

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-47771-0 — Women's Criminality in Europe, 1600-1914

Edited by Manon van der Heijden, Marion Pluskota, Assisted by Sanne Muurling

Frontmatter

More Information

Women's Criminality in Europe, 1600–1914

Bringing together the most current research on the relationship between crime and gender in the West between 1600 and 1914, this authoritative volume places female criminality within its everyday context. It reveals how their socio-economic and cultural contexts provided women with 'agency' against a range of European backdrops, despite a fundamentally patriarchal criminal justice system, and includes in-depth analysis of original sources to show how changing living standards, employment, schooling and welfare arrangements had a direct impact on the quality of life of working-class women, their risk of becoming involved in crime and the likelihood of being prosecuted for it. Rather than treating women's criminality as always exceptional, this study draws out the similarities between female and male criminality, demonstrating how an understanding of specific cultural and socio-economic contexts is essential to explain female criminality, both why their criminal patterns changed and how their crimes were represented by contemporaries.

Manon van der Heijden is Professor of Comparative Urban History at Universiteit Leiden. Her research interests include crime and justice, marriage and the family, urban finances, and public services. In 2012, she was granted a NWO VICI project Crime and Gender 1600–1900. She is a member of the Academia Europaea and author of Women and Crime in Early Modern Holland (2016).

Marion Pluskota is Assistant Professor in Social History at Universiteit Leiden. She has published extensively on prostitution and criminality in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. She is the author of Prostitution and Social Control in Eighteenth-Century Port (2015).

Sanne Muurling recently completed her Ph.D. at Universiteit Leiden with a dissertation on everyday crime and gender in early modern Bologna, Italy. Her research focuses on the social history of everyday life, including crime and deviance, single motherhood, welfare institutions, poverty and living culture.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-47771-0 — Women's Criminality in Europe, 1600-1914

Edited by Manon van der Heijden , Marion Pluskota , Assisted by Sanne Muurling

Frontmatter

More Information

---

Women's Criminality in Europe, 1600–1914

---

Edited by

Manon van der Heijden

Leiden University

Marion Pluskota

Leiden University

Sanne Muurling

Leiden University

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
978-1-108-47771-0 — Women's Criminality in Europe, 1600-1914
Edited by Manon van der Heijden, Marion Pluskota, Assisted by Sanne Muurling
Frontmatter
More Information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA

477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia

314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre,
New Delhi – 110025, India

79 Anson Road, #06-04/06, Singapore 079906

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning, and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781108477710

DOI: 10.1017/9781108774543

© Cambridge University Press 2020

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2020

Printed in United Kingdom country by TJ International Ltd, Padstow
Cornwall

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Names: Heijden, Manon van der, 1966- editor. | Pluskota, Marion, editor. |
Muurling, Sanne, 1987- editor.

Title: Women's criminality in Europe, 1600-1914 / edited by Manon van der Heijden, Marion Pluskota, Sanne Muurling.

Description: New York : Cambridge University Press, 2019. | Includes bibliographical references and index.

Identifiers: LCCN 2019035842 | ISBN 9781108477710 (hardback) | ISBN
9781108774543 (ebook)

Subjects: LCSH: Female offenders--Europe--History. |
Crime--Europe--History. | Women--Legal status, laws, etc.--Europe--History.

Classification: LCC HV6046 .W6573 2019. | DDC 364.3/740940903--dc23
LC record available at <https://lccn.loc.gov/2019035842>

ISBN 978-1-108-47771-0 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-47771-0 — Women's Criminality in Europe, 1600-1914

Edited by Manon van der Heijden , Marion Pluskota , Assisted by Sanne Muurling
Frontmatter

More Information

---

The contributors to the project Crime and Gender 1600–1900 would like to extend their sincerest thanks to the members of the expert committee: Clive Emsley, Pieter Spierenburg, Joachim Eibach and Nicholas Terpstra

Cambridge University Press

978-1-108-47771-0 — Women's Criminality in Europe, 1600-1914

Edited by Manon van der Heijden , Marion Pluskota , Assisted by Sanne Muurling

Frontmatter

More Information

---

Contents

---

	List of Figures and Tables	page ix
	List of Contributors	xi
1	Introduction: Women and Crime in History SANNE MUURLING, MARION PLUSKOTA AND MANON VAN DER HEIJDEN	1
2	Explaining Crime and Gender in Europe between 1600 and 1900 MANON VAN DER HEIJDEN	26
Part I Violence, Space and Gender
3	Women, Violence and the Uses of Justice Before the Criminal Court of Early Modern Bologna SANNE MUURLING	49
4	The 'Vanishing' Female Perpetrator of Common Assault JO TURNER	72
Part II Prosecution and Punishment
5	Gender and the Prosecution of Adultery in Geneva, 1550–1700 SARA BEAM	91
6	'Find the Lady': Tracing and Describing the Incarcerated Female Population of London in 1881 LUCY WILLIAMS AND BARRY GODFREY	114

viii	Contents
7	Gender and Release from Imprisonment: Convict Licensing Systems in Mid- to Late Nineteenth-Century England	134
	HELEN JOHNSTON AND DAVID J. COX
8	Female and Male Prisoners in Queensland 1880–1899: Re-entry, Risk Factors and Recidivism	148
	ALANA PIPER, CATRIEN BIJLEVELD, SUSAN DENNISON AND JONATHAN DE BRUIN
	Part III Representation of Crime
9	Girls, Young Women and Crime: Perceptions, Realities and Responses in a Long-Term Perspective	173
	SARAH AUSPERT, MARGO DE KOSTER AND VEERLE MASSIN
10	‘Monstrous and Indefensible’? Newspaper Accounts of Sexual Assaults on Children in Nineteenth-Century England and Wales	189
	DANIEL J. R. GREY
11	Gender and Dutch Newspaper Reports of Intimate Violence, 1880–1910	206
	CLARE WILKINSON
	Bibliography	226
	Index	255

Figures and Tables

---

Figures

6.1	Proportion of male and female inmates held in prisons, asylums, and workhouses	124
6.2	Ages of institutionalised women in Middlesex	125
6.3	Ages of women incarcerated in London's prisons, 1881	126
6.4	Ages of women incarcerated in asylums, 1881	126
6.5	Ages of women incarcerated in workhouses, 1881	127
8.1	Table with characteristics of returned prisoners	152
8.2	Sentence lengths for men and women for different offence types	160

Tables

2.1	Determinants of public roles and the effect on crime rates of men and women, 1600–1900	44
3.1	Distribution of offences recorded in a sample of complaints and processes for men and women in percentages, 1650–1750	58
3.2	The types of conflicts that received precetti criminali (criminal injunctions) in the city of Bologna, counted by gender of the defendants, 1655–1755	65
6.1	Numbers of men and women recorded in prisons, workhouses, and asylums in Middlesex on census night, 1881	124
7.1	Number of females discharged from prison and sent to refuges, and reconviction rates, 1873–75	145
7.2	Number of male and female convicts released on licence and numbers of revoked licences	146
8.1	Logistic regression analysis predicting recidivism	154
8.2	Type of offences by sex	156
8.3	Immigrant background by sex	165

x	List of Figures and Tables
11.1a	Number of cases of intimate violence per newspaper and year (the total is not equal to the sum of the figures for the individual newspapers as some cases were covered by both newspapers)	213
11.1b	Number of items about intimate violence per newspaper and year	213
11.1c	Number of lines on intimate violence per newspaper and year	213
11.2	Number of cases by relationship (spouse, including cohabiting couples, and sweetheart, including unrequited affairs) and location (Dutch or foreign)	215

Contributors

---

Editors

MANON VAN DER HEIJDEN is Professor of Comparative Urban History at Leiden University. Her research interests include crime and justice, marriage and the family, urban finances and public services. In 2012 she was granted an NWO VICI for the project Crime and Gender 1600–1900: A Comparative Perspective. Since 2014 Manon van der Heijden has been a member of the Academia Europaea. She recently published Women and Crime in Early Modern Holland.

MARION PLUSKOTA is Assistant Professor University Lecturer in Social History at Leiden University. She has published extensively on prostitution and criminality in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. She is the author of Prostitution in Eighteenth-Century Ports (2015). Her forthcoming book Crime and Gender, A European Perspective questions the impact of gender in the prosecution of petty criminality in various urban settings and re-evaluates the reasons behind the decline of women in recorded crime at the end of the nineteenth century.

SANNE MUURLING recently completed her PhD at Leiden University with a dissertation on everyday crime and gender in early modern Bologna, Italy. Her research focuses on the social history of everyday life, including crime and deviance, single motherhood, welfare institutions, poverty and living culture.

Authors

SARAH AUSPERT is currently a PhD candidate at the Centre for Law and Justice History at the Catholic University of Louvain. Under the supervision of Professor Xavier Rousseaux, her doctoral dissertation focuses on prostitutes' mobility before the nineteenth-century regulation of prostitution (Belgian area, 1750–95). Her publications

xii List of Contributors

include Buveurs, Voleuses, Insensés et Prisonniers à Namur au XVIII<sup>e</sup> Siècle. Déviance, Justice et Régulation Sociale au Temps des Lumières (2012).

SARA BEAM is Associate Professor of History at the University of Victoria (Canada). She is the author of the award-winning study Laughing Matters: Farce and the Making of Absolutism in France. She is currently working on a book manuscript tentatively entitled The Violence of Godly Justice: Torture and Execution in Reformation Geneva.

CATRIEN BIJLEVELD is Professor of Research Methods in Criminology at VU Amsterdam and senior researcher at the NSCR Institute for the Study of Crime and Law Enforcement, Amsterdam. Her research interests include violent offending, experimental criminological research, criminal careers and international crimes. She has published in journals such as Psychology, Crime and Law, Journal of Experimental Criminology, Crime and Justice and Criminology.

JONATHAN DE BRUIN is a data scientist at the Utrecht University. He graduated in Applied Mathematics in 2015. After two years of research in the field of road safety, he started working on big data projects at the Utrecht University. His interests are statistics, record linkage and data cleaning. He works on several open source software projects to simplify record linkage and data cleaning.

DAVID J. COX is Reader in Criminal Justice History at the University of Wolverhampton, Honorary Research Fellow of Keele University and Elected Fellow of the Royal Historical Society. His research interests include the Victorian convict prison system, eighteenth-century policing and the 'Bow Street Runners', and the role of the magistracy in dispensing formal and informal summary justice. He has published widely in the field of criminal justice history. His recent publications include Public Indecency in England 1857–1960, with K. Stevenson, J. Rowbotham and C. Harris and Crime in England, 1688–1815.

SUSAN DENNISON is a Professor and Deputy Head of School (Research) in the School of Criminology and Criminal Justice at Griffith University as well as Deputy Director of the Griffith Criminology Institute. She is a former Australian Research Council Future Fellow, examining the impact of parental incarceration on the development and well-being of parents in prison, their children, and caregivers. She is currently investigating the ways that maternal criminal justice system involvement shapes developmental outcomes for children. More broadly, her research focuses on the contexts affecting children's developmental systems and life outcomes as well as using evidence-based research to inform policy and prevention for at-risk children.

BARRY GODFREY is Professor of Social Justice at Liverpool University. He has published a number of books on crime history on comparative criminology and international crime history; desistance and persistence in offending; and longitudinal studies of sentencing and criminal careers. He led the large collaborative digital humanities project – The Digital Panopticon – and now works on a number of other projects on victims, offenders and digital humanities.

DANIEL J. R. GREY is Lecturer in World History since 1800 at the University of Plymouth. His primary research interests relate to the history of gender and crime in modern Britain and India. He has published several journal articles on infanticide and child abuse, and gendered approaches to criminal justice in both India and Britain. Currently, he is working on two book projects: Degrees of Guilt: Infanticide in England 1860–1960 and Feminist Campaigns Against Child Sexual Abuse: Britain and India 1860–1947.

HELEN JOHNSTON is Professor of Criminology at the University of Hull. She is Co-Director of the Centre for Criminology and Criminal Justice, and her research interests are in the history of punishment, particularly local and convict imprisonment, mechanisms of release, prison staff and the evolution of prison architecture. Her most recent books are Crime in England, 1815–1880: Experiencing the Criminal Justice System and Victorian Convicts: 100 Criminal Lives (with Barry Godfrey and David J. Cox).

MARGO DE KOSTER is a part-time professor in the Criminology Department at the Vrije Universiteit Brussel, a lecturer in of historical criminology at the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam and Vice-Coordinator of the Belgian research network Justice & Populations: The Belgian Experience in International Perspective, 1795–2015 (Belgian Science Policy Office, 2012–17). She conducts historical criminology research on juvenile delinquency and juvenile justice, girls and women in criminal justice, urban policing and transgressive uses of urban public space. She is Chief Editor (together with Manon van der Heijden) of the Brill Book Series Crime and City in History.

VEERLE MASSIN is a Belgian historian who wrote her doctoral dissertation on the treatment of delinquent girls in institutions of confinement during the twentieth century (Catholic University of Louvain, 2011).

xiv List of Contributors

Her research interests include juvenile delinquency, psychiatry, social history, epistemology and gender studies.

ALANA PIPER is a postdoctoral research fellow at the Griffith Criminology Institute in Brisbane, Australia. As part of the Australian Research Council sponsored Prosecution Project, Alana is examining the evolution of the criminal trial in Australian history, looking particularly at trends in property crime prosecutions. Her work has appeared in publications such as the Journal of Social History, History Workshop Journal, Journal of Australian Studies and Criminal Law Journal.

JO TURNER is an Associate Professor of Criminology at Staffordshire University and holds a PhD in Criminology. Her research interests are varied but primarily focused upon the history of crime and criminal justice, spanning the disciplines of criminology, history and gender studies. Essentially, she is interested in female offending in the past, women's treatment by the criminal justice system in the past, and outcomes for women in the past following their contact with that system – much of which she has written and published in books and journal articles. She is lead editor for A Companion to the History of Crime and Criminal Justice.

CLARE WILKINSON has a master's in British History from the Open University (UK) and is now working at Leiden University (the Netherlands) on a PhD on gender and violence in Dutch newspapers. She is also a part-time translator.

LUCY WILLIAMS is a postdoctoral research associate at the University of Liverpool. Her research interests are the social history of crime in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, historical criminology and the social history of women and gender. She has published on the topics of sentencing and punishment, intergenerational offending and prisoner demography.