NOTATION AND CONVENTIONS	xiii
CHAPTER 1. STRUCTURES	1
1.1. Presentations	1
1.2. Presentations that code sets	8
CHAPTER 2. RELATIONS	11
2.1. Relatively intrinsic notions	11
2.2. Complete relations	21
2.3. Examples of r.i.c.e. complete relations	25
2.4. Superstructures	29
CHAPTER 3. EXISTENTIALLY-ATOMIC MODELS	33
3.1. Definition	33
3.2. Existentially algebraic structures	35
3.3. Cantor's back-and-forth argument	37
3.4. Uniform computable categoricity	38
3.5. Existential atomicity in terms of types	40
3.6. Building structures and omitting types	42
3.7. Scott sentences of existentially atomic structures	45
3.8. Turing degree and enumeration degree	46
CHAPTER 4. GENERIC PRESENTATIONS	51
4.1. Cohen generic reals	52
4.2. Generic enumerations of sets	56
4.3. Generic enumerations of structures	58
4.4. Relations on generic presentations	59
CHAPTER 5. DEGREE SPECTRA	63
5.1. The c.e. embeddability condition	63
5.2. Co-spectra	65
5.3. Degree spectra that are not possible	67
5.4. Some particular degree spectra	72

CHAPTER 6. COMPARING STRUCTURES AND CLASSES OF STRUCTURES ..	75
6.1. Muchnik and Medvedev reducibilities	75
6.2. Turing-computable embeddings	81
6.3. Computable functors and effective interpretability	86
6.4. Reducible via effective bi-interpretability	94
CHAPTER 7. FINITE-INJURY CONSTRUCTIONS	97
7.1. Priority constructions	97
7.2. The method of true stages	100
7.3. Approximating the settling-time function	106
7.4. A construction of linear orderings	109
CHAPTER 8. COMPUTABLE CATEGORICITY	115
8.1. The basics	115
8.2. Relative computable categoricity	116
8.3. Categoricity on a cone	121
8.4. When relative and plain computable categoricity coincide	122
8.5. When relative and plain computable categoricity diverge ..	130
CHAPTER 9. THE JUMP OF A STRUCTURE	137
9.1. The jump-inversion theorems	138
9.2. The jump jumps—or does it?	143
CHAPTER 10. Σ -SMALL CLASSES	149
10.1. Infinitary Π_1 complete relations	150
10.2. A sufficient condition	154
10.3. The canonical structural jump	158
10.4. The low property	159
10.5. Listable classes	162
10.6. The copy-vs-diagonalize game	169
