

Index

- Aalbers, Piet, 76, 97
- Abarokore evangelical community,
  - Rwandan genocide rescues and, 229–230
- Action National* newspaper, 191
- Albania, rescue operations in, 224–226
- Almelo, Netherlands, 2–5
  - clandestine mobilization in, 17–18
  - rescue operations in, 85–87, 171
  - segregation and mistrust among religious institutions in, 127
- altruism
  - empathy-altruism nexus, 30
  - microlevel analysis of, 26–27
  - role of bystanders in, 4–5
- “ambivalence of the sacred”, 1
- Anabaptism, in Low Countries, 43
- anti-Semitism
  - of Balkian Orthodox and Catholic communities, 224–226
  - of Belgian Catholics, 190–194
  - Belgian prewar protest of, 189–194
  - of Catholic elites, 76–79
  - in Eastern Europe, 226–228
  - history in Dutch society of, 63–65
  - Low Country religious protests against, 42–43
  - newspaper data on, 69–70
  - of Protestant elites, 79–81
  - in south Netherlands provinces, 78–79
  - threat-based framing of, 67–69
- Arbeiders Jeugd Centrale (Labor Youth Center), 181–182
- Archives of Military History (Belgrade), 224–226
- Aristotle, 6, 30–31
- Armenian genocide
  - Islamic nationalists and, 1
  - minority hypothesis and, 217
  - Muslim role in, 230–231
- Ashkenazic Jews, 51–53
- assimilation frame, 66–67
- Association for Christian Education, 121–122
- Association for Jews in Belgium (AJB), 55, 201–204
- assurance mechanisms
  - clandestine mobilization and, 38
  - minority advantage and, 120–122
- Austria, Jewish rescue operations in, 223
- authoritarianism, clandestine mobilization and, 33–34
- auto-logistic modeling
  - evasion rate analysis and, 186–187
  - geocoding of rescue operations and, 85–87
  - Jewish evasion rates in Belgium and, 212–213
- Babut, Suzanne, 220
- Balkan Wars, Orthodox Church and, 1
- Belarus, rescue operations in, 227–228

- Belgian Institute of War Documentation (SOMA), 196–201
- Belgium
- autonomy of persecuting agencies in, 55
  - Catholic rescue operations in, 188–189, 195–196, 204–208, 213–215
  - Christian rescue operations in, 188–215
  - church leaders' protests in, 56–58
  - Counter-Reformation in, 46
  - evasion rates for Jews in rescue operations of, 195–196, 201–204, 208–215, 241–242
  - Flemish rescue operations in, 213–215
  - French and Flemish geographic distribution in, 232–235
  - gentile mobilization against Holocaust in, 56–58
  - geographic proximity and Protestant rescue operations in, 201–204
  - Holocaust rescue operations in, 8–10, 19, 53–58
  - Jewish population in, 52–53, 55
  - nationalism in, 190–194
  - prewar empathy of Christians in, 189–194
  - Protestant rescue networks in, 188–189, 194–196, 211–215
  - quantitative analysis of rescue operations in, 196–201, 208–215
  - Reformation in, 204–207
  - religious pluralism in, 46, 48
  - Rosenbaum bounds analysis of rescue operations in, 197–201
  - secularization in, 204–207
  - secular minority mobilization in, 232–235
- Berkhoff, Karel, 172–173
- Besa* (Albanian ethical code), 224–226
- Blasnik, Michael, 89–91
- Boehner, Marc, 219
- Bogaard, Hannes, 153–154
- Boissevain, Wilhelm Theodor, 79–81
- Borne, Netherlands, 2–5
- clandestine mobilization in, 17–18
  - rescue operations in, 85–87
  - segregation and mistrust among religious institutions in, 127
- Bosnian Genocide, 224
- Buiter, Jan, 129–130, 132–134
- Bulgaria, rescue operations in, 225
- Calvinism, in Low Countries, 43
- capacity mechanism
- basic principles of, 32–39
  - clandestine collective action dilemma and, 34–36
  - clandestine mobilization and, 24
  - environmental factors in, 12
  - local religious minorities' role in, 6, 17
  - minority advantage and, 36–38
  - multilevel minority hypothesis for, 235–242
  - pillarization and, 48–49
- Protestant Belgian rescue operations and, 197–201
- rescue operations and, 136–138
  - resource mobilization and insurgency and, 32–34
  - secular minorities and, 232–235
- Catholic Charitas, 223
- Catholic communities
- anti-Semitism in south Netherlands parishes, 78–79
  - Belgian nationalism and, 190–194
  - Belgian rescue operations and, 188–189, 195–196, 204–208, 213–215
  - in Belgium, 46, 190, 48–194
  - bishops' anti-Nazi protests, 56–58
  - distrust of Protestants in, 126–130
  - Dutch anti-Semitism and, 63
  - in Eastern Europe, 224–226
  - elites' anti-Semitism in, 76–79
  - empathy formation and minority status of, 64–65
  - evasion rates and proximity to, 94–99, 176–179, 202–204
  - evasion rates for majority vs. minority neighborhoods and, 94–103
  - German rescue operations and, 221–223
  - in Groningen, 151–155
  - Holocaust rescue operations and, 2–4, 28–29
  - interregional ties of, 132–134
  - in Low Countries, 8–10, 42–43
  - majority rescue operations and, 141–145, 170–176
  - majority status and anti-Semitism in, 64–65, 74–75
  - minority rescue operations and, 149–152, 154–159
  - in Netherlands, 46
  - newspapers of, 70–71

- quantitative analysis of Belgian operations of, 196–201
- regional differences in rescue operations by, 8
- religious proximity measurements and, 91–93
- resistance operations and role of, 159–162
- in Romania, 224
- Rosenbaum bounds analysis of Belgian rescue operations in, 197–201
- Rwandan genocide rescues and, 229–230
- in Twente, 112–116, 136–138, 170–176
- Catholic Office for Israel (Belgium), 190
- causes of effects, rescue operations and, 15–16
- Centre for Religious Art and Culture (Religieuze Kunst en Cultuur 2014), 211
- Charles V (King), 43–44
- Christians
  - Belgian rescue operations by, 188–215
  - Holocaust in Low Countries and mobilization of, 55–56
  - prewar empathy in Belgium of, 189–194
  - pro-Semitic attitudes in, 67–69
  - rescue of, 159–162
  - Rwandan genocide and, 1
- Christian Social Party (Austria), 223
- church-community relationships
  - geographic proximity and, 91–93, 176–179
  - intelligence operations in minority networks and, 125–126
  - rescue operations and importance of, 153–154, 172–173
  - resistance to mass persecutions and, 16
  - selective retention of resistance members and, 122–124
- Cimade (French Protestant youth movement), 219
- civil society
  - mobilization against Holocaust and, 55–56
  - pillarization and growth of, 48–49
  - pluralism and, 11–15
  - political violence and role of, 11–15
- Civiltà Cattolica* magazine, 63
- clandestine collective action dilemma, 25–26
- capacity mechanism and, 34–36
- individual and small-scale rescue operations and, 109
- clandestine mobilization
  - by Belgian Catholics, 204–208
  - church leaders' role in, 56–58
  - gentile protection and, 134–136
  - intelligence operations in minority networks, 125–126
  - interregional ties and, 132–134
  - isolated hubs of commitment and, 38–39
  - Jewish entrance in minority networks and, 130–132
  - local minority hypothesis and, 17
  - majority groups and, 18–19, 169–170
  - minority advantage in, 120–122
  - multilevel minority hypothesis for, 235–242
  - personal relationships and, 36–38, 172–173
  - of Protestant Belgians, 194–196
  - quantitative analysis of, 159–162
  - religious mixing as threat to, 129–130
  - of resources, 32–34
  - root causes of, 12–14
  - secular minorities and, 232–235
  - segregation and mixing of religious institutions in, 126–130, 151–155
  - segregation of resistance and rescue operations and, 144–145, 151–155
  - in Twente, data analysis of, 116–117
  - willingness vs. capacity in, 24
- Coelingh, M., 97–99
- collaborators
  - postwar trial documents of, 111
  - in Twente region, 117
- collective action
  - clandestine collective action dilemma, 34–36
  - Jewish entry into rescue networks and, 130–132
  - personal and organizational ties and, 32–34
  - rescue operations and, 108–112
- commemoration books, 89–91
- resistance operation analysis and, 159–162
- communist groups
  - Belgian Catholic criticism of, 192–193
  - resistance and rescue operations and, 179–182

- community-level demographics, resistance to genocide and, 29–30
- conversion of Jews
  - Belgian efforts involving, 190, 205–207
  - history in Catholicism of, 44
  - rescue operations linked to, 19–20, 84, 191–192, 204–207
- Counter-Reformation, 100, 112–116
  - in Belgium, 46
- country fixed effects (FEs)
  - Belgian rescue operations and, 196–201
  - evasion rates for minority neighborhoods and, 94–99
  - Jewish evasion rates in Belgium and, 212–213
  - local minority hypothesis and, 17
  - pillarization and, 50
- criminal networks
  - clandestine collective action dilemma and, 35
  - clandestine mobilization and, 13–14
  - personal relationships in, 36–38
- Croatia, Jewish rescue operations in, 223–226
- Croes, Marnix, 87–89
- Darbyists, silence of, 220
- Deckers, Laurentius, 76–77
- De Goede, Piet, 145–147
- De Haas, Horreeus, 124–126
- Delft, Netherlands, Catholic minority enclaves in, 99–103
- democratic norms, rescue operations and role of, 27–28
- Denmark, rescue operations in, 224–226
- denomination-centered research, rescue operations and, 28–29
- De Schelde* newspaper, 191
- Destree, Jules, 192–193
- De Tijd* newspaper, 70–71, 76–77
- De Vonk* newspaper, 181–182
- De Waarheid* newspaper, 180–182
- De Wolff, Jan, 24
- Diem, Hermann, 222–223
- difference frame, 66–67
- Dingelheim, Willem, 108
- distinctiveness postulate, minority advantage in recruitment and, 36–38
- Dogolewski, Alexander, 227
- Dreyfus, Alfred, 63, 189
- Dutch Bible Belt, 46
- Dutch Digital Monument, 88–89
- Dutch Institute of War Documents, 82–83
- Dutch Inventory for Church Buildings, 91–93
- Dutch National Socialist Party, 78–81
- Dutch Reformed Church, 46
  - anti-Nazi protests by, 56–58
  - anti-Semitism of elites in, 79–81
  - Borne rescue operations and role of, 85–87
  - Holocaust rescue operations and, 23–25
  - rescue operations by, 154–159
- Eastern Europe, rescue operations in, 226–228
- economic integration, in Twente, 115–116
- economic nationalism, anti-Semitism and, 190–194
- economic threat frame
  - anti-Semitism and, 67–69
  - Belgian Catholic rescue operations and, 208–215
- effects of causes, rescue operations and, 15–16
- Elizabeth Foundation, 223
- Emile* (Rousseau), 30–31
- empathy mechanism
  - in Armenian community, 228
  - civic structures and, 12
  - clandestine mobilization and, 25–26
  - Dutch anti-Semitism and, 64–65
  - empathy-altruism nexus, 30
  - German rescue operations and, 221–223
  - multilevel minority hypothesis for, 235–242
  - of prewar Belgian Christians, 189–194
  - prewar evolution of, for Jews, 17
  - protection of gentiles and, 134–136
  - resistance operations and, 159–162
  - role in rescue operations of, 6
  - secular minorities and, 232–235
  - theories linked to, 30–32
- Entman, Robert, 65–66
- ethnic minorities, mobilization for rescue and resistance of, 232–235
- Europe, see also specific countries
  - rescue operations in Nazi-occupied countries of, 217–229
- evasion rates for Jews, see also rescue operations

- auto-logistic regression of factors in, 186–187
- Belgian rescue operations and, 195–196, 201–204, 208–215, 241–242
- in Flanders, 213–215
- geographic proximity to minority neighborhoods and, 100–107, 176–179
- instrumental variables in, 99–103
- for majority vs. minority neighborhoods, 94–99, 169–170
- proximity of Belgian Catholic rescue operations and, 208–215
- proximity of Belgian Protestant rescue operations and, 195–196, 201–204
- proximity to Orthodox Church and, 97–99
- regression analysis in Belgium of, 212–213
- repressive capacity and, 95–97
- social integration and, 95–97
- Exbrayat, Idebert (Rev.), 220
- exclusionary pressures, minority advantage in recruitment and, 36–38
- Faber, Jan, 147–149
- Falkenstein, Kurt, 172–173
- Fein, Helen, 27–28
- Ferdinand II (Emperor), 221
- Fighting Squad (KP), resistance operation analysis and role of, 159–162
- financial resources, minority networks knowledge of, 126
- Finkel, Evgeny, 33–34
- Flemish National Association (VNV), 191
- Flemish nationalism in Belgium, 190–194
- Flim, Bert-Jan, 97–99, 183
- Foundation 40/45, 116–117, 140–141
- frames
  - definition of, 65–66
- France, rescue operations in, 218–220
- Francophone Belgian nationalism, 191
- French Revolution, Jewish migration and, 52
- Friesland, Netherlands, Catholic minority rescue operations in, 96, 139, 149–152
- Gazet van Antwerpen* newspaper, 192–193
- geographic proximity
  - Belgian Catholic rescue operations and, 208–215
  - Belgian Protestant rescue operations and, 201–204
  - evasion rates for minority neighborhoods and, 94–103, 176–179
  - of minority churches, rescue networks and, 91–93
  - ordinary least squares (OLS) models of, 100–103
  - quantitative analysis of operations and, 182–187
  - rescue operation success and, 118–119, 170–176
- German registration lists, 87–89, 201–204
- Germany
  - Jewish rescue operations in, 221–223
  - religious minorities and deportations in, 239–240
- Grief, Avner, 133–134
- Groningen, Netherlands, rescue operations in, 151–155
- group relationships
  - capacity mechanism and, 36–38
  - clandestine mobilization and, 18
  - microlevel analysis of, 26–27
  - rescue operations and importance of, 153–154, 172–173
- Het Limburgs Dagblad* newspaper, 70–71, 77–78
- het Nieuw Israelitisch Weekblad*, 76
- Het Vlaamsch Heelal* magazine, 191–192
- Hijmans, A., 173
- Hilberg, Raul, 224–226
- Hilbrink, Coen, 116–117
- Hirschfeld, Gerhard, 89–91
- Hocart, James, 189
- Hoften, Henk, 181–182
- Holl, Arend, 130
- Holocaust
  - archives and postwar testimonies about, 7–8
  - Catholic rescue of victims of, 2–4
  - European rescue operations during, 217–229
  - intergroup dynamics in rescue operations during, 11–15
  - in Low Countries, 8–10, 53–58
  - nation-center research on, 27–28
  - in Poland and Soviet Union, 226–228

- Homer, 6
 Houwink ten Cate, Johannes, 15
 Huguenots, silence of, 220 humanitarian assistance local religious communities and, 14–15
   religious institutions and, 1
 Hungary, rescue operations in, 225
- identity, minority advantage in recruitment and, 36–38
 identity-related frames defined, 65–66
   minority hypothesis and, 66–67
 immigrants, local minority hypothesis and empathy for, 31
 individual responses in rescue operations,
   108–112
 Indonesian tsunami crisis, humanitarian assistance from local religious groups
   by, 14–15
 Institute of Human Geography, 50 insurgency scholarship, capacity mechanism and, 32–34
 intelligence operations, in minority networks, 125–126
 intergroup dynamics
   Holocaust rescue operations and, 11–15
   individual rescue efforts and, 108–112
 interregional ties
   clandestine collective action and,
     121–122
   clandestine mobilization and, 132–134
   minority group rescue operations and,
     141–145, 147–149
   quantitative analysis of operations and,
     182–187
   rescue operations and importance of,
     170–176
 Inventory for Heritage, 211
 Islamic nationalists, Armenian genocide and, 1
 isolated hubs of commitment
   clandestine mobilization and, 25–26, 35, 38–39
   minority advantage and, 36–39,
     120–122
   pillarization and, 48–49
   religious leaders' collaboration and,
     58–60
   rescue operation success and, 118,
     162–165, 170–176
- Italy, rescue operations in, 226
- Janssen, Gerard, 96, 139, 149–152
 Jewish Coordination Commission (JCC),
   183
 Jewish Council (Netherlands), 54–55
 Jewish History Museum, 88–89
 Jewish population, see also rescue operations
   Catholic minority and majority framing of, in Netherlands, 74–75
   demographic differences in Low
     Countries of, 54–55
   German definitions of, 87
   in Low Countries, 8–10, 42–43, 51–53
   network connections for, 130–132
   pillarization and, 49
   prewar empathy for, 17
   registration lists of, 87–89
   in Twente, 113–116
   underground movements and repression of, 33–34
 Jewish survivors survey, minority rescue operations data and, 156–159
- Kurdish minority, Armenian genocide and,
   230–232
 Kuyper, Abraham, 80–81
- La Libre Belgique* newspaper, 193 land-use data, quantitative analysis of geographical proximity and, 182–187
 Latvia, rescue operations in, 227–228 left-wing groups, clandestine mobilization
   by, 18–19
 Lenin, Vladimir, 13
 Lever (Orthodox Protestant resistance group), 150–151
 Lichtenberg, Bernard, 223
 Lijphart, Arend, 43, 48–49
 Lithuania, rescue operations in, 227–228 local governments, German registration lists and, 87–89
 long-distance capitalism interregional ties and, 133–134
   religious minorities and, 136–138
 Low Countries
   gentile mobilization against Holocaust in, 55–56
   Holocaust in, 8–10, 53–58
   Jewish population in, 8–10, 42–43,
     51–53

- newspapers' importance in, 69–70
- political geography of, 43
- religious minorities in, 16, 42–53
- Luther, Martin, 221
- Lutheran communities
  - in Eastern Europe, 228
  - in Low Countries, 43
  - rescue operations and, 28–29, 223
- Lutkie, Wouter, 78–79
- majority groups
  - Catholic elites' anti-Semitism in, 77–78
  - Catholic majority framing of Jews in Netherlands, 74–75
  - clandestine mobilization by, 18–19, 169–170
  - limited success of rescue operations and, 118–119
  - rescue operations by, 170–176
- Meijer, Arnold, 78–79
- membership screening, minority advantage
  - in recruitment and, 36–38
- Mennonite community, Borne rescue
  - operations and role of, 85–87
- Mensink, Gonny, 128
- Mesdag, Willem, 150
- migration patterns
  - evasion rates and, 99–103
  - interregional cooperation and, 182–187
- minority hypothesis
  - Almelo/Borne rescue operations and, 85–87
  - Armenian genocide and, 217
  - Austrian rescue operations and, 223
  - Belgian prewar empathy and, 189–194
  - Belgian rescue operations and, 19, 188–189, 195–196, 204–208, 211–215
  - capacity mechanism and, 36–38
  - Catholic minority framing of Jews in Netherlands, 74–75
  - church leaders' role in clandestine mobilization and, 58–60
  - clandestine mobilization and, 13–14, 159–165
  - cross-national comparisons using, 19–20
  - Dutch anti-Semitism and, 64–65
  - empathy mechanism and, 31–32, 64–65
  - European rescue operations during Holocaust, 217–229
  - evasion rates for minority neighborhoods and, 94–99, 103–107
  - French rescue operations and, 218–220
  - genocide by minority communities, 232
  - geographic proximity and, 103–107, 176–179
  - German registration lists and, 87–89
  - German rescue operations and, 221–223
  - Holocaust in Low Countries and, 53–58
  - Holocaust rescue operations and, 6, 39, 118–119, 136–138
  - homogeneous religious case studies in, 140–141
  - humanitarian assistance and role of, 14–15
  - interregional ties and, 132–134
  - “intuitive” approach in, 121–122
  - measurement of minority churches, 91–93
  - microlevel analysis and, 26–27
  - multilevel theory of, 235–242
  - Nazi collaboration and, 58
  - organizers' selectivity and, 124–126
  - Orthodox humanitarian assistance to Jews and, 80–81
  - pillarization and, 48–49
  - pluralism and, 16
  - prewar empathy for Jews and, 17
  - pro-Semitism and, 71–74, 84
  - protectiveness of isolation and, 144–145
  - Protestant support for Jews and, 80–81
  - quantitative analysis of rescue operations and, 154–159
  - religious minority rescue operations and, 16, 111–112
  - rescue operations' success and, 144–145
  - resistance newspapers and, 82–83
  - Rwandan genocide rescues and, 216–217, 229–230
  - secular minorities, 232–235
  - segregation and mistrust among religious minorities and, 151–155
  - selective group retention and, 38–39, 122–124
  - mixing of religious groups, clandestine mobilization and risk of, 129, 126–130, 130, 153–154
  - Monroe, Kristen, 26–27
  - movement entrepreneurs, capacity
    - mechanism and, 32–34
  - multilevel minority hypothesis, 235–242

- Muslims
   Armenian genocide by, 230–231
   genocide of, 224
   Holocaust rescue operations and role of, 220–221, 224–228 persecution in post-9/11 U.S. of, 232
   Rwandan genocide rescues by, 229–230
- Mussert, Anton, 124–126
- nationalism
   Armenian genocide and, 230–231
   in Belgium, 190–194
   of Dutch Catholics, 78–79 of Dutch Protestants, 7–8
   history of, 1
   in Romania, 224
- National Socialist Movement in the Netherlands (NSB), 102
- nation-centered research, rescue operations in, 27–28
- Nederlands Verbond van Vakverenigingen (Dutch Union of Labor Associations), 181–182
- Netherlands
   autonomy of persecuting agencies in, 55
   Catholic majority and minority framing of Jews in, 74–75
   church leaders' protests in, 56–58
   clandestine mobilization in, 18
   effect relative size of religious communities and, 58–60
   gentile mobilization against Holocaust in, 55–56
   history of anti-Semitism in, 63–65
   Holocaust rescue operations in, 8–10, 53–58
   Jewish population in, 52–55
   religious pluralism in, 44
   secular minority mobilization in, 232–235
- network recruitment
   capacity mechanism and, 32–34
   clandestine collective action dilemma, 34–36
   clandestine mobilization and, 13
   geographic proximity and, 91–93, 176–179
   minority advantage in, 36–38
   quantitative analysis of, 154–159
   rescue operation success and, 162–165
   by secular groups, 180–182
   segregation and mixing of religious institutions and, 126–130, 151–155 selective retention and, 38–39
- newspapers
   Catholic newspapers, 70–71
   data and coding in analysis of, 69–70 empathy displayed by, 64–65 pro-Jewish claims in, 71–74
   resistance newspapers, 81–83
- Noord-Brabant, Netherlands minority rescue operations in, 145–149 resistance operations in, 159–162
- Opp, Karl-Dieter, 26–27
- ordinary least squares (OLS) models
   Jewish proximity to Catholic rescuers and, 100–103
   pillarization and, 50
- organizational ties
   centrality of organizers and, 38
   clandestine mobilization and, 13
   organizers' assurance, clandestine mobilization and, 38–39
- Orthodox Church
   Armenian genocide and, 230–231
   nationalism supported by, 1
   rescue operations in Eastern Europe and, 224–226
   in Romania, 224
   in Twente, 112–116
   in Ukraine, 226–228
- Orthodox Protestants, see also Protestant communities conflicts with Dutch Reformed Church, 46, 48 distrust of other religious institutions by, 126–130, 153–154
   evasion rates and proximity to, 97–99, 101–103, 176–179
   fascist links to, 28–29
   humanitarian assistance to Jews from, 80–81
   interregional ties of, 133
   minority assurance in groups of, 121–122
   in Netherlands, 23–25
   organizers' selectivity in rescue operations of, 124–126
   Protestant support for Jews and, 80–81
   protests of anti-Semitism among, 56–58

- religious proximity measurements of, 91–93
- rescue operations by, 123–124, 150–151, 153–154, 156–159
- resistance operations and, 159–162
- Overduin, Leendert (Rev.), 23–25, 97–99, 128, 130–134
- Peace of Augsburg, 221
- personal relationships
  - capacity mechanism and, 36–38
  - clandestine mobilization and, 13
  - geographic proximity and, 91–93
  - microlevel analysis of, 26–27
  - rescue operations and importance of, 153–154, 172–173
- Philip (King), 43–44
- philo-Semitism, framing of, 67–69
- pillarization, minority group collectivism and, 43, 48–49, 162–165
- pluralism
  - Armenian genocide rescue operations and, 230–231
  - Belgian rescue operations and, 188–189
  - civil society and, 11–15
  - local minority hypothesis and, 16
  - religious leaders' collaboration and, 58–60
- pluralism frame, 66–67
- Poetics* (Aristotle), 30–31
- Poland
  - collective assistance to Catholics in, 228
  - Jewish rescue operations in, 226–228
- police forces
  - autnomy in Low Countries of, 55
  - Nazi collaboration by, 111, 117, 169–170, 178–179, 183–186
- political threat frame, anti-Semitism and, 67–69
- political violence
  - civil society, 11–15
  - community-level variations in, 29–30
  - national founding narratives and reduction of, 27–28
  - religious institutions and, 1
  - role of bystanders in, 4–5
- Pontier, Gerald, 91–93, 97, 139–143
- Posthumus, Nicolaas, 82
- postwar testimonies
  - minority hypothesis and, 87
  - on rescue operations, 7–8, 156–159
  - of resistance fighters, 116–117
  - Rwandan genocide and, 229–230
  - in Twente region, 111
- pro-Semitic attitudes
  - in Catholic newspapers, 71–74
  - of Christian minorities, 67–69
  - minority hypothesis and, 82–83
  - in prewar Belgium, 189–194
  - in resistance newspapers, 82–83
- Protestant communities, see also Orthodox Protestants
  - anti-Semitism of elites in, 79–81
  - Belgian rescue operations and, 188–189, 194–196, 211–215
  - in Belgium, 46–48, 189–194
  - in Catholic majority regions, 142, 141–143, 145
  - church leaders' anti-Nazi protests, 56–58
  - conflicts within, 46
  - distrust of Catholics and, 126–130
  - in Eastern Europe, 224, 227
  - evasion rates and proximity to, 94–99, 176–179
  - evasion rates for majority vs. minority neighborhoods and, 94–99
  - French rescue operations and, 218–220
  - German rescue operations and, 222–223
  - in Groningen, 151–155
  - history in Low Countries of, 8–10, 42–43
  - interregional ties of, 132–134
  - majority rescue operations by, 170–176
  - prewar empathy in Belgium of, 189–194
  - quantitative analysis of Belgian operations of, 196–201
  - religious leaders' collaboration and, 58–60
  - religious proximity measurements of churches and, 91–93
  - rescue operations and, 28–29, 147–150, 154–159
  - resistance newspapers of, 82–83
  - resistance operations and, 159–162
  - Rosenbaum bounds analysis of Belgian rescue operations in, 197–201
  - Rwandan genocide perpetrated by, 232
  - Rwandan genocide rescues and, 229–230
  - in Twente, 112–116
- Protestant Political party (AR), 121–122

- Quaker communities, Jewish rescue operations and, 219, 223
- quantitative analysis
- Belgian rescue operations, 196–201, 208–215
  - of Belgian rescue operations, 196–201
  - evasion rates and, 182–187
  - rescue operations, 154–159
  - resistance operations, 159–162
- racism, anti-Semitism and, 69–71
- Ravenists, silence of, 220
- Referat Innere Verwaltung, 88–89
- Reformation
- in Belgium, 204–207
  - in Low Countries, 42–43
  - in Twente, 112–116
- Reformed Church in Restored Dependency, 23–25, 128
- relative group size
- Jewish population in Low Countries and, 51–53
  - religious commitment and, 48–49
  - rescue operations and, 37, 156–159
- religious communities
- bystander role in political violence of, 4–5
  - effect relative size and, 58–60
  - empathy mechanism and, 30–32
  - French rescue operations and, 218–220
  - historical evolution in Low Countries of, 16
  - local collective networks and, 12
  - in Low Countries, 8–10, 42–53
  - measurement of minority churches, 91–93
  - membership in KP (Fighting Squad) and, 164–165
  - microlevel analysis of, 26–27
  - pillarization of, 48–49
  - pro-Jewish claims by minorities in, 71–74
  - rescue operations and, 6, 28–29
  - resistance networks and, 2–4, 16, 116–117
  - runaway slaves sheltered by, 217
  - Rwandan genocide perpetrated by, 232
  - Rwandan genocide rescues and, 216–217, 229–230
  - segregation and mixing in rescue operations of, 126–130, 151–155
  - in Twente, 112–116
  - Ukrainian rescue operations and, 226–228
  - violence tolerated by, 1
- religious elites
- arrests of, 164
  - Belgian anti-Semitism and, 190–194
  - Belgian rescue operations and, 196–201, 208–215
  - Belgian resistance and, 196–201
  - Catholic anti-Semitism and, 76–79
  - church leaders' anti-Nazi protests, 56–58
  - in Eastern European countries, 227
  - exposure and arrest of, 122–124
  - French rescue operations and, 218–220
  - German rescue operations and, 223
  - newspapers' coverage of, 69–70
  - Protestant anti-Semitism and, 79–81
  - rescue operations and role of, 27–28, 158–159
  - resistance to political violence and, 12
  - Rwandan genocide and, 232
  - segregation and distrust among, 126–130, 151–155
- repressive capacity
- clandestine mobilization and, 33–34
  - evasion rates for minority neighborhoods and, 95–97
- Republic of the United Provinces, 44
- rescue operations, see also evasion rates for Jews
- Almelo/Borne comparisons of, 85–87
  - arrests of rescuers and, 164
  - in Austria, 223
  - by Belgian Catholics, 188–189, 195–196, 204–208
  - in Belgium, 188–215
  - in Catholic majority regions, 141–145
  - clandestine mobilization and, 12–14
  - in Croatia, 223–226
  - denomination-centered research on, 28–29
  - in Eastern Europe, 226–228
  - effects of causes in, 15–16
  - European rescue operations during Holocaust, 217–229
  - in France, 218–220
  - gentile mobilization in Low Countries for, 55–56
  - for gentiles, 134–136

- geographic proximity and success of, 91–93, 176–179
- in Germany, 221–223
- in Groningen, 151–155
- in homogeneous regions, 140–141
- individual responses to, 108–112
- intergroup dynamics and, 11–15
- interregional ties and, 132–134, 141–145, 147–149
- Jewish entry into networks for, 130–132
- local religious minorities' role in, 6
- long-distance capitalism compared with, 133–134
- macrolevel analysis of, 27–28
- majority leaders' failures with, 122–124
- majority rescue operations, 170–176
- measurement of minority churches and, 91–93
- microlevel analysis of, 26–27
- minority advantage in, 39, 118–119
- by minority Catholics in Protestant regions, 149–152
- multilevel minority hypothesis and, 235–242
- in Noord-Brabant, Netherlands, 145–149
- organizers' selectivity and success of, 124–126
- in Poland and Soviet Union, 226–228
- by Protestant Belgians, 194–196
- proximate causes of, 12
- quantitative analysis of Belgian operations, 196–201
- quantitative analysis of minority role in, 154–159
- religious institutions' involvement in, 111–112, 163
- for runaway slaves, 217, 231–232
- secular groups and, 179–182
- segregation and mixing of religious institutions in, 126–130, 151–155
- separation from resistance operations, 144–145
- in Slovakia, 223–226
- in Twente, 116–117, 170–176
- resistance newspapers, 81–83
  - by secular groups, 180–182
- resistance operations
  - Belgian Protestant involvement in, 197–201
  - in Belgium, quantitative analysis of, 196–201, 208–215
  - church-community relationships and, 16, 172–173
  - community-level demographics, 29–30
  - postwar testimonies on, 116–117
  - quantitative analysis of, 159–162
  - religious elites and, 12
  - religious institutions and, 2–4
  - rescue operations separated from, 144–145
  - secular groups and, 179–182
  - selective retention of members in, 122–124
  - subnational networks and norms and, 12
- resource mobilization, capacity mechanism and, 32–34
- return lists, 89–91
- revolutions, clandestine mobilization and, 12–14
- REX (Belgian nationalist movement), 191
- Rijssen, Netherlands, evasion success and proximity in, 176–179
- roads and streets, rescue risk and proximity to, 170–176
- Rogier, Ludovicus, 100
- Roman Catholic Party (RKSP, Netherlands), 78
- Rosenbaum bounds selectivity analysis, Belgian rescue operations and, 197–201
- Roukema, Gijs, 124–126
- Rousseau, Jean-Jacques, 6, 30–31
- Royal Dutch Library, 82–83
- Rwandan genocide
  - religious institutions and, 1, 4, 232
  - religious minorities and death rate in, 240–241
  - rescue operations during, 216–217, 229–230
- Rwandan Patriotic Front (RPF), 229–230
- Saerens, Lieven, 201–202
- Salmang family, 141
- scale shift, Jewish entry into rescue networks and, 131
- Schilder, Klaas, 124–126
- Schram, Laurence, 201–202
- scientific racism, anti-Semitism and, 69–71
- secrecy-efficiency trade-off

- clandestine collective action dilemma, 34–36
- clandestine mobilization and, 13–14
- secular groups
  - Belgian Catholic criticism of, 192–193
  - Belgian rescue operations and, 204–215
  - minority hypothesis and, 19–20, 169–170, 227, 232–235
  - quantitative analysis of operations by, 182–187
  - rescue and resistance operations of, 179–182
  - voter and election data in analysis of, 183–186
- selective retention
  - clandestine mobilization and, 38–39
  - for majority vs. minority rescue groups, 122–124
  - organizers' selectivity and, 124–126
  - rescue operation success and, 118
  - segregation in clandestine operations and, 126–130
- selective survival
  - clandestine mobilization and, 18
  - for majority vs. minority groups, 122–124
- selectivity, clandestine mobilization and, 38–39
- semi-automatic content analysis, of
  - clandestine resistance newspapers, 64–65
- Sephardic Jews, 51–53
- Seventeen Provinces, formation of, 43–48
- Seventh Day Adventists, Rwandan
  - genocide and, 229–230, 232
- Silber family, 142–143
- similarity frame, 66–67
- SIPO-SD, 55
  - registration lists of, 87–89
- slavery in U.S., religious communities'
  - assistance to runaway slaves and, 217, 231–232
- Slovakia, Jewish rescue operations in, 223–226
- Smits, Aleida, 169–170, 172–173
- Social Insurance Bank, 117
- social integration
  - Belgian Catholic rescue operations and rates of, 208–215
  - evasion rates for minority neighborhoods and, 95–97
  - social movements
    - political violence and, 12
    - resource mobilization and, 32–34
  - Sophocles, 30–31
  - Soviet Union
    - repression of national minorities in, 227
    - rescue operations in, 226–228
  - Spanish Civil War, 63
  - spatial regression models, capacity
    - mechanism in rescue operations and, 17
  - Staal, Courrech, 141
  - statistical matching procedure, rescue
    - operations analysis and, 89–91, 201–202
  - Stokman, Siegfried, 123–124
  - Stork, Ankie, 172–173
  - Straus, Scott, 27–28
  - subnational networks and norms
    - capacity mechanisms and, 39
    - conflicts in Protestantism and, 46
    - Holocaust in Low Countries and, 53–58
    - in Low Countries, 42–43
    - microlevel analysis of, 26–27
    - pillarization and, 48–49
    - resistance to political violence and, 12
  - Swedish Church community, 223
- Tammes, Peter, 87–89
- ter Horst, Johannes, 127
- Thirty Years' War
  - Jewish migration and, 52
- threat-based frames, anti-Semitism and, 67–69
- Tocque, Alexis de, 11
- tolerance confounder, evasion rates and, 101, 99–103, 103
- Twente region (Netherlands) case study
  - clandestine mobilization in, 17–18
  - evasion rate and geographic proximity in, 176–179
  - history of, 112–116
  - majority rescue operations in, 170–176
  - postwar Holocaust testimonies from, 111
  - rescue operations in, 136–138, 157
  - secular group resistance and rescue operations and, 179–182
- Ukraine, rescue operations in, 226–228

- Unitarian communities, French rescue operations and, 219
- United States, rescue of runaway slaves in, 217, 231–232
- Ustasa movement (Croatia), 224
- utilitarian frames, 67–69
  - defined, 65–66
- van Delden, Benno, 109
- Vanderriet, Garriet, 190, 194–196
- Van Roey (Cardinal), 58, 190, 205–207
- Verpoorten, Marijke, 230
- Vichy government (France), Protestant collaboration with, 219
- Vis, Sikko, 121–122
- Voigtländer, Nico, 221–222
- voluntary group membership, costs of, 37
- Vosmeer, Sasbout, 100
- Voth, Hans-Joachim, 221–222
- Vrijemaakten church, 124–126
- Vrind, Hein, 181–182
- Weber, Max, 31–32, 133–134
- Wertheim, Theresa, 125–126
- Women’s League, 223
- World Alliance for Combatting Anti-Semitism, 190
- Wynia, Sjouke, 108
- Yad Vashem, 140–141
  - rescuers’ data from, 154–159
- Yahil, Leni, 27–28
- Young Turks movement, 217, 230–231
- Yugoslavia, rescue operations in, 224–226
- Zuid-Limburg, Netherlands, rescue operations in, 141–145
- Zwart Front, 78–79
- Zwiep, Nanne (Rev.), 23–25