

THE CAMBRIDGE HISTORY OF

AMERICA AND THE WORLD

The fourth volume of The Cambridge History of America and the World examines the heights of American global power in the midtwentieth century and how challenges from at home and abroad altered the United States and its role in the world. The second half of the twentieth century marked the pinnacle of American global power in economic, political, and cultural terms, but even as it reached such heights, the United States quickly faced new challenges to its power, originating both domestically and internationally. Highlighting cutting-edge ideas from scholars from all over the world, this volume anatomizes American power as well as the counters and alternatives to "the American empire." Topics include US economic and military power, American culture overseas, human rights and humanitarianism, Third World internationalism, immigration, communications technology, and the Anthropocene.

DAVID C. ENGERMAN is the Leitner International Interdisciplinary Professor in the Department of History and Jackson Institute for Global Affairs at Yale University. A former president of the Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations, he is the author of The Price of Aid: The Economic Cold War in India.

MAX PAUL FRIEDMAN is Professor of History and International Relations at American University. Among his award-winning books are Nazis and Good Neighbors: The United States Campaign against the Germans of Latin America in World War II and Rethinking Anti-Americanism: The History of an Exceptional Concept in American Foreign Relations.

MELANI MCALISTER is Professor of American Studies and International Affairs at the George Washington University. She is the author of The Kingdom of God Has No Borders: A Global History of American Evangelicals and Epic Encounters: Culture, Media, and US Interests in the Middle East since 1945.

General Editor Mark Philip Bradley, University of Chicago

The Cambridge History of America and the World offers a transformative account of American engagement in the world from 1500 to the present. Representing new scholarship informed by the transnational turn in the writing of US history and American foreign relations, the four-volume reference work gives sustained attention to key moments in US diplomacy, from the Revolutionary War and the Monroe Doctrine to the US rise as a world power in World War I, World War II, and the Cold War. The volumes also cast a more inclusive scholarly net to include transnational histories of Native America, the Atlantic world, slavery, political economy, borderlands, empire, the family, gender and sexuality, race, technology, and the environment. Collectively, they offer essential starting points for readers coming to the field for the first time and serve as a critical vehicle for moving this scholarship in innovative new directions.

MARK PHILIP BRADLEY is the Bernadotte E. Schmitt Distinguished Service Professor of History at the University of Chicago. He is the author of The World Reimagined: Americans and Human Rights in the Twentieth Century; Vietnam at War; and Imagining Vietnam and America: The Making of Postcolonial Vietnam, 1919–1950; and co-editor of Making the Forever War; The Familiar Made Strange: American Icons and Artifacts after the Transnational Turn; Making Sense of the Vietnam Wars; and Truth Claims: Representations and Human Rights. Bradley serves as the Editor of the American Historical Review.
