

INDEX.

- ΑCΤÆON, his manner of life, N. 59.
 Action, a very necessary qualification in an orator, N. 66.
 ——— applauded in dean Atterbury, ibid.
 ——— neglected by English clergymen, ibid.
 Actors censured for adding words of their own in their parts,
 N. 89.
 Advice to young married people, N. 104.
 Affectation of vice and imperfections censured, N. 77.
 Affection, paternal, described, N. 95, 112.
 Affections, how governed, N. 54.
 Afterwit, Solomon, his observation on the town, N. 83.
 Alexander the Great, a memorable saying of his, N. 92.
 Allegory of Virtue and Pleasure making court to Hercules,
 N. 97.
 Anne, queen, eulogiums on her government, N. 90.
 Arria, the wife of Pætus, manner of her death, N. 83.
 Atheist, behaviour of one in a storm, N. 111.
 Atterbury, dean, his eloquent manner of preaching, N. 66.
 Attornies solve difficulties by increasing them, N. 99.

 BACON, sir Francis, his opinion of poetry, N. 108.
 Boufflers, marshal, his Letter to Lewis XIV, after the battle of the Woods, N. 77.
 Battle-critics, what, N. 65.
 Battle near Mons, account of it, N. 63 and 64.
 Beauty, how long it ought to be the chief concern of the fair sex, N. 61.
 Bennet, madam, her maxim for the ladies, N. 84.
 Betterton, Mr. applauded in the part of Hamlet, N. 71.
 Bickerstaff, Mr. account of his ancestors, N. 75.
 ——— of his sister Jenny's marriage, N. 79.
 ——— advice to his sister on her wedding day, ibid.
 ——— caught writing nonsense, N. 59.
 ——— contents of his scrutoir, N. 78.
 ——— design to marry him, N. 91.
 ——— epitome of his life, N. 89.

INDEX.

- Bickerstaff, Mr. his amours, N. 107.
 ————— how his race was improved, N. 75.
 ————— not in partnership with Lillie, N. 96
 Blaregnies, the victory there described, N. 65.
 Blindness cured by Dr. Grant, with an account of the patient when he recovered his sight, N. 55.
 Blunder, major, buys musquets without touch-holes, N. 61.
 Boatswain, Dampier's, his disinterested arguments to his companions to prevent being eaten by them, N. 62.
 Bombardiers, who to be accounted such, N. 88.
 Books, how to be valued, N. 80.
 Bradley, sir Arthur de, candidate for alderman of Queenhithe ward, his expedient to prevent bribery at the election,
 N. 73.
 Brains, spirit of, in orange-flower water, sold by Charles
 Lillie, N. 94.
 Bribery, a notable expedient to prevent it at elections, N. 73.
 ——— with coals, reflections on, ibid.
 Brisk, sir Liberal, saved from sharps, ibid.
 Bromo, his character, N. 63.
 Bruyere, Mr. his satire on the French, N. 57.

 CADOGAN, major-general, wounded before Mons, N. 76.
 Cæsar, Julius, an instance of his modesty, N. 86.
 Canes, part of the dress of a prig, N. 77.
 ——— petitions to wear them, N. 80, and 103.
 ——— worn out of affectation, N. 77.
 Cato, a beauty in his character, N. 112.
 Chapel clerk caught in a garret with two of the fair sex,
 N. 69.
 ——— the word explained, N. 72.
 Chastity, its value instanced in Scipio, N. 58.
 Christmas eve described by Shakespear, N. 111.
 Cicercius, an instance of his modesty, N. 86.
 Cleomira censured for painting her face, N. 61.
 Clergy, dumb, recommended to the speaking doctor at Kensington, N. 70.
 Clergyman, character of a good one described, N. 72, and 114.
 ——— deficient in oratory, N. 66, and 70.
 ——— their laziness the principal cause of dissensions,
 N. 68.
 ——— wherein their discourses may receive addition,
 N. 66.

INDEX.

- Clerk of a chapel reproved, N. 69.
 ——— the term explained, N. 72.
 Commendation of one's self, when necessary, N. 91.
 Common-prayer, advice to the readers thereof, N. 66.
 Compassion, how moved in men and women, N. 68.
 ——— instanced in a passage in Macbeth, ibid.
 Conjugal affection described, N. 114.
 Conversation, what only gives true relish thereto, N. 95.
 Coppersmith, Harry and Will, their characters compared with the sharpers, N. 57.
 ——— that name explained, N. 61.
 Coquetry, how to overcome the power of it, N. 107.
 ——— its effects on a young gentleman, ibid.
 Coquettes are chaste jilts, ibid.
 Cornwall, a tragical accident there, N. 82.
 Country gentlemen very ceremonious, N. 86.
 Coxcombs described by sir John Suckling, N. 57.
 ——— required to set marks upon themselves, N. 96.
 ——— the greatest plague of them, N. 91.
 Craffus, his character compared with Lorio's, ibid.
 Cynthio, his passion for Clarissa, his death, monument, and epitaph, N. 85.
- DANCING master, account of one who danced by book, N. 88.
 Daniel, Mr. Bickerstaff's merry companion, his manner of preaching described, N. 66.
 Dapper, parson, his way of preaching, ibid.
 ——— Tim, head of a species, N. 85.
 Dappers, their habit and manner described, ibid.
 ——— usefulness of that family, ibid.
 Dead men, heard and adjudged, N. 110.
 ——— who are to be so accounted, N. 96.
 Delamira, account of her amours, and the virtues and management of her fan, N. 52.
 Diffusions owing to the laziness of the clergy, N. 68.
 Distaff, Jenny, Mr. Bickerstaff's half sister, account of her marriage, with her character, and that of her husband Tranquillus, N. 75.
 ——— her happiness with her husband, N. 104.
 ——— quarrel between her and her husband, and her brother's advice to her thereon, N. 85.
 Distress, contemplating thereon softens the mind and betters
 the heart, N. 81.

INDEX.

- Divito (alias Mr. Christopher Rich) ejected from his palace, N. 99.
 Dogs, a kennel of them to be disposed of, N. 62.
 Drefs of rural squires described, N. 96.
 Dromio, the character of a sharper, N. 56.
 Dryden, Mr. mistaken in a remark on Milton, N. 114.
 Duumvir, his way of life, and behaviour to his wife and mistress, N. 56.
- EBORACENSIS, the character of a good governor of a plantation, N. 69.
 Elmira, her character and manner of living with her husband, N. 53.
 ——— vindicated for not grieving at the death of her husband, ibid.
 Eloquence described, N. 66, and 70.
 Elysium, wherein its happiness may be supposed to consist, N. 94.
 Emilia, an excellent and uncommon character, N. 57.
 ——— her complaint of the country, ibid.
 ——— some advice to her thereon, ibid.
 Engagements between the English and French, N. 63 and 64.
 Equipage proper to be set off with a rent-roll, N. 66.
 Euphulius, a man whose good-nature is hurtful to him, N. 76.
- FAME, mountain and temple of, N. 81.
 ——— plan of the character of, N. 67.
 ——— table of, 87.
 ——— the bank of, ibid.
 ——— the love of it dwells in heroic spirits, N. 92.
 Family scenes, N. 67 and 114.
 Fan, its motions discovers ladies thoughts, N. 52.
 Favonius, the character of a good clergyman, N. 114.
 Fellow, various significations of that term, N. 52.
 Fellows of fire described, N. 61.
 Fencing, how learned by Mr. Bickerstaff, N. 93.
 Fire, men of, described, N. 61.
 Flattery, force of it, instanced in Don Quixote, N. 69.
 Flavia, an imaginary mistress, N. 106.
 Florinda, her pretensions to life, ibid.
 Fondness of wife and children instanced, N. 95 and 114.
 Pop, inventory of his effects seized for the charge of his indentment, N. 113.
 For, and for as much, discussed, N. 58.

INDEX.

- Free-thinker censured and cudgelled, N. 108.
 ——— considered in distress, N. 111.
 French characterized by Bruyere, N. 57.
 ——— defeated by the allies, N. 63.
 ——— their shifts and subterfuges, N. 64.
 French writers of memoirs exploded, N. 84.
 Friendship founded on reason and choice, N. 82.
 Futurity, wherein the happiness thereof may be supposed to consist, N. 94.
- GALLANTRY the heroic virtue of private life, N. 94.
 ——— true, wherein it ought to consist, N. 58.
 ——— what effects it has on men, inflamed in a theatre on fire, N. 94.
- Gamesters, a speech concerning them, N. 56.
 ——— defended, N. 57.
 ——— represented under the characters of a pack of hounds, N. 59, 62, 64, 65, 66, 68, 70.
- Gentleman, a character the most difficult to support with propriety, N. 66.
- Goldsmiths distinguished from coppersmiths, N. 61.
- Greenhat, Obadiah, his criticism upon Mr. Bickerstaff's writings, and Bickerstaff's remarks thereon, N. 59.
- Greenhats, their character and relation to the Staffs, ibid.
- Grogan, Jeffery, his acknowledgment that he is dead, and petition for interment, N. 106.
- Gunner and gunster distinguished, N. 88.
- Gunster in conversation, who to be so accounted, ibid.
- HALL, serjeant, his letter to his comrade, and criticisms thereon, N. 87.
- Hamlet, effect of that tragedy when well performed, N. 71.
 ——— his exclamation on his mother's hasty marriage, N. 106.
- Hard words exploded, N. 58.
- Hawkly, his raffling shop at Hampstead, N. 59.
- Hercules, Prodicus's allegory concerning him, N. 97.
- Hero, how distinguished from a plain honest man, N. 98.
- Heyday, Jack, whom he reduced by gaming, N. 56.
- Hippocrates, the character of a generous physician, N. 78.
- Horror described by Shakespear, N. 90.
- Humanity inspired by the Muses, N. 98.
 ——— no true greatness without it, ibid.
- Human nature, considered in its true dignity, N. 87.

INDEX.

- Humphry, squire, bubbled at Bath, N. 65.
 Husband, qualities necessary to make a good one, N. 104.
 Huffars, civil and wild, who, N. 56.
- JACKS, Harry, why he deserved a statue, N. 62.
 Idleness more destructive than the plague, N. 97.
 Imagination the most active principle of the mind, N. 98.
 Immortality, two kinds of it, N. 81.
 Inconstancy described by Hamlet, N. 106.
 Indibilis's wife restored by Scipio, N. 58.
 Industry, knights of, an account of them, N. 73.
- KNIGHTS of the industry, their designs on a young heir,
 N. 73.
 Knockers, exercise of them taught, N. 105.
- LABOUR for the public, unsuccessful, N. 67.
 Ladies, treating them in organ lofts censured, N. 61.
 Lalo, colonel, killed in a battle with the French, N. 64.
 Landlord, Alexander, his laconic love letter, N. 74.
 Laura, account of her perfections and excellent character,
 N. 54.
 ——— despised by her husband, ibid.
 Learning only improves nature, N. 62.
 ——— what it is, and what it is not, ibid.
 Letter from marshal Boufflers to the French king, N. 77.
 ——— penny-post letters sent as reprimands, N. 67.
 ——— should be the produce of the place, instanced in one from Switzerland, N. 93.
 Libellers censured, N. 92.
 ——— distinguished from satyrists, ibid.
 Lights well disposed in assemblies enlarge the thoughts,
 N. 108.
 Lillie, Charles, catalogue of his wares, N. 94 and 101.
 ——— his letter, N. 92.
 ——— ordered to prepare blank licences for wearing canes, N. 103.
 ——— recommended, N. 92.
 Lifander and Corinna, a married couple, among Mr. Bicker-staff's dead, N. 54.
 Living men, who, N. 96.
 Lizard, that friendly animal compared to a fatirist, N. 85.
 Lorio, Maria's lover, his character, N. 91.
 Love, a mixture of pleasure and pain, N. 90.

INDEX.

- Love, complained of by Diana Doubtful, N. 98.
 — founded on reason and choice, N. 82.
 — its effects and cure, N. 107.
 — life insipid without it, N. 90.
 — sentiment of it the same in all nations, ibid.
 — the history of it in an allegory by Plato, ibid.
 Love-letters between Mr. Bickerstaff and Maria, N. 83.
 — found in a grave, N. 104.
 Lucretia, her story, merit, and character, N. 84.
- MACBETH, a scene of distress in that play, N. 68.
 Madonella, the Platonic, her scheme, N. 63.
 Mævius writes verses in commendation of his own works,
 N. 91.
 Maria, perplexed in her choice between a man of merit and a man of fortune, ibid.
 Marinus, a good sea officer, opposed to a fellow of fire,
 N. 61.
 Marlborough, John, duke of, his merit, N. 55, 64, 66.
 Marriage, how mens' minds and humours may be changed by it, N. 75.
 — two ladies desirous of marrying the same man to prevent parting, N. 69.
 — verses on marriage out of Milton, N. 79.
 — unhappy, from what proceeding, ibid.
 Married persons often overlook their enjoyments, N. 95.
 Martius, the character of an unlearned wit, N. 58.
 Mathematical sieve to sift impertinences, N. 51.
 Matrimony, no medium therein, N. 79.
 Melancholy, the delight of men of knowledge and virtue,
 N. 89.
 Men, wherein they may distinguish themselves, N. 98.
 Mercer, account of one who could not enjoy a thousand pounds a year, N. 66.
 Merit, obscure, should be produced to public view, N. 84.
 Milton, his description of Eve's pleasure in the society of Adam, N. 114.
 Miner, who so in conversation, N. 88.
 Mirrour, Tom, the pantomime, an account of him, N. 51.
 Modest men distinguished from modest fellows, N. 52.
 Modesty described, ibid.
 — different in men and women, ibid.
 — its advantages in men, N. 86.
 — the chief ornament of the fair-fex, N. 84.

INDEX.

- Monoculus a grave sharper, N. 56.
 Mons invefted by the Englifh, N. 62 and 76.
 — taken, N. 83.
 Morpew, John, appointed Mr. Bickerftaff's chamber keeper,
 N. 103.
 ——— made general of the dead men, ibid.
- NASSAU, prince of, his gallantry, N. 69.
 Nelfor, a great, but too modeft an architect, N. 52.
 No, when to be ufed by young people, N. 83.
 Nonfense a prevailing part of eloquence among ladies, N. 60.
 Nunnery erected by a Platonne, N. 63.
 ——— manner of receiving young ladies into fome nunne-ries in popifh countries, N. 96.
- ORLANDO the Fair, his hiftory, N. 51.
 ——— his way of contemning the world, ibid.
 Organ-loft, a treat given to ladies there cenfured, N. 61.
 Orfon Thicket, his character and paffion for Cleora, N. 98.
 Osmyn, the inconfant hufband, his character and behaviour to his wife, N. 53.
- PÆTUS, manner of his death, and the magnanimity of his wife, N. 72.
 Painting the face cenfured, N. 61.
 Panegyric, a theme for Mr. Bickerftaff, N. 63.
 ——— on Mr. Bickerftaff for confeffing his faults, ibid.
 Partridge, Mr. John, account of his intended funeral, N. 99.
 ——— advertifement in his almanac that he is alive, and calling Mr. Bickerftaff a knave, N. 96.
 ——— his manner of furprifing fharpers, N. 56.
 ——— walks and denies his death, N. 59.
- Pendergrafs, fir Thomas, killed in a battle, N. 64.
 Penny-poft letters fent as private reprimands, N. 67.
 Perhaps, when that word betrays a certain decay of affection,
 N. 53.
- Physicians, character of a generous one, N. 78.
 ——— good ones of great ufe in a common-wealth, ibid.
 ——— ordered from Bath, N. 77.
- Pirates in printing and bookfelling, complained of and cenfured, N. 101.
- Piftols, a fatal accident occafioned by loaded piftols, N. 82.
 Plato, his hiftory of love, N. 90.
 Platonic nunnery eftablifhed, N. 63.

INDEX.

- Players blamed for inserting words of their own in their parts,
 N. 89.
 Playhouse on fire in Denmark, N. 94.
 Poetasters, catalogue of the labours of one, N. 106.
 ——— ridiculed, ibid.
 Poetry, efficacy of it on the mind, N. 98.
 ——— fir Francis Bacon's account of it, N. 108.
 Posture-master, his beholders censured, ibid.
 Powell, junior, an excuse for writing against him, N. 51.
 Praise, generous and heroic spirits most sensible of it, N. 92.
 ——— how coveted by great men, ibid.
 ——— to be regarded only as relating to things strictly true,
ibid.
 Præ-adamites, no wit or humour in their practices, N. 69.
 ——— threatened, ibid.
 Priesthood, when the highest honour, ibid.
 Prodicus, a noble allegory of his, N. 97.
 Prudes, a name for courtly hypocrites, N. 102.
 Punctuality a suspicious circumstance in visiting, N. 109.
 Pythagoras, one of his golden sayings, N. 108.
- QUARREL, matrimonial, prevented, and advice thereon,
 N. 85.
- RAFFLING-SHOP, kept by a lawyer at Hampstead, N. 59.
 Rape-trials, most attended by women, N. 84.
 Richard the Third, effect of reading that tragedy, N. 90.
 Riches, the use and abuse of them, N. 57.
 Ridicule, how to be used, N. 63.
 ——— when the effect of reason, ibid.
 Risibility the effect of reason, ibid.
 Rochefoucault, the writings censured, N. 108.
 Rosin, Will, his Wapping fidler, history of his life, N. 105.
 ——— stratagem of his wife to prevent the marriage of her gallant, ibid.
 Round stool, a gentleman affronted by being placed on one,
 N. 80.
- SALLUST, wherein partial, N. 62.
 Satire, in what cases useful, N. 61.
 Satirists censured when they depreciate human nature, N. 108.
 ——— distinguished from libellers, N. 91.
 Scorn the cause of laughter, N. 63.
 Serpents, who to be accounted such in conversation, N. 88.

INDEX.

- Shakespear, his excellence, N. 68.
 ——— his mind thoroughly seasoned with religion,
 N. 110.
 Sharpers defended, N. 57.
 ——— represented by a pack of hounds, N. 59.
 ——— their character and reception, N. 56.
 ——— their practices at Bath, N. 65.
 Sieve, mathematical, to sift impertinences, N. 51.
 Smith, Dr. Mr. Bickerstaff's corn-cutter, N. 103.
 Smyrna coffee-house recommended for music, poetry, and politics, N. 78.
 Snap-dragon illustrated and described, N. 85.
 Society, the pleasures thereof described by Milton, N. 114.
 Soul, human, considered, N. 87.
 Spa-water, design of the coquettes to buy it all up, N. 107.
 Speaking doctor at Kenfington, account of him, N. 70.
 ——— what manner of it most offensive, N. 92.
 Speech in its greatest perfection in an accomplished woman,
 N. 62.
 Spleen, a never failing remedy for it, N. 80.
 Squibs, a branch of gunners, who to be so accounted, N. 88.
 Squires, country, described, N. 96.
 Staremburg, general, overthrows the army of the duke of Anjou, 74.
 ——— takes Balaguier, N. 76.
 Stentor, a finger at St. Paul's, admonished by one at St.
 Peter's, N. 61.
 ——— injuries done by his bawling, N. 54.
 ——— reproved, ibid.
 Strephon, his manner of winning a lady, N. 60.
 Sweden, king of, defeated by the Russians, N. 55 and 58.
 Switzerland, a prospect in it described, N. 93.
 TABEO, his character, N. 63.
 Tendernefs and humanity inspired by the Muses, N. 98.
 ———, no true greatness of mind without it, ibid.
 Theatres recommended as useful, N. 99.
 Tillotson, archbishop, what the copy of his sermons sold for,
 N. 101.
 Tournay, bravery of the besiegers there, N. 59.
 ——— surrendered, N. 62.
 Travelling uselefs to many, N. 93.
 ——— will not make a fool a wife man, ibid.
 Trials for rapes mostly attended by women, N. 84.

INDEX.

- Triftram, fir, the banker, his character, N. 57.
 Triumphs abused by the Romans with regard to captives, N. 63.
 Trubies, character of that family, ibid.
 Trump, Tom, his defence of gamesters and sharpers, N. 57.
- VAPER, Will, his speech concerning sharpers, N. 56.
 Valetudinarians, pretended ones, N. 77.
 Varillas, truly happy in the possession of modesty, N. 52.
 Verfes from Dryden, N. 51.
 ——— Garth's Dispensary, N. 105.
 ——— Milton, N. 79, 98, 102 and 114.
 ——— Shakespear, N. 53, 106 and 111.
 ——— fir John Suckling, N. 57.
 ——— on marriage, N. 79.
 ——— on the death of Pætus and Arria, N. 72.
 Virtue, its recommendation and great ornaments, N. 93.
 Vision of justice, N. 100.
 ——— of the mountain and temple of Fame, N. 81.
 Visits, a day-book kept of them, N. 109.
 ——— ridiculed and censured, ibid.
 ——— when unseasonable, N. 89.
 Upholders company permitted to bury the dead, N. 99.
 ——— their advertisement for the funeral of Dr. Partridge, ibid.
 ——— their petitions and propofals, ibid.
 Vulgar, who to be accounted so, N. 69.
- WALTER Wisdom, his character and manner of courting Cleora, N. 98.
 Wealthy persons fix characters and wit to circumstances, N. 57.
 Whittington, alderman, account of him and his cat, N. 78.
 Wildair, Tom, his character, and how reformed by the generosity of his father, N. 60.
 William the Third, king of England, an eulogium on him, N. 90.
 Window-breakers with half-pence censured, N. 77.
 Wit defined by Dryden, N. 62.
 ——— judged by mens' purses, N. 57.
 Wives, an infallible sign of their loving their husbands, N. 104.
 Women never taken by their reason, but always by their passions, N. 60.

INDEX.

Women, those of the present age compared with those of the last, N. 61.

——— want regular education, ibid.

Wren, see Nestor.

XERXES, why he burst into tears, N. 97.

END OF THE SECOND VOLUME.