

A HISTORY OF CANADIAN FICTION

A History of Canadian Fiction is the first one-volume history to chart its development from earliest times to the present day. Recounting the struggles and the glories of this burgeoning area of investigation, it explains Canada's literary growth alongside its remarkable history. Highlighting the people who have shaped and are shaping Canadian literary culture, the book examines such major figures as Mavis Gallant, Mordecai Richler, Alice Munro, Margaret Atwood, Michael Ondaatje, and Thomas King, concluding with young authors of today whose major successes reflect their indebtedness to their Canadian forbears.

DAVID STAINES is the former dean of the Faculty of Arts and now Professor of English at the University of Ottawa. He has authored and/or edited more than twenty books on medieval culture and literature and Canadian culture and literature. In 1998, he received the Lorne Pierce Medal from the Royal Society of Canada for outstanding contribution to Canadian criticism, and in 2011, he was awarded the Order of Canada and the Order of Ontario for his services to Canadian literature.

Acknowledgements

David Eso, Thomas Hodd, Helen Hoy, Wolfgang Klooss, Eva-Marie Kröller, and W.H. New commented on the manuscript. Neil Besner, Mary Rubio, Carl Spadoni, Natalia Vesselova, and Katherine Walton answered many queries. I am grateful to all of them for their time and their patience.

I am also grateful to Cambridge University Press, in particular to Sarah Stanton, who initiated the project, and to Emily Hockley, who saw it to completion.

A History of Canadian Fiction is a belated acknowledgement of a conversation with Jerry and Elizabeth Buckley on Dunster Street in Cambridge, Massachusetts in 1974; they suggested that I introduce Canadian literature courses at Harvard University. To them, I remain indebted.
