

NIETZSCHE'S METAPHYSICS OF THE WILL TO POWER

Nietzsche's controversial will to power thesis is convincingly rehabilitated in this compelling book. Tsarina Doyle presents a fresh interpretation of his account of nature and value, which sees him defy the dominant conception of nature in the Enlightenment and overturn Hume's distinction between facts and values. Doyle argues that Nietzsche challenges Hume indirectly through critical engagement with Kant's idealism and that, in so doing and despite some wrong turns, he establishes the possibility of objective value in response to nihilism and the causal efficacy of consciousness as a necessary condition of human autonomy. Her book will be important for scholars of Nietzsche's metaphysics and of the history of philosophy and science more generally.

TSARINA DOYLE is Lecturer in Philosophy at the National University of Ireland, Galway. She is the author of Nietzsche on Epistemology and Metaphysics: The World in View (2009) and numerous journal articles.

Acknowledgements

Chapter 2 is derived, in part, from an article, 'Nietzsche, Value and Objectivity', published in International Journal of Philosophical Studies, Volume 21, Issue 1, 2013, pp. 41–63. The first two sections of Chapter 3 appeared in 'The Kantian Roots to the Will to Power' in Marco Brusotti and Herman Siemens (eds.), Nietzsche's Engagements with Kant and the Kantian Legacy, Volume I: Nietzsche, Kant and the Problem of Metaphysics (London: Continuum, 2017), pp. 205–232 and are included in revised form here. An earlier version of Chapter 5 was published as 'Nietzsche, Consciousness and Human Agency', Idealistic Studies, Volume 41, Issue 1/2, 2011, pp. 11–30 and has been revised and expanded for inclusion in the present volume.

I thank Hilary Gaskin and two anonymous reviewers at Cambridge University Press for their helpful comments and suggestions. My deepest personal thanks go to John O' Reilly, to my young friends Ibrahim, Maryam and Adam Dahmani, to Tom Doyle and to my mother, Marie J. Doyle, whose memory is a reminder that value is possible.
