents the ebb and flow of the book trade supplying a wide range of customers with products from almanacs to novels, bibles to erotica, and poetry to statistics.

Typographical Antiquities

When this work was published, its original author had been dead for fifty years. As the title page explains, the work of Joseph Ames (1687–1759) was considerably augmented by William Herbert (1718–95), and then ‘greatly enlarged, with copious notes, and illustrated with appropriate engravings’ by Thomas Frognall Dibdin (1776–1847), several of whose other works are also reissued in this series. Ames’ history of printing, based on his own collection, was published in 1749, as an aid to booksellers in identifying old works (and modern forgeries). Herbert, a printseller and bibliophile, acquired Ames’ own interleaved copy of the work and intended to enlarge it, but died having completed only three of six proposed volumes. His working copies then passed to Dibdin, who eventually published this four-volume edition between 1810 and 1819. Volume 4 considers the lives and work of printers from Reynold Wolfe to Thomas Hacket.

Cambridge University Press has long been a pioneer in the reissuing of out-of-print titles from its own backlist, producing digital reprints of books that are still sought after by scholars and students but could not be reprinted economically using traditional technology. The Cambridge Library Collection extends this activity to a wider range of books which are still of importance to researchers and professionals, either for the source material they contain, or as landmarks in the history of their academic discipline.

Drawing from the world-renowned collections in the Cambridge University Library and other partner libraries, and guided by the advice of experts in each subject area, Cambridge University Press is using state-of-the-art scanning machines in its own Printing House to capture the content of each book selected for inclusion. The files are processed to give a consistently clear, crisp image, and the books finished to the high quality standard for which the Press is recognised around the world. The latest print-on-demand technology ensures that the books will remain available indefinitely, and that orders for single or multiple copies can quickly be supplied.

The Cambridge Library Collection brings back to life books of enduring scholarly value (including out-of-copyright works originally issued by other publishers) across a wide range of disciplines in the humanities and social sciences and in science and technology.

IN presenting the Fourth Volume of the TYPOGRAPHICAL ANTIQUITIES to the Public, it will be necessary to state that, although the number of embellishments has been necessarily diminished, the quantity of text has been rather increased. Indeed, as the HISTORY OF ENGLISH PRINTING approaches the Seventeenth Century, specimens of art become less desirable from singularity or rarity: but the interest attached to those which are given, will in a great measure compensate for the paucity of their number.

The Author however may congratulate his readers upon having it in his power to present them, in this volume, with THREE PORTRAITS of considerable interest to Collectors of rare and curious books: namely, of JOHN DUKE of ROXBURGHE, of JAMES WEST, and of the late JAMES BINDLEY. Of these Portraits, there exists but one previous impression of the former (limited both in size and number), none whatever of the second, and a smaller one only of the third, which is prefixed to the Catalogue of Mr. Bindley's Library.

The text of this Volume has received great additions and corrections; as well from the copious stores of the author's friends, as from the MS. additions of Herbert himself, and from the full and accurate descriptions in the Censura Literaria and British
