Index

1812 Spanish constitution, 44–5 and universal male suffrage, 44 1847 and 1851 labor laws, 71
1865 Yat rebellion, 27, 35–7, 50, 59, 62, 72–4, 76, 86, 363 and Atlantic revolutions, 39, 49, 72 as combination of liberal-democratic and Maya norms, 49 and democratic representation, 37, 47, 72 interpreted as race war, 36, 72, 358 and liberal republicanism, 37 and Maya coerced labor, 36 and memories of Q’eqchi’ lower-class citizenship, 47 and political corruption, 36–7
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 36, 72–4, 358
and republican citizenship, 38 as response to abuses of Mayas, 37
as time-knot, 37, 358
1868 Economic Society commission, 70
1871 Liberal Revolution, 28, 73, 76–7, 79, 108, 358 and modernization project, 79 as state-building project, 108
as time-knot, 358
1873 and 1874 tierras baldías laws, 81
1877 labor law, 140
1879 Liberal constitution, 76, 108
1889 Alta Verapaz special decree, 129 and indigenous smallholders, 131 and Maya commoner petitions, 131–4 1890s indigenista laws, 146
1894 national land law, 144–5
1897 coffee crisis, 11, 28, 155, 191, 227
1920 elections, and political violence, 243
1920 National Assembly elections, 234
1921 San Pedro Carchá municipal council elections, 244 1927 constitutional reforms, 257
and coerced labor, 260
and foundations for vagrancy laws, 257, 260 labor strikes outlawed in, 257, 261 and literacy-based citizenship, 257, 261 and productive work, 261 and race and labor, 260 and restriction of Maya citizenship, 232, 257 as victory for coffee planters, 257 and work as social obligation, 261 1929 stock market crash, 11, 262, 293, 362
1932 Central American Red Scare, 30, 233, 267, 293, 362
1945 constitution, 326–8
1947 labor code, 326, 336, 338–9, 354
1948 social security legislation, 326
1949 forced rental law, 341
1950 presidential election, 339
1952 agrarian reform, 11, 30, 314, 326, 342–51, 354–5, 363
and 1954 coup, 353
and campesino unions, 344–5 and capitalist development, 343 as challenge to Maya patriarchy, 342 as challenge to planter sovereignty, 344–5 1952 agrarian reform (cont.)
as challenge to politics of postponement, and coffee planters, 341
and conservative efforts to thwart, 339 and deepening of local democracy, 313, 341, 343, 345
as effort to increase national production of subsistence products, 343 and empowerment of rural Mayas, 314, 344–5
and historical justice, 346 and historical justice and memory, 342 and increased social and political tensions, 341
and land productivity, 347 and mass mobilization from below, 12 and Maya land conflicts, 346–7 and modified liberal-democratic metanarrative, 343
and organization of rural space, 314 post-coup reversal of, 352 and promotion of capitalist development, 345
and promotion of Maya consumption of nationalized manufactures, 343 provisions of, 344
and Q’eqchi’ demands for land redistribution, 363 and Q’eqchi’ memories of land possession, 347–8 and Q’eqchi’ demands for historical justice, 363
and Q’eqchi’–Germans, 348–9 and racialized politics, 350 and radicalization from below, 314 and redefinition of plantation spatial and territorial boundaries, 314 rural demand for, 340 and rural Maya land petitions, 342
as time-knot, 358, 365
and undermining of planter sovereignty, 314, 341, 344
and undermining of state power, 314 1954 coup, 11, 351, 353, 363 1985 transition to democracy, 370 affective bonds, 183
and fincas de mozos, 184
and German territorial sovereignty, 158 as plantation governance, 180 and reproduction of racialized difference, 180
agency, 2, 6–8, 16, 28, 79, 104, 114, 136, 147, 194, 217, 228, 236, 346, 351, 357 agrarian communities, 311–2 agrarian reform, 325, 344. See also 1952 agrarian reform; Decree 900 agricultural commissions, 107–8, 143 alcohol-related arrests, 284 Alma y vida de Cobán (J. M. Eduardo Portocarrero), and emergent regional identity of Alta Verapaz, 228 Alta Verapaz
and desires for national integrity and
agency, 196
and differences from the western highlands region, 10 border war with Izabal, 148 capitalist expansion of, and differences from western highlands, 9 differences from other coffee regions, 186, 360
as free of racial mixing and colonialism, 270
as national model, 8, 233
symbolic renaming of, 270 anachronism, 2, 4, 18, 20, 51, 112
and politics of postponement, 5 anti-Cabrera movement, 228, 234 anti-colonialism, 222, 281 anti-communism, 263, 352, 365, 367
and 1954 coup, 352
and racial whiteness, 350–1 anti-communist defense committees, 352 anti-fascism, 11, 30, 312, 315, 322, 355, 363 and anti-German nationalism, 294 and anti-imperialist nationalism, 30 and democracy, 313
global, 315, 161
and Guatemala City, 313 and middle class, 312 and social reforms, 313 and teachers, 312
and university students, 312, 316
and World War II, 310
anti-German nationalism, 11, 223, 269, 271, 290, 308, 312, 315, 319–21, 325
and anti-fascism, 294, 310
and anti-Semitism, 223 and calls to expropriate German properties and deport Germans, 310

© in this web service Cambridge University Press
www.cambridge.org
Index

and German economic predominance in Alta Verapaz, 225 and inability of planters to secure credit, 225 and state fairs, 299
and unfulfilled expectations of social mobility and progress, 225
and World War I, 223, 225
anti-German wartime measures, and World War I, 225 anti-immigrant discourse, 105 anti-imperialism, 11, 322 and Tezulutlán, 301 anti-Ubico demonstrators, 320 Árbenz, Jacobo, 313, 340, 355, 364
and agrarian reform, 341
and Maya expectations for distribution of national plantations, 342 and modification of 1949 forced rental law, 341 and Regional Planters Association campaign against, 340 and unwillingness to return nationalized German properties, 335 archives, 24, 113, 371
Archives of Delinquency, 287–8 Arévalo, Juan José, 313, 321, 325–6, 328, 364 and agrarian communities, 332
and anti-communism, 328
and army support for coffee planters, 329 and cultural reforms for Maya assimilation, 329 and enforcement of vagrancy laws, 329 and prohibition of rural unions, 329 and spiritual socialism, 325, 328
and unwillingness to return nationalized German properties, 335 artisan societies, 193, 195, 198–9, 212 ASKI marks scheme, 299
Association of Agriculturalists, 233 Asturias, Miguel Ángel, 252, 297 and influence of studies with José Vasconcelos, 253
and mestizaje, 29
Atlantic Charter, 312, 315
Atlantic revolutions, 39, 49, 72, 358
August 1920 elections, 243
Authentic Liberal Party, 353 autonomous peasant economy, 51 autonomy, 27, 266
and Q’eqchi’ resident laborers, 170 and usufructuary land rights, 61 ayuntamientos, 44, 47
Barrios, Justo Rufino, 79
Batres Jáuregui, Antonio, 141
and abolition of mandamientos, 141 Benjamin, Walter, 6, 14 and concept of Now-Time (Jetzt-Zeit), 6 boj, 35–6, 49, 57, 269–70, 282–4
and racial degeneration, 283
and production and consumption of, 282–4 production of, 282–3, 362 Q’eqchi’ dependence on production for income, 283 boundaries, 95, 98, 103
contestation of, 103
and efforts to turn Mayas into stable labor force, 85 and lack of fixity, 98, 346 and political modernity, 109 and Tzulutaq’ symbols, 95 boundary conflicts, 60, 99, 103, 109 and administration of mandamiento labor, 99–100 between Carchá and Cobán, 102 and historical time, 99
and land titling, 100 and mandamiento labor, 99, 103 and Q’eqchi’ flight from mandamientos, 99, 148 and Q’eqchi’ labor, 147–8 and racialization, 99
and taxation, 99
boundary-making as defense of civilization against barbarism, 101 and Maya cosmography and memories, 92 Bourbon Reforms, 43–4
Buß, Gerhard Enno, 296
Caal, Tiburcio, 97, 120, 184, 258 ethnographic writing of, 292 cabildo, 41
cadastral maps, 95
campesino unions, 344–5 capital acquisition, 156 capitalism, 7, 13, 113, 138, 147, 371 and civilization metanarrative, 84 and Maya reciprocity and solidarity, 69 capitalism (cont.)
and modernity, 12
prioritized over liberal democracy, 37
Carrera, Rafael, 3, 38, 46, 73
castas, 69
 caste hierarchy, 72
caste war, 122–3
Castillo, José León, 242–3 Catholic Church, 39, 41 censo lands, 65–7, 81
censorship, 251
Central Coffee Bureau, 257
Chacón, Lázaro, 260, 263
Chisek, 100
citizenship, 264, 357
and civilization, 75–6
Maya desires for, 18
civil defense patrols, 369–70 civil-religious hierarchy, 48, 51, 240–1 and capitalist expansion, 69 and combination of town councils and cofrías into single system, 47
and mandamientos, 69
and Q’eqchi’ communities, 48 and reduction of Q’eqchi’ commoner local power, 47 and reinvigoration of indigenous hierarchies and mediation, 47 civilization, 228
and citizenship, 75–6
prioritized over liberal democracy, 37 and public conduct, 106
racialization of, 104
civilizing metanarrative, 13, 20, 55, 137–8, 150, 181, 217, 232, 266, 271, 312, 325, 357
and capitalism, 84
as counter to invocation of liberal-democratic one, 266 disciplinary force of, 278 and European immigration, 13
and ladino nationalism, 193
and nationalization of German properties, 312
and October Revolution, 325 privileged over liberal-democratic metanarrative, 130 and Q’eqchi’ contestation of, 113
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 106, 137
and Q’eqchi’ unsettling of, 134 and racial whitening, 84 re-entrenchment of in response to Q’eqchi’ political mobilization, 232 and response to Unionist Club Freedom of the Indian petition, 237 and state-building, 84 and unproductive laborers as noncitizens, 278 and Western civilization as highest cultural form, 13 class hierarchies, and coffee plantations, 360 class mobility, and whitening, 19 Cobán, 39, 65, 67, 100. See also Cobán departmental fair and arrival of working-class women, 206 and demographic and socioeconomic changes, 197, 204 expansion of commerce, 206 and indigenous landscape, 341 plaza, as site of ceremony and spectacle, 211 and public policing of social conduct, 208 and rural migration to, 197, 205–7 and socioeconomic inequality, 208 urban associations and modernization projects, 209–11 urban population of, 197 and urban reforms to address racial anxieties, 128
Cobán departmental fair, 299
Coc, Pedro, 88, 106, 133, 145, 184, 346 Coc Delgado, José, 94, 101–2, 106, 137 coerced labor, 2, 4, 7, 13, 20, 64, 68, 89, 104, 108, 142, 265, 360, 369–70. See also coercion and 1927 constitutional reforms, 260
abolition of, 28
and civilizing metanarrative, 82
and coffee crisis, 163
and coffee plantations, 80 continuation of after abolition of mandamientos, 142 drafts, 69
and exemptions from, 89 institutionalization of, 72
justified by claims of Maya unresponsiveness to economic incentives, 126 justified by unpreparedness for free wage labor, 19 legacies of, 353
and Maya peasant activism to end, 325
Index

and militarized recruitment, 124
and modernity, 281
and narratives of the past as justification, 259–60
and October Revolution, 125
and payment of below-subsistence wages, 117
and politics of postponement, 6 in public works, as planter discipline, 128 Q’eqchi’ flight from, 110 and Q’eqchi’ moral crisis, 360 and racial language, 19 and racial regeneration, 128 reform of, 28
reintroduction of, 28, 258 and road construction, 281 as slavery, 110
as solution for perceived Maya backwardness, 13 temporary abolition of, 28 and wealthy planter recognition of unsustainability, 165 and zapadores, 142 coercion, 185. See also coerced labor and creation of fincas de mozos, 165
and fincas de mozos, 178
and use of the past to justify, 259 coffee, 140. See also other entries beginning with “coffee” harvest, and Q’eqchi’ labor strikes, 245 and increased state revenue, 4 as symbol of foreigners and exploitation, 247 coffee capitalism, 17, 20, 38, 152, 359 crises, blamed on Mayas, 162–3, 201
and Liberals, 359
coffee crisis, 213
coffee economy and ladino struggles with German predominance, 229
and World War I, 222
coffee entrepreneurs, 2 coffee expansion, 9
coffee plantations, 146 and adaptation of Q’eqchi’ patriarchal norms, 180 as constriction of sociality, 168 cultural translations of liberal ideals and Q’eqchi’ political ontologies, 178 and discipline, 169
and fragmented tenure arrangements, 166 gendered hierarchies, 360
and incomplete recognition of boundaries, 148 labor, as stigma of Indianness, 195 and limits to state expansion, 360 and physical punishment, 178 and racial, class, and gender hierarchies, 152
racialization of, 84
and racialization of resident laborers, 168 and rape, 182–3
state control over labor, 276 and stable labor force, 360
as security for rural Mayas, 346 as spaces of intimacy and violence, 185
and violence, 246
coffee planters, 17. See also German coffee planters; Q’eqchi’ coffee planters; planters and alienation of Maya lands, 72 and appropriation of Q’eqchi’ patriarchal duties, 179–80 and battles against agrarian reform, 349 and burning of milpas, 170 and censo lands, 66
and challenge to planter sovereignty, 280 and coercive violence, 170 competition, and Q’eqchi’ search for better working conditions, 178 and destruction of laborer property, 350
and discipline, 341
and discouragement of recourse to outside authorities, 172 and disputes over plantation boundaries, 341 and disruption of Maya self-sufficiency, 174 and efforts to reinstate social order, 259 and efforts to thwart Maya mobility, 167, 170 and efforts to thwart Maya political participation, 339 and falsification of laborer debt records, 174 and firing of Decree 900 petitioners, 350 and forced removal of Mayas from communities of origin, 170 and frustration with mandamientos, 143 and high debts, 162
and incarceration of laborers, 170

© in this web service Cambridge University Press
www.cambridge.org
Index

382

and influenza epidemic, 224–5
and labor acquisition through purchase of inhabited land, 143 and lack of concern for worker welfare, 308 and lack of a reliable labor force, 257 and Liberal Party, 247
and limits of liberalism, 178 and negotiation of state officials on plantations, 171 and mandamiento and military exemptions, 173 and Maya racial improvement, 361 and need for resident labor, 166 and obligations to Maya laborers during influenza epidemic, 225 and obstacles to expanded production, 257 and partial territorial sovereignty, 152, 187
and patriarchal relations, 180
as plantation patriarchs, 152 and plantation as prosperity and civilization, 168 and preparation for agrarian reform, 341 and privatized discipline, 169, 178 and privatized mandaimientos, 143 and promises to civilize Mayas, 127 and purchase of individually titled communal land, 29
racialization of, 136
refusal to allow collection of statistics on land, 342 refusal to improve working conditions, 245 and removal of troublesome workers, 341 and resident laborer dependency, 173 and response to Great Depression, 262 and sale of labor rights, 175 and seasonal labor, 68 and state access to plantations, 275 and strikes, 341
and strikes and land invasions, 247–8 and subsistence land, 173 and threats to Maya subsistence lands, 170 united by anxieties about racial disorder, 247 use of Maya institutions for land and labor acquisition, 71 and usurpation of state role in policing the population, 170 and vagrancy laws, 233, 246

and violence, 246, 251
and whippings, 170
coffee production, 50, 62, 104, 358, 360 and disruption of Q’eqchi’ reciprocity, 108, 110 expansion of, 4, 73, 109, 131
and fear of Maya uprisings, 50 and foreign settlement, 2 and immigration, 62
and increased demand for Q’eqchi’ labor and land, 62 and new settlers in Alta Verapaz, 2 and overlap with indigenous communities, 4 and popular discontent, 50 and Q’eqchi’ social and political life, 62
racialization of, 136
and social dislocations, 197
and stable labor force, 360
and state expansion, 62 cofradia properties, Liberal state expropriation of, 82 cofradías, 41, 48, 58–9, 134, 306 growth of, 306
and mandamiento income, 69 and Maya cultural autonomy, 306 and Q’eqchi’ household autonomy, 58 Cold War, 354, 363
collective contracts, 177 colonial-era institutions, 3 colonial-era titles, and land claims, 87 colonial exploitation, limited by bonds between Q’eqchi’ patriarchs and commoners, 42 colonial land titles, as justification of land ownership, 89 colonial legal system, 41–2 colonial mediation, 37
colonial state, 39
colonialism, 7, 20, 26, 226, 325
and German settlement, 322
and modernity, 12
colonization, and translation of indigenous cultural practices, 23 colonos, 67. See also resident laborers Comité de Unidad Campesina (CUC), 366
Comités Agrarios Locales, 345
Comités Agrarios Departamentales, 345 commodity exchange, and space, 17 commodity fetish, 152
communal lands
appropriation of, 64
division of, 29
privatization of, 84 and settler access to, 65–7 subdivision of, 133–4 Communism accusations of as political retribution, 352 indigenous, fears of, 263 Communist Party, 251, 263, 366 disinterest in indigenous classes, 251
and labor unions, 252
and rural organizing, 263 Communist Party of Guatemala, 251, 352, 365 concubinage, 181
Confederation of Guatemalan Laborers, 332 conflict, and concentration of land, 105 conquest, national debate over, 301 Conservative government, and restoration of colonial practices, 39 Conservative-era mandamientos, income from given to Maya town councils, 113 Conservative-restored republic, and merged civil-religious hierarchy, 47
Conservatives, 13, 115
and cooptation of Maya leadership structures, 80
and failure to act against appropriation of communal lands, 66
and free wage labor market, 70
and mandamientos, 70–1
and politics of postponement, 47
and pro-indigenous stance, 86 and refusal to enforce indigenous communal property rights, 66 Constitutional Assembly, 326–7 constitutional guarantees, curtailment of, 124, 316
constitutional monarchy, and indigenous equality, 44
containment, 204 contract violations, and resident laborers, 173 contracts and rural Q’eqchi’ violations of, 250, 266 and wage advances, 143
corporal punishment, 169 counterinsurgency campaign, 366, 368–70 counterrevolution, 351, 361 counterrevolutionary government, 364 courts, 287
and defense of honor, 278–9
and rural state expansion, 284 and shaman contestation of charges, 286 credit, extension of by German settlers, 157 crime, 205, 207
and racial anxiety, 128
racialization of, 287
criminality, 206–7
as threat to modernity, 287
cross-racial alliances, 134 cultural assimilation and education, 330 cultural translations, 22 curanderos. See shamanism customary land use rights, 89–92, 106 cyclical time, 16, 113, 357 cyclical view of history, 121 de la Cruz, Juan, 111, 113–15, 128, 147, 184 as embodiment of racial anxieties about urban space, 128
pilgrimage of, 114
racialization of as Maya, 259 and rumors of new conspiracies, 122–3 trial for sedition, 111, 115 as urban racial boundary-crosser, 123 de las Casas, Bartolomé, 301 death penalty, 272
death squads, 366
debt, and land loss, 146 debt contracts, 29
and Q’eqchi’ challenges to, 249 Q’eqchi’ demand for end to, 232 debt peonage, 142
abolition of, 268, 275–7
coexistence with mandamientos, 83
and wage advances, 280
Decree 657, and prohibition on sale or exchange of resident laborers, 173
Decree 853, 341
Decree 920, 346. See also 1952 agrarian reform
Index

Decree 900 petitions, 347
Decree 1995, 275–6
Decree 1996, 275–9
Decrees 1995 and 1996, 276–7, 280–1 democracy, 13, 113, 138, 147, 310, 312, 324
as challenge to Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 72
and politics of postponement, 361 democratic constitutions, and rural Maya empowerment, 38 democratic opening, 233, 265, 267 Democratic Party, 243 democratic representation, 44, 47 demographic growth, and precarity of rural life, 164 department of Labor, 265 department of National and intervened plantations, 321, 337
department of National plantations, 312 departmental Agrarian Committees, 345 departmental and national fairs, 269, 293, 299, 305
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 270
departamento agrario nacional (DAN), 344 dependency, 29, 173, 185 and fincas de molos, 178
and German settlement, 322
and land concentration, 105 as plantation discipline, 174, 178 and Q’eqchi’ reciprocity, 178
dictatorship, 325
Dieseloff, Erwin paul, 146, 156–7, 161, 166, 170–1, 177, 181, 225, 245, 251, 255, 261–2, 266, 271, 286, 292, 299, 346, 360
Dieseloff, Heinrich Rudolf (H. R.), 63
Dieseloff, William, 105, 118, 123, 279, 318, 350
and agrarian reform, 350
and planter sovereignty and patriarchal power, 350
difference, racialization of, 357 discipline, 204
and racial and class boundaries, 244 discourses of disgust, 207 disease, 341
disenchantment, 8, 359, 371 disenfranchisement, as violation of Q’eqchi’ norms, 47
Droege, hugo, 317, 334, 349, 351 earthquakes, 29, 222, 225 economic modernization, 271, 305 economic nationalism, 300 economic progress, 268 education, 199, 266, 328
as solution for Maya cultural stagnation, 238 ejército de guerrilla de los pobres (EGP), 366 ejidos, 50, 59, 65–7 and Q’eqchi’ efforts to title land, 88 Q’eqchi’ sale of plots on, 67 settler access to, 65–7 electoral politics, 233, 241, 339 limitations of, 246
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 240
and rural labor unions, 339
and rural Maya political mobilization, 232, 239–40
and rural Maya political mobilization, 240 elite ladino–German alliances, 233, 252, 362 against Mayas, 251, 267 and reassertion of racial hierarchies for labor acquisition, 257 as response to radical Maya mobilizations, 362
elite Q’eqchi’ women, and settler access to land through concubinage or marriage, 67 enemy trading lists, 225 equality
as challenge to Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 72
Maya notions of, 266
estrada Cabrera, Manuel, 29, 146, 188, 191, 361 and 1871 liberal revolution, 194 and appeal to urban plebeians, 193 and aristocratic moral reform, 194 and availability of historical agency and
civilization, 228
and brutality, 193, 221 and celebration of ladinos over aristocratic Europeans, 188
and coffee crisis, 227
compared with other nineteenth-century liberal dictators, 194–6 and confiscation of German properties and assets, 225
and construction of hospitals, 213
Index

and continuation of mandamientos, 146 and corruption, 221, 223 and debts to caudillismo, 196 and diatribes against corrupt aristocrats and Europeans, 193, 362 and differences from other nineteenth-century liberal dictators, 196 and educational uplift and social mobility, 188 and electoral fraud, 203 as embodiment of ladino nationalism, 194 and expansion of public education, 195 and failure to fully resolve politics of postponement, 229 forced resignation of, 233, 237 and honorable working classes, 194–5
and influenza epidemic, 225–7
and institutionalization of liberalism, 218
and ladino nationalism, 194, 197, 202, 362
and Liberal clubs and associations, 29, 193, 362 and mandated unions, mutual aid societies, and artisan societies, 195 and Minerva festivals, 11, 29, 191–2 and modernity for urban plebeians, 193
and modernization, 209
and modification of 1879 constitution, 203 and nationalism, 193
opposition to, 229, 233, 235
and organization of urban working classes, 198 overthrow of, 1, 29
and patronage politics, 195, 215
and police-state apparatus, 195 and political opposition to, 221 and political repression, 195, 220 and political terror, 193 and prohibition on commerce with blacklisted German firms, 225 protopopulism of, 193, 196, 227–8, 362
and racial silencing, 195
and reign of terror, 195 and rural political opposition, 233 and secret police, 193 and silencing of racial discourses, 197
and social mobility, 193
and social welfare societies, 212 and staged state theater, 29 and strategic blend of liberal-democratic and civilizing metanarratives, 217 and technical schools, 212 and Unionist clubs, 234 and urban modernization, 29, 212
and urban plebeians, 201
and US pressure to take anti-German measures, 225 and welfare associations, 29 ethnic clans, 39
ethnicization, 290, 307, 362 ethnographic writings, 308 eugenics, 268, 271, 274
post–World War II shifts away from, 329 Eurocentricity, 14, 113, 371 European immigration, 13, 30, 78, 251, 253
and mestizaje, 23–4
as solution for perceived Maya backwardness, 13
Europeanization, 307
Europeanizing modernity, 20 export production, 50 and Maya lands, 4
extra-economic coercion, 82, 142 fascism, 355
war against international, 312 Felice, Eduardo, 127, 137 female respectability, 206 fertile lands, conflicts over, 97 feudalism, 13, 113, 138, 312, 325, 343 fichas, 173, 183
fincas de mozos, 28, 68, 143, 146, 151, 186–7, 240, 360–1. See also coffee plantations and 1894 national land law, 144 and acquisition of land and labor, 186 and boundary markers, 168 as colony, 169
and combination of affection and violence, 28, 185 and commodification of Mayas, 151 compared with mandamientos, 163–4 creation of, 165–9 and creation via purchase of Maya-inhabited lands, 165 and debt, 154, 176
and dependency, 154
and direct relationships between coffee planters and laborers, 163
fincas de mozos (cont.)
and erosion of civil-religious hierarchy, 240 and erosion of native mediation, 240
expansion of, 143
and laborer dependency on coffee planters, 187 and management of sentiments, 185 modeled on ethnic clan lands, 166 and myths of interracial love and harmony, 151
as national model, 233, 238
and partial territorial sovereignty, 28, 152, 187 and patriarchal affection, 153
and patriarchal relations, 186
and plantation judicial system, 28 and planter sovereignty, 163, 185 and precarity of rural life, 164–5 and privatization of labor acquisition, 163
and privatized discipline, 163
and racial capitalism, 153–3, 162
and racialization of laborers, 151, 165 and reconstitution of ethnic clan lands, 165, 181 and reduced Maya mobility, 154 and representatives before state authorities, 28 and resident laborers, 142, 186
as security for rural Mayas, 164
and stable labor force, 68, 151, 164, 360
and subsistence lands, 151, 163 as tenuous political formations, 163, 185 and translation of communal labor reciprocity, 151 and translation of Q’eqchi’ ethics and ontologies, 153, 181, 186 and translation of Q’eqchi’ patriarchal protections, 151
and violence, 151, 153
food shortages, 131, 164, 187, 213
and mandamientos, 82
forced rental law, 341
foreign settlement, and coffee production, 2 foreign settlers, 38, 63–4, 73 Foucault, Michel, 14 fragmented land tenure arrangements, 60, 158 free labor market, 264
free wage labor, 28, 113, 124, 357
and politics of postponement, 359

freedom, 8, 116, 324 and liberalism, 110
Maya notions of, 266
freedom of the press, curtailment of, 258 frontier, 16, 97
frost, 359
and damage to crops, 111, 120 and hope for imminent historical rupture, 121 fugitive laborers, 121, 178

Gálvez, Mariano, 46
gendered ethnicity, 304 gendered hierarchies, and coffee plantations, 360 General Association of Agriculturists, 341
General Resettlement of the Indians, 23 Generation of 20 intellectuals, 231–2, 254
and Constitutional Assembly, 326 and disinterest in indigenous classes, 251 genocide, 367
German abandonment narrative, 298–9
German assets, freezing of, 316, 318, 321
German capital accumulation, 151 German Club, 156, 294–5, 302, 308 and celebration of Guatemalan independence, 252 and Nazism, 294, 301, 303 German coffee plantations, 148 rapid expansion of, 360 German coffee planters, 361. See also coffee planters; planters and adaptation of Maya patriarchal ethics, 179
and civilizing metanarrative, 181
and concentration of productive land in Alta Verapaz, 158 and consolidation of racial ascriptions and hierarchies, 151
and fincas de mozos, 360
and limited Q’eqchi’ mobility, 153 and Maya civilization, 187 and partial sovereignty, 168 and purchase of indebted plantations, 151 and self-perception as patriarchs, 179–80, 187 sexual unions with Q’eqchi’ women, 188;
see also rape
and territorial sovereignty, 18 and translation of Q’eqchi’ practices to plantation patriarchy, 181 German economic predominance, 201, 281 and Altaverapacence desires for national integrity and agency, 196 and ladino frustrations with, 228 German immigration celebration of, 255 interwar celebrations of, 2, 5–6 and interwar period, 236
as national model, 233
German and ladino coffee planters, conflicts among, 225 German–Maya mestizaje, 252–6, 266, 297, 314
as national model, 30, 233
as racial solution to stalled development, 233 as remedy for Guatemalan ills, 254
German National Socialism. See Nazism
German nationalism, 269, 315
German plantations, redistribution of, 325 German properties confiscation of during World War I, 225
expansion of, 151
fate of, 334
nationalization of, 8, 12, 29–30, 311–32, 319, 321, 326, 355 nationalization of and debates over use, 322 nationalization of and inflamed racial anxieties, 323 nationalization of and public response, 321–3 and public response to, 322 transferral to Department of National Plantations, 312 German return to Guatemala, and Q’eqchi’ anxieties about retribution for disloyalty, 334
German school, 308
German settlers, 10, 18, 20, 63, 103, 365 and familial metaphors and models, 180 as feudal and colonial holdover, 322 as feudal lords, 313
as imperialists, 313
and Nazism, 270
and reliance on ethnographic knowledge, 290 and return to Alta Verapaz, 333 and shamanism, 291
and similarities with Tz’uxultaq’as, 333 Germans, 314
deportations of, 8, 30, 316, 319 and hope of receiving expropriated properties, 334 and post–World War II return to Guatemala, 334 and preparations for intervention and expropriation, 317–18
racialization of, 148, 151, 162
Goubaud Carrera, Antonio, 292, 333 government responsiveness, lack of, 37 Great Depression, 30, 233, 262, 267–8, 276, 293 and coffee planter responses to, 262 and destabilization of coffee prices, 262 Guatemalan economic recovery from, 293
Guatemala City, 324
Guatemala–Germany Free Trade agreement, 148
Guatemalan anti-fascist, pro-democracy movement, 315
Guatemalan Civil War, 309
Guatemalan coffee planters, and lack of credit, 225
Guatemalan intellectuals, and doubts about Mayas’ capacity for civilization, 82 and Indian problem, 106
Guatemalan left, and shift of focus to rural Maya laborers, 261 Guatemalan nationality, temporary ethnicization and Europeanization of, 307 Guerrilla Army of the Poor, 366 habeas corpus, 112, 124
habilitación, 280
habilitadores, 143
health, 268
Herrera, Carlos, 237, 243, 250 military overthrow of, 251 and Q’eqchi’ electoral support for, 239 Hispanism, 301
historic justice, 313, 334, 348 historical time, 14, 17–18
and October Revolution, 355
and Q’eqchi’ struggles, 147 honor, 208, 271, 278–9, 287 and downtrodden mothers, 309 and multiracial sociability, 215 and urban working classes, 207
Index

honorability, 193–4, 227
and ladino nationalism, 193
and participation in modernization projects and liberal associations, 228 of urban plebeians emphasized over the rich, 214 honorable ladino artisans, as non-Maya and nonwhite, 202 honorable working classes, 198 and modernization projects, 212 hybrid formations of modernity, 25 hybrid, intercultural worlds, and native mediation, 23 hygiene, 197, 214, 288
and marketplace, 197
and racial and social anxieties, 341 Icó, José Ángel, 1, 18, 21, 232–3, 242, 245, 255, 260–1, 263, 265, 325, 332 arrest of, 249, 264, 333 blamed for labor strikes and land invasions, 248 blamed for Q’eqchi’ radicalization, 246 and campaign for indigenous-only municipal council in San Pedro Carchá, 244 and Carchá Agricultural Association, 333 cast as outside agitator, 248 charges of sedition against, 239 and Comunidad Agraria, 339 and connections with German and ladino elites, 240 correspondence with Jorge Ubico, 264 departmental inquiry into, 248 documentation for vagrancy law exemptions, 332 efforts to negotiate with Erwin Paul Dieseldorff, 245 and electoral politics, 239, 241
and exemptions for laborers, 241 imprisonment of, 265 and the Indigenous Agricultural Community of San Pedro Carchá, 280
and land invasions, 261
and Maya electoral politics, 240 as new type of Maya intermediary, 241 as new type of native intermediary, 240 and nonparticipation in civil-religious hierarchy, 241 and nonparticipation in cofradías, 241 and operation outside Q’eqchi’ patriarchal institutions, 242 as party organizer, 240 and Q’eqchi’ political mobilization, 232 represented as social deviant, 260 represented as threat to social order, 248, 333 and representation of rural Mayas, 242, 261 as target of state officials and coffee planters, 242 as unrecognized coffee planter, 241 immigrant settlers, 103. See also German coffee planters immorality, 207
and the upper classes, 201 imperialism, 312 import-substitution industrialization, 300 incarceration, 170, 266 indebted properties, purchase by German planters to expand control, 360 indecenty, 206–7
India bonita pageants, 304–5, 308
Indian problem, and landowner exploitation, 106, 118 Indianness, stigmas of, 195 indigeneity and contradictory place in nation, 306–7
racialization of, 307
separation from via Liberal associations, 203 indigenismo, 114, 134–5, 147, 270, 307–8 and critiques of coffee planter treatment of workers, 307
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 266, 310
Ubico-sanctioned version of, 308 and undermining of Maya peasant activists, 310 indigenista liberals, 141, 146 Indigenous Agricultural Community of San Pedro Carchá, 332 indigenous communities, and incorporation into plantations, 9 indigenous culture and association with the countryside, 305 and Cobán departmental fair, 299 equated with subversion, 368 indigenous domesticity, 305 indigenous education, 134, 141 indigenous knowledge, 79 indigenous labor, increased demand for, 3
Index

indigenous lands, increased demand for, 3 indigenous mobility, as threat to planter sovereignty, 308
indigenous peasant economies, 50 indigenous political projects, 25 indigenous social organization, 63 indigenous spiritualities, 20 indigenous subsistence production, 20 indigenous women, and constant threat of violence, 308. See also rape indolence, 4, 73, 112, 114–15, 141, 148, 162, 201–2, 265, 277–8, 287 and the wealthy, 201 inflation, 174
and 1897 coffee crisis, 155
influenza epidemic, 29, 223–7, 362 infrastructure, 268, 271, 299
and modernity, 280
insecurity, 341
Instituto Indigenista Nacional, 329
Instituto Nacional Indigenista, 329 intellectuals, and anti-fascist coalition, 315 interracial relationships, and patriarchal politics, 182
interwar coffee boom, 256–7 interwar immigration, 256 intimidation, 184. See also coercion itinerant vendors, 197, 206 justice, Maya notions of, 266 Kaqchikels, and mobilization for nationalized land, 324–5 labor, racialization of, 112, 114, 147, 151, 159 labor acquisition, and purchase of inhabited land, 143
labor battalions, 142 labor contracts, Q’eqchi’ Unionista demand for abolition of, 236
labor crisis, 151
labor disputes, as threats to planter sovereignty, 336
labor and land reform, and Q’eqchi’ and ladino political leader responses to expectations of, 332 labor laws, 275
confusion over, 328
labor mobilizations, crackdowns on by state officials and coffee planters, 232 labor movement, repression of, 264 labor problem, 251
labor raids, 117 labor recruiters. See habilitadores labor rights, 328
labor sharing, 57
labor shortages, 4, 69, 102, 130, 162, 332 blamed on Maya customs, 70 blamed on Maya hatred of labor, 126
and coffee production, 68
and jurisdictional boundaries, 102 labor strikes, 7, 29, 233, 241, 245–7, 249, 266, 262
coffee planter responses to, 247–8
as expression of reciprocity and solidarity, 241
and government crackdown on, 250 and military repression, 251 outlawed in 1927 constitutional reforms, 257, 261
and Q’eqchi’ political mobilization, 233 violent repression of, 7, 258 labor time, 246
commodification of, 357
as part of plantation capital value, 174 rural Q’eqchi’ repossession of, 245–6 labor unions, 195, 209 dissolution of, 265
labor unrest, 257
laborer debt, 29, 85, 176, 178, 280 difficulty repaying, 174
and fincas de mozos, 178
and politics of postponement, 176
and Q’eqchi’ reciprocity, 178 and reduction of mobility, 174 Los Lacandones, 111–12
ladino, shifting meanings of, 227 ladino anti-imperialist nationalism, and German nationalism, 301
ladino artisans, 202
and Communist Party of Guatemala, 251–2
and labor unions, 252
and national progress, 202 and opposition to Estrada Cabrera, 229 radicalization of, 251 ladino coffee planters, and calls for nationalization of German properties, 225
ladino indigenistas, 122, 134 ladino nationalism, 194–204, 227, 229 ladino nationalism (cont.)
and civilization, 195
and civilizing metanarrative, 193
and continued racialization of Mayas, 202 and exclusion of Mayas, 195 and fluid social and racial hierarchies, 227 and Generation of 20 intellectuals, 252 and honorability, 193–4, 228 and inclusion of Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 202 and inclusiveness of, 229 Indianness as foil of, 227 and liberal–democratic metanarrative, 193 and new social identity, 227 and participation in public festivals, 227
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 202, 227
and race performances, 227
and racial silencing, 193, 195
and rejection of mestizaje, 195, 202, 227 and shifting meanings of ladino, 228–30 and shifting racial discourses, 202 and shifting racial identifications, 229
and social mobility, 193–4
and urban modernization, 228
and urban plebeians, 193
and whiteness, 194
ladino political violence, as backlash to 1920 elections, 243–4 ladino racial anxieties, and sanitation, 243–4 ladino reformers, and multiparty competition, 331 ladinos
and anti-German nationalism, 270, 290
and anti-imperialist regional identity, 293 and aspirations to social betterment, 196 as authentic spirit of Alta Verapaz, 302 blamed for Estrada Cabrera dictatorship, 229, 253 and claims to peaceful conquest, 270, 301 and desire for full participation in progress and the civilized world, 188 as insufficiently civilized or European, 253 and local political power, 245 and membership in Liberal clubs and associations, 199
and modernity, 193
and postponed modernity, 188
and racial and class boundaries, 244 racial defects of, 253 and Tezulutlán anti-imperialism, 302 land, 266
land claims, 236
and memories of land possession and dispossession, 30 land concentration, 105, 342 and foreigners, 105 land division, and efforts to eliminate ambiguities, 95 land invasions, 7, 29, 233, 241, 245, 247, 249, 261, 266, 362
coffee planter responses to, 247–8
as expression of reciprocity and solidarity, 241
and government crackdown on, 250
and prior histories of possession, 29
and Q’eqchi’ political mobilization, 233 and violent repression, 7 land and labor reform, and reduced dependence on coffee exports, 343 land loss, and debt, 146 land privatization, 4, 66, 72, 78–9, 81, 114, 116, 133, 134–4, 145, 159, 363 1889 special decree for Alta Verapaz, 129, 134–4, 145
and 1894 national land law, 144–5 and border wars, 148
and coffee production, 4
and conflicts between Q’eqchi’ patriarchs and commoners, 132 and Conservative restrictions on, 64
institutionalization of, 86
and Liberal state, 83
and Liberals, 359
and mapping, 86
and Maya commoner petitions, 124–4 and Maya mobility, 84 Maya resistance to, 67
and Q’eqchi’ moral crisis, 115
and settler access to land, 67 and stable labor force for coffee production, 84 and tensions between Q’eqchi’ commoners and patriots, 133 land redistribution, 344 and Alta Verapaz, 314 expectations for, 30
and peasants and workers, 344 and rural Maya mobilizations, 314, 323 land speculation, 81, 145
Index

land surveying, 96
and Q’eqchi’ memories of land possession, 109 and Q’eqchi’ role in, 166 land surveying and titling, 91 and coffee plantation labor acquisition, 79 high costs of, 87
and indigenous memories and archives, 92 and labor acquisition for coffee plantations, 85 and lack of guaranteed secure ownership, 87 and Maya cosmography, 92 and Maya political marginalization, 85
and native mediation, 93
and Q’eqchi’ historical memory of land use, 91 and reinforcement of Maya communal bonds, 91 and remaking of territories, 109 and renegotiation of local political power, 79 land tenure arrangements, 17, 38 land titles/titling, 91, 100, 359 and conflicts over boundaries, 100 imprecision of, 79
and Mayas, 87
and social anxieties, 87 landless proletariat, 50 landowners, and fear of 1945 constitution, 327 Latin America
and anti-dictatorship sentiment during World War II, 314 and anti-European regionalism, 222 and colonialism, 20
and metanarrative of democracy, 222 and racialized exclusion, 20 Latin American elites, doubts about self-rule, liberal rights, and democracy, 13 legal equality, 76, 108 legitimacy, 39
Liberal clubs and associations, 29, 193, 195, 198–9, 212 and differentiation from others, 200, 208 and Estrada Cabrera, 199
and ladino nationalism, 193, 228
and ladino and Q’eqchi’ patriarchal membership, 199
and Minerva festivals, 220
and multiclass and multiracial membership, 199 and philanthropy, 204 and political patronage, 198, 203 and schools, 198
and social mobility, 208, 228
and social and moral uplift, 199 as tools of political resistance, 233 as vehicles for political patronage, 193 participation in and separation from indigeneity, 203 1954 coup and death of, 363 anti-aristocratic and egalitarian impulses, 202 and anticolonialism, 281
and ladino nationalism, 193 Liberal Party use of, 13
and Minerva festivals, 217
and nationalization of German properties, 312, 322 and neglect of republican aspects, 202 and promise of citizenship and emancipation, 13
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 106 and Q’eqchi’ Unionists, 236
and Q’eqchi’ unsettling of, 134 Q’eqchi’ use of, 13
and Unionist Club Freedom of the Indian, 235–6 and vagrancy law, 277 liberal developmentalism, 364–5 Liberal land privatization laws, 67, 81
Liberal modernization, 78 Liberal Party, 13
and coffee planters, 247
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 358
Liberal rebels, 74
Liberal reform, 79
abolition of Maya town councils, 80
and native mediation, 44 liberal republicanism, 37, 39 and caste hierarchy, 72 as threat to Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 72 Liberal revolution, 73
and state expansion, 80
Liberal state and abolition of Maya-controlled town councils, 4, 76
Index

Liberal state (cont.)
and conversion of Mayas into stable labor force for coffee production, 78 and dismantling of Maya caste hierarchy, 77, 80 and disruption of Q’eqchi’ reciprocity and mutual obligation, 78 and efforts to fix boundaries, 78, 80 and efforts to thwart Maya migration, 78, 80, 85 and erosion of Q’eqchi’ reciprocity and mutual obligation, 78 and formal equality, 80 and governability, 78
and institutionalization of land privatization, 4, 80 and institutionalization of mandamientos, 4, 78, 80, 82 and land privatization, 83
and mapping, 80
and modernity, 78
and political marginalization of Mayas, 78 and profitability, 78 and promotion of European immigration and land ownership, 78 and public works projects, 78 and racialized scheme of national progress, 78 and representation of Mayas as threats to national progress, 76, 78
and state expansion, 80
and undermining of Q’eqchi’ patriarchal authority, 109 liberalism, 7, 188
and dangers of extension to Mayas, 47 and limits of, 177 liberal-state ontologies, 147 limited citizenship, as defense against fascism and dictatorship, 327 literacy-based citizenship
and 1927 constitutional reforms, 257, 261
and discrimination against Mayas, 261
opposition to, 261
Livingston reforms, 46
Local Agrarian Committees, 345
Local Committee on Uncultivated Lands, 299 local democracy, and agrarian reform, 341 local governance, and native intermediaries, 36 Maya exclusion from, 2 local political power, 257 lower-class ladinos, and demands for justice and end to exploitation, 320 lower-class Q’eqchi’s and alliance with lower-class ladinos, 113 and resistance to mandamientos, 138 lower-class working women and challenge to patriarchal order, 194 increased numbers in Cobán, 197 and increased sexual and economic autonomy, 194, 197
and modernity, 194
and urban public spaces, 194 lower and middle classes, and postponed modernity, 361 management of difference, 308
and racial capitalism, 153
management of sentiments, and plantations, 177 mandamiento laborers, and pressures to enter commercial transactions, 117 mandamientos, 68–71, 83, 103, 113, 141, 146, 359, 371
abolition of, 139–44, 275
as anachronism, 114, 125, 140
and application to women and children, 116, 135 and associated costs for planters, 143 challenged in local courts, 233 and civil–religious hierarchy, 69
as civilizing force, 127–8 coffee planter opposition to abolition of, 140 coffee planter reliance on, 70 coffee planter violations of time specifications, 117–18
and coffee production, 4
and disembeddedness from social relations, 116 and disruption of communal norms, 113 and disruption of reciprocity, 115, 117–18 and disruption of subsistence and economic activities, 113, 116, 118 exemption requests, 116, 119–20, 122 and exploitation of Q’eqchi’ reciprocity and solidarity, 69 and hemispheric antislavery movements, 147 <table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Index</th>
<th>393</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>institutionalization of, 4, 80, 82  and insufficient remuneration for subsistence, 117  jailing of resisters to, 121  ladino control of, 116  Liberal administrative changes to, 115  and liberal–democratic metanarrative, 125  and lower-class Q’eqchi’ resistance to, 134  militarization of, 112  national debates over, 112, 117  opposition to reintroduction of, 258–9  and planter benefits, 69–70  political disputes over reinstatement, 258  and pressures on rural lower-class Mayas, 145  pro-abolition petitions and reports, 138  Q’eqchi’ flight from, 99, 112–13, 121, 130, 147  and Q’eqchi’ health, 116–17  and Q’eqchi’ moral crisis, 115  Q’eqchi’ patriarch efforts to protect commoners from, 359  Q’eqchi’ patriarch exemption requests, 107–8  and racial capitalism, 128  and racialization of Mayas, 115  reinstatement of by Conservative Party, 4  reintroduction of, 146, 232–3, 256, 258–9  as reintroduction of colonial repartimiento, 69  resistance to, 62  as slavery, 103, 112–13, 124–5, 135, 141  as solution to coffee labor shortages, 69  as threat to Q’eqchi’ autonomy, 116  as transgression of Q’eqchi’ morals, 119  as vestige of colonialism, 140, 142  and wage advances, 69  mapping, 86, 92  and capitalist expansion, 85  and labor acquisition for coffee plantations, 85  and land privatization, 86  and mandamientos, 85  and Maya cosmography, 86  and Maya knowledge, 109  and Maya political marginalization, 85  and plantation sovereignty, 168  and politics of postponement, 168  and production of new agricultural practices and social relations, 168  and Q’eqchi’ spirituality, 95  and Q’eqchi’ patriarch participation, 86  and state power, 95  and taxation, 85  masculinity, 107, 279  Maya agricultural and social practices: translation into civilizing metanarrative, 55  Maya assimilation, 329  Maya autonomy, threatened by labor and land demands, 115  Maya calendar, 16, 42  Maya caste hierarchy, 81, 233  Maya citizenship, 325  and Central American republic, 44  Conservative and Liberal limits to, 13  ladino fears of, 243  limited by 1927 constitutional reforms, 232  and politics of postponement, 238, 356  Maya civil–religious hierarchy, 340  and autonomy, 58  Maya class divides, 57–8  and rise of new intermediaries, 115  Maya commoners  and alarm at threat to subsistence production, 121  and constitutionalism as challenge to local authorities, 45  and inability of patriarchs to defend communal interests, 121  and Q’eqchi’ patriarch erosion of reciprocity, 121  Maya communal properties, privatization of, 80  Maya cosmography, 55  and Q’eqchi’ morality, 119  Maya cosmological landscapes, 79  Maya cosmology, and Xucanab’s revenge, 113  Maya culture, 307  folklorization of, 308, 362  German appropriation of, 30, 270, 291–2, 308  ladino appropriation of, 30, 270, 290, 308  persecution of, 269–70, 308, 310  and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs’ efforts to reassert authority, 30</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Maya culture (cont.)

- Q’eqchi’ patriarchs’ uses of, 270
- Q’eqchi’ patriarchs as true representatives of, 303
- racialization of, 51, 285
- relegation to the past, 280, 308
- state appropriation of, 292
- as threat to modernity, 310
- Maya folklorization, 269, 306
- and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 304
- Maya historical memories, 313, 354
- Maya institutions, and coffee planter co-optation of, 71
- Maya knowledge
  - appropriation of, 292
  - use in ladino and European land petitions, 93
- Maya labor
  - appropriation of, 63
  - and increased demand for, 73
  - pursuit of by local officials, 122
- Maya land, alienation of, 63
- Maya land titling, and risks of, 87
- Maya leadership structures, co-optation of
  - Conservatives, 80
- Maya medicine, 288
  - commodification of, 289, 292
  - as threat to national health and safety, 288
- Maya migration, 66, 85, 91, 98–100
  - planter efforts to thwart, 185
- Maya mobilizations, 323–5
- Maya ontologies, 147
  - historic justice and reciprocity and solidarity, 313
- Maya peasant activists
  - and efforts to end coerced labor and vagrancy laws, 225
  - and political parties, 331
- Maya peasant economy, 38, 59
- Maya peasants
  - and disruption of racial and social hierarchies, 350
  - and efforts to propel October Revolution from below, 331
  - and mobilization for land, 355
  - rounded up as vagrants, 332
- Maya political activism, and racial darkening, 350
- Maya political agency
  - and 1865 Yat rebellion, 38
- disavowals of, 38
- and ladino fears of, 243
- Maya political marginalization, and
  - Liberals, 78
- Maya political mobilization
  - and coffee planter efforts to thwart, 339
  - and escalating violence and retribution, 233
  - and political representation, 244
- Maya political ontologies, 307, 310
  - active disavowal of by state officials and coffee planters, 7
  - in expansion of capitalism, 371
  - persecution of, 309
- Maya practices, as anachronistic, 5
- Maya practices of solidarity and reciprocity, policing of, 309
- Maya resistance to capitalism, portrayed as backwardness, 4
- Maya rights as citizens, 239
- Maya rituals, and social mobility, 58
- Maya seasonal migration, 51–4
  - and autonomy, 54
  - and coffee planters’ efforts to end, 170
  - and microclimates, 51–4
- Maya sexual labor, and German nationalism, 298
- Maya smallholders, and debt, 134
- Maya subsistence production, 131
  - disruption of, 63
  - need of reforms to protect, 131
- Maya territorial sovereignty and autonomy, 17
- Maya town councils, Liberal abolition of, 80
- Mayas
  - as agents of modernization, 305
  - and alcohol-related arrests, 283
  - as anachronisms, 76, 113, 233, 261, 368
  - and association with unproductive labor, 279
  - commodification of, 151
  - contestation of racialization, 113
  - and demands for justice and end to exploitation, 320
  - and desire for citizenship, 266
  - and desire for land and subsistence production, 266
  - and marginalization from local political power, 83
  - as noncitizens, 270
  - and politics of postponement, 5
Index

racialization of, 4–5, 113, 125, 127–8, 130, 148, 151, 205, 238, 260, 265, 307, 309 as relics, 270 represented as aliens to modernity, 368 represented as incapable of capitalism, 161 represented as lacking economic desires, 125 represented as threats to national progress, 5, 125, 368 and small-scale coffee production, 159 and vagrancy laws, 276 and visions of regional economy, 108 Mayas resistance, racialization of, 73 Méndez Montenegro, Julio César, 321, 364 merchant creditors, 63 mestizaje, 30, 233, 252–6, 266, 362 between Germans and Mayas, 266 calls for, 255 and European immigration, 254 interwar celebration of, 255–6 and racial improvement, 252–6 Mexican Revolution, 29, 223–4, 362 microclimates, 52–3 middle class, and anti-fascist coalition, 312 middle-class professionals, and opposition to Ponce Vaides, 320 military coup, 251 military officers, 324 and anti-fascist coalition, 320 military repression, 364 millennial revolt, 28 milpas, 50, 65, 143, 247 Minerva festivals, 191–2, 216–22 as access to Western civilization, 11, 29, 191–2, 219 and citizenship, 218 as civilization of the poor, 218–19 and corruption, 221 criticism of, 221 as display of Guatemala on world stage, 192 and education, 192, 217, 219 and Estrada Cabrera dictatorship, 219–21 and foreign investment, 191 and increasing disgust with, 222 and ladino agency, 195 as liberal-democratic and civilizing metanarratives, 217 and modernity, 217 and national unity, 216 and politics of postponement, 191–2 and progress, 192, 217 and Q’eqchi’ and ladino participants and organizers, 11, 219 and silencing of racial discourses, 219 as staged spectacles, 193, 216, 219 as symbols of reign of terror, 193 minimum wage increases, 338 Ministry of Development, 140 Ministry of the Interior, 100, 105, 340 Ministry of Labor, and uneven enforcement of labor laws, 336 Misiones Ambulantes de Cultura Inicial, 330 mixed-race children, 254 German legal recognition of, 317 mixed-town councils, 4 modernity, 12, 21, 75, 270, 365, 370 and civilizing metanarrative, 14 and coerced labor, 281 as contested historical processes, 22 contested notions of, 113 desires for, 196 as ethical imperative to change, 14 and Eurocentrism, 12 and forward movement of time, 14 geographical and temporal locations of, 7 and infrastructure, 280 ladino aspirations to, 196 ladinos’ notions of, 196 and liberal–democratic metanarrative, 14 liberal–democratic notions of, 196 and linear time, 37 metanarratives of, 18, 30 as particular temporality, 14 and politics of postponement, 151 postponement of, 10, 188 Q’eqchi’ alternatives, 371 Q’eqchi’ patriarchs’ aspirations to, 196 Q’eqchi’ patriarchs’ notions of, 196 and slavery, 28 and social betterment, 196 and struggles over the meaning of, 22 and technological progress, 196 threats to, 20 unfulfilled expectations of, 298 urban space as projection of, 211 Western culture and, 196 modernization, 270, 281, 293 and time, 14 moral crises, and competing ontologies, 122 morality, 208
mountain spirit ethics, 16 mountain spirits/deities, 52, 114, 128 multiracial sociability, and honor, 215 municipal boundaries fluidity of, 79
and mandamientos, 98
and Q’eqchi’i patriarch challenges to, 101–2
and taxation, 98
municipal conflicts and Maya labor for public works, 337 and planter location strategies, 100 municipal council elections, and political platforms, 340 municipal councils, 44, 258, 337 and labor law applicability, 328 and opposition to mandamiento drafts, 258 and opposition to reintroduction of mandamientos, 258–9 Q’eqchi’i marginalization from, 280 and Q’eqchi’i political mobilization, 245 and urban improvement, 212 municipal elections, 340 municipal intendentes system, 272, 274–5 municipal memorias, 209
municipal officials and reproduction of Q’eqchi’i patriarchal reciprocity, 279
and vagrancy laws, 279
municipal politics, and national political parties, 340 mutual aid societies, 195 and social hierarchies, 204 and uniting of Q’eqchi’i and ladino men, 202 narratives of the past, as justification for coercion, 259–60 National Agricultural Department, 344 national boundaries, 307
National Defense Committee Against Communism, 352 National Police, 270, 272, 282 national progress
Germans as hindrance to, 322 Q’eqchi’i role in, 137
threats to, 76
and work, 261
National Renovation Party, 321 nationalism, 269, 293. See also anti-German nationalism; German nationalism; ladino nationalism; Nazism; Tezulutlán and articulation through moral economy, 136 and gender, 136
and modernity, 12
nationalized German properties debated in Constitutional Assembly, 327 expectations for redistribution of, 325 redistribution of, 314
and rural laborer demands for redistribution, 8 nationalized plantations, 321, 325, 334, 339 and abuses of laborers, 337–8 and administrator unwillingness to implement the law, 338 and anti-reform administrators, 349 as bastions of conservative politics, 339 debate over use of, 325 debates over in Constitutional Assembly, 327 and demands for redistribution of, 328, 332 and denial of worker benefits, 338 and efforts to limit reform, 339
and efforts to thwart Maya political participation, 340
labor strikes, 338–9
and laborer requests for Ministry of Labor intervention, 338
and patronage politics, 335 and plantation sovereignty, 337–8
redistribution of, 314
and requests to plant or rent property, 328 as source of state income, 334 unauthorized redistribution of, 335 and violent physical punishment, 338 and worker demands for higher wages, 328 Nationalized Plantations Department, 344 native mediation, 23–4, 36–9, 41–2, 64, 240, 275, 358
and 1865 Yat rebellion, 358
and administration of colonial society, 39 and Catholic Church, 43 and colonial administration, 41–3 and communal consensus, 24
Index

397 crisis of, 36, 49, 78, 109, 339–60 and cultural translations, 22 and definition of communal boundaries of inclusion/exclusion, 24 and democratic constitutions, 38 and fincas de mosoz, 240 and hybrid colonial culture, 42 new forms of, 266

and state sovereignty, 36 and transition to capitalism, 24 and translations between Catholicism and Maya religion, 42 Nazi Party. See Nazism
Nazism, 11, 293, 295, 315, 365
and anti-communism, 293
and anti-communist appeal to German coffee planters, 295 and German associational life, 294 and mixed-race families, 317
and racial purity, 296
Now-Time (Jetzt-Zeit), and disruption of coerced labor and land dispossession, 6 October Revolution, 11, 313, 343 and challenge to civilization metanarrative, 325 and challenges to Maya relegation to the past, 355
and coerced labor, 325
and Cold War in Latin America, 363 and decentralization of state executive power, 326
and deepening of local democracy, 313
and Europeans as anachronistic feudal agents, 325 and expectations of land redistribution, 12 and fears about Maya preparedness for civic participation, 326
and historical time, 355
and land and labor reform, 343 as many revolutions, 355 and Maya peasant efforts to propel through political parties, 331
and modernization, 313, 325
and modified liberal–democratic narrative, 343 multiple meanings of, 313 and nationalism of German properties, 313 and racial darkening/whitening, 350–1
and radicalization from below, 355
and radicalization of Maya peasants, 326 and recognition of political parties, 327 and redistribution of nationalized German plantations, 325 and relegation of Mayas to the past, 326 and rise of partisan politics, 340 as separation from past, 325 shaped by World War II, 325 and social reforms to limit planter sovereignty, 313 and state intervention to civilize Mayas, 326 and transition to modern capitalism, 342 and unpaid labor, 325 and unwillingness to return German properties, 334
and vagrancy laws, 325
and World War II, 313
Operation Ashes (Operación Ceniza), 368
Orellana, José María, 250, 257
Pacay Turkheim, Jesús, 339, 353
Panztós massacre, 366–7
PAR controlled-municipalities, 341 parcialidades, 59, 88 partial territorial sovereignty. See planter sovereignty Partido General de Trabajadores, 366
Partido Liberal Auténtico, 353 Partido Renovación Nacional, 321 partisan politics, 241, 339–40
as challenge to Maya civil–religious hierarchy, 340
as challenge to Q‘eqchi’ patriarchy, 331 and challenge to reciprocity of municipal politics, 340 and ladino reformers, 331 and Maya peasant activists, 331
and October Revolution, 340
as rupture of civil–religious hierarchy, 340
and rural labor unions, 339
Party of German National Socialist Workers. See Nazi Party patricial bonds, 366
patricial politics, 366
Patricia violence, 324–6
Peace Accords in 1996, 370
Index

peaceful conquest, 8, 269, 294, 363 commendations of, 300, 302 German interpretations of, 303 meanings of, 300, 302
and racial purity, 303
romanticized mythologies of, 301 peasant subsistence economy and coffee labor shortages, 68 and undesirability of working outside community, 68
Peasant Unity Committee, 366
periodization disciplining power of, 357 and management of difference, 18, 76
and the modern versus the nonmodern, 15
and racialization of difference, 357 philanthropy, 199
physical punishment, 178 plantation debt, and Q’eqchi’ reciprocity, 177–8
plantation dependency, and Q’eqchi’ norms of mutual obligation and reciprocity, 177–8 plantation economy, 28, 361 and women, 171
plantation labor and time, as essential part of plantation value, 176 plantation patriarchal politics and affection and sexual violence, 183–4 challenged by laborers, 246 and gendered hierarchy of paternal care, 171
and nationalized plantations, 337
and Q’eqchi’ contestation of, 249
and reproduction of racialized difference, 180
and romanticized mythologies interracial love, 183–4
use of Q’eqchi’ patriarchal norms, 184–5 and violence against resident laborers, 170 plantation sexual labor economy, 10, 150, 182–3, 298, 308, 360
and German-Q’eqchi’ unions, 308 plantation space, rural Q’eqchi’ repossession of, 245 plantations. See also other entries beginning with “plantation” administrators of, and racialized and gendered hierarchies, 171 boundaries of, 167
hierarchy on, and gender, race, and class, 171
illegal detention on, 170 jails on, 169
labour management strategies on, 179 as loss of social and economic reproduction, 179
as moral decay, 179
oversight of laborers on, and alcaldes auxiliares and caporales, 171 rural hierarchy, 177
as space of contention, 170
state officials, 171
wages on, 176 planters. See also coffee planters; German coffee planters; planter sovereignty; Q’eqchi’ coffee planters abuses, 233, 236
debt, and 1897 coffee crisis, 155 patriarchal politics, 350 planter sovereignty, 139, 162, 171, 185, 187, 240, 275, 345, 350, 360, 362 and affective politics, 158
and agrarian reform, 344–5 challenged by Q’eqchi’ political mobilization, 232
and coffee planters, 152
and Decrees 1995 and 1996, 276 incompleteness of, 158
legacies of, 333
limits imposed by October Revolution, 313
and limits of liberalism’s promise, 185 and management of state officials on plantations, 171
and nationalization of German properties, 325
and October Revolution, 324
Q’eqchi’ challenges to, 362
Q’eqchi’ Unionist challenges to, 236 and sexual and racial violence, 349 state challenges to, 270, 272
threats to, 336
police, 287. See also secret police and rural state expansion, 284
police state, 309 political clubs, 198 political competition, 340 political emancipation, 2 Q’eqchi’ Unionista demands for, 235 political legitimacy, 41 political parties, 327, 331 political polarization, 246 1950 presidential election, 339
political prisoners, 351 political repression, 220, 250–1, 257–8, 272–3, 282, 306, 310 and radicalization, 251 political violence, 243, 249–50, 266, 367 as backlash to 1920 elections, 243–4 and countryside, 250
and nationalization of German properties, 326 politics of postponement, 5–6, 20, 30, 125, 152, 161, 168, 188, 221, 236, 266, 269, 310, 326, 361
and 1932 agrarian reform, 346
and 1934 coup, 363
and August 1920 elections as rupture, 243 challenged by labor strikes and land invasions, 362 and charges of anachronism, 5
and citizenship, 357
and coerced labor, 20
and demand for Maya labor, 73 and demands for expansion of democracy, 229 and dispossession, 20 and enclosure, 20
and forced labor, 20
and free wage labor, 357, 359 as justification for coerced labor and limits on democratic participation, 6 and laborer debt, 176 and ladino backlash against Q’eqchi’ political mobilization, 244 Maya disruption of, 265 and Maya historical immaturity, 127 and Mayas as alien to modernity and as socially deviant, 288 Minerva festivals as end to, 219 and protopopulism, 193
Q’eqchi’ challenges to, 233
and Q’eqchi’ contestation of, 7 Q’eqchi’ inversion of, 6
and Q’eqchi’ memories of land possession, 30 Q’eqchi’ rejection of, 236 and racialized plantation economy, 361
and state fairs, 307
and Unionist Club Freedom of the Indian, 236
and Unionist Club Freedom of the Indian petition, 237
and violence, 20
Ponce, Fidel, 124
Ponce Vaides, Federico, 312, 320, 324, 363
and anti-German nationalism, 321
and appeals to nationalism, 313 and appeals to rural Mayas, 313 and creation of Department of National and Intervened Plantations, 321 and differentiation from fascism, 321 and experience in Alta Verapaz, 321 and expropriation of German assets, 321
and nationalization of German properties, 312, 321, 363
overthrow of, 324
urban opposition to, 321, 323–4 and validation of popular demands, 321 Pop, Victoriano, 77, 96, 104 popular justice, 293 Popular Liberation Front, 321 popular masculinity, 273 popular memory, 260 popular sovereignty, 44, 358 populism, 361
Portocarrero, J. M. Eduardo, 228–9 postcolonial nations, and racialized violence, 372 Preventive and Penal Law Against Communism, 352 primitive accumulation, 26 private property, 59, 108 privatized mandamientos, 143 Proclaimed List, 316–18 production of difference, as a tool of labor management, 19 progress as linear and developmental, 14 postponement of, 188
and racial difference, 78 Progressive Liberal Party, 263 prostitution, 197, 205, 207, 243, 282, 284
and racial anxieties, 128, 243 as threat to national health and welfare, 284 protopopulism, 201, 214, 228 public health, 207
and racial degeneration, 197
Index

El Qʾeq, 24, 28, 150, 152–3, 188, 361
- as inversion of Qʾeqchiʾ ethics, 150, 168–9, 178–9, 186, 361
- and limited Maya mobility, 153
- and plantation discipline and surveillance, 168–9, 361
- and plantation sexual labor economy, 182–3, 186, 161
- and planter sovereignty, 153–4, 158, 361
- as Qʾeqchiʾ interpretation of plantation life, 152–3
- and racial capitalism, 28, 153–4, 158, 165, 187, 361

Qʾeqchiʾ archival records, value of, 87
- Qʾeqchiʾ autonomous peasant economy, as threat to coffee export production, 51
- Qʾeqchiʾ coffee plantations and denial of mandamiento exemptions, 107–8
- and lack of state recognition, 359
- Qʾeqchiʾ coffee planters, 106, 108–9, 259.
  See also coffee planters; planters and efforts to protect commoners from excessive labor demands, 109
- and ineffectiveness in securing mandamiento exemptions, 119
- and state refusal to recognize, 107–8, 161
- Qʾeqchiʾ commoners and accountability of Qʾeqchiʾ patriarchs, 43
- and autonomous peasant economy, 51
- and communal solidarity and reciprocity combined with individualism, 51
- and disenfranchisement, 48
- and frustration with Conservative policies, 49
- and increased demands on labor, 49, 109
- and lack of representation from Qʾeqchiʾ patriarchs, 49
- and patriarch appropriation of communal land, 132
- and popular sovereignty, 44
- and Qʾeqchiʾ patriarch inability to defend interests of, 120
- and revolts against patriarchs, 49
- and search for new intermediaries, 120
- and state monopolies on alcohol production, 49
- and undermined access to communal resources, 49

Qʾeqchiʾ communities and coexistence of communal reciprocity and liberal individualism, 63
- and construction of coffee plantations, 86
- and divisions between patriarchs and commoners, 145
- and erosion of communal solidarity and reciprocity, 132
- obstacles to coffee production, 62
- and representative accountability, 48
- and transformation of communal properties into private properties, 86
- Qʾeqchiʾ concubines, and German abandonment narrative, 298
- Qʾeqchiʾ democratic ideologies, 49
- Qʾeqchiʾ ethics of reciprocity and solidarity, 181
- Qʾeqchiʾ historical memories, 12, 355
- Qʾeqchiʾ insurrectionary politics, 232
- Qʾeqchiʾ laborers and demands on, 73, 110
- and labor actions during harvest, 250
- and labor strikes, 246
- and land invasions, 246
- racialization of through debt and dependency, 176
- and resistance to planters, 153
- Qʾeqchiʾ memories of land possession, 109
- and 1952 agrarian reform, 347–8
- and Decree 900 petitions, 348
- and plantation boundaries, 167
- Qʾeqchiʾ moral crisis, 69, 110
- and coffee production, 115
- and mandamientos, 115
- and privatization of communal lands, 115
- and Xucaneb’s revenge, 120
- Qʾeqchiʾ patriarch–commoner relations, 86 deterioration of, 73, 122
- rupture of, 114
- Qʾeqchiʾ patriarch–ladino indigenista alliances, 114, 122, 134, 147, 195
- Qʾeqchiʾ patriarch–Liberal alliances, 116
- Qʾeqchiʾ patriarchs. See also native mediation and accumulation of wealth, 61
- as agents of national progress, 107, 134, 117–8, 159–61
- and alliances with Conservatives, 86
- and appropriation of communal land, 133
- and assertion of superiority over European planters, 137 attempts to represent rural Mayas, 330
and citizenship, 200
and civilization, 200
and civilizing metanarrative, 107, 113
as coffee planters, 61–2, 78, 88–9, 134
and coffee production, 86, 159
and cofradías, 134, 306 and combination of patriarchal politics with liberal individualism, 184 and competition for land with immigrant settlers, 103
and conflict resolution, 57 and critiques of European coffee planters, 107, 137
and defense of commoners, 107 and democratic challenges, 28 and differentiation from Maya plantation laborers, 195, 199, 304 and efforts to protect commoners from coerced labor and land dispossession, 10 and efforts to title parcialidades and private lands for coffee planting, 88 and efforts to title tierras baldías, 89 and erosion of local political power, 134 and failure to protect commoners from state intervention, 119 and failure to represent commoner interests, 36, 73
as guardians of Maya culture, 293 and inability to protect commoners, 359 and individual titles to communal land, 359
and ladino nationalism, 195
and land claims, 90
and land distribution, 47, 59, 92 and land petition disputes, 98 and legitimacy, 43
and legitimation of land ownership, 89 and legitimation of new property regimes, 92
and liberal discourses and metanarratives, 78, 89, 106–7
and mandamiento exemption requests, 88, 119
and marginalization on town councils, 240 and membership in Liberal clubs and associations, 199
and modernity, 193, 280
and petition for abolition of
mandamientos, 126
and political corruption, 36
and politics of postponement, 188
and postponed modernity, 188
and purchase of land as private property, 67
and relations with rural Mayas, 306 and representation of commoner interests, 43, 48–9
and resolution of disputes, 43 self-representation as protectors of indigenous race, 137 and social betterment, 196
and social mobility, 193
and state refusal to recognize as coffee planters, 119, 136
and strategic appropriation of folklorized Maya culture, 306
and strategic self-representation, 304 and transformation of communal land into private coffee plantations, 109 and translation of reciprocity and solidarity into capitalism and
mandamientos, 69–70
Q’eqchi’ political mobilization, 248, 250
and articulations of communal solidarity, 250
and challenge to coffee planter
sovereignty, 232
and demand for control over municipal councils, end to debt contracts, and full rights as citizens, 232
and electoral politics, 232–3
and indigenous-only municipal councils, 244
and labor strikes, 233
and ladino backlash, 244
and land invasions, 233
and local political parties, 333
and local political power, 245
meanings of, 249–50
and political violence as response, 232 and promises of liberalism, 232 and racialization of Mayas as anachronisms, 233
and redefinition of Q’eqchi’ mediation, 233 and repression, 257–8
and responses of violence and retribution, 7 and unsettling of Alta Verapaz social and political order, 232 and violent reprisals and persecution, 266 Q’eqchi’ political modernities, 2 Q’eqchi’ political ontologies, 6, 22, 369, 371 military dismantling of, 370
and modernity, 21
and modernization, 79
Q’eqchi’ political power, 72
Q’eqchi’ rural-to-urban migration, 205–6 and disruption of racial boundaries, 206 and social dislocation caused by expansion of coffee production, 206 Q’eqchi’ spirituality cave ritual, 111, 115, 130–1 dangerous potential of, 259 ritual pilgrimages, 95
Q’eqchi’ subsistence economy, 63 as indispensable to settler visions of progress and freedom, 63 perceived as backward, 63 Q’eqchi’ territorial claims, and historical time and lineage, 60 Q’eqchi’ Unionists, 29, 235–6 and abolition of debt contracts, 29 and contestation of politics of postponement, 6 and electoral support for Carlos Herrera, 239 and Maya citizenship, 29
Q’eqchi’ villages, and disagreements over land petitioning or purchase, 98 Q’eqchi’ women and acclimatization of German immigrants, 181 as concubines, 10, 360
as cooks, 10
as domestic and sexual servants on plantations, 182 as domestic servants, 360 and response to sexual violation, 183 and restoration of honor in courts, 183 Q’eqchi’–Germans, 254, 297
and 1952 agrarian reform, 346
and agrarian reform, 348–9 as allies of the masses, 254 and betrayals by German fathers, 298 and coexistence of interracial unions and Nazism, 297 and genealogical time, 297
as intermediaries, 254
as low-level state employees, 287 and petitions for fathers’ land, 353–4 and petitions for fathers’ expropriated property, 335 as reformers, 331
and troubling of political and racial boundaries, 351 and unfulfilled expectations about modernity, 298 as unstable social class, 254–5 Q’eqchi’ s and belief in wage labor, 337 challenge to liberal-democratic narrative and to narrative of state territorial sovereignty, 8 and challenge to obligatory labor for municipal councils, 336 and contestation of temporal categorization, 147 and declarations of freedom, 249 and efforts to produce coffee, 159 and efforts to title land, 88 and need for wage advances, 279 and participation in land surveying, 18, 109 and role in production of scientific geographies, 109 racial anxieties
and nationalization of German properties, 323
and urban space, 128 racial capitalism, 28, 114, 148, 151, 188, 336, 358, 361–2 consolidation of, 28, 114
and fincas de mozos, 151–3, 162
and management of difference, 151 racial darkening, 350–1 racial degeneration, 197 and alcohol, 281–4
and disease, 197
and exploitation, 106, 113
and urban space, 194, 197
racial hierarchies, 259
and 1927 constitutional reforms, 260
and coffee plantations, 360
Q’eqchi’ s challenges to, 233 reassertion of for Maya labor recruitment, 257 racial improvement, 253, 268, 361 and class mobility over time, 19
and genealogical time, 298 and historical immaturity, 19
and mestizaje, 254
Index

racial order ladino fears of disruption of, 244
legacies of, 353
Q’eqchi’ disruptions of’, 250 racial purity, and German interpretations of peaceful conquest, 303 racial regeneration, 106
and coerced labor, 128
racial silencing, 195 racial violence, and nationalization of German properties, 326 racial whitening, 19–20, 194, 202, 252–6, 350–1
and anti-communism, 350–1
and civilizing metanarrative, 84
and mestizaje, 253
and October Revolution, 350–1
and urban public spaces, 194
racialization
and coerced labor, 104
and exclusion, 20
and modernization, 148
and progress, 148
racialized class boundaries, disruptions of, 128 racialized discourse, global shifts in, 329 rape, 182–3 reciprocity, 20, 38, 42, 48, 51, 59, 73, 115, 250, 266, 313, 336, 358–9 disruption of, 78, 108, 110, 304, 359
and labor sharing, 57
and Maya cosmography, 119
and Maya efforts to recreate on plantations, 167 and Maya peasant economies, 38 and plantation debt and dependency, 177–8 and Q’eqchi’ contestation of unpaid public works labor, 337
racialization of, 51
reducciones, 39
Regional Planter Association, 340
Reina Barrios, José María, 142
and abolition of mandamientos, 142 assassination of, 146 and reintroduction of mandamientos, 146 repartimientos, 41, 68–9 Republican Party, 243
resident laborers, 67, 88–9, 128–9, 138, 142, 146, 164, 171 and autonomous spaces on fincas de mozons, 153 as capital, 176
and coffee planter removal of access to subsistence land, 170 and contract violations, 173 demasculation of, 171–2 and dependency on coffee planters, 173 efforts to increase autonomy, 360 efforts to limit planter power, 360 and efforts to recreate Q’eqchi’ ethics on plantation, 167 and languages of slavery, 234 and loss of autonomy and self-governance, 177 and marking Tz’utul’a sites, 167 Q’eqchi’ patriarch translation of commoners into, 88 and resistance on fincas de mozons, 163 and resistance to planter dependency, 170 and self-regulation, 169 and spaces of agency and autonomy, 170 subistence production as subsidy for coffee production, 170 violence against, 170 revolutionary indigenismo, 329, 331 revolutionary millenarianism, 112, 121 Revolutionary Spring, 314, 354. See also October Revolution revolutionary time, 236, 262, 265, 346 Reyes, Celso V., 231, 250
Ríos Montt, Efrain, 368 road construction, and unpaid labor, 274, 281 Rossignon, Julio, 37, 63, 66 rumors, 260
as cultural knowledge, 123 rural discontent, 73, 268 rural education, 313, 162 rural labor unions, 331, 339–40
as challenge to Maya civil-religious hierarchy, 340
prohibition of, 329
and pressures for reform from below, 339 spread of, 339
rural Maya expectations, and land and labor reform, 332 rural migrants, 207 rural modernization, 268, 280 rural peasant leaders, violence against, 352 rural peasants and workers and demands for redistribution of nationalized plantations to workers, 328
and democracy and social equality in October Revolution, 313
and radicalization of October Revolution, 313
rural Q’eqchi’, 6
and agrarian communities, 331
and agrarian reform, 345
and agrarian reform as historic justice, 343
and challenges to patriarchal plantation
politics, 246
and flight from plantations, 246 and historic justice of agrarian reform, 348
and invocation of civilizing and liberal– democratic metanarratives, 138
and labor strikes, 246
and land invasions of coffee plantations, 6
and liberal–democratic metanarrative, 138 meaning of rights and freedom to, 246 and mobilization against unpaid labor and for redistribution of nationalized
plantations, 331
and municipal councils, 337 and opposition to local power of Q’eqchi’ patriarchs and ladinos, 340 and revolution from below, 326
and rural labor unions, 331
and security of fincas de mozos, 164 and troubling of political and racial boundaries, 351
and vagrancy laws, 331
rural racial tensions, 324 rural-to-urban migration, 129 and urban racial anxieties, 204–16 Russian Revolution, 29, 223, 362
San Juan Chamelco, 65, 292
San Pedro Carchá, 35, 39, 65, 77, 80, 86, 101, 115, 186, 244
sanitation, 243–4, 268, 271, 274–5, 357, 362
and racial and class boundaries, 243–4 and social and political disorder, 324 sanitation officers, 272, 287
Santa Cruz, Rosendo, 146
Sapper, Karl, 152, 158, 302–3
Sapper, Richard, 104–5, 156–7, 165, 246, 249, 251, 260
Saxcoc, 5, 85, 88, 98 scorched-earth campaign, 367 seasonal time, 40
seasonal work, 70
secret police, 235
sedition, 63, 111, 115, 239 shamanism, 16, 42, 269–70, 282, 284–8, 362
as anachronism, 285
and coffee planters, 286
National Police campaign against, 285 as nonmodern, 285 persecution of as anti-modern, 362
racialization of, 286
as threat to public health, 285–6
Sierra, Pablo, 38, 65–6, 123
Sillah, 92, 96
slavery, 2, 8, 13, 28, 113, 116, 124, 138, 277
and mandamientos, 124
and protests of resident laborer status, 234 social deviancy, 288
as threat to modernity, 282
social justice, Q’eqchi’ unfulfilled desires for, 310
social mobility, 193, 204, 267
and ladino nationalism, 194
and Liberal clubs and associations, 208
and Q’eqchi’ patriarchs, 193 social security, 313
and 1945 constitution, 327 social welfare, 199, 214 and discipline and mobility, 204 solidarity, 20, 51, 57–9, 250, 266, 313, 358
disruption of, 29, 304, 359
and labor sharing, 57
space, 17
construction of, 17
Q’eqchi’ experiences of, 95
spies, 193, 272, 282 spiritual socialism, 325, 328 split national time, 270, 288, 309 staged modernization, 299 state discipline and surveillance, 282 state employment and aspirational ladinos and Q’eqchi’– Germans, 270, 280, 287, 309
Index

and national progress, 280
and participation in national progress, 287 and policing vagrancy, 362 state executive power centralization of, 274
decentralization of, 326 state expansion, 61, 73, 240, 268, 270–1, 274, 281, 284, 293, 359–60, 362, 371
and coffee production, 62
and Liberal reform, 79
and Liberals, 80, 359
and plantations, 275
and spies, 272
and state employment, 270, 280, 287 unevenness of, 360
state intervention, 258, 274
and Maya protection and assimilation, 329 and mothers, 280
and social justice and morality, 309 to weaken indigenous autonomy, 91 and workers, 280
state officials
and access to coffee plantations, 309 and pressure on Q’eqchi’ municipalities to rent land to settlers, 65 state territorial sovereignty, 17, 55, 370 limits of, 28, 177
state theater, 195. See also Minerva festivals state-directed modernization, 271, 280 students, 324
and anti-fascism, 316
and anti-fascist coalition, 312, 315, 320
and Constitutional Assembly, 326
and general strike, 320 and opposition to Ponce Vaides, 320 subalterns, and demands for justice and restitution, 26 subsistence crisis, 122 subsistence economies, 50 subsistence plots, 185 subsistence production, 20, 51, 57, 65, 266, 269–70
crisis of, 109
decline in, 164
disruption by coffee, 128 and gendered household economies, 57 and importance to Q’eqchi’ sociocultural worlds, 249 Maya loss of access to land for, 82 planter limitation of, 173 precarity of, 57, 164 rationalization of, 51, 84 regulation of, 357
and subsidization of coffee plantation labor, 68 as subsidy for coffee production, 117 threatened by labor and land demands, 115 suffrage, 44, 327
supernatural forces, 114, 121 surveillance, 123, 198, 244, 370 and Q’eqchi’ mobilization against, 249 Tanchi-Raxaha, 88–9, 106–7, 133, 145, 165, 346 taxation, 49, 78, 84
teachers, 324
and anti-fascist coalition, 312, 315, 320
and opposition to Ponce Vaides, 320 technical schools, 212
temporality, 31, 357
and civilization, 5, 75, 103
territorial sovereignty, 18, 39, 361 terror, 272, 363, 366
Tezulutlán, 30, 269, 300, 319, 363 and anti-German regional identity, 363 and anti-imperialism, 301
as anti-imperialist, 30 and ladino anti-German nationalism, 302 tierras baldias, 66, 89–90, 165
and fincas de mozos, 165
Q’eqchi’ lands designated as, 81 time, 12, 355, 358
accumulation of, 26
as central to political contests, 357
as civilizing force, 127
genealogical, 297
as liberatory, 358
and modernization, 14
Q’eqchi’ conceptions of, 16, 57, 113 as social construction, 15 subjectivity of, 15
time-knots, 9, 26, 37–8, 50–1, 358 1865 Yat rebellion as, 358
1952 agrarian reform as, 358 Tiel, Fabian, 88, 106, 133, 184, 346 town councils, 41
and marginalization of Q’eqchi’s on, 306
Tzuultaq’a(s), 16, 52, 55, 79, 92, 110–11, 119, 333, 347, 359. See also mountain spirits/deities; Xucaneb; Xucaneb’s revenge and agency, 16 agrarian shrines to, 55 army appropriation of, 368 and land surveying and titling, 93 and Q’eqchi’ ethics, 17, 56 and Q’eqchi’ patriarchal authority, 42 and similarities with German settlers, 333

Ubico, Jorge, 307 and annual inspection trips, 272–3, 293 and anti-communism, 263 and anti-German nationalism, 315 and appeal to middle- and lower-class desires for modernity, 30 and betrayal of promises of modernity as social justice, 309 and centralization of state power, 274, 293 and challenges to planter sovereignty, 30, 270, 272, 316 and choreographed spectacles, 270 and civilizing and liberal–democratic metanarratives, 271 and declaration of war on Germany and the Axis powers, 315 and departmental and national fairs, 299 and domestic pressure, 320 and economic nationalism, 300 and eugenics and sanitation programs, 274, 309 and extension of public services, 273 and fluid national boundaries, 307 forced resignation of, 312, 320 and indigenismo and marginalized rural and urban classes, 270 and management of difference, 308 and Maya folklorization, 269 and modernization, 293 and municipal intendentes system, 272, 274 and nationalism, 271 and persecution of Maya cultural practices, 269, 309–10, 362 and political repression, 30, 264–5, 272–4, 282, 293, 306 and politics of postponement, 269, 310 and popular justice, 293 and populism, 11, 273, 280, 293, 309 and repression of the labor movement, 264 and repudiation of Maya political ontologies, 310 and rhetoric of social justice and morality, 309 and road construction, 274 and rural education, 30, 362 and rural state expansion, 30, 270, 362 and rural support, 273 and sanitation, 362 and sanitation and eugenics programs, 11, 30 and split national time, 309 and state centralization, 30 and state discipline and surveillance, 282 and state expansion, 270–1, 273–6, 293, 309 and state intervention, 30, 270, 273–4, 280, 309 and strategic celebration of Maya culture, 309 and support for European fascists, 294 and suspension of constitutional guarantees, 320 and terror, 272 and US pressure, 315, 320 and vagrancy laws, 30, 277 validation of anti-fascism and overthrow, 315 Unionist Club Freedom of the Indian, 1, 29, 235, 237, 243, 235, 265 and abolition of debts, 265 and agency in national progress, 236 and coerced labor, 2, 4, 265 and demand for rights as citizens, 235 and demand for freedom of labor, 235 demands of and politics of postponement, 237 and languages of slavery, 2 and liberal–democratic metanarrative, 235–6 and political emancipation, 4 Maya citizenship rights, 265 petition, 235, 237 petition responses, 5, 237–9 petition to National Assembly, 235–6 politics of postponement as response to petition, 5 Unionist clubs, 234–5
Index

Unionist Party, 1, 29, 243, 246, 250–1 contradictory platform, 234
disinterest in indigenous classes, 251
and politics of postponement, 238 and unification of political opposition, 234 unpaid labor, 281, 325, 328, 336–7 rural Maya avoidance of, 337 and rural Maya contestation of, 336 and rural Maya mobilization, 331 unproductive laborers, 278–9 urban labor movement, 339 urban landscape, 211, 215 urban modernization, 29, 194, 204–16 and alliances between honorable lower and middle classes and elites, 209 and morality, 198
and sanitation, 198
urban plebeians, 204, 361 and confounded racial categorizations, 361 and honor, 208–9
and mobilization of discourses, 214–15 and shaping of city, 215 stigmatization of, 208 and urban social reforms, 208 urban racial anxieties, 204–16 urban reform, and racial and class boundaries, 244
urban space, 194, 207
as challenge to orderly progress, 194
and disease, 194, 197
and disruption of racial boundaries, 207 and ladino fears of social disorder, 198 modernization of, 227 ordering of as disciplining and empowering, 212
and patronage politics, 215
and racial anxieties, 128
and racial boundaries, 216
and racial degeneration, 194
remaking of, 211
and social and racial divisions, 215 and working women, 194
US government
and nationalization of German properties, 320
and support for 1914 coup, 351 usufructuary land rights, 59–61 vagrancy laws, 30, 233, 246, 272, 275–9, 282, 332, 357, 362
and coffee planters, 233, 279
contestation of charges under, 278–9
and liberal-democratic metanarrative, 277
and modernity, 282
and municipal officials, 279 and plantation labor supply, 276–7 and prohibition of boj production and consumption, 282
and racialization of Mayas, 278 rural Maya challenges to, 331, 337 and social deviance, 277–8 Vasconcelos, José, 252–3 Vela, David, 301
venereal disease, 136, 243, 284–5
Verapaz, 39, 62, 64, 72, 99
Verapaz railway, 153–5, 188
Villacorta, José, 122, 127 violence, 7, 170, 184, 246, 266, 345
and nationalized plantations, 338
and politicization, 243 and state and planter responses to Q’eqchi’ mobilization, 246 voter suppression, 244, 340 voting restrictions, 47 wage advances, 68–71, 82–3, 143, 156, 174, 279
and contracts, 143
and debt peonage, 280
and mandamientos, 82
prohibition of, 276, 280 return of as Maya rebellion, 249 wage labor market, 143 welfare associations, 29, 128, 193, 195, 198–9, 204, 212, 228
whipping, 170, 360
women, 202
and appeals to authorities to stop planter abuses, 172
and participation in mutual-aid and welfare societies, 202–3
as plantation cooks and corn grinders, 171
and plantation economy, 171 and state patronage, 202 working-class, and racial boundaries, 206 workers’ unions and cooperatives, 198
Index

World War I, 29, 222, 225, 362 and anti-German measures, 225 and disruption of trade and access to credit, 222
World War II, 30, 271, 310, 355
and anti-dictatorship sentiment in Latin America, 314
and disruption of trade, 310 and Guatemala’s entrance into, 11, 310, 314 influence on October Revolution, 325
and nationalization of German
properties, 314
Xucaneb, 28, 97, 110–11, 114–15
Xucaneb’s revenge, 28, 111–14, 147, 259–60, 360 and abolition of slavery, 124
and capitalism, 112
and class divisions between Q’eqchi’ commoners and patriachs, 120
and coffee production, 28, 120
and cross-racial alliances, 113, 128 and erosion of Maya subsistence economy, 120 interpreted through 1920s Q’eqchi’ political mobilization, 259–60 and Liberal modernity, 112–13
and mandamientos, 112–13 popular memories of, 114, 360 and private property, 28
and Q’eqchi’ moral crisis, 28, 113, 120–1 and Q’eqchi’ patriachs, 120 and racial hierarchies, 128 represented as revolt against labor and modernization, 130 represented as revolt against progress and modernity, 112
as time-knot, 360
Yat, Jorge, 27, 35–8, 49, 54, 56, 240, 260, 358
Ydígoras Fuentes, Miguel, 340, 354 zapadores, 142, 371