

Contents

List of Illustrations	page viii
List of Tables and Maps	x
Acknowledgements	xi
A Note on Text	xiii
List of Abbreviations	xiv
Introduction
I Imperial Court and Knowledge Production	20
1.1 Macedonian Emperors and the Systematisation of Knowledge	23
1.2 Constantine VII	30
1.3 Basil Lecapenus and the Competing Clans	36
1.4 The Byzantine Court's Foreign Policy	46
2 Appropriation of the Past: Theory and Practice of Excerpting Historiography	54
2.1 Appropriation in Theory	54
2.2 The Proem and the Dedicatory Poem	60
2.3 Analysis of the Proem and the Poem	64
2.4 The Choice of Number Fifty-Three	71
2.5 Appropriation in Practice	77
3 Constructing a Research Engine of the Past	88
3.1 Collecting Historical Manuscripts	91
3.2 Time and Money Behind Textual Production	95
3.3 Teamwork from Loose Fascicules: Draft Copies	102
3.4 Assembling the Drafts: Deluxe Copies by Single Scribes	109
3.5 The Excerptor: A Case Study	115
4 Information Management in Constantine VII's Treatises	121
4.1 De Thematibus	124
4.2 De Administrando Imperio	130
4.3 De Ceremoniis	137

vi	Contents
5	Renewal of Historiography under Constantine VII	145
5.1	The Shift from Chronicle to Biography	147
5.2	Theophanes Continuatus	151
5.3	Genesisius and Leo the Deacon	156
5.4	The Use of the Excerpta in the Life of Basil	161
6	Distortion and Expansion of the Past in the Excerpta	165
6.1	Preoccupations in the Selection	165
6.2	Favoured Periods	171
6.3	Preferred Historical Genres	178
7	Classification of the Past in the Excerpta	185
7.1	Imperial Biographies	187
7.2	Military Topics	189
7.3	Diplomatic Relations and Conflict Management	193
7.4	Moral and Leisure Reading	196
7.5	Historical Epigrams	199
7.6	Historical Letters and Speeches	204
7.7	Gnomic Statements	209
8	The Reading of the Excerpta	212
8.1	A Generalisation Tool	214
8.2	A Multivolume Book of History: Auxiliary Texts	219
8.2.1	Contents, Imperial Topic Titles and Position Numbers	220
8.2.2	Reference to Historians	224
8.2.3	References to Imperial Topics	226
8.2.4	Indices	228
8.3	Information Retrieval in the Excerpta	231
9	The Suda : The Lexicographer and the Excerptor	238
9.1	The Creation of Suda and the Excerpta	239
9.2	Lexical Headwords from the Excerpta	245
9.3	Biographical Headwords from the Excerpta	248
	Conclusions	256
	Appendices	266
	A Edition of the Proem and the Poem	266
	A.1 The Proem to ELr	267
	A.2 The Poem Praising Constantine for the Excerpta	268
	B The Imperial Manuscripts of the Excerpta	270
	B.1 Excerpta de Virtutibus et Vitiis	270
	B.2 Excerpta de Sententiis	271
	B.3 Excerpta de Insidiis	272
	B.4 Excerpta de Legationibus	273

	Contents	vii
Bibliography		278
Edited Sources		278
Secondary Literature		287
Manuscripts Index		322
Names Index		324
Subject Index		336