CONTENTS.

PREFAE, .................................................. v

SECTION I.

INTRODUCTION.—BEIRUT AND THE VICINITY.
Pages 1–32.

SECTION II.

FROM BEIRUT THROUGH GALILEE TO 'AKKA.

Pages 33-101.

CONTENTS.

in the priest's house; described, 69. The village; the night, 69. Remains of two Jewish synagogues, 70, 71. A place of Jewish pilgrimage, 71.

SECTION III.

From 'Akka through Galilee and Samaria to Jerusalem.

Pages 102–160.

April 21st. Way over the great plain; only partly tilled, 115, 116. Cross the Mukûtta, 'Kidron, 116. Tell el-Mutsellîm, prospect, 116, 117. Ta'amkû, Tanimch, 117. Lojûn, stream, Khûn, and ruins, 117, 118. The same as ancient Legio and
X

CONTENTS.

Megiddo, not Maximianopolis, 118. Way over the hills to the coast, 119.
Fork of ancient road, to Nazareth, Tabor, and Jezreel; Maximianopolis on latter road, 119. No trace of ancient pavement, 119. Turn off to Um el-Fahm, 120. Way to Ya’bud, 120, 121. Ya’bud lies on a ridge; fine plain, 121. Kūbātih, 121. Kefr Kād, Capparocia, 121. 'Arrābēh, 121. Tell Dīthān, Dethan, 122. Road from Belān and Janzrēl to Egypt passes here, 122. Joseph carried away, 122. Roman road from Cæsaræa to Scythopolis, 122. Parties in Ya’bud, 123.—April 22nd. Pass down southwest along the ancient road, 123. Leave it east of Zeita, and go to 'Aṭṭil, 124. Turn up the mountain on the Nûbulus road, 124, 125. Deir el-Ghūṣūn, Wady Mūsān, 125. Wady Shā’r, 'Anēba, 125. Tūl Kerām; route from Nûbulus to Ramleh, 126. Follow up the valley; ancient road from Cæsaræa, 126. Rāmūn, situation, 126. Basin of Sebastiēh, 126. People would not sell bread, 127.

CONTENTS.

SECTION IV.

JERUSALEM.—INCIDENTS AND OBSERVATIONS.

Pages 161–202.

CONTENTS.

SECTION V.

JERUSALEM.—TOPOGRAPHY AND ANTIQUITIES.

Pages 203–263.

Object in entering upon the discussion, 203. Diversities of opinion, 204. My own view the earliest one, 204. Scholars who have adopted it, 205, 206. Points admitted, 206.

II. BEZETH, 211. Josephus’ description, 211. Inferences, 212.

III. THE GATE GENTH, 212. Same as ‘Garden gate,’ 213. Probably near Hippicus, 213. This was the natural position, 213. The north side of Zion was covered by the second wall, 214, 215. This shown also from the monument of John; inferences, 215–217.

VII. WATERS OF JERUSALEM, 243. Gihon was on the west, 243–245. Well near the Haram, 245. Explored by Wolcott, 245, 246. By Tobler, 246. By Dr Barclay,
CONTENTS.

VIII. SEPULCHRES, 251. Tomb of Helen, 251, 252. — Tombs of the Prophets, 253, 254.

SECTION VI.

EXCURSIONS FROM JERUSALEM.

Pages 284—285.

SECTION VII.

FROM JERUSALEM TO BEISAN.

Pages 286—335.

CONTENTS.

Salîm and Ânûn, not found, 333.—The Guûs, general character, 333, 334. Divided by Kûrn Yûrtâbâh, 334. The northern portion well watered and cultivated in parts, 334, 335.

SECTION VIII.

FROM BEISAN TO HASBEITEH.

Pages 336—383.

CONTENTS.

Vol. III.
xvi

CONTENTS.

SECTION IX.

FROM HASBEYJA TO BANIAS AND BACK.

Pages 384–418.

Sources of the Jordan, and streams above and in the Hūleb, 412. Not the remotest, but the largest fountains, regarded as the source, 413.
CONTENTS.

SECTION X.
FROM HASBEYYA TO DAMASCUS.

Pages 419-472.

DAMASCUS.

CONTENTS.

RIVERS AND FOUNTAINS, 446. The Barada, 446. Its canals on the north and south, 446, 447. Is the ancient Choros or Choros, 447. Probably also the Araba (or Arbab), 447. The Awaq, probably the ancient Pharsor; its course, 447, 448. Various fountains, 448, 449. Artificial fountains or wells, for irrigation, 449, 450.

AGRICULTURE. FRUITS.—Various products, 452. Trees and fruits, 452.

PLACES NEAR DAMASCUS.—Silibyeh, 469.—Kubbat Seiyar, celebrated prospect, 469, 470.—Hevòn, position and description, 471, 472. Probably the Hebron of Scripture; its wine still famous, 472.—Hureizy, 472.

SECTION XI.

FROM DAMASCUS TO BA'ALBEK.

Pages 473-527.

CONTENTS.

The Temples.

XX

CONTENTS.

SECTION XII.

FROM BA'ALBEK BY RIBLEH TO EL-HUSEN.

Pages 528–569.

CONTENTS.

The Water-Seed, east of el-Husn, 567. The Orontes might be brought across it, 568.

The Entering in of Hamath, was this great depression between Lebanon and the Numairiyeh mountains, 568, 569.

SECTION XIII.

From el-Husn by way of the Cedars to Beirut.

Pages 570–596.

The Cedars, 588. Situation and character of the grove, 588. No two travellers count the trees alike, 588, 589. Number of old trees constantly diminishing, 589. The spot held sacred, altars, chapel, 589, 590. The cedars stand in a vast amphitheatre, 590. Elevation, 591. The cedars of Lebanon celebrated in Scripture; its uses, 591, 592. Ancient cedar forests destroyed, 592. Still many tracts of cedars further north; Ehrenberg's testimony, 592, 593.—Name of the ridge above the cedars; not Jebel Makhamel, which is known only in Tripoly as a name for the highest peak, 593.
CONTENTS.

CONTENTS.

NOTES.

Note I. Commerce of Beirut, 627
II. Itinerary from 'Akka to Tyre, 628
III. Statistics of the Province of 'Akka, 628–630
IV. The Tyropoion and certain Remains in Jerusalem.
   Letter of Mr Whiting, 631–633
V. Deuce Letter of Protection, 638

Itinerary, 635–642

Index I. Arabic Names and Words, 643–657
II. Ancient Geography, Antiquities, etc. 658–662
III. Passages of Scripture Illustrated, 663, 664