Contents

List of Figures .......................... viii
List of Tables .......................... ix
Acknowledgments ......................... x
List of Abbreviations and Acronyms ..... xiii

Introduction

1. Country-Office Performance as Organizational Learning .......................... 6
2. Peacebuilding: Multiple Actions and Actors ........................................... 8
3. Why Country-Office Performance Matters .............................................. 11
4. Limits of Existing Analyses ...................................................................... 13
5. Explaining Peacebuilding Performance: A Typology ................................. 17
   - Formal Accountability: Responsiveness to the Organization’s Principals .... 18
   - Informal Local Accountability: Giving Authority to Diverse Local Stakes ............................................ 20
   - Integrating Formal and Informal Local Accountability: Four Types ........ 22
6. Overview of Findings .............................................................................. 23
7. Relevance for Policy Action ..................................................................... 26
8. Data, Research Design, and Methodology ............................................ 27
   - Data ....................................................................................................... 28
   - Developing and Validating a Typological Theory .................................. 29
   - Research Design .................................................................................. 30
   - Organizational Case Selection ................................................................ 31
   - Country and Event Selection ................................................................ 32
   - Scope Conditions .................................................................................. 33
9. Organization of the Book ........................................................................ 34

1 Local Peacebuilding and Global Accountability

1. Organizational Learning as Peacebuilding Performance .......................... 36
2. The Importance of Organizational Learning for Peacebuilding ............... 38
3. Barriers to Organizational Learning ...................................................... 41
4. Why Organizational Learning Is Bounded ............................................. 43
5. Upward Accountability and Local Feedback in Global Governance ......... 44
6. Peacebuilding Performance: A Typology .............................................. 49
   - Informal Local Accountability ............................................................. 50
   - Formal Peacebuilding Accountability .................................................. 52
   - A Typology of Country-Level Performance ....................................... 53
7. Conclusion ............................................................................................... 57
Table of Contents

2 The Country Context: Burundi from 1999 to 2014
- Background
  - Phase I: The Unexpected Success of the Arusha Process: January 1999 to October 2001
  - Phase II: Peace with War: November 2001 to November 2003
  - Phase III: Peace, Transition, and War: December 2003 to August 2005
  - Phase IV: Hope, Party Politics, and the Consolidation of Power: September 2005 to April 2009
  - Phase V: Peace, Political Violence, and New Elections: May 2009 to April 2010
  - Phase VI: A One-Party State and a New Rebellion: May 2010 to December 2014
- Conclusion

3 INGOs in Peacebuilding: Globally Unaccountable, Locally Adaptive
- INGOs: Pawns or Agents?
- The Burundi Leadership Training Program (BLTP)
  - The BLTP’s Trajectory
  - Explaining the BLTP’s Behavior
- CARE Burundi
  - CARE Burundi’s Trajectory
  - Explaining CARE Burundi’s Behavior
- Conclusion

4 International Organizations in Peacebuilding: Globally Accountable, Locally Constrained
- IO Behavior: Rationalist and Constructivist Explanations
- UN Political and Peacekeeping Missions to Burundi
  - The Trajectory of UN Peace Operations in Burundi
  - Explaining UN Mission Behavior
- UNDP in Burundi
  - UNDP as a Stagnant Player with Pockets of Learning
  - UNDP Burundi, the Challenge of Conflict-Sensitive Development
- Conclusion: Understanding the Decentralized Behavior of International Organizations

5 Bilateral Development Donors: Accountable for Global Targets, Not Local Change
- Bilateral Donor Performance
- DFID Burundi
  - DFID as a Peacebuilding Learner
  - DFID as a Stagnant Player: Development and the Fragile State
- Conclusion
Table of Contents

Conclusion

- Implications for Peacebuilding Policy and Practice 232
- Recommendations for Improved Peacebuilding Performance 241
- Beyond Burundi and Peacebuilding 246
- Alternative Explanations 250
  - Country Environment Explanations 251
  - Organizational Population Explanations 251
  - Organizational Explanations 256
- Open Questions 259

Bibliography

- 264

Index

- 288