

The Other Wars

In this insightful and revealing study, Justin Fantauzzo uses a wide range of documentary and visual sources to explore the experience and memory of British and Dominion soldiers who fought in the Middle East and Macedonia during the First World War. He shows that not only was the experience of these campaigns markedly different to their counterparts on the Western Front, but so too were the memories and portrayals of these campaigns in the interwar period. Fantauzzo's analysis highlights the disparities and contradictions that exist in the experience and memory of war and helps us to rethink what the war meant to the soldiers who fought in this region, how soldiers understood the war itself and how it was remembered.

Justin Fantauzzo is Assistant Professor of History at Memorial University of Newfoundland, Canada.

Cambridge University Press
978-1-108-47900-4 — The Other Wars
Justin Fantauzzo
Frontmatter
More Information

Studies in the Social and Cultural History of Modern Warfare

General Editor

Jay Winter, Yale University

Advisory Editors

David Blight, Yale University

Richard Bosworth, University of Western Australia

Peter Fritzsche, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign

Carol Gluck, Columbia University

Benedict Kiernan, Yale University

Antoine Prost, Université de Paris-Sorbonne

Robert Wohl, University of California, Los Angeles

In recent years the field of modern history has been enriched by the exploration of two parallel histories. These are the social and cultural history of armed conflict, and the impact of military events on social and cultural history.

Studies in the Social and Cultural History of Modern Warfare presents the fruits of this growing area of research, reflecting both the colonization of military history by cultural historians and the reciprocal interest of military historians in social and cultural history, to the benefit of both. The series offers the latest scholarship in European and non-European events from the 1850s to the present day.

A full list of titles in the series can be found at:
www.cambridge.org/modernwarfare

The Other Wars

The Experience and Memory of the First World War in the Middle East and Macedonia

Justin Fantauzzo

Memorial University of Newfoundland

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge University Press
978-1-108-47900-4 — The Other Wars
Justin Fantauzzo
Frontmatter
More Information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom

One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA

477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia

314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre,
New Delhi – 110025, India

79 Anson Road, #06–04/06, Singapore 079906

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.

It furthers the University's mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning, and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org

Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781108479004

DOI: 10.1017/9781108782067

© Justin Fantauzzo 2020

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 2020

Printed in the United Kingdom by TJ International Ltd, Padstow Cornwall

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Names: Fantauzzo, Justin, 1985– author.

Title: The other wars : the experience and memory of the First World War in the Middle East and Macedonia / Justin Fantauzzo.

Description: Cambridge, United Kingdom ; New York, NY : Cambridge University Press, 2020.

| Series: Studies in the social and cultural history of modern warfare | Expanded and revised version of author's thesis (doctoral) – University of Cambridge, 2014 titled: British soldiers' experience and memory of the Palestine campaign, 1915–1918. | Includes bibliographical references and index.

Identifiers: LCCN 2019027961 (print) | LCCN 2019027962 (ebook) | ISBN 9781108479004 (hardback) | ISBN 9781108782067 (epub)

Subjects: LCSH: Great Britain. Army – History – World War, 1914–1918. | World War, 1914–1918 – Great Britain. | World War, 1914–1918 – Commonwealth countries. | World War, 1914–1918 – Campaigns – Middle East. | World War, 1914–1918 – Campaigns – Macedonia. | Soldiers – Great Britain – Psychological aspects. | Soldiers – Commonwealth countries – Psychological aspects. | Memory – Social aspects – Great Britain. | Memory – Social aspects – Commonwealth countries. | Commonwealth countries – Armed Forces – History – World War, 1914–1918.

Classification: LCC D517 .F36 2020 (print) | LCC D517 (ebook) | DDC 940.4/150922171241–dc23

LC record available at <https://lcn.loc.gov/2019027961>

LC ebook record available at <https://lcn.loc.gov/2019027962>

ISBN 978-1-108-47900-4 Hardback

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.

Contents

List of Figures	page	vi
Acknowledgements		vii
Introduction		1
Part I Experience
1 Soldiering		17
2 Touring		50
3 Meaning		93
4 Forgotten		139
Part II Memory
5 Public Memory		167
6 Private Memory		205
Conclusion		220
Bibliography		226
Index		244

Figures

1.1	Yeomanry camp at Bir el Mazar after khamsin, Sinai, April 1917	page 22
1.2	Camp of the Transport Section, 2/20th Battalion, London Regiment, Vardar, Macedonia, spring 1917	39
1.3	Punch , 19 December 1917	48
2.1	Group of British soldiers on horseback and camels in front of the Sphinx, Giza, Egypt, 1915	66
2.2	British soldiers touring the Temple Mount, Al Aqsa mosque, Jerusalem, Palestine, 1918	70
2.3	British and French soldiers at the Church of the Nativity, Bethlehem, Palestine, 1918	75
3.1	'The New Crusaders', December 1917, Chronicles of the White Horse	119
3.2	Australian Light Horseman with Jewish girl, Rehovot, Palestine, 1918	122
3.3	'The 8th Crusade'. 10 December 1917, Liverpool Echo	125
3.4	British soldier standing guard on the Mount of Olives, Jerusalem, Palestine, 1918	128
3.5	Ariel Vargas, British soldier with Arab refugees at base camp, Baghdad, Mesopotamia, 1917	133
4.1	D. J. A. Dickson, Mesopotamia Day poster, 1917	145
4.2	'Ever Glorious Profession of Arms', July 1917, Chronicles of the White Horse	148
4.3	'Finish Johnny!', Christmas card, 8th Field Survey Company, Royal Engineers, 1918	161
5.1	'What He Did in the Great War', April 1917, Chronicles of the White Horse	178

Acknowledgements

Writing one's first book is a formidable task. Revising a doctoral dissertation, soliciting (begging for) input from friends and colleagues, navigating a publisher's submission guidelines, responding to the comments and criticisms of peer reviewers, securing copyright permissions and licences, all make for a long process. But by the end of that process, when the reality sinks in that years of labour have not been in vain, the feeling is overwhelming. This is the proudest moment of my career, and a moment that owes so much to so many people.

This research began when I was a doctoral student at Darwin College, University of Cambridge. There, I focused on the experience and memory of the Sinai and Palestine campaigns and was fortunate that Jon Lawrence chanced supervising a raw, undisciplined Canadian student who had much to learn not only about the First World War and British society but also about history as an academic discipline. Peter Mandler and Adrian Gregory provided additional guidance. Funding from the Cambridge Commonwealth Trust, Darwin College, the Royal Historical Society, and the Faculty of History made early research possible and living in Cambridge feasible. As a postdoctoral fellow at the University of Windsor (Windsor, Canada), my research expanded. As I read more diaries, letters, and memoirs written by soldiers who had fought in Macedonia and Mesopotamia, the similarities between those campaigns and the ones fought in Sinai and Palestine were striking. Research continued after I joined the Department of History at Memorial University of Newfoundland (St John's, Canada), where I benefitted from additional funding from my institution. It was a risky decision to spend years expanding my doctoral dissertation when the easier option, especially in a competitive job market, would have been to revise and publish the dissertation as it was. I hope the reader agrees with my choice.

This research was assisted by the hard-working staff of the Imperial War Museum, the Museum of Military Medicine, the Liddell Hart Centre for Military Archives at King's College London, the Liddle

viii Acknowledgements

Collection at the University of Leeds, the Middle East Centre Archive at St Antony's College, University of Oxford, the Australian War Memorial, the State Library of New South Wales, the Alexander Turnbull Library at the National Library of New Zealand, the Christchurch City Libraries, the Kippenberger Military Archive at the Queen Elizabeth II National Army Memorial Museum, and the William Ready Division of Archives and Research Collections at McMaster University. My thanks to friends and colleagues who read drafts of this book and to the supportive and patient staff of Cambridge University Press. Sorry for so many emails.

For permission to reproduce documentary material in this book, I thank the Trustees of the Imperial War Museum, the Trustees of the Museum of Military Medicine, the Trustees of the Liddell Hart Centre for Military Archives at King's College London, and the Middle East Centre Archive at St Antony's College, University of Oxford. I also thank Nigel Malthus for allowing me to quote from the papers of Cecil Malthus, held at the Christchurch City Libraries in New Zealand. For permission to reproduce images used in this book, I thank the British Library Board, John Ansley and the Marist College Archives and Special Collections at Marist College (Poughkeepsie, USA), the Punch Cartoon Library/TopFoto, and the wonderful staff of Image Sales and Licensing at the Imperial War Museum. I regret to inform the reader that images to accompany Chapter 6 were not possible due to copyright concerns. Part of Chapter 2 was previously published in 'Rise Phoenix-Like: British Soldiers, Civilization and the First World War in Greek Macedonia', in Joseph Clarke and John Horne (eds.), Militarized Cultural Encounters in the Long Nineteenth Century: Making War, Mapping Europe (Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan, 2018). Part of Chapter 5 was previously published in 'Ending Ottoman Misrule: British Soldiers, Liberal Imperialism, and the First World War in Palestine', Journal of the Middle East and Africa 6, 1 (2015). Part of Chapter 6 was previously published in 'Picturing War: Soldier Photography, Private Remembrance, and the First World War in Egypt and Palestine', Journal of War and Culture Studies 10, 3 (2017). Every effort has been made to contact the relevant copyright-holders of material in this book. In the event of any error, the publisher will be pleased to make corrections in any reprints or future editions.

Finally, special thanks are due to the people who have most impacted my career and my life. To Robert L. Nelson, who threw a lifeline to me when the academic sea was dark and stormy, where would I be without your professional support and encouragement? To my family, who have bent over backwards to support me, nothing I say here can ever match the opportunities your support has allowed me to pursue. And to my partner, Katie, who has packed her bags and moved more times than she would have liked to, I love you.

Acknowledgements

ix