Contents

Acknowledgments page x

Introduction 1

1 Reconfiguring Cultural Production in the Post-Mao Transition 20

2 Borderland Ambiguities in Narratives of Modernization and Liberation 45

3 Relocating the Nation outside the Nation: Forging a Borderland-Centered Nationalist Discourse 75

4 The “Historical Science” of Wenshi Ziliao 110

5 Affective Community and Historical Rehabilitation: “Widely Making Friends” to Resecure Political Loyalty 154

6 Mobilizing a “Patriotic United Front” 200

7 Local, Regional, and National Dynamics of Wenshi Ziliao Production 223

Conclusion 255

References 261

Index 280