American Literature in Transition, 1950–1960 explores the underrecognized complexity and variety of 1950s American literature by focalizing discussions through a series of keywords and formats that encourage readers to draw fresh connections among literary form and concepts, institutions, cultures, and social phenomena important to the decade. The first section draws attention to the relationship between literature and cultural phenomena that were new to the 1950s. The second section demonstrates the range of subject positions important in the 1950s but still not visible in many accounts of the era. The third section explores key literary schools or movements associated with the decade and explains how and why they developed at this particular cultural moment. The final section focuses on specific forms or genres that grew to special prominence during the 1950s. Taken together, the chapters in the four sections not only encourage us to rethink familiar texts and figures in new lights but also propose new archives for future study of the decade.

Steven Belletto is Associate Professor of English at Lafayette College. He is author of No Accident, Comrade: Chance and Design in Cold War American Narratives (2012), editor of The Cambridge Companion to the Beats (2017), and coeditor of American Literature and Culture in an Age of Cold War: A Critical Reassessment (2012). The author of numerous articles on post-1945 American literature and culture that have appeared in journals such as American Literature, American Quarterly, ELH, and Twentieth-Century Literature, from 2011 to 2016, he was associate editor for the journal Contemporary Literature and is now an editor there. He is currently writing a literary history of the Beats to be published by Cambridge University Press.
American Literature in Transition captures the dynamic energies transmitted across the 20th- and 21st-century American literary landscapes. Revisionary and authoritative, the series offers a comprehensive new overview of the established literary landmarks that constitute American literary life. Ambitious in scope and depth, and accommodating new critical perspectives and approaches, this series captures the dynamic energies and ongoing change in 20th- and 21st-century American literature. These are decades of transition, but also periods of epochal upheaval. These decades – the Jazz Age, the Great Depression, the Cold War, the sixties, 9/11 – are turning points of real significance. But in a tumultuous century, these terms can mask deeper structural changes. Each one of these books challenges in different ways the dominant approaches to a period of literature by shifting the focus from what happened to understanding how and why it happened. They elucidate the multifaceted interaction between the social and literary fields and capture that era’s place in the incremental evolution of American literature up to the present moment. Taken together, this series of books constitutes a new kind of literary history in a century of intense cultural and literary creation, a century of liberation and also of immense destruction too. As a revisionary project grounded in pre-existing debates, American Literature in Transition offers an unprecedented analysis of the American literary experience.

Books in the series

American Literature in Transition, 1910–1920 edited by Mark W. Van Wienen
American Literature in Transition, 1920–1930 edited by Ichiro Takayoshi
American Literature in Transition, 1930–1940 edited by Ichiro Takayoshi
American Literature in Transition, 1940–1950 edited by Christopher Vials
AMERICAN LITERATURE IN TRANSITION, 1950–1960

EDITED BY
STEVEN BELLETTO
Lafayette College
Contents

List of Illustrations
Notes on Contributors

Introduction
Steven Belletto

PART I CULTURAL ISSUES

1 Cold War
Arthur Redding

2 Mass Media
Katie Muth

3 When Psychoanalysis Was in Vogue
Mary Esteve

4 Toward Decolonization
Cathy J. Schlund-Vials

5 Religion
Jason Stevens

6 Politics
Tracy Floreani

PART II VARIETIES OF LITERARY EXPERIENCE

7 WASP Culture
Keith Wilhite

8 African American Literature
Steven Belletto
vi

Contents

9 Los(t) “Happy Days”: Chicana/o Literature, 1950–1960 131
Spencer R. Herrera

10 Asian American Literature 144
Tara Fickle

11 Gay and Lesbian Literary Culture in the 1950s 157
Michael Trask

12 Feminist Literature 170
Kathlene McDonald

13 Youth Culture and the Postwar Dropout Narrative 181
Denis Jonnes

PART III SCHOOLS, MOVEMENTS, AND SENSIBILITIES

14 Proto-postmodernism 195
Robert Genter

15 Black Mountain College as Experimental Arts Community 209
Anne Dewey

16 The Beat Movement 223
Fiona Paton

17 Advertisements for Themselves: Poetry, Confession, and the Arts of Publicity 238
Christopher Grobe

18 New York School 251
Ben Hickman

19 Literary Exiles, Cultural Émigrés 268
Martin Halliwell

20 The Literature of Commitment 282
Alan Wald

PART IV FORMATS AND GENRES

21 From Consensus to Conflict: Little Magazines in the 1950s 299
Loren Glass

22 Best Sellers and the 1950s 313
Evan Brier
Contents

23 A Genre Comes of Age: The Maturation of Science Fiction in the 1950s 326
   Rob Latham

Bibliography 338
Index 360
Illustrations

21.2 Kenyon Review 14.2 (Spring 1952).  303
21.4 Yugen 1.1 (1958).  311
Contributors

STEVEN BELLETT T is Associate Professor of English at Lafayette College. He is author of No Accident, Comrade: Chance and Design in Cold War American Narratives (2012) and coeditor of American Literature and Culture in an Age of Cold War: A Critical Reassessment (2012). The author of numerous articles on post-1945 American literature and culture that have appeared in journals such as American Literature, American Quarterly, ELH, and Twentieth-Century Literature, from 2011 to 2016 he was associate editor for the journal Contemporary Literature and is now an editor there. He edited The Cambridge Companion to the Beats (2017) and is currently writing a literary history of the Beats to be published by Cambridge University Press.

EVAN BRIER is Associate Professor of English at the University of Minnesota Duluth. He is the author of A Novel Marketplace: Mass Culture, the Book Trade, and Postwar American Fiction (2010), and he has published essays on postwar American literature and culture in PMLA, Literature Interpretation Theory, and Women’s Studies Quarterly.

MARY ESTEVE, Associate Professor of English at Concordia University in Montreal, specializes in nineteenth- and twentieth-century American literature. She is the author of The Aesthetics and Politics of the Crowd in American Literature (2003) and of numerous articles that have appeared in such journals as ELH, American Literary History, Yale Journal of Criticism, Post45 Peer Reviewed, and Contemporary Literature.
Notes on Contributors

Tara Fickle is Assistant Professor of English at the University of Oregon. Her research and teaching interests are in Asian American literature and culture, game studies, and the digital humanities; she is an affiliated faculty member in the Ethnic Studies Department, the Center for Asian and Pacific Studies, and the New Media and Culture Certificate.

Tracy Floreani is Professor of English at Oklahoma City University, where she teaches American literature and academic writing and serves as Director of the Center for Interpersonal Studies through Film and Literature, a public humanities programming initiative. She is the author of Fifties Ethnicities: The Ethnic Novel and Masculine Culture at Midcentury (2013) and is working on a biography of Fanny McConnell Ellison.

Robert Genter is Associate Professor in the Department of History at Nassau Community College in Garden City, New York. He is the author of Late Modernism: Art, Culture, and Politics in Cold War America (2010) and has also published numerous articles on the history of American culture and literature in the twentieth century. He is currently working on a study of the role of the confession in American art and literature in the early Cold War, tentatively titled “Cold War Confessions: Speaking the Self in the Age of McCarthyism.”

Loren Glass is Professor of English and the Center for the Book at the University of Iowa. His first book, Authors Inc.: Literary Celebrity in the Modern United States, was published in 2004. His history of Grove Press, Counterculture Colophon: Grove Press, the Evergreen Review, and the Incorporation of the Avant-Garde, was published in 2013. He is a member of the Post45 collective and coedits their series.

Christopher Grobe is Assistant Professor of English at Amherst College, where he teaches mostly theater and performance studies. He is author of The Art of Confession: The Performance of Self from Robert Lowell to Reality TV (2017). His other writings on confessional poetry can be found in PMLA and This Business of Words: Reassessing Anne Sexton (2016). Learn more at: www.cgrobe.com.

Martin Halliwell is Professor of American Studies at the University of Leicester. He is the author of ten books, including Transatlantic Modernism (2006), American Culture in the 1950s (2007), and Therapeutic Revolutions (2013) and coeditor of two volumes, American Thought and...
Notes on Contributors

Spencer R. Herrera is Associate Professor of Spanish at New Mexico State University, where he teaches Chicana/o literature and film. He is the coauthor of Sagrado: A Photopoetics across the Chicano Homeland (2013) and author/editor of Before/Beyond Borders: An Anthology of Chicano/a Literature (2009). He completed his PhD at the University of New Mexico.

Ben Hickman is Senior Lecturer in Modern Poetry at the University of Kent and Director of the Centre for Modern Poetry. Recent publications include John Ashbery and English Poetry (2012), Poetry and Real Politics: Crisis and the US Avant-Garde (2015), and a collection of poems, Later Britain (2014).

Denis Jonnes received his PhD in Comparative Literature from Brown University. He has held positions at Brown, the University of Garyounis (Libya), Birzeit University (Palestine), Kagoshima University (Japan), Kyushu University (Fukuoka, Japan), and the University of Kitakyushu (Japan), where he currently teaches in the International Relations and Anglo-American Studies Departments. His publications include The Matrix of Narrative: Family Systems and the Semiotics of Story (1990) and Cold War American Literature and the Rise of Youth Culture: Children of Empire (2014).

Rob Latham has been a senior editor of the journal Science Fiction Studies since 1997. He is the author of Consuming Youth: Vampires, Cyborgs, and the Culture of Consumption (2002), coeditor of The Wesleyan Anthology of Science Fiction (2010), and editor of The Oxford Handbook of Science Fiction (2014) and Science Fiction Criticism: An Anthology of Essential Writings, 2017.
Notes on Contributors

KATHLENE MCDONALD is Associate Professor of English at the City College of New York/CUNY Center for Worker Education. Her work considers the relationship between class, culture, and politics in twentieth-century US literature. Her first book, Feminism, the Left, and Postwar Literary Culture (2012), examines the cultural work of women writers on the Left in the US in the years immediately following World War II. She has also published articles in various journals and edited volumes, including Black Scholar, Women’s Studies Quarterly, Against the Current, Invisible Suburbs: Recovering Protest Fiction in the 1950s United States, Encyclopedia of Activism and Social Justice, and Working USA: The Journal of Labor and Society.

KATIE MUTH has written on the influence of French theory in Kathy Acker’s experimental fiction, on Thomas Pynchon’s technical writing for the Boeing Company, on millennial fiction, and on the politics of contemporary world literature. She is editor, with Lorna Burns, of the collection World Literature and Dissent (forthcoming) and is researching a book about paid writing work and the postwar novel.

FIONA PATON is Associate Professor at the State University of New York at New Paltz, where she teaches a variety of courses in American literature, including a regular online summer class in the Beats. She has published essays on Jack Kerouac, William S. Burroughs, and Alexander Trocchi and has presented at numerous conferences in the US and Europe.

CATHY J. SCHLUND-VIALS is Professor of English and Asian/Asian American Studies at the University of Connecticut. She is also the director of the Asian and Asian American Studies Institute (UConn). She is the author of two monographs: Modeling Citizenship: Naturalization in Jewish and Asian American Writing (2011) and War, Genocide, and Justice: Cambodian American Memory Work (2012). She is a series editor (with Rick Bonus and Shelley Lee) for Temple University Press’s Asian American History and Culture initiative and is presently President of the Association for Asian American Studies. Professor Schlund-Vials has coedited

JASON STEVENS has taught at Harvard University and the University of Maryland, Baltimore County, and he has been a fellow of the National Humanities Center (Durham, NC) and the University of Pittsburgh, Humanities Center. His work focuses on twentieth-century American literature and US cultural and intellectual history, with emphases on modernism, secularization theory, and Christianity. He is the author of God-Fearing and Free: A Spiritual History of America’s Cold War (2010) and the editor of This Life, This World: New Essays on Marilynne Robinson’s Housekeeping, Gilead, and Home (2015). His writings have also appeared in boundary 2, American Literature, Literature/Film Quarterly, and The Immanent Frame. He is completing a book project on American film noir and preparing an additional book on Robert Penn Warren and the rhetoric of prophecy in Southern letters.

MICHAEL TRASK is the Guy Davenport Professor of English at the University of Kentucky, where he teaches twentieth- and twenty-first-century American literature. He is the author of Cruising Modernism (2003) and Camp Sites (2013).

KEITH WILHITE is Associate Professor of English at Siena College in Loudonville, New York. His research focuses on modern and contemporary American literature, with specific emphasis on urban and suburban studies. His essays have appeared in such journals as American Literature, Arizona Quarterly, ELH, MELUS, MFS, Studies in American Fiction, and Studies in the Novel. He is the editor of The City since 9/11: Literature, Film, Television (2016).