

Contents

Series Editors' Preface	page xv
Acknowledgements	xvii
Table of Cases	xix
Table of EU Secondary Law	xxii
Other Institutional Sources	xxiii
Introduction	1
Main Objective: Deconstructing Private Personhood	4
An Outline of EU Privacy Rights	7
The GDPR	9
The ECJ's Interpretation Practices	11
Two Examples: Wirtschaftsakademie and Jehovan Todistajat	15
Personal Data on Facebook Fan Pages	17
Jehovan Todistajat : Religious Communities Are Not Exempt from Data Protection Regulation	22
Courts, the Law and the Impossibility of Neutrality	27
1 Private Persons Are Made	30
What Is a Person, According to the Law?	30
Persons Are Made by Law	33
What Do Privacy Rights Produce?	37
2 The Person in Control	44
Problems with Consent	47
Individualisation As an Index of Late Modernity	51
Individualism in Legal Theories of Privacy	54
Personal Data Is Always Data about an Individual	56

	Alternative Perspectives from the ECtHR	60
	Privacy Clashes with the Individual: the Buivids Case	63
	Even Relational Privacy Can Be Individualistic	66
3	The Autonomous Person	69
	Privacy Rights Protect Personhood	71
	Privacy Rights Focus on Protecting Autonomy	74
	Personal Data Law Protects Vulnerable Persons	76
	Fashion ID : the Activity of the Person Is Irrelevant	77
	Deconstructing the Autonomous Legal Person	80
	Subjective Conceptions of Privacy	82
	Persons Are Formed by Ideology	86
4	The Immune Person	90
	Privacy As Immunity: An Obstacle to an Open Society?	91
	Immunisation: Means for Withdrawal	96
	Openness and Closure: the Right to Be Forgotten	98
	Later Approaches to the Right to Be Forgotten	102
	Searching for Possibilities of Re-thinking:
	Impersonal Law	104
	Justice through the Impersonal?	106
5	The Person at Liberty	109
	Durkheim's Impersonal Individualism	112
	The Person As an Economic Agent in the EU	117
	Deutsche Post : Functioning Administration Overrides
	Data Protection	121
	Surveillance Capitalism and Related Individualisation	127
6	The Political Person	131
	Equality As a Presupposition	135
	Political Speech	137
	Law and Order	139
	Schrems I As a Political Act	141
	Equality and the Digital Poorhouse	145
7	The Person in the Community	148
	Nancy: Singular Plurality	149
	Community, Not Common Essence	152
	Community Is Grounded in Freedom	154

CONTENTS xiii

Can There Be a European Community?	158
The Benefits of Thinking in the Singular-Plural	161
Singular-Plural Privacy?	162
Returning to the Productions of Law	166
Why Privacy Is Valuable	167
Conclusions	171
Bibliography	176
Index	185