INTERGENERATIONAL JUSTICE IN SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT TREATY IMPLEMENTATION

Economic, technological, social and environmental transformations are affecting all humanity, and decisions taken today will impact the quality of life for all future generations. This volume surveys current commitments to sustainable development, analysing innovative policies, practices and procedures to promote respect for intergenerational justice. Expert contributors provide serious scholarly and practical discussions of the theoretical, institutional and legal considerations inherent in intergenerational justice on the local, national, regional and global scale. They investigate treaty commitments related to intergenerational equity, explore linkages between regimes, and offer insights from diverse experiences of national future generations’ institutions. This volume should be read by lawyers, academics, policymakers, and business and civil society leaders interested in the economy, society, environment, sustainable development, climate change and other law, policy and practices impacting all generations.

MARIE-CLAIRE CORDONIER SEGGER is Leverhulme Visiting Professor at the University of Cambridge, Full Professor of Law at the University of Waterloo, Canada, Executive Secretary to the Climate Law & Governance Initiative, and laureate of the 2020 H.E. Judge C. G. Weeramantry International Justice Award. She serves as Senior Director of the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law (CISDL), as Chair of the Future Board for Bit Bio, on the Board of the International Law Association, as a Law Fellow and Director of Studies for Lucy Cavendish College, as a founding Fellow of the Centre for Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Governance (CEEENRG) and as an affiliated Fellow of the Lauterpacht Centre for International Law (LCIL) in Cambridge. Author or editor of over twenty books and 120 papers, she edits the Treaty Implementation for Sustainable Development series for Cambridge University Press and serves on the editorial boards of several law journals, also advising countries and international organisation on treaty commitments on climate change, biodiversity, trade, investment and other Sustainable Development Goals.

MARCEL SZABÓ is Full Professor and Head of the Department of European Law at Pézmány Péter Catholic University. Besides his academic career, between 2011 and 2012 Professor Szabó represented the Hungarian Government in front of the International Court of Justice in the Hague, and between 2012 and 2016 he was the Deputy Commissioner for Fundamental Rights and Ombudsman for Future Generations in Hungary. Professor Szabó was elected as justice at the Constitutional Court of Hungary in 2016, for twelve years. He is Founder and Honorary Chair of the Network of Institutions of Future Generations. His main areas of research are international environmental law, rights of future generations, responsibility of states in public international law, and public international law and EU law in the case law of the Constitutional Court of Hungary. Professor Szabó is the founder and Editor-in-Chief of the Hungarian Yearbook of International Law and European Law.

ALEXANDRA R. HARRINGTON is Research Director and Lead Counsel (Peace, Justice and Governance) with the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law (CISDL) and Fulbright Canada Research Chair in Global Governance at the Balsillie School of International Affairs in Waterloo, Canada. She serves as Director of Studies for ILA Colombia, as a member of the IUCN World Commission on Environmental Law and as Visiting Professor at Albany Law School. Dr Harrington is the author of International Organizations and the Law and the forthcoming International Law and Global Governance: Treaty Regimes and Sustainable Development Goals Interpretation, as well as dozens of articles and book chapters.
TREATY IMPLEMENTATION FOR SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

Over the past three decades, a series of international treaties have entered into force to address pressing global concerns of social and economic development and environmental protection. On climate change, biodiversity and biosafety, desertification, agriculture and seeds, and trade and investment liberalisation, new regimes have been established to implement global commitments related to sustainable development, many with nearly universal membership. Successful domestic implementation of these international treaty regimes is one of the most significant challenges facing international law today. Although much has been written on the content and form of treaty law, there is relatively little that examines the transition from international legal theory and treaty texts to domestic regulation and practice.

This series of books addresses this need and provides a serious contribution to ongoing global debates by conducting a detailed analysis of how myriad new treaty regimes that cover the future’s most pressing concerns can be made to work in practice.

Series Editors
Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger
Markus Wilhelm Gehring

Volumes in the Series
NAFTA and Sustainable Development edited by Hoi L. Kong and L. Kinvin Wroth (2015)
Intergenerational Justice in Sustainable Development Treaty Implementation

ADVANCING FUTURE GENERATIONS RIGHTS THROUGH NATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Edited by

MARIE-CLAIRE CORDONIER SEGGER
University of Cambridge/University of Waterloo

MARCEL SZABÓ
Pázmány Péter Catholic University, Budapest

ALEXANDRA R. HARRINGTON
Albany Law School
CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

University Printing House, Cambridge CB2 8BS, United Kingdom
One Liberty Plaza, 20th Floor, New York, NY 10006, USA
477 Williamstown Road, Port Melbourne, VIC 3207, Australia
314–321, 3rd Floor, Plot 3, Splendor Forum, Jasola District Centre, New Delhi – 110025, India
79 Anson Road, #06-04/06, Singapore 079906

Cambridge University Press is part of the University of Cambridge.
It furthers the University’s mission by disseminating knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning, and research at the highest international levels of excellence.

www.cambridge.org
Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9781108488020
DOI: 10.1017/9781108768511

© Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger, Marcel Szabó and Alexandra R. Harrington 2021

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.
First published 2021

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data
TITLE: Intergenerational justice in sustainable development treaty implementation / edited by Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger, University of Cambridge; Marcel Szabó, Pázmány Péter Catholic University, Hungary; Alexandra R. Harrington, Albany Law School.
CLASSIFICATION: LCC K3585 .J582 2019 (print) | LCC K3585 (ebook) | DDC 344.046dc23
LC record available at https://lccn.loc.gov/2020035977
LC ebook record available at https://lccn.loc.gov/2020035978

Cambridge University Press has no responsibility for the persistence or accuracy of URLs for external or third-party internet websites referred to in this publication and does not guarantee that any content on such websites is, or will remain, accurate or appropriate.
Contents

List of Figures page xiii
List of Tables xv
Notes on Contributors xvii
Foreword xxxvii
Jona David and Tyra Sioni, UNESCO Voices of Future Generations Child Authors
Acknowledgements xxxix
List of Abbreviations and Acronyms xli

1 Introduction 1
Marcel Szabó, Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger, and Alexandra R. Harrington

2 The Theoretical Framework for International Legal Principles of Intergenerational Equity and Implementation through National Institutions 16
Edith Brown Weiss

PART I INTRODUCTION TO TREATY LAW ON INTERGENERATIONAL JUSTICE AND CODIFYING SUSTAINABILITY 45

3 International Treaty Law and Policy for Future Generations 47
Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger

Marcel Szabó
Contents

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chapter</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Author(s)</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>The Use of International Human Rights Norms to Implement International Solidarity</td>
<td>Dinah Shelton</td>
<td>99</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PART II  KEY CHALLENGES IN DOMESTIC IMPLEMENTATION OF INTERGENERATIONAL JUSTICE</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6</td>
<td>What Should We Protect? Future Generations Institutions as Counterweights</td>
<td>Halina Ward</td>
<td>117</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7</td>
<td>Future Generations Institutions to Implement International Obligations towards Future Generations</td>
<td>Sándor Fülöp</td>
<td>137</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PART III  LAW AND POLICY INNOVATIONS FOR INTERGENERATIONAL JUSTICE</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>Sustainability in European Constitutional Law</td>
<td>András Jakab</td>
<td>166</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9</td>
<td>The Principle of Intergenerational Solidarity in Reshaping Constitutional Rights and Obligations:</td>
<td>Marisa Quaresma dos Reis</td>
<td>201</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>An Example from Portugal</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>PROMOTING THE VOICE OF THE PUBLIC</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>Time to Think: Sustainable Development, Future Generations and the Individual</td>
<td>Ludwig Krämer</td>
<td>210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11</td>
<td>Claims and Petitions Regarding Environment Preservation for Future Generations</td>
<td>Renato Machado</td>
<td>211</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>12</td>
<td>Rationale and Means of Public Participation</td>
<td>Gyula Bándi</td>
<td>225</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>Are We Giving the Voice of the Future a Word in the Present?</td>
<td>Julia Pitts</td>
<td>239</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Economic Aspects of Intergenerational Justice</td>
<td>266</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-----------------------------------------------</td>
<td>-----</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14 Unsustainability as an Economic Problem</td>
<td>267</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gábor Bartus</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>15 Intergenerational Equity and the European Constitution</td>
<td>281</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Markus W. Gehring and Alexandra R. Harrington</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Addressing Science, Scientific Uncertainty, and Precaution</td>
<td>294</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>16 Scientific Uncertainty as a Key Obstacle to Efficient Legal Protection of the Environmental Interests of Future Generations</td>
<td>295</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Katalin Sulyok</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>17 Transformative Knowledge and Solutions in Sustainability Governance</td>
<td>315</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Günther Bachmann</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Part IV Implementing Sustainability Through National Institutions: Case Studies</td>
<td>329</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>National Case Studies</td>
<td>331</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>18 Institutions for a Sustainable Future: The Former Israeli Commission for Future Generations</td>
<td>332</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shlomo Shoham and Friederike Kurre</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>19 Norway: Norwegian Ombudsman for Children</td>
<td>352</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ole Kristian Fauchald and Elisabeth Gording Stang</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20 Institutions for a Sustainable Future: The German Parliamentary Advisory Council on Sustainable Development</td>
<td>374</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Franz Reimer</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>21 Power over Coming Generations: Committee for the Future in the Eduskunta, the Parliament of Finland</td>
<td>395</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paula Tiihonen</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>22 Welsh Commissioner for Sustainable Futures</td>
<td>411</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alan Netherwood and Andrew Flynn</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>23 Parliamentary Commissioner for the Environment, New Zealand</td>
<td>434</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jonathan Boston</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Contents

24 Canadian Commissioner of the Environment and Sustainable Development
David Wright and James McKenzie 461

25 Intergenerational Equity, Peace, and Transitional Justice in Colombia
Alexandra R. Harrington and Maria del Pilar Vanegas Guzman 478

26 Indigenous Peoples and Intergenerational Equity in Mexico
Odeeth Lara Morales 492

27 Legal Innovations for Intergenerational Justice in Sustainable Landscapes Management of Democratic Republic of Congo
Erick Kassongo 508

28 Local Indigenous Planning Instruments for Intergenerational Equity in Ahousaht Traditional Territories of Canada
Tara Dawn Atleo 528

COMPARATIVE INSIGHTS

29 A Comparative Analysis of Model Institutions: Diversity in Reaching Common Goals
Judit Pump 546

30 Comparing Progress in Intergenerational Governance
Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger, Alexandra R. Harrington, Sébastien Jodoin, Sumudu Atapattu, Salim Nakjavaní, and Jaykumar Menon 576

31 International Institutions for Future Generations and Democratic Legitimacy
Peter Lawrence 597

PART V REGIONAL TRENDS IN INTERGENERATIONAL JUSTICE

32 A European Human Rights Perspective on National Sustainable Development Institutions
Christina Binder 617

33 Embedding Intergenerational Justice across Government: Regional Trends in Africa
Damilola Olawuyi 638
Contents

34 Intergenerational Equity, Justice, and Modern Treaties between First Nations Communities and Canada 656
   Tara Dawn Atleo, Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger and Alexandra R. Harrington

35 Institutions for Future Generations in Asia 671
   Antonio G. M. La Viña and Gregorio Rafael P. Bueta

PART VI FUTURE TRENDS 703

36 Equity across Generations in Implementing International Law on Water 705
   Otto Spijkers

37 Intergenerational Justice in the Paris Agreement on Climate Change 731
   Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger

38 The Four-Branches Model of Government: Representing Future Generations 754
   Joerg Chet Tremmel

39 Intergenerational Equity in Sustainable Development Treaty Implementation 781
   Marcel Szabó, Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger, and Alexandra R. Harrington

   Afterword 792
   H.E. C.G. Weeramantry

Table of Authorities 801
Figures

14.1 The problem of sustainability transition
22.1 A model for stable development
38.1 The cuboid of offices for future generations
Tables

20.1 Government proposals (bills and ordinances) in the 17th electoral period (statistical overview)
20.2 Indicators and goals of the National Sustainable Development Strategy as used by the PACSD
22.1 Recommendations from the Effectiveness Review of the Welsh Government Sustainable Development Scheme, 2008
22.2 Examples of domestic and international activity, 2008–2011
22.3 General responsibilities for public sector bodies in Wales under the Well-Being of Future Generations Act
22.4 Specific responsibilities for public sector bodies in Wales under the Well-Being of Future Generations Act
22.5 Key ‘asks’ of Welsh Government 2016–2021
23.1 Parliamentary Commissioner for the Environment performance measures and targets
26.1 Relevant Sustainable Development Goals
Notes on Contributors

Sumudu Atapattu is Director of Research Centers and Senior Lecturer at University of Wisconsin Law School, where she teaches in the area of international environmental law and climate change and human rights. Selected books include Human Rights Approaches to Climate Change: Challenges and Opportunities (Routledge 2015), International Environmental Law and the Global South (Cambridge University Press 2015) (co-editor), and Emerging Principles of International Environmental Law (Transnational 2006). Affiliated with the University of Wisconsin-Madison’s Nelson Institute for Environmental Studies, the Center for South Asia, and the 4W Initiative, she has also served as Visiting Professor at Doshisha University Law School, Japan, and Giessen University, Germany. Professor Atapattu is also the Executive Director of the Human Rights Program at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. In 2000, she was awarded a Senior Fulbright Scholarship for research on environmental rights and human rights at the New York University Law School and the George Washington University Law School, and from 2002 to 2006 she was a visiting scholar at the Institute for Legal Studies at University of Wisconsin Law School as part of the adjunct faculty. She serves as the Lead Counsel for Human Rights at the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law based in Montreal, Canada, and on the advisory board of the McGill Journal of Sustainable Development Law. She holds an LLM (Public International Law) and a PhD (International Environmental Law) from the University of Cambridge, and is an Attorney-at-Law of the Supreme Court of Sri Lanka.

Tara Dawn Atleo is a Doctoral Candidate on Sustainability Management, School of Environment, Enterprise and Development (SEED) at the University of Waterloo Faculty of the Environment. Ms Atleo is CEO of the Maaqutusu Hahoulthee Stewardship Society and a member of the Ahousaht First Nation, whose territory in coastal British Columbia is part of the Emerald Edge, the world’s largest intact coastal temperate rainforest. Ms Atleo holds a Governor General’s Medal and won the Gold Award in the UNFCCC COP23 Climate Law & Governance International Essay Competition for her paper, ‘The Importance of Locally Developed Indigenous Planning Tools and Policy for Climate Change Action in Ahousaht Traditional Territories’. Her Masters from the University of London focused on environmental economics, specifically how to use non-market valuation techniques for culturally significant areas in Ahousaht traditional territories, and she holds a BSc from Vancouver Island University.

Günter Bachmann is General Secretary of the German Council for Sustainable Development. Upon concluding his landscape planning studies at the Technical University Berlin, Dr Bachmann participated in a variety of research assignments. He joined the Federal Environment Agency in 1983 and was named head of the Soil Protection Department in 1992. In later years, Dr Bachmann was instrumental in the creation of the 1999 Federal Soil Protection Act. In February 2014, he was appointed honorary professor by Lüneburg University’s foundation. Dr Bachmann regularly publishes looseleafs and writes commentaries on the Soil Protection Act as well as essays on a range of issues.

Gyula Bándi is Hungarian Ombudsman for Future Generations. He has been active in the field of environmental law research and education for more than three decades, and he assisted in the establishment of postgraduate environmental law education in Hungary. He is Jean Monnet Professor of EU Environmental Law, and founder and Director of a Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence. He received the Pázmány Péter High Education award for his activity.

Gábor Bartus is Secretary General of the National Council for Sustainable Development (Hungary) and a Lecturer at the Budapest University of Technology and Economics. He has served as a Senior Advisor to the Prime Minister of Hungary and has an extensive background in environmental policy issues.

Christina Binder is Chair for International Law and Human Rights Law at the Bundeswehr University Munich. Previously, she was Professor of International Law at the University of Vienna. Professor Binder is a member of the Executive Board and Vice President of the European Society of International Law and of the Executive Board of the EIUC (European Inter-University Centre for Human Rights and Democratisation). She is a member of the ILA Committees on the Implementation of the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, Human Rights in Times of Emergency, and Feminism and International Law. Professor Binder has offered classes on human rights law and international law at many universities throughout Europe, Latin America, Australia, and Asia. She was a visiting fellow at the Lauterpacht Center for International Law in Cambridge (2007–2008), the Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law in Heidelberg (2008–2010 and regularly since then), and McGill University (summer 2015). She acts as election expert for the Congress of Local and Regional Authorities of the Council of Europe and has worked as legal and electoral expert for election observation missions with the EU and OSCE/ODIHR.

Jonathan Boston has published widely on a range of matters including public management, social policy, climate change policy, tertiary education policy, and comparative government. While at Victoria University of Wellington, he has served as Director of the Institute for Governance and Policy Studies and Director of the Institute of Policy Studies. Earlier in his career, Professor Boston worked for the New Zealand Treasury and taught at the University of Canterbury. From 2000 to 2001, he was a member of the Tertiary Education Advisory Commission, and he later helped to design, implement, and evaluate the Performance-Based Research Fund. More recently, Professor Boston served as Co-Chair of the Expert Advisory Group on Solutions to Child Poverty established by the Children’s Commissioner. He was awarded a Fulbright Fellowship in 2014 to undertake research on ‘Governing for the Future: Bringing Long-Term Policy Issues into Short-Term Political Focus’. Professor Boston serves on the boards of a number of organisations, including Oxfam New Zealand.

Edith Brown Weiss is Francis Cabell Brown Professor of International Law, Georgetown Law. In September 2002, she was appointed to a five-year term on the three-member Inspection Panel of the World Bank and from 2003 to 2007 served full-time as the Chairperson of the Inspection Panel, an appointment at the vice-presidential level. Since January 2012, Professor Brown Weiss has served as a Judge on the International Monetary Fund’s Administrative Tribunal and is President of the Inter-American Development Bank’s Administrative Tribunal. She is also a member of the nine-person United Nations Environment Programme’s International Advisory Council on Environmental Justice. Her past professional experience includes positions as Associate General Counsel for International Activities at the US Environmental Protection Agency, 1990–1992, Assistant Professor of Civil Engineering and Politics at Princeton University, and Research Associate at Columbia University and the Brookings Institution. Her numerous professional activities have included positions as President of the American Society of International Law (April 1994–1996), US Special Legal Advisor to the North American Commission on the Environment (1996–2002), chair of the Committee for Research on Global Environmental Change of the Social Science Research Council (1989–1994), and elected member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the American Law Institute, and the Commission on Environmental Law of the IUCN. She has been a member of the National Academy of Science’s Commission on Geosciences, Environment and Resources, the NAS Water Science and Technology Board, the NAS, Israel, Jordan, Palestinian Territories Panel on Sustainable Water Supplies in the Middle East, and the NAS Environmental Studies Board. In July 2017, Professor Brown Weiss presented the General Course on Public International Law at The Hague Academy of International Law. In 2010, she received the Manley O. Hudson Medal from the American Society of International Law, in 2008 the Award for International Environmental Law from the Center for International Environmental Law, in 2003 the American Bar Association (ABA) Award for Distinguished Achievement in Environmental Law and Policy, in 1996 the Prominent Women in International Law Award from the American Society of International Law, and in 1994 the Elizabeth Haub Prize for international environmental law given by the Free University of Brussels and the International Council of Environmental Law (ICEL).

Gregorio Rafael P. Bueta is Expert Legal and Policy Consultant with the Asian Development Bank’s Law and Policy Reform Program. He has worked extensively with judiciaries and legal professionals across Asia on environment and climate change law and adjudication, particularly in Bangladesh, Bhutan, Cambodia, India, Myanmar, Malaysia, Nepal, Pakistan, the Philippines, and Sri Lanka. Mr Bueta has also been involved in legal and regulatory reforms in South Asia in areas such as energy trade and corporate governance. Prior to joining ADB, he headed the Strategic Initiatives Management Office in the Office of the President of the Philippines focusing on government policies and programmes related to environment and climate change. As a private legal practitioner and independent consultant from the Philippines, Mr Bueta is an advocate for environmental rights and justice, protection of biodiversity, promotion of human rights, development of good governance, and integrity in public service. He has written several published works on environment and natural resources law and human rights. Mr Bueta has also worked with the United Nations Development Programme, the Philippine Judicial Academy, the Ateneo School of Government, the Council for the Welfare of Children, Ayala Corporation, the EcoWaste Coalition, and various NGOs and private companies. He has a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science from the Ateneo de Manila University. He earned his Juris Doctor Degree from the same institution and was the recipient of the St Thomas More Most Distinguished Award for his graduating class.

Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger is Leverhulme Trust Visiting Professor at the University of Cambridge and Full Professor of Law at the University of Waterloo, Canada, and Executive Secretary to the Climate Law & Governance Initiative, a UNFCCC partnership of legal institutes, universities, intergovernmental organisations and others supporting implementation of the Paris Agreement. She serves as Senior Director of the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law (CISDL); and as a founding Fellow of the Centre for Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Governance (CEENRG) and Affiliated Fellow of the Lauterpacht Centre for International Law (LCIL) at the University of Cambridge. She has published over twenty law books in four languages with Oxford University Press, Cambridge University Press, Kluwer, Routledge and others; authored over 160 articles and reports; edits the Cambridge University Press Book Series on Implementing Kinga Debissso is Political Advisor at the Hungarian Ministry of Justice. Previously, she was PhD student and lecturer at the Department of European Law at Pázmány Péter Catholic University, and was chief legal advisor at the Office of the Commissioner for Fundamental Rights of Hungary. She also served as international legal advisor at the Hungarian Ministry of Public Administration and Justice. Her main research areas are European foreign policy, development policy and environmental law.

Ole Kristian Fauchald is Professor at the Department for Public and International Law, University of Oslo. Previously, Dr Fauchald worked as an adviser to the UN treaty negotiations on sustainable development and served on the editorial boards of seven law journals. Through the UN and for key countries, she negotiates and implements sustainable development treaties on biodiversity, climate change, natural resources, trade and investment, earning the international Justitia Regnorum Fundamentum and other awards, and serving as senior legal advisor to the UNFCCC, the Convention on Biological Diversity and the Ramsar Convention. She is laureate of the H.E. Judge C. G. Weeramantry International Justice Award, and serves on the International Law Association, the Voices of Future Generations Children’s Initiative, and the World Bank’s Law Justice and Development Environment and Natural Resources TWG, and has founded over a dozen organisations for justice, environment, human rights and sustainable development. She holds a DPhil of International Law from Oxford, a Masters of Environmental Management from Yale, the BCL and LLB law degrees from McGill, and a BA Hons, and she speaks six languages.

Jona David is an award-winning UN Child Author, and his fourth children’s book, The Cosmic Climate Invention, has recently been released. His brightly illustrated volumes highlight children’s rights to a clean environment and education. Jona David has been writing since he was 8. When he was told at 7 that he had dyslexia, he was determined to overcome it by memorising the 8,000 most common words in English, and then wrote his first story, The Epic Eco-Inventions. As Gold Award winner and Child Author for Europe and North America in a series of books to celebrate the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, he published The Epic Eco-Inventions at the age of 9, The Great Green Vine Invention at the age of 10, and The Mechanical Chess Invention at 11. His books have been translated into four UN languages, with over 1,000 copies sold and downloads in forty countries. As part of this commitment, Jona speaks about the rights of future generations internationally. Jona addressed the UN Children’s Summit in New York for the launch of the world’s Sustainable Development Goals in 2015. He won Pupil of the Year 2016 in the Cambridge Education Awards, second place worldwide (twice) in the Trust for Sustainable Living international sustainability essay competitions and schools debates in Oxford and in Dubai, and the Justitia Fundamentum Junior prize in Europe, among other awards, for his writings and awareness-raising for children’s rights, the environment, education, and empowerment.
Ministry of Environment for two years, before returning to the Faculty as postdoctoral researcher and subsequently associate professor. From 2006 to 2007, Dr Fauchald spent a year as guest researcher at Peking University. Since 2009 he has been a part-time researcher at the Fridtjof Nansen Institute. Dr Fauchald focuses on national and international environmental law, international trade law (WTO), and international investment law. He has also published on human rights law, is a member of the Research Group on Internationalisation of Law and the Research Group on Natural Resources Law, and is on the steering group of the project ‘The Legitimate Roles of the Judiciary in the Global Order’ (awarded Centre of Excellence Status). He has teaching experience in public international law, international environmental law, international trade law, international investment law, constitutional law, environmental law, and administrative law. He graduated as cand. jur. at the Law Faculty, University of Oslo in 1991, and received his dr. juris from the Faculty for his thesis ‘Environmental Taxes and Trade Discrimination’, published by Kluwer International in 1998.

Andrew Flynn is Senior Lecturer in Environmental Policy and Planning. He has a background in policy analysis and environmental geography. His principal research interests have been in the making and delivery of policy on sustainable development, the implementation of policy, and its evaluation. In exploring the dynamics of policy and regulation, Professor Flynn pays particular attention to the food system. His work on food supply chains and technological innovations in the food system have provided insights into the relationships between the state and key economic interests and how these have led to new patterns of regulation. This, in turn, has helped to inform work on environmental regulation, particularly in relation to the role of supply chains.

Sándor Fülöp is President of the Hungarian Environmental Management and Law Association (EMLA) and was First Parliamentary Commissioner for Future Generations in Hungary from 2008 to 2012. Prior to this, he worked as a public prosecutor and executive director of Hungary’s principal non-profit environmental law firm. Dr Fülöp has also been a member of the compliance committee of the Aarhus Convention, the first international convention on access to information, access to decision-making, and access to justice in environmental matters. He works on public interest environmental cases as a private attorney, teaches, and does international consultancy work in environmental law and policy matters. Dr Fülöp has authored numerous publications in the field of environmental protection legislation, including ‘Environmental Protection Democracy in Practice: Handbook on Community Participation for Environmental Protection and Water Management Authorities’ (2002), ‘Some Internal Contradictions of the Environmental Protection Law: Is the Re-Codification Necessary?’ (2002), and ‘Preliminary Examination – Impact Study – IPPC’ (2007).
Markus W. Gehring is Director of Studies in Law at Hughes Hall, Lecturer in Law and a Fellow of the Lauterpacht Centre for International Law at the University of Cambridge. Previously, he served for two years as Tutor in Sustainable Development Law, and he was also Fellow in Law at Robinson College from 2005 to 2012. He has been a Visiting Professor in several law faculties around the world and held a Jean Monnet Research Chair ad personam in Sustainable Development Law at the University of Ottawa Law Faculty in Canada. He is also affiliated Lecturer in European and International Law and Senior Research Associate in the Centre for Rising Powers in the Politics and International Studies Department, and an affiliated Lecturer in the Department of Land Economy, a Founding Fellow of the Centre for Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Governance (C-EENRG), and an Associate of the Centre for Climate Mitigation Research (4CMR). He serves as Lead Counsel for Sustainable Trade, Investment and Finance Law with the Centre of International Sustainable Development Law (CISDL), based at McGill University, and as Expert in the Centre for European Legal Studies (CELS) at the University of Cambridge. A member of the Frankfurt am Main and Ontario Bars, he practised European and international trade law with Cleary Gottlieb in their Brussels office. Prior to joining Robinson College, he was a tutor in Public International Law at University College, Oxford. He co-edits the Cambridge University Press book series on Implementation of Sustainable Development Treaties and is author of several publications on international law, the EU, and sustainable development. He holds a JSD and LLM from Yale, a Dr iur from Hamburg, and an MA from the University of Cambridge.

Alexandra R. Harrington is Research Director and Lead Counsel for Peace, Justice and Governance with the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law and Fullbright Canada Special Foundation Fellow at the Balsillie School of International Affairs in Waterloo, Canada. She held the 2018–2019 Fullbright Canada Research Chair in Global Governance, based at the Balsillie School of International Affairs, and holds a doctoral degree in law from McGill University Faculty of Law. Dr Harrington is the author of International Organizations and the Law and the forthcoming International Law and Global Governance: Treaty Regimes and Sustainable Development Goals Interpretation. She is the Director of Studies for the International Law Association Colombian branch, a member of the International Law Association Committee on the Role of International Law in Sustainable Natural Resource Management for Development, and a professor at Albany Law School. She also guest lectures globally on topics related to international law, environmental law, global governance, and sustainable development. Dr Harrington has served as a consultant for entities such as the Commission for Environmental Cooperation of the North American Agreement on Environmental Cooperation and the UNEP. Dr Harrington’s publications address a variety of fields relating to international law, including environmental law, legal issues relating to climate change, natural resources regulation, international organisations, international human rights law, international child’s rights, international trade law, corporate social responsibility, and criminal law.

András Jakab is Professor of Law at the University of Salzburg and former Director of the Institute for Legal Studies at the Hungarian Academy of Sciences in Budapest, where he also holds a tenured research chair. He served as Schumpeter Fellow at the MPIL, where he lead a five-year project on Constitutional Reasoning in a Comparative Perspective. Formerly, he held research and teaching positions at the Pázmány Péter Catholic University in Budapest (2010–2011), the Centro de Estudios Políticos y Constitutionales (CEPC) in Madrid (2008–2010), the University of Liverpool (2006–2008), Nottingham Trent University (2004–2006), the MPIL (2003–2004), and the Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Budapest (2001–2003).

Sébastien Jodoin is Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Law of McGill University, where he directs the Law, Governance & Society Lab. He is also a member of the McGill Centre for Human Rights and Legal Pluralism, an Associate Member of the McGill School of Environment, and a Faculty Associate of the Governance, Environment & Markets Initiative at Yale University. His research focuses on legal and policy solutions to complex environmental and social problems that cut across multiple fields and levels of governance. His areas of interest include sustainable development, transnational law, public policy, environmental law and governance, climate change, human rights, disability, social innovation, and socio-legal research. Professor Jodoin currently serves as a principal investigator for research grants awarded by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada and the Fonds québécois de recherche sociétés et culture. He holds a PhD in environmental studies from Yale University, an MPhil in international relations from the University of Cambridge, an LLM in international law from the London School of Economics, and a BCL and LLB from McGill University. Professor Jodoin recently served as the president of Génération d’idées, a think tank focused on the interests and participation of Quebeckers aged 20–35. Prior to his appointment at McGill University, he worked for the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law, the Canadian Centre for International Justice, Amnesty International Canada, and the United Nations International Criminal Tribunals for Rwanda and the former Yugoslavia. Professor Jodoin has received numerous awards and honours, including the Transnational Environmental Law Fifth Anniversary Issue Prize, the 2012 Public Scholar Award from the Yale Graduate School of Arts & Sciences, a Doctoral Scholarship from the Pierre Elliott Trudeau Foundation, a Doctoral Fellowship from the Social Sciences and Humanities and Research Council of Canada, and a Public Interest Law Articling Fellowship from the Law Foundation of Ontario. He currently serves as the Principal Investigator for an SSHRC Insight Development Grant on the role of human rights in transnational climate change law and advocacy.
Erick Kassongo is Legal Research Fellow with the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law (CISDL), focusing on the issues of climate change governance, adaptation and mitigation, sustainable landscapes investments, and sustainable development. Mr Kassongo is also Director of Centre Congolais pour le Développement Durable (CODED) and national coordinator of Initiative Climat REDD (ICR) in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, as well as a member of the African Union expert working group on extractive industries and environmental and human rights violations. As a lawyer and climate activist from the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), he has fought environmental cases on behalf of indigenous communities and describes his legal battles to stop deforestation.

Ludwig Krämer is a leading expert on environmental law and policy in the European Union, Senior Counsel of Client Earth, and head of the EU’s Aarhus Centre, where he is instrumental in promoting access to information and rights of participation. Dr Krämer was a judge at the Landgericht Kiel (1969–2004). He joined the European Commission in 1972, serving in a series of senior legal positions until his retirement in 2004 with the distinction of being the longest-serving official of the European Commission in the field of environmental protection.

Friederike Kurre is Research Assistant at the German Bundestag (Office to Dr Matthias Heider MP, Committee of Economic Affairs and Energy), and Legal Trainee at Oberlandesgericht (Higher Regional Court) Brandenburg an der Havel. Previously she worked as research assistant at the European Legal Studies Institute in Osnabrück, and was junior research fellow at the Office of the Hungarian Ombudsman for Future Generations.

Antonio G. M. La Viña is Executive Director of the Manila Observatory, a Jesuit scientific research institution with research work in the fields of atmospheric and earth science in the Philippines and the Southeast Asian region. For ten years, he was the Dean of the Ateneo School of Government, taking this position in 2006 when he returned to the Philippines after an eight-year stint in a Washington DC environmental think tank, the World Resources Institute (WRI). From 1996 to 1998, Dr La Viña was the Undersecretary for Environment and Natural Resources of the Philippines. He is co-founder of the Legal Rights and Natural Resources Center – Friends of the Earth Philippines. Dr La Viña is a lead negotiator for the Philippines in the climate change negotiations. He played prominent and leadership roles in Kyoto in 1997 as the chair of the land use change and forestry negotiations and in Copenhagen in 2009, where he chaired the negotiations on Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Degradation (also known as REDD-plus). At the Durban Climate Change Conference last December 2011, Dr La Viña once again chaired REDD-plus negotiations and succeeded in getting 195 countries to an agreement on REDD-plus Finance, which has been characterised as the maximum, not least, common denominator. Aside from climate change, Dr La Viña is an authority on a range of subjects and has published dozens of books, papers, and articles on law and governance, including constitutional law, indigenous people’s rights, biodiversity and biotechnology, sustainable agriculture, trade and environment, mining, public ethics, leadership, local governance, social accountability, and social entrepreneurship.

Odeeth Lara Morales is Post-Doctoral Fellow working for the project Implementing Sustainable Community Plans in the School of Environment, Enterprise and Development (SEED) at the University of Waterloo. She holds a PhD in the discipline of Marketing, Enterprise and Sustainable Tourism from Anglia Ruskin University (United Kingdom), and has taught Sustainable Tourism and Management courses at Lord Ashcroft International Business School (LAIBS) in Cambridge. Dr Morales is passionate about sustainability and about achieving the global Sustainable Development Goals on a local level through the implementation of sustainable community plans, and the development of environmental programmes, collaborative strategies, and market-based instruments and approaches. She has participated in international conferences such as the UNESCO Week for Peace and Sustainable Development, the Conference of the Parties to the Convention on Biological Diversity (COP13), and the United Nations Sustainable Development Summit.

Peter Lawrence is Senior Lecturer at the University of Tasmania (UTAS) Law School, where he teaches international law and supervises the University of Tasmania Law Review. He is interested in the interface between ethics, justice, climate change, and international law, and his interests include not just substantive justice but also procedural justice and the question of how institutions which purport to represent future generations can be justified in terms of legitimacy. Prior to joining UTAS, Professor Lawrence worked for the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade Canberra (1989–2004), which included working as the First Secretary for the Australian Permanent Mission to the United Nations in Geneva (1996–1999). This involved leading Australian delegations negotiating environment agreements and chairing a contact group which produced the first rolling text of the optional protocol to the UN Convention against torture. In 2011, Professor Lawrence was a visiting fellow at ANU Centre for Public and International Law. In 2013, he successfully defended his PhD at the University of Tilburg in the Netherlands, and in 2014 he published Justice for Future Generations, Climate Change and International Law (Edward Elgar Press 2014). Professor Lawrence has been an active member of the European Science Foundation network on Human Rights to a Green Future coordinated by the University of Utrecht Ethics Institute and was a visiting fellow at this Institute from October to December 2016. He has made presentations in recent years at the University of Oxford, the University of Kobe Japan, Australian National University, Monash University, University of Sydney Law School, the University of Utrecht (Ethics Institute, Law Faculty, Middleburg Roosevelt College), and Tilburg University Law Faculty.
Notes on Contributors

Renato Machado is Federal Prosecutor for Environmental Matters and Citizen’s Rights in the state of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and specializes in environmental Brazilian law. He was appointed by the General Federal Prosecutor as member of the National Council of the General Prosecutor’s environment commission and is the Ministério Público Federal’s adjunct coordinator of environmental matters in the state of Rio de Janeiro. In 2009 he monitored Operation Oxossi, Brazil’s largest ever nationwide operation against illegal hunting and trade in wildlife, led by the Brazilian Federal Police in cooperation with Interpol’s Environmental Crime Programme.

Jaykumar Menon is Founder of the Open Source Pharma Foundation, which aims to generate affordable new cures in areas of great health need, and of the India Nutrition Initiative, which is developing DFS, a salt that is double-fortified with iron and iodine, to address malnutrition caused by iron deficiency. An international human rights lawyer working at the intersection of human rights and global health, Mr Menon is also a Visiting Scientist at the Harvard School of Public Health and a Research Fellow at the Centre for International Sustainable Development Law at McGill University. He holds a JD and a Master of International Affairs from Columbia University and a BA from Brown.

James McKenzie has been Associate Chair of the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) since 2017. Mr McKenzie is a skilled mediator and adjudicator and is highly respected by peers and practitioners. He was appointed to the OMB as Vice Chair in 2007, bringing a wealth of knowledge and experience in the areas of conflict management and alternative dispute resolution to the Board. As a Vice Chair of the OMB, Mr McKenzie has played an important role in training Members, reviewing draft decisions and assisting with case management issues. He has also contributed to improving tribunal processes related to efficient adjudication and has enhanced tribunal processes related to the provision of mediation services. Mr McKenzie is a professional mediator and planner and has taught mediation, negotiation, and dispute resolution in the School of Urban and Regional Planning at Ryerson University, in the Faculty of Environmental Studies at York University, and in the Peace and Conflict Studies Program at Royal Roads University. He was formerly a member of the Canadian Institute of Planners and, until his appointment to the Board, was a Registered Professional Planner. Mr McKenzie holds a Master’s degree in Environmental Studies from York University and a Bachelor of Arts degree in Urban and Regional Planning from Ryerson University.

Salim Nakjavani is Adjunct Professor at the University of University of the Witwatersrand. From 2011 to 2015, Professor Nakjavani served as a United Nations prosecutor in the criminal proceedings against the senior Khmer Rouge leaders in Cambodia, where he participated in investigations, a multi-year trial, and complex appeals. Between 2002 and 2003, as part of the team that established the Office of the Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court, he was responsible for the drafting of the first Code of Conduct for international prosecutors and helped to develop the suite of legal tools known today as the Case Matrix and Legal Tools Database. In the intervening periods, he has held academic posts in the two leading public universities in South Africa, where he taught and published in the areas of legal ethics, legal writing, constitutional law, public international law, and international criminal law. Professor Nakjavani holds qualifications in three legal systems and has advised on justice and rule of law efforts in Indonesia, East Timor, Cambodia, Bangladesh, and Uganda. He graduated magna cum laude in law at McGill University (Canada) and went on to the University of Cambridge, where he won the Whewell Scholarship in International Law in 2002. He serves on the editorial boards of the Constitutional Court Review and the Forum for International Criminal and Humanitarian Law. He is fluent in French, with working experience in the francophone civil law systems.

Alan Netherwood is Director of Cynnal Cymru: Sustain Wales and Honorary Research Fellow of the School of Geography and Planning, Cardiff University. He has worked in Wales since 1993 for local government (Cardiff Council), academia (BRASS Research Centre, Cardiff University), Environment Agency Wales, and voluntary bodies in the fields of sustainable development and climate change. Professor Netherwood chaired the Welsh local government sustainable development officers network SDCC for three years and served on the Environment Agency’s UK Climate Change Science Board. He was a visiting research fellow at the BRASS Centre in Cardiff University in 2004 while developing the Ecological Footprint of Cardiff, and holds a PhD in Environmental Management from the University of Central Lancashire and an MSc in Natural Resources Management from Leicester University. Professor Netherwood has a range of publications in practitioner journals, books, and conference papers in this field. He is currently working as a consultant with Welsh Local Government Association on their Sustainable Development Framework and on Climate Change, providing policy support to the Public and Third Sector, and has co-authored the Review of the Effectiveness of the Welsh Assembly Government Sustainable Development Scheme, with Cardiff University.

Damilola Olawuyi is Associate Professor of Law at Hamad Bin Khalifa University Law School and Chancellor’s Fellow and Director at the Institute for Oil, Gas, Energy, Environment and Sustainable Development (OGEES Institute), Afe Babalola University, Nigeria. A prolific and highly regarded scholar, Professor Olawuyi has practiced and taught law in Europe, North America, Asia, Africa, and the Middle East. His publications include three books and more than thirty articles, book chapters, and reports on petroleum law, energy, and international environmental law. His most recent publication is The Human Rights-Based Approach to Carbon Finance (Cambridge University Press 2016). Professor Olawuyi was formerly an international energy lawyer at Norton Rose Fulbright Canada LLP, where he served on the firm’s global committee on energy investments in Africa. He has delivered lectures on energy law in over twenty countries. Professor Olawuyi serves on the executive committees and boards of the American Society of International Law, the International Law Association, and the Environmental Law Centre, Alberta. He has been a visiting professor at Columbia Law School, New York, and China University of Political Science and Law. He is Editor-in-Chief of the Journal of Sustainable Development Law and Policy. Professor Olawuyi has been admitted as Barrister and Solicitor in Alberta, Canada; Ontario, Canada; and Nigeria.

Julia Pitts is Mediator and environmental law and governance consultant at Nature Resources. She has served as a Senior Manager on the Australian Office of the Commissioner for Sustainability and the Environment, as Senior Legislation Officer within both the Commonwealth and the ACT Government, and has worked with three independent ACT Commissioners for Sustainability and the Environment. Ms Pitts is a specialist trained in water governance, negotiation, and diplomacy with UNITAR, and environmental and public policy disputes with both CDR Associates in Boulder, Colorado and Duke University. She received an LLM from King’s College London, University of London and an LLB from the University of Hull.

Judit Pump is Senior Advisor to the Ombudsman for Future Generations in Hungary since 2013, and Honorary Assistant Professor of the Faculty of Law and Political Sciences of Pázmány Péter Catholic University, has been working in the field of environmental law for thirty years. Dr Pump’s research interests includes the regulatory system of environmental law, particularly civil law, the protection of natural resources, the public utility sector, and their relationships to human rights. She has teaching experience in graduate and postgraduate programmes of lawyers, economists, and engineers. Her main course is an introduction to the relationship between environmental law and civil law. She holds a PhD in environmental law and an LLM from ELTE Law School.

Marisa Quaresma dos Reis is Doctoral Candidate and Researcher at the Lisbon Research Centre of Public Law (Faculty of Law of the University of Lisbon). She is part of the International and European Law (IEL) research group and is a Research Fellow for the Portuguese Foundation for Science and Technology in the area of Political and Legal Sciences. Her interests are broad, covering international and European law, human and fundamental rights, constitutional and environmental law, and animal rights. She has a deep interest in applied ethics, political science, and philosophy, and has worked in the areas of family law, youth and children’s rights, and criminal procedure law as a former deputy district attorney. While a Research Fellow at the Foundation for the Rights of Future Generations (FRFG) in