

Contents

Translator's Note	page vii
Introduction	ix
Speaking Truth to Power: The End of Kumazawa Banzan	ix
Banzan's Life, Thought, and Action	xvi
The Genre: Political Economy (keizaigaku)	xlx
Parallels in Confucian Existentialism: Banzan and Wang Yangming	liv
Banzan and the Great Learning	lviii
Responding to the Great Learning : A Synopsis	lxxxiii
Translation of Responding to the Great Learning
PART I	I
1 The Heaven-Decreed Duty of the People's Ruler	3
2 The Heaven-Decreed Duty of the People's Ministers	8
3 Revering Good Counsel	13
4 A Grand Project for Growing Wealth	15
5 Eliminating Anxieties over Flooding and Relieving Droughts	22
6 Preparing for Northern Barbarians, Emergencies, and Bad Harvests	31
7 Filling Shogunal Coffers with Gold, Silver, Rice, and Grain	36
8 Eliminating Debt from the Realm below Heaven	41

Contents

9	Helping Rōnin, Vagrants, the Unemployed, and the Impoverished	43
10	Making Mountains Luxuriant and Rivers Run Deep	45
PART II		53
11	The Ebb and Flow of the Ruler's Blessings	55
12	Returning to the Old Farmer-Samurai Society	57
13	Eliminating Landless Income and Increasing New Fiefs	63
14	Lowering the Cost of Foreign Silk and Textiles	65
15	Eliminating Christianity	68
16	Reviving Buddhism	70
17	Reviving Shintō	74
18	Worthy Rulers Reviving Japan	78
19	Governing with Education	83
20	Those Who Should Teach in Our Schools	92
21	A Little Kindness Provides Benefits	96
22	Wasted Rice and Grain	98
	Bibliography	101
	Index	105