

Exploring Linguistic Science

Language Use, Complexity, and Interaction

Exploring Linguistic Science introduces students to the basic principles of complexity theory and then applies these principles to the scientific study of language. It demonstrates how, at every level of linguistic study, we find evidence of language as a complex system. Designed for undergraduate courses in language and linguistics, this essential textbook brings cutting-edge concepts to bear on the traditional components of general introductions to the study of language, such as phonetics, morphology, and grammar. The authors maintain a narrative thread throughout the book of “interaction and emergence,” both of which are key terms from the study of complex systems, a new science currently useful in physics, genetics, evolutionary biology, and economics, but also a perfect fit for the humanities. The application of complexity to language highlights the fact that language is an ever-changing, ever-varied product of human behavior.

ALLISON BURKETTE is Associate Professor of Linguistics at The University of Mississippi. Her publications include a number of case studies that employ Linguistic Atlas Project data, including “The Story of Chester Drawers” (2001), “Stamped Indian: Localism and Lexical Variation in Terms for American ‘Cornbread’” (2011), and “Parlor Talk: Complexity from a Historical Perspective” (2013). She is the author of Language and Material Culture (2015).

WILLIAM A. KRETZSCHMAR, JR is the Harry and Jane Willson Professor in Humanities at the University of Georgia. He is the Editor of the American Linguistic Atlas Project, the oldest and largest national research project to survey how people speak differently across the Americas. His The Linguistics of Speech (2009) and Language and Complex Systems (2015) have pioneered the study of complex systems in language.

Exploring Linguistic Science

Language Use, Complexity, and Interaction

ALLISON BURKETTE

University of Mississippi

WILLIAM A. KRETZSCHMAR, JR

University of Georgia

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
 978-1-108-42480-6 — Exploring Linguistic Science
 Allison Burkette, William A. Kretzschmar Jr.
 Frontmatter
More Information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom
 One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA
 477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia
 314-321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi - 110025, India
 103 Penang Road, #05-06/07, Visioncrest Commercial, Singapore 238467

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org
 Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781108424806
 DOI: 10.1017/9781108344326

© Allison Burkette and William Kretzschmar

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2018

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication data

Names: Burkette, Allison Paige, author. | Kretzschmar, William A., Jr., author.
 Title: Exploring linguistic science : language use, complexity, and interaction /
 Allison Burkette, William Kretzschmar.

Description: New York: Cambridge University Press, [2017] |

Includes bibliographical references and index.

Identifiers: LCCN 2017049389 | ISBN 9781108424806 (hardcover) |

ISBN 9781108440950 (softcover)

Subjects: LCSH: Complexity (Linguistics) | Language and languages – Grammar – Study and teaching (Higher) | Language and languages – Usage – Study and teaching (Higher) | Linguistic analysis (Linguistics) | Applied linguistics. | BISAC: LANGUAGE ARTS & DISCIPLINES / General.

Classification: LCC P128.C664 B87 2017 | DDC 410–dc23

LC record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2017049389>

ISBN 978-1-108-42480-6 Hardback

ISBN 978-1-108-44095-0 Paperback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication, and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Contents

List of Figures	page vi
List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction and Notes on the Text	1
1 A New Science	3
2 Complex Systems in Nature and Human Behavior	13
3 Complex Systems in Language	25
4 Language Basics: Sounds	38
5 Sounds: IPA and Acoustic Phonetics	50
6 Sounds: Evidence from the Linguistic Atlas	65
7 Language Basics: Morphology	77
8 Morphology: Empirical Data	87
9 Parts of Speech	100
10 Language Basics: Grammar and Discourse	112
11 Grammar: Sentences and Construction Grammar	124
12 Cognitive Linguistics	133
13 Language Evolution	145
14 Language Acquisition	154
15 The Aesthetics of Text: Text Types and Collocation	167
16 Style	180
17 Sociolinguistics	189
18 Big Data: Using a Corpus	201
19 Historical Linguistics	211
20 Conclusion: The Future of Interaction and Emergence	222
Bibliography	228
Index	235

Figures

1.1	Newton’s cradle: Newton’s laws of motion at work	page 4
1.2	The Voucanson duck, an automaton designed to reproduce animal digestion	4
1.3	The two-slit experiment	6
2.1	Mandelbrot set as generated by fractal geometry	14
2.2	A fern leaf	15
2.3	Ants moving a breadcrumb	17
2.4	The traveling salesperson problem	18
2.5	Two generations of ants solve the traveling salesperson problem	19
2.6	Frequency profile as seen in relation to the immune system	20
3.1	Frequency profile for the doughnut target	28
3.2	BNC A-curve for collocates of brightly	31
3.3	COCA A-curve for collocates of brightly	31
3.4	A-curve for NSPT data from Appalachian speakers (West Virginia)	34
3.5	A-curve for NSPT data from Appalachian speakers (North Carolina)	35
4.1	Visualization of vowel space	42
4.2	Diacritics used for narrow transcription of vowel sounds	43
5.1	Longitudinal waves (a) and transverse waves (b)	51
5.2	Ampeeli terms for color chip #148 and resulting A-curve	52
5.3	Waveform for “above”	53
5.4	Spectrogram	54
5.5	Extracted vowel formats with arrows indicating F1, F2, and (in this case) F3	54
5.6	Vowel space of a male RP speaker, specifically Ian Fleming	56
5.7	F1/F2 plot of /u/ pronunciations from 18 university students (8 × 9 grid)	57
5.8	A-curve for F1 and F2 measurements for /u/ pronunciations	58

5.9	F1 and F2 plot of /u/ pronunciations from 18 university students (4 × 6 grid) and resulting A-curve	58
5.10	Vowel space of three Memphis siblings	59
5.11	One speaker’s vowel production	60
5.12	Tokens of the [æ] vowel from two speakers	61
5.13	The Cornsweet Illusion: Are the two sides the same shade of gray?	62
5.14	F1/F2 plots for speakers from eight English locations	63
6.1	A-curve for the LAMSAS pronunciations of the vowel in two	69
6.2	Chart of the LAMSAS pronunciations of the vowel in two , simplified phonetic transcriptions	71
6.3	The A-curve for pronunciations of six by LAMSAS speakers	71
6.4	The A-curve for pronunciations of six by LAMSAS Type I speakers	73
6.5	The A-curve for pronunciations of six by LAMSAS Type III speakers	74
8.1	The A-curve for plural forms of wasp (from LAMSAS)	89
8.2	N-gram chart of hoofs and hooves in print (1800–2012)	91
8.3	N-gram chart of “quieter” vs. “more quiet”	95
8.4	N-gram chart of “quietest” vs. “most quiet”	95
9.1	Distribution of noun suffixes in academic writing	104
9.2	Verbification is everywhere	105
9.3	A-curve for collocates of niche as an adjective	107
9.4	A-curve for collocates of rubbish as an adjective	108
10.1	Building a language	115
10.2	Sedimentation	120
11.1	Verb + locative construction, interviewers and learners, European Science Foundation ESL corpus	129
11.2	Verb + object + locative construction, interviewers and learners, European Science Foundation ESL corpus	130
12.1	Types of birds, on an A-curve	138
12.2	Characteristics of birds and their A-curve	140
12.3	Langacker’s four construals	142
13.1	An example of recursion in syntactic structure	146
13.2	What are some possibilities as to what this little boy’s pointing might mean?	148
14.1	Spoiler alert: This is not how we learn language	155
14.2	Physical symbol systems: the brain and the computer	158
17.1	A hint of an A-curve	192

viii	List of Figures
17.2	A visualization of the movement of quotatives in terms of frequency over time	195
18.1	Corpora online at corpus.byu.edu	202
18.2	Search tool for the BYU corpora	203
18.3	Search for “ rough NOUN” in the COCA	205
18.4	AntConc opening screen	208
19.1	The Indo-European language family	212
19.2	Daisy model of Indo-European branches	216

Tables

3.1	LAMSAS responses for the doughnut target	page 27
3.2	Thirty most frequent collocates for the word brightly	30
3.3	NSPT verbs in Wolfram and Christian (1976)	33
3.4	North Carolina NSPT data	34
4.1	IPA consonant chart	41
4.2	IPA vowel chart	42
4.3	Wells’ lexical set (keyword chart)	44
5.1	Newton’s color spectrum divisions	51
5.2	Ampeeli terms for color chip #148 and resulting A-curve	52
5.3	Variation in vowel frequencies between British and American English	55
5.4	Comparison of average F1 and F2 values from eight locations in England.	56
6.1	American English vowels from the Linguistic Atlas of Middle and South Atlantic states	66
6.2	Realizations (1309 total) of the vowel in two from LAMSAS	67
6.3	Realizations (1309 total) of the vowel in two from LAMSAS, simplified phonetic transcriptions	70
6.4	Realizations (1146 total) of the vowel in six from LAMSAS	72
6.5	Realizations (564 total) of the vowel in six from LAMSAS Type I speakers	72
6.6	Realizations (140 total) of the vowel in six from LAMSAS Type III speakers	73
8.1	Plural “wasp” responses from the Linguistic Atlas	88
9.1	The top 36 collocates of niche as used as an adjective	106
9.2	The top 16 collocates of rubbish as used as an adjective	108
12.1	Types of birds given in 30 seconds	137
12.2	Characteristics of birds given in 30 seconds	139
14.1	Construction frequencies from mothers and their 2-year-old children	161
15.1	Text types in the Brown Corpus and its replications (500 total texts)	172

x	List of Tables
17.1	Realizations of [θ] from Schleeﬀ and Ramsammy (2013)	191
17.2	Percentages of Toronto quotatives over time: 1950–1990	194
19.1	Words from Indo-European language branches	214
19.2	Words from Alsatian (spoken on the border of France and Germany)	215

Acknowledgments

Undertaking the writing of this text has been both an enlightening and humbling experience. At every step along the way, I have thought of the dozens of Introduction to Linguistics courses I have taught over the years, carefully considering what worked, what didn't, and what I could have done better. My students are a continual inspiration and I have always appreciated their patience with my tangents, meanderings, and kidding around. To my linguistics majors: You have all been precious to me and I look forward to seeing what you do in your own explorations of language.

In terms of thanks, much gratitude goes to my colleague and mentor, my co-author Bill Kretzschmar, who I hope is as pleased with the result as I am. It's been an honor to work with him on this project. I very much need to thank a slew of people who have supported me throughout this endeavor, including my parents, Wayne and Nancy Burkette, my sister Amanda Grimstead and her family, as well as a host of friends and loved ones: Michael Adams, Lamont Antieau, Betsy Barry, Allen Clark, John Harris, Cary Sallis, Sheila Skemp, Susan Tamasi, Jacque Hettel Tidwell, Tamara Warhol, and Thomas Whitley. And as always, I would like to thank my children, Anne Paige, Kate, and Noah, for their (most of the time) patience and (all of the time) love and encouragement.

AB

The idea for this textbook was suggested to me by Andrew Winnard, and it has turned out to be a fine idea indeed. I have also enjoyed working with my co-author, Allison Burkette – including all the inevitable back and forth of a collaboration – whom I invited to work on the project because she is a truly fine teacher. Complexity science is hard enough without somebody like Allison to help explain it! They both have my gratitude. I am also thankful to the people who read the manuscript for Cambridge University Press, and made so many excellent suggestions. Of course Allison and I accept the blame for any remaining faults, but we share the credit with the readers.

For the past ten years I have given a great number of presentations before audiences in many places about complex systems and different aspects of language and linguistics. Those audiences were always receptive, most often enthusiastic, and always full of questions. They have wanted to know how the (relatively) new idea of complex systems could help them in their own work. I hope that this book will help some of those people, and many others, understand more fully how complex systems affects their lives and work. And I would like to say thank you for all those questions that motivated me to offer an answer in this book.

WAK